Individual use of the sensory isolation tank will be available to participants for an additional fee of $10.

Energy: Transmutation & Synthesis / Bernard Gunther

We are all almost unlimited sources of joyous energy. We squander these resources. Blocked by fear, habit, and limitation we dam ourselves with destructive expression: various forms of mental/physical illness. In this workshop we will learn to release, redirect and reintegrate behavior patterns through focusing on energy centers. The week will be a synthesis of gestalt, yoga, body awareness, psychosynthesis, hypnosis, and movement, with special emphasis on meditation and self-healing. $270

WEEKEND OF SEPTEMBER 19-21

Self Awareness and the Spirit of Play Bob & Marilyn Kriegel

There is increasing evidence indicating the value of play as a creative learning tool and an important element in contributing to an harmonious balance in an individual's life. This workshop is designed for the participants to gain a greater understanding of their intra and inter personal processes through the vehicle of active games.

Being in the here and now, mind/body harmony, individual responsibility, risk taking, stress, and spontaneity are inherent in active games, play, and the sporting experience. Individuals' behavior patterns in these activities are reflected within their everyday life situations.

Participants will focus on their behavior patterns in these activities, making connections to their everyday lives. We will also use the vehicle of games to experiment with changing some of these patterns. Specific awareness and self observation exercises as well as gestalt, role playing, and psychosynthesis techniques will be used. $110

The Art of Self-direction / Lenore Lefer

In this workshop we will explore and examine the nature of self-direction and the ways in which we can increase it in our lives. The degree to which we can discover, direct, and regulate our energies affects how productive, creative, and joyful we will be. In an atmosphere that is supportive and nourishing we will use gestalt awareness, encounter, massage, and psychosynthesis to learn and enhance the art of self-direction. $110

Psychodrama-Gestalt-Encounter / Leon Fine

This workshop will combine and compare the methods of gestalt therapy, psychodrama, and action encounter. $110

Gestalt Practice
Richard & Christine Price with Diana Becchetti

This workshop will combine gestalt practice, which is described in the July 13-18 workshop write-up, and Psychosynthesis work with Diana Becchetti, an associate of the Psychosynthesis Institute in Redwood City. $270

Experiencing Esalen / Janet Zuckerman & Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 32. $240

You & Universal Motion / Bob Nadeau

The physical conscious system operates in direct relationship to a larger energy activity or universal motion. It is important to recognize this activity as a "friend" and learn to work in harmony with it. We will explore energy and our "marriage" with it through meditation, centering, and body movement. $270

The Coming of Age
Ken Dychtwald, Gay Luce, & Wordon MacDonald

The possibilities of improved health, expanded awareness, and bodymind flexibility are surely not limited to people under fifty years of age. In fact, it is becoming more and more clear that many of the so-called "older" generation are as responsive to new experiences and self-improvement as their children and grandchildren.

With the help of simple breathing and relaxation techniques, gentle encounter, guided fantasy, and healing exercises drawn from massage, the Feldenkrais method, hatha yoga, and tai chi, we will be working towards a state of increased mental and physical health. People in the helping professions are also invited to participate. The pace and tone of this workshop will be geared to the specific needs and concerns of the participants.

This workshop is an extension of the Sage Project, a growth center for senior citizens in Berkeley, California. $110

Communication / Emmet & Nitza Miller

We begin with an introduction to self-hypnosis and Selective Awareness, use them for the deprogramming of unwanted images and habit patterns (limits), then move on to explore the experience of our body movement. Remaining centered, we will approach the interpersonal and group spaces along lines chosen by the group itself, emphasizing awareness of verbal and nonverbal communication and the continuum of stillness-movement. $110

Experiencing Esalen / Esalen Staff

south coast center

The living center is slowly evolving into a participatory environment

vital
changing
designing, redesigning inner and outer space with residents responsible for their own evolution.

The South Coast Center, located a mile and a half north of Esalen, is a living center for people who would like to be in contact with Esalen and its facilities but who are not interested in an intensive workshop program. Studios (with balcony, and bath) are available for $350 per month. A monthly meal ticket may be purchased at Esalen for $200 and residents may set up light cooking facilities in their rooms for preparing their own meals. Laundry [illegible] available for a small monthly charge and [illegible] sauna are available at no extra cost. South [illegible] be reserved through the Esalen / Big Sur office.

WORK- SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAM

A special residence program at Esalen / Big Sur is available for those unable to afford the ongoing residential program. Room and board is $300 per four week period, based on shared accomodation of three students to a room at our South Coast Living Center. Participants are given a reduced fee for workshops offered in the catalog during their stay. In exchange for the special rate participants pay in this program, 16 hours of work per week is required. Members of the Esalen staff are available to help integrate work-scholars' activities with ongoing Esalen programs and to provide general direction and consultation. There are also opportunities for interested participants to work in gestalt, encounter, etc., with one another and with staff. The program is 28 days beginning on a Sunday. Acceptance into the program is contingent upon approval of a scholarship application. No person is admitted for longer than 28 days at a time. To apply, write: Elaine Simon, Esalen Work Scholarship Program, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.

WEEK OF SEPTEMBER 28-OCTOBER 3

Movement / Gabrielle Roth

This workshop is specifically designed for persons in the helping professions. Our purpose will be to explore movement as a tool to be adapted to your professional needs. Movement is a discovery process of the self. We will share movement experiences to increase awareness of self—of self in relation to another—of self in relation to the group.

Please send a letter communicating briefly about yourself and your professional involvement so that your personal needs may be considered. $270 + $2 video fee.

Self-Image vs Self-Actualization / Paul Rebillot

What are our social images? our family images? our professional images? How does the image of what we ought to be compare with what we see in the mirror? Does this comparison limit or nurture our enjoyment of ourselves? What price do we pay for our facades? How much of our true selves must be killed off and how much can be allowed to live? In this workshop we transform all these questions into statements and learn how we might integrate the statements into our lives. $270 + $6 video fee

Human Lifestyling / John McCamy

For workshop description see July 25–27. $270

Renascence / Michael Butler

For workshop description see July 6–11. $270

For workshop description see page 32. $100

Gestalt Improvisations / Paul Rebillot

For workshop description see July 13–18. $110 + $2 video fee

Feldenkrais Weekend / Ruth Alon

The Feldenkrais method of functional coordination is learned through a varied series of gently graduated exercises. The practice emphasizes awareness of ways of moving and results in increased capacity and ease of movement. As physical patterns change, mental and emotional stresses can be decreased, allowing a more open flow of creativity. Individual regimens will be taught in cases of special problems. $110

Explorations in Humanistic Education Jack Canfield & Judy Ohlbaum-Canfield

This workshop is for teachers, administrators, and counselors interested in reducing alienation, making teaching and learning more personally rewarding, and creating schools and colleges more responsive to human needs. Participants will explore ways of helping their students to deal with their concerns of identity, personal power, and interpersonal relationships. This will include experiential and theoretical exploration of affective and psychological education, self-concept building, value clarification, gestalt awareness, and communication. Participants will informally exchange ideas and discuss application of what they have learned. $110

A Time for Renewal / Deborah Medow

In these changing times of stress and growth, let us pause to renew our energy and regain our balance of body / mind / spirit. We will begin by exploring different ways of touching our own centers—of feeling at one with ourselves and the universe.

The group will meet at Esalen's Big House, where we will prepare most of our own meals for a cleansing diet. We will have morning meditations at the mineral baths and will do sessions in massage and movement, hatha yoga and chanting, as well as an introduction to the principles of polarity therapy. There will be time to enjoy the Esalen grounds and the Big Sur coast. $110

ONGOING RESIDENTIAL PROGRAM

Offered from September through May, the Ongoing Residential Program is designed for those who would like to have time and space in the Esalen environment for an intensive workshop program over a long term. A minimum stay: 26 days (or four "weeks" and three weekends).

Participants may select any of the five-day workshops offered during their stay. Weekend workshops are available at special prices. Some programs are cancelled, so second choices are advised. Some special staff programs will also be open to residents. Cost: $960 per 26-day period.

week of OCTOBER 5-10

Exploration & Integration / Arthur & Janica Fox

Come and experience a combination of encounter, gestalt, sensory awareness, and massage surrounded by the richness of Big Sur and the Esalen grounds. Use these to explore more of your awareness and your capacity for openness. We will also explore ways of retaining and integrating our experiences so that we have access to them not just at Esalen, but also when we return home. $270

Bio-Energy and the Gestalt Adventure
Leland Johnson & Mary Ann Merksamer

Bio-Energy: Your body released through bioenergetics, chakra sound, meditation, and t'ai chi ch'uan . . . .

The Gestalt Adventure: The discovery of your now self and allowing what is obvious in you to emerge. Through dialogue you allow integration and feeling whole . . . getting to know all of your selves.

This workshop will focus on clarity, expression, and movement. Many of the experiences which you will take home with you are contained in Bioenergetics—Body Contact Work and a forthcoming book, The Gestalt Adventure, by Leland and Mary Ann. $270

Contact & Communication / Julian & Beverly Silverman

For workshop description see July 13-18. $270

Group Mind / Michaeleen Kimmey

In the here-and-now there exist configurations of circuiting energy within the chakras of our selves and between each other. These are the pathways of emotion and intuition, our inner teachers, our navigators.

Group mind is the process of becoming energetically present and aware in our individual moments together. We plug each other in to form a group connection, then channel and focus that powerful energy compassionately to heal, know, and love ourselves and each other.

Workshop sessions will include intuitive massage, Feldenkrais exercises of movement to awareness, body numerology, learning to see energy flows, techniques for experiencing "Higher Self" consciousness. $270

A Tender Invitation / Harry Sloan

For workshop description see July 6-11. $270

weekend of OCTOBER 10-12

Knock. Knock. Who's There? / Betty Fuller

It is often easier to answer who we are not rather than who we are. In this Gestalt-Encounter weekend we'll use Feldenkrais movement and Psychosynthesis among other ways to be and let be as we discover, explore, and celebrate our selves. For singles and couples of all kinds. $110

The Nature of You / Diana Becchetti

We have all experienced times in our lives, if only briefly, when we have felt at peace with ourselves. In these moments we experience some clearer sense of who we are and how we fit into the greater scheme of things. There are moments of realness when we share a meeting of essences, providing a sense of fulfillment unsurpassed in our everyday existence.

What prevents us from experiencing such moments more often? How do we stop ourselves? In this introductory workshop in Psychosynthesis we will experiment with techniques that enable us to know ourselves better, becoming aware of times when we are acting from a place that is "centered." We will explore those parts which often control us and move us out of alignment with our true Self. $110

Changing: Inner and Outer Movement
Barbara Clemans

"For the poets have seen the truth that life, change, movement, and insecurity are so many names for the same thing . . . for movement and rhythm are the essence of all things lovable."

—Alan Watts

We will use the tools of guided imagery and meditation to recognize our resistances to change; movement to give expression to our inner impulses; and massage and awareness exercises for group contact and support. $110

For workshop description see page 32. $100

Couples Massage Workshop
Richard Horan & Peggy Morrison

$110 per person.

week of OCTOBER 12-17

Experiencing Esalen / Janet Zuckerman & Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 32. $240

We Are All Dancers / Betty Fuller

A work/play shop for the dancer in every body—even those who hate to move! This synthesis of gestalt awareness training with Feldenkrais effortless exercise works on the body/mind to dissolve tensions, holdings, blocks, and barriers to mobilization of energy and full self-expression. Everyone can experience increased energy, vitality and flexibility, improved posture (physical and mental), expanded consciousness, and enhanced self-image. We will explore—experientially—the relatedness of gestalt, rolfing, psychosynthesis, Feldenkrais, and est and use before and after photographs and simple tests for fun. $270

October 12-November 21, 1975

The Human Experience: Buddhism and Mind

coordinated by
Joan Halifax-Grof, Stanislav Grof, & Jack Kornfield

A six week, interdisciplinary institute for students of Buddhism, comparative religion, philosophy, anthropology, psychiatry and psychology. Under the direction of Joan Halifax-Grof, Stanislav Grof, and Jack Kornfield, Esalen is gathering twenty-five faculty members at Big Sur to offer over 200 curriculum hours of didactic and experiential sessions, exploring the theory and practice of Buddhism. The material presented during this institute will cover three major thematic areas.

Track 1: Theoretical Concepts of Buddhism

In this track, spiritual masters of various Buddhist traditions (Theravada, Mahayana, Vajrayana and Zen) will introduce the participants to their teachings. Western scholars will discuss the history of Buddhism, its basic principles, position among other great religions of the world, and the relationship between Buddhist psychology and Occidental approaches to the study of the human mind. Buddhist maps of consciousness will be compared with the new model of the unconscious emerging from psychedelic research. A series of illustrated lectures will be dedicated to the study of Buddhist mythology and art.

Track 2: Principles of Buddhist Practice

The participants will explore spiritual practices used in various Buddhist orientations, including sitting and moving meditation, breathing exercises, chanting, visualizations, ascetic procedures (fasting and vigils), martial arts (aikido, t'ai chi, Zen swordsmanship, and archery) and aesthetic approaches (mandalas, calligraphy, ikebana, Japanese tea ceremony and music). There will be a week of intensive meditation practice.

Track 3: Occidental Approaches to the Exploration of Consciousness

During the entire six week period non-drug technology for self-exploration will be available for supervised use by the participants. This laboratory equipment will include a sensory isolation tank, sonic driver, stroboscopic light, biofeedback system and a kinaesthetic device (lotus cradle). This will make it possible for participants to explore unusual states of consciousness induced by different techniques.

Some working scholarships are available to students on the basis of need. Scholarship forms can be obtained from Esalen Institute. If you wish to enroll in this program, please send a letter containing biographical information and a recent photograph to Joan Halifax-Grof, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

FUTURE WORKSHOP ANNOUNCEMENTS

Workshops of more than one week require special planning for participants. Whenever possible we will announce such workshops well in advance. More detailed descriptions—and any changes—will appear in the catalog covering the period in which the workshop is scheduled.

NOVEMBER 2-28, 1975

The Roots of Self-Reliance
A Curriculum for Personal Courage
David Schiffman & Dick Galland

This month long workshop will systematically combine the complementary practices of gestalt awareness, sensing, encounter, and psychosynthesis with the rigorous physical preparation and focus of the Outward Bound wilderness experience. The participants in this workshop will have the opportunity to explore the nature and purpose of personal boundaries, whether as illusions to be transcended or as tools for self-survival. The emphasis will be on the achievement of a harmonious balance between the mental, physical, and emotional realms of experience, working towards greater personal expansion and openness with others.

The program will provide time as well to explore the basic elements underlying group process and individual growth. We will examine techniques, strategies, and theoretical components inherent in all forms of personal interactions and the use of specific themes in facilitation, focus, and flow in group sessions. During the final week of the workshop, each participant will have the opportunity to use newly synthesized skills and information by acting in the capacity of group leader.

RUTH ALON is a trainer at the Feldenkrais Institute in Tel Aviv and is a member of the small group of practitioners comprehensively trained there by Moshe Feldenkrais in his system of functional coordination, body awareness, and movement. (pp 5, 6, 33)

LARA AMBER co-leads classes and workshops at The Radix Institute (formerly Interscience Workshop) and gives individual instruction in neo-Reichian emotional release. Lara has instructed classes at the Denver Free University and the Denver Learning Center, and for the past three years has worked with emotionally disturbed children. She joined the Radix training program over a year ago. (p 24)

MAURICA ANDERSON studied psychodrama under Lewis Yablonsky, recently completed Sonoma State's humanistic psychology graduate program, and is currently a doctoral fellow at the Humanistic Psychology Institute. She works at various growth centers and educational institutions and has co-led the Esalen High Sierra encounter for the past four years. (pp 5, 11, 25)

WALT ANDERSON has been leading Esalen programs of various kinds for over six years. He is currently teaching psychodrama at the California School of Professional Psychology in San Francisco and working on a three-volume series of books about American politics. His anthology on therapy and the arts is to be published this spring by Harper and Row. (pp 4, 5, 6, 22, 25)

ROGER ANDES has been active at The Radix Institute (formerly Interscience Workshop) for over two years, joining the training program in January of 1974. At Radix Institute he teaches classes and work shops in Education in Feeling. He holds a psychology degree from Indiana University, where he was a laboratory assistant in vision research. He has had extensive work with Nathaniel Branden. (p 24)

MARSHA ANGUS is a student of Zen Buddhism and has worked in various agencies and mental health centers over the past seven years. She has done many gestalt and encounter groups and most recently, over the past three years, has worked extensively with couples and families. (p 7)

JOSÉ A ARGÜELLES, author and artist, is currently teaching in the art department of San Francisco State College. His most recent book is The Transformative Vision. He is currently working on a project with his wife on the feminine. (pp 9, 35)

MIRIAM TARCOV ARGÜELLES is an artist and writer. She is co-author of Mandala and is currently working on a book on the feminine and creativity. (pp 9, 35)

ANNE ARMSTRONG, psychic, clairvoyant, teacher, lives and works in Sacramento. She uses her abilities for deep level analysis of personal problems and for guidance in the growth of the inner life. (pp 3, 9)

JUDY AUDA has taught art for three years. She has an MA in sculpture and currently works with art and recreation; she is also involved in large scale public events. (p 14)

DIANA BECCHETTI was a member of the Esalen staff for 2 years training in gestalt with Richard Price. She went through the Masters program with George Brown in Confluent Education at the University of California. She has undergone Didactic Training with Roberto Assagioli, father of psychosynthesis, in Italy. She is in Advanced Training with the Psychosynthesis Institute in Redwood City and is an Associate of the Institute of Psychosynthesis in England. (pp 32, 34)

BARBARA BRAUNSTEIN's history has taken her through the backwoods and bayous of Louisiana where she grew up in a doctor's and artist's family, to work in museums as an art historian and to do graduate work in architecture. She came to Esalen four years ago for a week's workshop, and in the process found her home. Through the years she has been cook, waitress, dishwasher, and gardener, and is presently involved in color systems of healing, various forms of massage, and energy tuning processes. Last February she journeyed to India, where she met her spiritual teacher, Sathya Sai Baba, and here her being found a new home. (pp 23, 30)

GEORGE BROWN, an associate of the Psychosynthesis Institute, is one of the first to combine gestalt and psychosynthesis in workshop and educational contexts. He is Professor and Director of the program in Confluent Education at the University of California at Santa Barbara and is the author of Human Teaching for Human Learning and The Live Classroom. (pp 27, 28)

JUDITH BROWN is a gestalt awareness trainer, with a special interest in the use of symbols as an expression of the creative unconscious. She is the author of Up Every Beanstalk: A Fresh Look at Marriage. In addition to her own groups, she has co-led numerous groups with her husband. (pp 27, 28)

L V BROWN, a golf teacher for forty years, has supervised construction projects all over the world. His engineering background and experience with heavy equipment have aided his search for the principles of the golf swing. (p 10)

MICHAEL BUTLER is a group leader and rolfer who is interested in ways to integrate the body, mind, and spirit. A former Esalen resident fellow, he was trained in group process by John Heider and as a rolfer by Dr Ida Rolf. Primary emphasis in his work is on ways to translate growth practices into everyday life. (pp 21, 31, 33, 34, 35)

JACK CANFIELD is Director of the New England Center, is a doctoral candidate at the Center for Humanistic Education at the University of Massachusetts, a faculty associate at Hampshire College, an Adjunct Professor at the School for International Training in Brattleboro, Vermont, a Program Advisor for Campus Free College, and a consultant to the Boards of Education of Newington, Connecticut and the Bronx, New York. Jack's current interests are gestalt, psychosynthesis, the ARICA training, and altered states of consciousness, especially as these relate to education. His publications include About Me, a self-concept curriculum for the middle grades, A Guide to Humanistic Education, and 100 Ways to Enhance Self Concepts in the Classroom. (p 33)

JUDY OHLBAUM-CANFIELD, PhD, Director of the New England Center and the Center's Gestalt Training Program, is a clinical psychologist and a Training Consultant at the Northampton Veterans Administration Hospital. In addition to conducting a private practice with individuals, families, and groups, she has worked at various mental health centers, colleges, and universities in Massachusetts, California, and Canada. She is a member of APA, MPA, CPA, and AHP. Judy has been certified by the Los Angeles Gestalt Therapy Institute and has trained with Fritz Perls, Jim Simkin, the San Francisco Gestalt Institute, and the Gestalt Institute of Cleveland. Judy's background in bioenergetics, structural integration, natural healing, and music bring a great range of awareness to her group work. Both Jack and Judy have completed the Open Path Training of the Arica Institute. (p 33)

SEYMOUR CARTER has been a teacher at Esalen for the past five years and maintains a private practice in San Francisco. He has served as consultant in self-awareness programs to the US Army and several universities. Studies in the body/mind field which he feels have significantly influenced him include: Esalen teachers such as Fritz Perls, Richard Price, John Heider and Will Schutz; Zen Buddhism; Feldenkrais; bioenergetics; the Arica training; aikido; training as a rolfer; and, most recently, a nine month study program given by Charlotte Selver for teachers of her work. Against the background of these experiences, he describes his work as an integration of gestalt and sensory awareness. (p 29)

FRANCES CLARK, a clinical psychologist, practices psychotherapy in Marin County. She is on the faculty of the California School of Professional Psychology in San Francisco and is associate editor of the Journal of Transpersonal Psychology. (p 6)

VIJALI CLARK is a painter/sculptor and provider of art experiences from Santa Barbara. Her sculptural paintings reflect her total self, her own struggles as a spiritual aspirant, as a woman, and as a person interested in deep understanding of self. (pp 6, 14)

BARBARA CLEMANS is a teacher, dancer, and practitioner of massage in San Francisco. Her approach has been synthesized from nine years of experience with various techniques, including creative movement, gestalt, Reichian therapy, Arica, and est. She has been strongly influenced by training with Moshe Feldenkrais and with Charlotte Selver. Her work is featured in Getting Clear: Body Work for Women. (pp 21, 29, 34)

GENE COGHILL, winner of many golf tournaments in New York and New England, a former touring professional and a symphony musician, is head professional at Peacock Gap Country Club in San Rafael, California. He is a long time student of Eastern thought. (p 10)

MARY CORRIGAN is an Associate Professor in the Graduate School of Theatre at Florida State University and in residence at the Asolo State Theatre in Sarasota, Florida. She has conducted voice production workshops throughout the United States. She has been an actress, director, teacher, group consultant, and has received grants and scholarships from several foundations. She has studied/experienced the following techniques: Iris Warren Method, Alexander System of Body Alignment, Martha Graham, bioenergetics, Tavistock Group Conferences (England), A K Rice Conferences, and Gestalt Workshops. (p 28)

BOB CROMEY is a licensed counselor and has a private practice in San Francisco of group and individual and couples therapy. He holds a Masters degree and has wide experience leading groups in the United States and Europe. (p 5)

D

LYN DAVIS is a member of the Arica teaching staff and a gestalt trainer. She leads women's workshops in the San Francisco Bay Area and works lovingly with Jack Downing. (pp 27, 32)

KATHERINE DA SILVA is President of the Yoga Organization for Research and Education. For six years she was a member of the ashram of Paramahansa Yogananda in Los Angeles. Since leaving in 1968 she has lectured widely, written, and taught yoga and meditation. Besides teaching classes for the general public, for three years she was Yoga Therapist in the psychiatric unit of St Joseph's Hospital in New Jersey. She has also worked with official agencies on applying yoga principles and practices to the treatment of addicts, alcoholics, and the aged. (p 26)

LAURA DILLON joined The Radix Institute (formerly Interscience Work Shop) almost four years ago. She has led workshops at growth centers across the country, and has run experimental groups in conjunction with Nathaniel Branden. In trips to the midwest, she and well-known leaders in Transactional Analysis have offered workshops combining Laura's neo-Reichian work with Transactional Analysis techniques. In April 1974, she opened a branch of The Radix Institute in Sonoma County. She is a qualified masseuse and a graduate of Boston University, where she studied philosophy and political science. (p 28)

NANCY DOUGLAS is an actress turned psychologist with further transmutations expected. She is interested in working with women to create a synergistic environment which will allow for the exploration and inspiration of creative energies. (p 14)

GEORGE DOWNING combines gestalt with intensive methods of working with the body. He is a member of the teaching staff of the Family Therapy Institute of Marin and is the author of The Massage Book and Massage and Meditation. (pp 12, 26)

JACK DOWNING, a native Oklahoman, has gained experience and some wisdom in psychiatry, public health, psychedelic drugs, rolfing, gestalt therapy, and Arica training. He is currently in the private practice of psychiatry and structural integration as well as leading workshops. (pp 27, 32)

JACQUELINE LARCOMBE DOYLE is a psychologist, feminist therapist in private practice, teacher, consultant to industry, to school and prison drug programs, and supervisor to radical therapists. She co-founded a center for personal and social change: Greenhouse, Inc., in Cambridge, Massachusetts, where she has served as vice president and director of group training. She is also formerly on the faculty of the Department of Psychiatry at the University of New Mexico medical school. She was also an Esalen resident fellow in 1969 and has been a leader ever since. (p 25)

AL DRUCKER grew up in prewar Germany and Poland and came to New York as a 10-year-old. He spent 15 years as a space scientist before coming to Esalen as a resident fellow nine years ago. Initially he studied with Fritz Perls and Virginia Satir, and later with Ida Rolf to become an advanced practitioner of structural integration (rolfing). More recently he trained in England with J R Worsley in acupuncture, with Bernard Jensen in nutrition and iridology, with the late psychic George Simon, and with the Arica Institute. All these disciplines were steps preparing him for the spiritual path, as he came under the influence of his teacher, Sathya Sai Baba, with whom he spent six months in India last year. (pp 23, 30, 35)

ADELE CHU DRUMMOND is a dancer and choreographer from Panama, presently living in the Bay Area. She is a soloist at St Paulist Church and some of her choreography has been performed at Galeria de la Raza and Lone Mountain College. WE invite YOU to join us in our organization . . .

friends of esalen

FRIENDS OF ESALEN provides financial aid to people who are eager to attend our workshops but who cannot afford them.

WE BELIEVE that one of our FIRST priorities is to make our programs available to a broader basis. We have therefore decided to use membership contributions this year to fund such SCHOLARSHIPS.

In addition to the KNOWing that YOU have given someone else the opportunity to experience ESALEN, you will receive regular mailings of the ESALEN CATALOG.

WE hope you feel your experience at Esalen was worth the SHARING and that you will join us in extending Esalen into the lives of other people.

biographical information

JANE WALTER is a certified masseuse in private practice in San Francisco, working on a referral basis from therapists. She trained in massage with Gunver Jackson, Margaret Elke, and Kathy Dickmann (shiatsu), and has been teaching massage for three years. Currently she is training to become a physical therapist. (p 3)

SHARON WANG, a member of the Radix Teacher Training Program, co-leads classes and workshops and gives individual instruction in Education in Feeling at The Radix Institute in California. She was a member of the 1970 Residential Training Program, staff, and massage crew at Esalen/Big Sur, and has had training in transactional analysis. Presently, along with her work at the Institute, Sharon continues an extension of her private practice in Chicago. (p 29)

KURT WEHBRING has climbed extensively in the Sierras, Tetons, Wind Rivers, and in the Alps and made a first ascent of the East Ridge of Mt St Elias in Alaska. He is experienced in the techniques of sensory awareness and Reevaluation Education (co-counseling) and has taught courses in rock climbing and ski touring. (p 10)

JANET ZUCKERMAN, a former New York advertising executive, wife and mother, came to Esalen in 1971 as a resident fellow. She has trained in group process with Julian and Beverly Silverman, Betty Fuller, Janet Lederman, and Will Schutz. She has been leading groups for four years and sees this work as creating a "safe place" where participants allow themselves to experience change and receive support. BOOKS

SENSORY AWARENESS

THE REDISCOVERY OF EXPERIENCING

Charles V. W. Brooks

"In our study, we come to realize that it is through consciousness that we can allow a meaningful connection with what we approach and what we do, as distinguished from the "blind" or "insensate" or mechanical ways in which we so often interact with our environment. We recognize that clarity of perception underlies all understanding and all intelligent behavior. The saying "Buddha is in everyone" can be understood as referring not to any separate divinity, but to the potential of full consciousness in every organism according to its nature. This would restore to the organs of consciousness, our senses, the dignity which is due them. It would permit us to live securely in our real perceptions, shallow or deep as the case might be, but free of our never-ending speculations."

—Charles V. W. Brooks

THE NEW TAROT DECK

Jack Hurley, Rae Hurley & John Horler

$5.00

TAROT One of a set of figured playing cards used in Italy as early as the 14th century; also, a game played with 78 cards of the set in which 22 are trumps (Funk and Wagnalls). Used for divination, fortune telling, and as a projective technique.

The cards show archetypal images, basic to Western thought and behavior. Each presents an aspect of reality.

You can arrange the cards to show interchangeable patterns of action. Altogether they make a book of life.

Each card is natural, presenting actuality without judgment. Rearranged with every shuffle, each "layout/readout" mirrors a life or game sequence ranging from silly to sage.

The cards may be read on many levels. Used as a gestalt or Rorschach, they are tools toward a greater understanding of self and society.

THE LIVE CLASSROOM

THE LIVE CLASSROOM

George Brown

$12.50

The Live Classroom provides numerous examples of innovative teaching and learning practices that have been used with positive results by "live" teachers in their own "live" classrooms. "The book contains theory illustrated by practice, and practice underlined by theory or explanation." These teaching/learning practices take as their philosophical base a unique combination of several significant theories of learning and growing: the theory of confluent education; Gestalt therapy (here termed Gestalt Awareness Training) as developed by Frederick Perls and others; and Roberto Assagioli's Psychosynthesis. The teachers/authors in this book share their own successful experiences in the classroom utilizing these enlivening practices. The range is from the first grade through high school and covers such subjects as science, social studies, mathematics, English, art, and foreign languages.

ANNOUNCEMENT:

THE BODY REVEALS

Ron Kurtz & Hector Prestera

The body is a clear statement not only about present mood, feelings, and attitude but also character and psychological history. This book, with fifty photos and illustrations, provides the basic information needed to learn how to read the body. Scheduled for publication in October.

SPECIAL INFORMATION

THE ESALEN CATALOG is published quarterly. Subscription cost for one year is $2 for the United States, $4 for Canada and Mexico and $12 for all other countries. Those attending Esalen workshops and conferences are automatically added to the mailing list for one year. A single inspection copy of the current issue is available free upon request from the San Francisco office. Do not direct subscription inquiries to Big Sur.

CONTRIBUTIONS to Esalen Institute are tax deductible. Various medical, educational, and other institutions have provided expenses for participants in some workshops and seminars in the form of donations to scholarship funds. See Friends of Esalen membership below.

ACCREDITATION and the USE OF ESALEN'S NAME: Some individuals and groups have involved Esalen's name to imply that we have given some sort of accreditation to their activities. We have told everyone to stop using our name in such a manner. Of course people use insights and techniques they bring from our programs, but we confer no certificates, diplomas, or other symbols of formal status such as those conferred by professional associations and schools.

RECORDINGS OF ESALEN PROGRAMS: For a catalog of recordings of Esalen/San Francisco programs and Esalen/Big Sur programs conducted prior to 1973, contact Big Sur Recordings, 2015 Bridgeway, Sausalito, CA 94965.

For information on buying or renting video or audio tapes of more recent programs in Big Sur, contact the Media Center, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

When writing specify the subject matter or leaders in which you are interested. Commercial use of Esalen program tapes is prohibited; all rights are reserved.

BIG SUR INFORMATION

For reservations and information, write or call:
Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920
Phone: (408) 667-2335, 10 to 4 every day;
10 to 8 Sunday & Friday

Esalen/Big Sur lies 300 miles north of Los Angeles and 175 miles south of San Francisco. It is directly over the shoreline of the Pacific with the Santa Lucia Range rising sharply behind. The property, which has natural hot baths, was once the home of a North American Indian tribe known as Esalen.

We are a 45-mile drive south from Monterey, 11 miles south of Nepenthe, on California Coast Route 1. From the south, we are 50 miles north of San Simeon. A lighted sign on the ocean side of the highway reads: Esalen Institute—By Reservation Only.

Deposit Information: Big Sur programs require an advance deposit of $20 for weekend groups, $70 for five-day groups, $200 for two-week groups, $300 for three-week groups, and $400 for month-long groups. Deposits are not refundable but, with five days' notice, may be transferred to other Esalen programs. Please mail Big Sur reservations to Esalen/Big Sur. Do not mail Big Sur reservations to Esalen/San Francisco. Balance of payment is due on arrival. Esalen accepts Master Charge and American Express. U S currency only, please.

Scholarship Information: If you need scholarship assistance for a long term Esalen/Big Sur program, write for a scholarship application form before making a reservation (allow at least 3 weeks for processing as we have many applications). If your application is approved, please make a reservation as soon as possible after receiving notice. No scholarship assistance is available for June 15–August 31 programs or for weekend programs.

General Information: Workshop fees cover tuition, food, and lodging. Rooms are shared by two or three workshop participants. Camping on the grounds is prohibited.

Weekend programs begin with dinner on Friday and end with lunch on Sunday. Five-day and longer programs begin with dinner on Sunday and end with lunch on Friday. Rooms become available at 5 pm; however, guests are welcome to arrive anytime after lunch.

Esalen/Big Sur has no child care facilities. Please do not plan to bring children. We also ask workshop participants not to have guests. Alas, no pets.

Esalen's flourishing organic garden provides the kitchen with many of its vegetables and herbs. Our breads and pastries are made by Esalen bakers.

Limousine Service: Those traveling by air or bus can obtain limousine service to Esalen/Big Sur by notifying the Big Sur office of time of arrival. Pickups are made at the Monterey Airport and the Greyhound terminal at 5–5:30 pm each Sunday and Friday. The cost is $10 per person one way, payable on arrival at Esalen.

Seminarians as Staff (Karma Yoga): Seminarians in residence for a week or longer at Esalen are asked to contribute several hours per week to the kitchen staff. These hours do not interfere with scheduled groups or meals. Your help enables us to meet the pressures of peak working times and enables you to experience Esalen from the inside out. A staff member will appear at your first workshop meeting to schedule volunteer help.

PROGRAM IN SAN FRANCISCO

Physics and Consciousness

When you get right down to it, many of the findings of modern quantum physics look very much like the processes of consciousness. Breakthroughs in physics may also give answers to problems of psychic phenomena. Certainly current observations and theories in physics and astronomy are radically altering our scientific view of the universe. Perhaps they will also alter our personal view of reality.

This lecture series presents authorities from physics, astronomy, and consciousness to explain recent theories and discoveries in physics and astronomy and to discuss their implications for psychic phenomena, consciousness, and alternative views of reality. The presentations will be for laymen as well as for persons who have some knowledge of the subjects.

"The seemingly fantastic propositions of parapsychology appear less preposterous in the light of the truly fantastic concepts of modern physics."

—Arthur Koestler

This Monday night series will be held at the First Unitarian Church, Franklin and Geary Streets, San Francisco, at 8 pm. Tickets are $3.50 at the door or in advance from Esalen/San Francisco.

October 6
The New Physics and Consciousness / Jack Sarfatti, Saul Paul Sirag, Nick Herbert, Fred Wolf, and Fritjof Capra

October 13
ESP, Psychic Phenomena, and Physics / Russell Targ and Hal Puthoff

October 20
The Mind's Eye as the Physicist's Instrument / Fred Wolf

November 3
The Language of Physics and the Language of Mind / Michael Murphy and Jack Sarfatti

November 10
New Discoveries in Astronomy / Vahe Petrosian

November 17
The Physical Roots of Consciousness / Jack Sarfatti

"The universe begins to look more like a great thought than like a great machine."

—Sir James Jeans

The Function of the Imagination

"Every psychic process is an image and an imagining."
—C G Jung

This series of lectures will be devoted to exploring whether or not the imagination is a function separate and distinct from thought, intuition, and sensation. What is the relationship between fantasy, imagination, and creativity? As Blake has implied, can we only perceive or sense what we are capable of imagining?

All lectures take place at the Esalen/San Francisco office, 1793 Union Street, San Francisco, on Thursday evenings, beginning at 8 pm. Tickets are $3.50 and are available through the Esalen/San Francisco office or at the door as space permits.

October 23
Active Imagination, A Way to the Unconscious / Katherine Whiteside Taylor, PhD

October 30
Image Formation in Psychoanalysis / Mardi Horowitz, MD

November 6
Poetry of the Imagination: Coleridge, Rilke, and Blake Richard Wiseman

November 13
The Transformative Vision / Jose Arguelles

November 20
The Body as a Living Image / Stanley Keleman

October 3-5
The Breath & the Dream / Magda Proskauer

Residential weekend workshop $100

This workshop will explore the relationship between body and psyche in the process of consciousness. The dream will be looked at as a living part of the psychological, spiritual, and emotional life and as a tool for discovering new directions and self-understanding. Fee includes room and board.

October 4
Centering, Self Awareness, & the Spirit of Play
Bob Kriegel

One day workshop $25

This workshop will teach centering: the process of finding that calm place within ourselves that is in balance and harmony. Active games of all types—including energy games, street and playground games, theatre games, new games, and new approaches to traditional sports—will be used for experiencing "center" and for exploring self-awareness. We will explore how game behavior magnifies our reaction patterns, giving us a clearer, more vivid picture of ourselves. We will also use gestalt, role playing, guided fantasy, and psychosynthesis techniques to bring our new awareness to a more conscious level.

October 7-December 16
Anatomy / Marion Rosen

Eight Tuesday evenings, 7:30-9:30 pm $90

This course, a part of the Massage Training Program, is also open to the public. It includes lectures on bones, joints, and muscles, their location and function. Classes are designed as an anatomical supplement to the experience of the body in massage and movement. The first two classes will be a survey, followed by a three-week break, during which time students will be responsible for familiarizing themselves with certain basic required material. Classes will then resume with the study of particular regions of the body.

October 7, 14, November 11-December 16.

Massage Training
Jane Walter (massage); Marion Rosen (anatomy); Sioux Von Baeyer (movement)

October 6-December 22, Monday evenings, 7-11 pm. Massage and Movement

October 7, 14, November 11-December 16, Tuesday evenings, 7:30-9:30 pm. Anatomy

$275 per person

This twelve-week program will consist of twelve four-hour massage and movement sessions, one per week, and eight two-hour classes in muscle and joint action and interaction.

The first hour of each Monday class will be a movement session which will begin with breath awareness and relaxation. Focus will then shift to grounding, energy release, and movement work with partners to develop the flow between giver and receiver. Massage demonstrations will draw principally from Esalen and Shiatsu styles with carefully supervised practice sessions. Emphasis will be on developing a personal approach to massage, learning how to be responsive to those you touch, and how to receive, an often overlooked aspect of massage.

Anatomy classes will deal principally with the function of the muscles and their actions and interactions, with additional focus on particular regions of the organism, for example, shoulder girdle, pelvis, and so on. These classes are open to the general public.

PROGRAMS IN SAN FRANCISCO

October 8

An Introduction to Pepper Stress / Raymond Gottlieb

Single evening event $3

In this discussion, Dr Gottlieb will describe "Pepper-Stress," a training which deals with the development of more adequate responses to the stresses of the environment. It is an active meditation technique, initially used for underachieving students, designed to develop action without thinking, motivated by intuition. Dr Gottlieb is currently lecturing on this method as well as working with persons individually.

1793 Union Street, 8-10 pm.

October 11

Rediscovering Your Vision / Raymond Gottlieb

One-day workshop $25

Dr Gottlieb will discuss the basic principles behind the Bates system of "Better Sight Without Glasses" and other approaches related to the improvement of vision. He will teach specific exercises within an integrated whole body approach to removing the stress that hinders vision. Limited to 25 people.

October 11

Bioenergetics / Michael Conant

One-day workshop $30

Working primarily as a group, we'll use bioenergetic, neo-Reichian, and gestalt approaches intensively to center in our bodies and thus deepen vital contact with ourselves and each other. One or two individual bioenergetic sessions may also take place during the day for demonstration purposes.

October 11-12

Self Exploration Through Hypnosis
Lee Pulos & Irving Katz

Weekend workshop $50

The emphasis in this workshop will be to teach the participants techniques and exercises that can be taken home and used daily after the weekend is over. Hypnosis and self-hypnosis will be taught so that the group members can focus in on themselves through hypnotically induced dreams, automatic writing, and ideo-motor questioning. Each participant will have the opportunity to use hypnosis for his/her own personal programming, habit changes, and to explore the self through hypnotically guided fantasies. A feature of the weekend will be the use of hypnosis to extend our consciousness into paranormal and psychic dimensions.

October 12

Towards an Integral Training: A New Approach to Running
Mike Spino

One-day workshop $25

Focusing on the running experience, this workshop will introduce a holistic method of mind/body development. Each participant will be taught various running gaits and tempos, muscle/skeletal exercises, breathing techniques, and philosophy and lore related to optimum physical fitness. There will be special emphasis on guided fantasy, inner space development, and creativity in quest for extraordinary experiences. Each person will receive an individual consultation and have the opportunity to continue towards personal goals on an ongoing basis.

October 12

Understanding and Using Your Dreams and Nightmares
Ann Faraday & John Wren-Lewis

One-day workshop $25

This seminar/discussion (with some practical demonstrations using recent dreams of participants) will cover how to understand your own personal dream symbolism, how to unmask and deal constructively with the "secret saboteurs" in frustration dreams and nightmares, and how to ask dreams for direct help with personal problems or creative endeavors. Much time will be saved if participants have read Ann Faraday's The Dream Game (Harper & Row) beforehand.

October 14-December 30

T'ai Chi Chuan, The Simplified Form
Master Choy Kam Man

Tuesday evenings, 7-8 pm $65

T'ai chi chuan is an ancient Chinese exercise and discipline that generates superior health, clear intellection, and depth of spirit. This is achieved through daily practice of a series of flowing movements that are completely relaxed yet dynamic so as to fuse motion and meditation.

As in ancient times, the study of t'ai chi chuan begins by "following" a master whose forms of movement are perfect. The student follows this ideal form as closely as possible and in this way approaches the total relaxation of mind and body inherent in the master's movements. Thus t'ai chi chuan can not be transmitted via books, diagrams, or persons less developed than a master. The student gradually corrects his/her movements through continuous comparison and practice and the natural and relaxed forms become the student's own.

October 15

Playing the Dream Game:
From Self Understanding to Self Transcendence
Ann Faraday

Ann Faraday, author of The Dream Game, will offer her thoughts, theories, and insights on dreams and dreaming.

Single evening event, 8-10:30 pm $3.50
First Unitarian Church, Franklin & Geary Streets, San Francisco

October 15-November 19

Continuing Gestalt Group / Zoe Snyder

Six Wednesday evenings, 7-9 pm $60

This is a group in which to experience and explore ourselves and our interactions with each other over a longer period of time than is available in a weeklong workshop. Meetings will include gestalt exercises and hot seat work to get in touch with our feeling and become more aware of creative choices.

October 15–December 3

Classical Hatha Yoga / Terry Agnew

Eight Wednesday evenings, 7 30–9 30 pm $75

This ongoing workshop is designed for beginners, covering basics of classical hatha yoga, including postures, subtle breath control, yogic hygiene, deep relaxation, and neuromuscular control. Included with the basics of physiological yoga will be readings and discussions of yogic philosophy and psychology. This is a scientific approach to fundamental yoga with emphasis on classical health techniques and careful grounding in the meaning and rationale behind them. Recommended especially to athletes, dancers, and others who work with their bodies. Recommended texts Light On Yoga by B K S Iyengar, and I K Taimni's The Science of Yoga.

October 18–19

Towards a More Sensitive Relating
Charlotte Selver & Charles Brooks

Weekend workshop $60

In an increasingly alienated world, where mechanical ease often makes communication shallower, many of us are eager to find more meaningful contact both with ourselves and with others, and with our activities whatever they may be. We would like really to get in touch. But the conventional approaches we have learned, our social and intellectual conditioning, lie like callouses over our living nerve ends and, though occasionally useful, act as effective barriers between the perceiver and the perceived. The reality both of ourselves and of those we meet can only be discovered and explored when we begin to sense and discard the techniques and defenses we have come to rely on—when we become again consciously living organisms, open, as we were in childhood, to the unedited messages of our senses.

In this workshop, which will be devoted to practice rather than theory, a beginning will be made in exploring anew our natural capacities for clearly perceiving and relating to those around us and to the life within us, and to the many tasks which life presents.

October 19

Pepper Stress Training / Raymond Gottlieb

One-day workshop $25

The "Pepper-Stress" approach was designed initially to help underachieving students in academic, athletic, and artistic abilities. The technique involves setting up tasks which require sensing, remembering, and responding at the level of stimulation. This requires an opening up of abilities. Gradually situations are made more complex and include finer and finer movement tasks. The idea is to develop action motivated by intuition, without thinking. The workshop will teach "stress" games for home practice as well as the theory behind the training.

October 24–26

Madness & Individuation / Howard Levene

Residential weekend workshop $100

In this workshop we will define the relationship of madness to the Jungian concept of Individuation. Experientially, we will structure an environment in which we will attempt to connect with our own madness and integrate our discoveries and experiences of this madness with our own personal journeys towards self-awareness.

This workshop is limited to 15 people. The workshop will take place at Greenwood Lodge, Soquel, near Santa Cruz. The fee includes Friday dinner through Sunday lunch, plus accommodations for two nights.

October 25

Shiatsu Workshop / Kathy Dickman

One-day workshop $25

Shiatsu (Japanese pressure-point therapy) reaches deeper than surface massage to release tense areas of blocked energy. It becomes a refined form of body work when both participants focus their awareness on a single point, the giver applying pressure from the outside as the receiver lets go from the inside. Giving, you learn to "listen" with your hands; receiving, you learn to consciously release tense places at your own speed.

October 28–December 7

Supervised Studies in Hypnosis
Coordinated by Irv Katz with Guest Participants
David E Cheek & Lee Pulos

This workshop includes one lecture demonstration on October 28, four seminars on November 4, 11, 18, 25 from 7 pm to 11 pm, and one residential weekend which includes room and board on December 5–7.

$275 Limited to 18 people

Irv Katz has received many requests from graduate students and professionals regarding training in the theory and applications of hypnosis. This program will include the use of such techniques as automatic writing, induced dreams, ideo-motor questioning, age regression, autohypnosis, and hypnodrama. We will demonstrate how these goals can be achieved: tension-reduction, increased self-control of pain and other physiological processes, letting go of such habits as overeating, smoking, and drugs, extending consciousness into the transpersonal dimensions, and the release of those life-giving energies tied up by past tapes and body armour. Credit for graduate students can be obtained through Antioch/West College, Fielding Institute, and Humanistic Psychology Institute.

Include in your application a letter stating your educational and experiential background.

October 26
Trail Running & the Archetypes of Sport
Mike Murphy & Mike Spino

One-day workshop $25

Participants will experience some of the most beautiful and dramatic running trails in the Mount Tamalpais area of Marin County and will be introduced to some of the lore of trail running for enjoyment and physical conditioning. This workshop is open to the novice as well as the experienced jogger or runner. There will also be discussions of the psychological, mystical, and archetypal aspects of the sport. Bring picnic lunches—and wear good running shoes!

October 26 and November 2
A Philosophy of Photography / Roy Shigley

Two half-day workshops $25

The point of departure for this workshop is to discover why a photograph may appear to be less vital than the memory of the original experience. The psychology inherent in the principles of Chinese painting will provide clues to the changes in personality and perception that bring life to a work of art.

Students are encouraged to bring two samples of their work to assist the discussion. Darkroom skills will be helpful; however, fancy cameras are not necessary.

12 noon to 3 pm each day.

SINGLE EVENING EVENTS

(For a complete description of the following events, see chronological program listings.)

All programs will be held at Esalen, 1793 Union Street, San Francisco, unless otherwise noted.

Wednesday, October 8
An Introduction to Pepper Stress / Raymond Gottlieb
$3 general admission; 8–10 pm.

Wednesday, October 15
Playing the Dream Game: From Self Understanding to Self Transcendence / Ann Faraday

Tickets are available at the door as space permits.

Please refer to pages 3 & 4 for further information on special lecture series.

October 28

Lecture-Demonstration on Hypnosis / Irv Katz

Single evening event $5

This lecture-demonstration will include a discussion and demonstration of the theory and practice of hypnosis. We will deal with the myths surrounding hypnosis and how this process can be effectively utilized, as well as the possible dangers.

November 1

Introduction to Aikido with Emphasis on Centering & Energy Awareness / Robert Nadeau

One-day workshop $15

Aikido is the Japanese art of self-defense with the emphasis placed on centering, harmony, and blending. It is presented as a physical manifestation of the energy and spiritual laws of the universe. We will start with the centering practices in the physical dimension, move to centering as mental awareness, and culminate in meditation with centering as a focus for spiritual unfolding. The workshop will emphasize the relationship between all three levels.

Saturday, 12:30–4:30 pm

November 1-2

Tennis Flow / Dyveke Spino

Weekend workshop $50

This workshop incorporates principles of physical fitness training, body awareness and movement techniques, and imagery along with traditional tennis methods. It is an integration of Ms Spino's five-point formula in her holistic approach to the sport, consisting of: a) strength training, b) flexibility, c) endurance, d) sensing, e) inner-space. The overall effect is a more pleasureful, effective, and personally significant tennis game. Bring your racquet and a can of tennis balls. Limited to 20 people.

November 1-2

Balance: A Workshop in Structural Patterning and Gestalt Therapy / Joel Latner & Judith Aston

Weekend workshop $50

In this workshop we will look for a harmony within ourselves and our lives, our thoughts, and our feelings. We will look at the inner and outer world so we can be at one with ourselves—who we are, no more and no less. Structural patterning, which developed from rolfing, is a way of learning to use our bodies with respect, awareness, and efficiency. We will meld gestalt and patterning in working with movement and feeling.

November 4–December 9

Massage / Bill Glover

Six Tuesday evenings, 7:30–10 pm $50

This course will explore the human significance of touch and teach the basic skills of massage. Each class will start with experiments in sensitivity and movement to gain self-awareness and continue with demonstrations and exchange of massage. Emphasis will be placed on developing personal style and integrating the massage experience with one's life.

November 8

Take the Time / Janica Fox

One-day workshop $25

Are there things which you know are important but you never seem to have time left over? This is a day to take time for yourself, make you the number one priority, look closely at yourself and see if you are doing what you really want. We will learn ways to regularly assess and reorder time.

November 8

Biofeedback and Altered States of Consciousness Eleanor Criswell

One-day workshop $25

This workshop will focus on biofeedback as it relates to self-exploration, self-development, and altering consciousness. An understanding of biofeedback, how to experience it and how to use your own body signals as feedback, will be included. Participants will experience several different kinds of biofeedback machines.

November 9

Introduction to Structural Patterning

Judith Aston, Marya Byron, Hallie Hardenstine, Faith Hornbacher, Gael Karlan, Anne-Liese Malter, Susan Salveson

One-day workshop $25

Structural patterning is a system of learning to move efficiently and to interact harmoniously with gravity. Ideal alignment occurs when the centers of gravity of each body part are balanced one above the other. A student is taught balanced ways of moving in an overall pattern followed by applications to his or her individual needs and interests.

The morning will begin with an explanation and development of structural patterning concepts, after which participants will break into small groups for individual patterning and movement experiments.

(At least three of the named patterners will be on hand.)

November 15

Towards an Integral Training: A New Approach to Running Mike Spino

One-day workshop $25

See description above.

November 15-16

Fair Fight Training for Couples with Instant Videotape Replay / Ed & Esther Bourg

Weekend workshop $50 per person

In this weekend couples will have a chance to learn and practice the basic techniques of "Fair Fight Training" as outlined in The Intimate Enemy by Dr George Bach. In Fair Fight Training, couples learn ways to constructively channel their aggressive energies into the revitalization, growth, and development of their relationship. This workshop will provide a valuable opportunity for couples to observe their own personal interaction patterns and communication styles through the use of focused videotape feedback, and to have fun doing it. Limited to eight couples.

Tuesday, November 18

An Evening with Michael Tobias / Michael Tobias

Single evening event $3.50

Michael will show the award-winning mountaineering film Break On Through as well as slides from Bhutan and Bangladesh to illustrate a discussion of mountain consciousness. He will also talk about his latest book-in-progress, A Mountaineering Aesthetic, which involves new writings from numerous poets, essayists, anthropologists, psychologists, dancers, and thinkers from all over the world, each investigating topics concerned with extreme wilderness immersion.

November 22

New Dimensions of Spirit and Physical Conditioning
Dyveke Spino

One-day workshop $25

This experiential lab will use principles of physical fitness, body awareness, and imagery for physical training and self-transcendence. It involves a holistic approach to sport and fitness training and endurance, strength flexibility, sensing, and inner space. The group will meet indoors and outdoors at a prearranged location.

November 22–23

Toward a More Sensitive Relating
Charlotte Selver & Charles Brooks

Weekend workshop $60

For workshop description see October 18–19.

December 6

Awakening Artistic Creativity / Lori Grace

One-day workshop $25

Through yoga, bioenergetics, guided fantasy, aerobics, and meditation, we will seek to come more in touch with ourselves and to awaken the artist who lies sleeping within each one of us. The rest of the day will be devoted to expressing ourselves through creative dance, song, drama, art, or poetry, whichever artistic mediums seem appropriate. If the weather is good, we may also spend part of our time in Golden Gate Park. Come join us for a day filled with creativity, excitement, and the joy of movement.

December 7

Centering to Energy Awareness to Meditation
Robert Nadeau

One-day workshop $25

Awareness begins with the self. Centering is the doorway to the energy activity of the universe. Energy is the common denominator of the universe and energy awareness is the basis for meditation. A day-long session emphasizing a natural practice pattern for awareness.

December 13–14

Growth Through Risk-Taking
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

Weekend workshop $50

This workshop provides the opportunity for the group members to come to terms with the definitions by which they live. Through a series of structured risk-taking situations, the use of gestalt, role playing, fantasy, and encounter techniques, the participants can accept or transcend the boundaries from which they approach the world. Emphasis will be placed on the expression of anger, affection, sexuality, and the transcending of roles. This workshop is especially useful for people who have had previous encounter experience.

December 13–14

Movement with Meaning
Tamara Greenberg & Anne Lief Barlin

Weekend workshop $50

This workshop will explore how we learn through our own movement and the movement of others. We will use the language of the body to awaken curiosity, imagination, and playfulness, and to open up paths to one's quietness, fantasies, emotions, and excitement. These experiences will be related to our personal and professional lives.

December 20

Bioenergetics / Michael Conant

One-day workshop $30

Working primarily as a group, we'll use bioenergetic, neo-Reichian, and gestalt approaches intensively to center in our bodies and thus deepen vital contact with ourselves and each other. One or two individual bioenergetic sessions may also take place during the day for demonstration purposes.

December 21

The Divine Dance: A Holiday Celebration / Gabrielle Roth

Single evening event $5

Let us bring religion back to the body and celebrate our divine selves as a dance, moving and changing. This will be a holiday celebration with live music.

Women's Programs

A Daytime Series

These morning and afternoon sessions are for women only—to focus on the nature of feminine perception and experience, to develop personal creativity through experiments in guided imagery and nonverbal awareness, and to acquire some tools for use in daily life in the process of self-formation and discovery.

If there is sufficient demand, childcare may be provided at a cost of $1 per session. Please contact the Esalen office to make arrangements.

All programs will take place at 1793 Union Street, San Francisco. Most courses can be continued for additional weeks if the group wishes.

October 9, 16, 23

Thursday afternoons, 1-3 pm $15

These meetings will explore and examine the nature of self-direction and ways to increase it in daily life. The degree to which we can discover, direct, and regulate our energies affects how productive, creative, and joyful we will be, as women and as persons.

October 14, 21, 28

Building Self Esteem / Renee Baron

Tuesday afternoons, 1-3 pm $15

We will learn to express our needs and feelings more effectively with the important people in our lives. We will discover what brings new joy and contentment, and learn to feel better than "okay."

October 28, November 4, 11

Women in Motion / Dyveke Spino

Tuesday mornings, 11 am-1 pm $15

This workshop in physical fitness and body conditioning for women is a holistic approach that involves strength, flexibility sensing, and inner space. Individualized training programs and schedules will be worked out.

November 3, 10, 17, 24

Personal Art Experience / Barbara Clark

Monday afternoons, 1-3 pm $18

Everyone can experience the pleasure of the process of creating. Using your intuitions and sensitivities with color, texture, and form, you will be helped to discover your personal techniques and symbols. See part of yourself that you may never have seen before and find inner realities through paint, collage, clay, and pastel. All materials supplied.

November 6

For Mothers of Young Children / Anne Yeomans

Thursday morning, 11 am-1 pm $4

This workshop will be a time to share our lives as mothers, women, and human beings. Art, guided fantasy, journal writing, and meditation will be tools to explore the experience of this unique period in life and to find new ways of being which nourish self and family.

November 13

Dance for Mother and Child / Tamara Greenberg

Thursday morning, 11 am-1 pm $4, mother and child together

We will share a morning of dance and movement to deepen and enhance the mother/child experience. For children who are walking, up to age 15.

November 19 and December 3

Dance Therapy / Tamara Greenberg

Wednesday afternoons, 1-3 pm $4 each session

We will explore the process of formation through a synthesis of expressive movement, energetic work, and Proskauer breathing techniques. Register for both sessions or separately.

November 20

Goddesses and Womanspirit / Mimi Simos

Thursday afternoon, 1-3 pm $4

This is a program to recover the history of the many symbols of life-creating power—Isis, Astarte, Cer-idwen, Airanrhod—that once were worshipped throughout the ancient world. We will look at these images of god in female form to help recognize our own personal energy and power and work with the symbols that can unlock our strength.

December 6-7

Taking Time for Yourself: A Workshop for Women Anne Yeomans & Anne Mize

Weekend workshop $50

We listen often to others; now let's take time to hear ourselves by listening to and cooperating with our own unfolding process. Using tools of psychosynthesis with guided imagery, journal writing, art, sound, movement, and meditation, each woman may seek a deep sense of her own identity and a clearer purpose and direction for life. Listening to one's Self can become an integral part of daily living.

Center for the Study of the Life of the Body

Workshops and Seminars in Energetic Studies

The Center for the Study of the Life of the Body, under the direction of Stanley Keleman, is a program of teaching, workshops, and publishing concerning the development of bodily process as the basis for life—how individuals form both themselves and their worlds.

Programs during the coming year are the preparation and ground for a biological learning community, and will be led by Keleman and other leaders whose perspective is that the way we live our bodies expresses the human condition. In addition to the following programs, extended study programs are currently being conducted at the Center.

PROGRAMS WITH STANLEY KELEMAN

October 1975 to May 1976

Extended Program of Supervised Studies
Stanley Keleman & Richard Wiseman

This will be an eight-month tutorial program (not training) to study learning as a bodily process. The program will concentrate on how emotional and symbolic expression form our biological and psychological lives.

The program will begin with the premise that myths are the history of primordial process shaping itself, and that our lives are this same process in personal terms. The bodily approach, which speaks the language found in mythology and literature, will be used to develop the pragmatic and conceptual tools to participate knowingly in this process. Working directly with the body, the group will look at experience as learning with-our preconditions and follow how it shapes our living.

A group of not more than ten participants will meet from October 1975 through May 1976 with Stanley Keleman; Richard Wiseman, professor of world and comparative literature; and discussant Joe Lyon, professor of psychology. Bodily work, emotional work, seminars, and readings will be combined to shape an environment in which one's bodily experience is the basis for learning and thinking.

Tuition is $1250. The program will consist of two one-day and two evening meetings per month for eight months (with holiday breaks), plus participation in the seminar described below with Joseph Campbell and Stanley Keleman (accommodations not included in tuition). There will be approximately 140 contact hours in the program.

Early application is recommended. The program is designed for people in the arts, the sciences, and the humanities. There are no educational or degree prerequisites or prejudices. Apply by letter to the Center, including educational or experiential background and a brief statement about yourself.

October 11, November 8, December 6

Three Tutorials with Stanley Keleman

$40 each day, $120 for the series

This is a series of one-day tutorial programs on the application of energetic principles.

October 11 How to Evaluate the Body
November 8 Problems of Excitement and Expression
December 6 Sexuality and Helplessness

Recommended readings: The Body Speaks Its Mind, Living Your Dying, The Human Ground. Enrollment may be in individual days or the series. Saturdays, 10 am to 5 pm.

October 27-31

Initiation Rites / Joseph Campbell & Stanley Keleman

Five-day experiential seminar

$240 residential (includes room and meals), $140 nonresidential. A limited number of nonresidential participants can be accepted. The program will be held at a conference center south of Santa Cruz. Some partial scholarships are available. Advance deposit of $50.

ADDITIONAL PROGRAMS OF THE CENTER FOR THE STUDY OF THE LIFE OF THE BODY

October 7-21

Opening/Movement-Dance / Tamara Greenberg

Three-evening workshop $25

We will encourage a fuller range of expressive movements—to experience and develop quietness, imagination, emotions, playfulness, and excitement.

Three Tuesday evenings, October 7, 14, and 21, 8-10 pm.

October 8-December 17

Ongoing Work with the Body / Paul Aikin & Ian Grand

Nine Wednesday evenings $135

This is a group for ongoing work with the body, using procedures developed by Stanley Keleman from bioenergetic technique. Participants will work with the body individually and in a group. Continuity will assist participants in learning about how their bodies speak in different life situations.

The group will meet three Wednesday evenings each month for three months: October 8, 15, 22, November 5, 12, 19, December 3, 10, 17, from 7:30 to 10 pm.

October 18-19

Couples Workshop

Weekend workshop $75 per couple

Through working with the body, couples can participate in and mutually support heightened levels of excitement that give satisfaction in their relationships. The work will be grounded in procedures developed by Stanley Keleman from bioenergetic technique.

Saturday and Sunday, 10 am-5 pm.

October 25-26

The Body as the Living Dream / Nancy Jungerman

Weekend workshop in Davis, California $50

In the dream and through the dream we form ourselves. This weekend group will highlight the dream and the dream state as a way in which the body experiences itself and tries to express itself. "Bio-drama" and art forms will be used in conjunction with a guided exploration of active and passive bodily states.

Saturday and Sunday, 10-5.

November 9

Movement/Dance / Tamara Greenberg

One-day workshop $25

In this workshop, movement will be used to intensify our experience of ourselves. Through expressive movement, we will attempt to follow our process of self-formation—how we are present in the world and how we approach and withdraw from contact.

Sunday, 10 am-5 pm.

November 15

Open Workshop

One-day workshop $25

Saturday, 10 am-5 pm.

December 13-14

Open Bioenergetic Workshop / Paul Aikin

Weekend workshop in Davis, California $50

Through working individually and in a group with procedures developed at the Center, this workshop will deal with the way we live in our bodies and express our emotions.

Future Program

January-April 1976

Anatomy of Feeling
Stanley Keleman & Shelly Hendler

This is a twelve-week course on the connection between human anatomy and human emotions. The course will be taught jointly by Stanley Keleman and Shelly Hendler, professor of biochemistry and research consultant to the Salk Institute in molecular biology. The course is structured to provide a fundamental understanding of the body as the basis of feeling, as revealed in the relationship of gross and micro-anatomy to feeling, expression, and learning. This course is a primary and original alternative to the prevailing mechanical view of the body and is recommended for anyone working with the body as a living organism.

The course will consist of twelve evening lecture and discussion meetings, fully illustrated by slides and films. The meetings will deal with the development and movement of energy as cells, skeleton, muscles, organs, surfaces, and so on, and its concomitant expression as feeling and character.

Tuition for the course is $200. The first meeting will be Friday evening, January 30. To register, send a $50 advance deposit to the Center.

ENCOUNTER

The ground rules of encounter are that participants be open and honest in a group setting, that they avoid mere theorizing and instead talk about their feelings and perceptions. There is often an emphasis on eliciting emotions which lead to positive or negative confrontations rather than away from them. The focus of encounter is to explore interpersonal relations. Over the past years encounter, as practiced at Esalen, has evolved into a broad approach incorporating several related disciplines to achieve its aims. Techniques and insights gained from gestalt, sensory awareness, bioenergetics, massage, movement, and structural integration are all part of Esalen's encounter groups today.

STRUCTURAL INTEGRATION (ROLFING)

Structural Integration or Rolfing is a method of deep manipulation of the musculo-skeletal system that aims at balancing the major segments of the body. We have learned that connective tissue (fascia, tendons, ligaments) can be lengthened by palpation and direct manipulation; this makes it possible to reorganize the basic body lines. A properly organized body will be subject to less stress and will move in a more economical way. Structural Integration has a second principle: posture is behavior. Humans are psychophysical organisms; one cannot divorce their physical from their psychological functions. When you change the structure, you change the function.

SHIATSU MASSAGE

The oriental healing art in which the hands are used to apply pressure to acupuncture points over the entire body, allowing the springs of life to flow.

GESTALT

Gestalt Awareness Training is a theory and approach to personality integration first developed by Fritz and Laura Perls, though new styles and methods are being developed by other leaders. The goal of the training is to assist the participants to utilize excitement and awareness and to develop responsibility. Excitement—to have life energy freely available and flowing, not blocked. Awareness—to be conscious of my energy as and where it flows: to have action accessible to consciousness, not happening mechanically. Responsibility—to know and act on the principle that I am the one who acts, thinks, and feels whatever it may be that I act, think, or feel. No one else or no event influences me except with my consent. At times, everyone in the workshop may work simultaneously with some awareness exercise, or in interaction with each other. More traditionally, a fair amount of time will be spent with participants working individually with the leader. The starting point for such individual work is whatever is here and now of most involving concern for the organism: a fantasy or dream, an interaction with another person, a memory, or a physical posture. "Problems" are welcome as starting points, if they are truly present and not merely verbally presented. In keeping with the gestalt emphasis on personal responsibility, the leader usually leaves the initiative for such work with the participants. The assumption is made that participants are not "patients" but are persons responsible for their own life decisions.

BIOENERGETIC ANALYSIS

Bioenergetic analysis attempts to understand the life of the body through its expression of vitality, gesture, emotion, feeling, and relationship. The body is viewed as an energetic process that participates as the world in the world of instinctual, social, imaginative, and creative realms. Bioenergetics seeks to develop an individual's range of expression by working through this process.

PSYCHOSYNTHESIS

Psychosynthesis is a psychological and educational approach for recognizing and harmonizing the many, often conflicting, elements of our inner lives. It is a developmental process based on a positive conception of man/woman within an evolving universe. Starting with each person's existential situation as he or she perceives it, personal growth is organized into a process aiming at the integration of personality and the emergence of an effective unifying center of being and awareness, the Self. The practical work of psychosynthesis chooses in each situation the appropriate progressive activities among many techniques and methods available. Some of these are: guided imagery, movement, self-identification, creativity, gestalt, meditation, training of the will, symbolic art work, journal keeping, ideal models, and development of intuition. The emphasis is on fostering an ongoing process of growth that can gain momentum and bring about a more joyful, balanced actualization of one's life.

Some Definitions

Of Approaches to Human Growth Used in this Catalog

T'AI CHI CHUAN

T'ai Chi Chuan is an ancient Chinese exercise discipline practiced for health, meditation, energy flow, and self-defense. The slow, flowing movements of this "shadow boxing" comprise the oldest and "softest" of the Asian martial arts. Developed from the Chinese practice of nei kung, or inner exercise, it is part of the system of Taoist yoga. The term t'ai chi can be translated as "grand ultimate" and is expressed by the familiar symbol of yang and yin. It is thus rooted in the Chinese philosophy of change as expressed in the I Ching.

MASSAGE

Massage is a healing art. It is practiced to help the body relax, to release tensions, to balance the energy flow, and to soothe the being with gentle caring. Massages are given individually; workshops, classes, and private lessons are available.

PROGRAMS IN BIG SUR

Week of October 5-10

Exploration & Integration / Arthur & Janica Fox

Come and experience a combination of encounter, gestalt, sensory awareness, and massage surrounded by the richness of Big Sur and the Esalen grounds. Use these to explore more of your awareness and your capacity for openness. We will also explore ways of retaining and integrating our experiences so that we have access to them not just at Esalen, but also when we return home. $270

Bio-Energy and the Gestalt Adventure
Leland Johnson & Mary Ann Merksamer

Bio-Energy: Your body released through bioenergetics, chakra sound, meditation, and t'ai chi ch'uan . . . .

The Gestalt Adventure: The discovery of your now self and allowing what is obvious in you to emerge. Through dialogue you allow integration and feeling whole . . . getting to know all of your selves.

This workshop will focus on clarity, expression, and movement. Many of the experiences you will take home with you are contained in Bioenergetics—Body Contact Work and a forthcoming book, The Gestalt Adventure, by Leland and Mary Ann. $270

Group Mind / Michaeleen Kimmey

In the here-and-now there exist configurations of circuiting energy within the chakras of our selves and between each other. These are the pathways of emotion and intuition, our inner teachers, our navigators.

Group mind is the process of becoming energetically present and aware in our individual moments together. We plug each other in to form a group connection, then channel and focus that powerful energy compassionately to know and love ourselves and each other.

Workshop sessions will include intuitive massage, Feldenkrais exercises of movement to awareness, body numerology, learning to see energy flows, and techniques for experiencing "Higher Self" consciousness. $270

A Tender Invitation / Harry Sloan

You are invited to go beyond where you are through seeing how you keep yourself behind. Beyond is a rich, alive experience—love, anger, joy, sadness, and spirituality. Behind is a fear of seeing what is there. Participants will be offered a chance, a tender invitation, to see what is behind and go beyond. Traditional encounter, gestalt, bioenergetic and psychosynthesis techniques will be utilized, in addition to a new approach aimed at developing perspective, the ability to "see oneself beyond the impasse." $270

Program for the Advanced Study of Culture and Consciousness

Under the direction of Joan Halifax-Grof and Stanislav Grof, Esalen is offering a series of long-term, residential, interdisciplinary programs designed to provide advanced training for professionals and graduate students. All programs will employ an experimental learning form developed by the coordinators; this new approach combines both cognitive and experiential elements, intrapsychic and interpersonal sessions, and modern technology for the exploration of consciousness. The objective is to utilize fully both the specific input of highly qualified guest faculty and also the resources within the group of participants. These programs will systematically cover various aspects of research in culture and consciousness. Each of the residential programs will be individually designed and will not be repeated.

October 12–November 21, 1975

Buddhism and Mind

Coordinated by
Joan Halifax-Grof, Stanislav Grof, & Jack Kornfield

A six week, interdisciplinary institute for students of Buddhism, comparative religion, philosophy, anthropology, psychiatry, and psychology. Esalen is gathering over twenty-five faculty members at Big Sur to offer over 200 curriculum hours of didactic and experiential sessions, exploring the theory and practice of Buddhism. The material presented during this institute will cover three major thematic areas:

Area 1: Theoretical Concepts of Buddhism

Spiritual masters of various Buddhist traditions (Theravada, Mahayana, Vajrayana, and Zen) will introduce the participants to their teachings. Western scholars will discuss the history of Buddhism, its basic principles, position among other great religions of the world, and the relationship between Buddhist psychology and Occidental approaches to the study of the human mind. Buddhist maps of consciousness will be compared with the new model of the unconscious emerging from psychedelic research. A series of illustrated lectures will be dedicated to the study of Buddhist mythology and art.

Area 2: Principles of Buddhist Practice

The participants will explore spiritual practices used in various Buddhist orientations, including sitting and moving meditation, breathing exercises, chanting, visualizations, ascetic procedures (fasting and vigils), martial arts (aikido, t'ai chi, Zen swordsmanship, and archery) and aesthetic approaches (mandalas, calligraphy, ikebana, Japanese tea ceremony, and music). There will be a week of intensive meditation practice.

Area 3: Occidental Approaches to the Exploration of Consciousness

During the entire six week period non-drug technology for self-exploration will be available for supervised use by the participants. This laboratory equipment will include a sensory isolation tank, sonic driver, stroboscopic light, biofeedback system, and a kinaesthetic device (lotus cradle). This will make it possible for participants to explore unusual states of consciousness induced by different techniques.

This institute will take place in the Study Center, a beautiful mansion located on cypress-covered cliffs overlooking the rocky coastline of Big Sur, across Hot Springs Creek from the main Esalen grounds. The learning format will combine didactic seminars, experiential sessions, special lectures, individual tutorial sessions, and selected film material. During the course of the institute, various theoreticians and healers not listed on the faculty will visit the program and share their views and techniques as time will permit.

Some regular Esalen weekend workshops, scheduled in the catalog, will be open to participants for an additional $23. All Esalen facilities will be available, such as the hot sulphur baths, fresh water heated pool, sauna, and (for a separate fee) rolfing, massage (Esalen, shiatsu, polarity), and acupuncture.

Registration Information: This program is limited to 28 participants selected from the applicants. Preference will be given to students of Buddhism. The fee is $1500 including room and board. Some working scholarships are available to students on the basis of need. Scholarship forms can be obtained from Esalen Institute. If you wish to enroll in this program, please send a letter containing biographical information and a recent photograph to Joan Halifax-Grof, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.

Weekend of October 10-12

Knock. Knock. Who's There? / Betty Fuller

For workshop description see December 26-28. $110

Changing: Inner and Outer Movement
Barbara Clemans

For the poets have seen the truth that life, change, movement, and insecurity are so many names for the same thing . . . for movement and rhythm are the essence of all things lovable.

—Alan Watts

We will use the tools of guided imagery and meditation to recognize our resistances to change; movement to give expression to our inner impulses; and massage and awareness exercises for group contact and support. $110

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 30. $100

Massage & Meditation for Couples
Richard Horan & Peggy Morrison

$110 per person

Week of October 12-17

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 30. $240

We Are All Dancers / Betty Fuller

A work/play shop for the dancer in every body—even those who hate to move! This synthesis of gestalt awareness training with Feldenkrais effortless exercise works on the body/mind to dissolve tensions, holdings, blocks, and barriers to mobilization of energy and full self-expression. Everyone can experience increased energy, vitality and flexibility, improved posture (physical and mental), expanded consciousness, and enhanced self-image. We will explore—experientially—the relatedness of gestalt, rolfing, psychosynthesis, Feldenkrais, and est, and use before and after photographs. $270

Massage Intensive / The Esalen Massage Crew

The Esalen massage crew, with its unique variety of approaches and styles, will teach basic techniques for giving and receiving massage, both for immediate relaxation of tension and as a way of caring. Emphasis here is on deepening the quality of touch-communication and heightening awareness of the energy flow between the body in motion and the body at rest.

The group will meet daily at the mineral baths. Limited to 16. $240

Weekend of October 17-19

Feldenkrais Weekend / Ruth Alon

The Feldenkrais method of functional coordination is learned through a varied series of gently graduated exercises. The practice emphasizes awareness of ways of moving and results in increased capacity and ease of movement. As physical patterns change, mental and emotional stresses can be decreased, allowing a more open flow of creativity. Individual regimens will be taught in cases of special problems. $110

Your Most Precious Beliefs and Their Detection
John & Toni Lilly

Each of us has belief systems—some spoken, some unspoken, some known, and some unknown. The personal hunt for these beliefs, the struggle to find them, to articulate them, can be a rewarding experience. Once found, once articulated, once written down, once mastered, these beliefs no longer cause one to be an unwilling non-voluntary programmee of their dictates. One becomes a programmer of one's beliefs, through the new and novel meta-belief operator to be presented and its use taught in this workshop/lecture. $110

Take a Second Look at Yourself / Janet Zuckerman

We will focus on taking a good look at what is going on behind the masks we wear and what is underneath the expressions we put on our faces to confront the world. "Who are you?" and "Who do you pretend to be?" are the polarities we will be working with. Every one of us has a great deal of unused potential and I see the group experience as a safe place to begin to tap into this energy. This week will be entirely experiential using mirrors, gestalt, soft-encounter, and sensory awareness. $240

Woman in a Changing World / Janet Lederman

Melting the boundaries
Re-organizing the myths of our times
Yielding to change
Re-connecting through participation

$270

You & Universal Motion / Bob Nadeau

The physical conscious system operates in direct relationship to a larger energy activity or universal motion. It is important to recognize this activity as a "friend" and learn to work in harmony with it. We will explore energy and our "marriage" with it through meditation, centering, and body movement. $270

Weekend of October 24-26

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 30. $100

Re-Owning Your Power: Renewal and Personal Awakening Through the Physical Experience
Dyveke Spino

As cycles of change press upon us, we need tools to develop our Inner Power of endurance, flexibility, and sense of self-transcendence. This workshop will reawaken your natural physical spirit through five areas of conditioning of mind/body/spirit. Daily activities will be appropriate for people at all levels of fitness, blended with meditations and massage at the Esalen baths. We will explore in a holistic approach:

Endurance: New techniques of jogging and running
Flexibility: Yoga, Scandinavian rhythmics, European calisthenics
Strength: Skeletal muscle toning
Sensing: Energy body and intuitive training
Innerspace: Guided fantasy, imagery, meditation, visualization

Each person will receive a personalized training consultation to allow continuing use of these techniques upon leaving. $110

Moving / Gabrielle Roth

Being . . . in action moving consciously moving creatively moving spontaneously

This movement seminar is designed to ground our consciousness in our bodies and inspire our uniqueness to full expression. $110

Week of October 26-31

Yoga, Meditation, Movement, and Massage: A Time for Renewal
Deborah Medow

Through the regular practice of healing asanas and integrative movement, hatha yoga seeks to develop and maintain awareness of self. Meditation, a vehicle for inwardly focusing this awareness, quiets the mind and allows the spirit to grow and flower. The outward expression of this self-awareness is movement: how we move in this world reflects who we are and how we feel about ourselves. Thus free form movement becomes a way to explore and creatively expand our ways of being. Massage, a means by which aware individuals can share with each other, serves both to heal and to help people more fully experience each other.

In this workshop, we will use yoga, meditation, movement, and massage to explore and expand our ways of feeling and seeing, relating and being. $270

Opening the Feelings: A Neo-Reichian Radix Workshop
Elaine Warburton, Laura Dillon, & Lara Amber

For workshop description see page 26. $300

The Art of Self-Direction / Lenore Lefer

In this workshop we will explore and examine the nature of self-direction and the ways in which we can increase it in our lives. The degree to which we can discover, direct, and regulate the energies of the self affects how productive, creative, and joyful we will be. Psychosynthesis will be the framework within which we learn to enhance the art of self-direction. Participants will focus on their individuality in the context of our universality. $270

Weekend of October 31-November 2

Playing the Dream Game— From Self-Understanding to Self-Transcendence
Ann Faraday & John Wren-Lewis

Participants in this workshop will explore their own personal dream symbolism and seek direct enlightenment from dreams concerning their hidden basic beliefs about self, others, the world, God, and death. These beliefs condition the perception of reality and bring neurotic distortion into creative or religious endeavors. We shall work with nightmares and frustration dreams to unmask and deal creatively with the "secret saboteurs" of the psyche. We shall also look for each dreamer's unique individual "transforming symbols" which release energy for regeneration. If time allows we shall discuss new insights about ESP in dreams, lucid dreams, high dreams, and out-of-the-body experiences.

To make the most of the workshop, participants should have read Ann Faraday's Dream Power (Berkeley paperback) and The Dream Game (Harper & Row) beforehand. $110

Myths & Mysteries of "The Great Goddess"
Joseph Campbell

A weekend of slide lectures on the symbolism, myths, and rites of the Classical Mystery Cults: their backgrounds in the pre-Homeric "Great Goddess" religions of Crete and the earliest Near East; significant parallels in India in worship of the goddess Kali; survivals of the symbolism in the Christian veneration of the Virgin; and the counterplay, throughout history, of the forms of the powerful patriarchal orders—Homeric, Biblical, and (in India) Vedic.

For discussion, suggestions will be offered concerning the relevance of all this to a possible reconsideration of the values implicit in our own traditionally patriarchal forms of worship and professed belief. $110

Week of November 2-7

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 30. $240

The Body Shop: Movement & Massage / Gabrielle Roth

Movement is a process of discovery of the self as a spontaneous creative flow of action. This seminar is about movement; it's about action, change, and growth and how they relate to our lives. Our purpose is to develop the will to be present for ourselves and others in a way that is a spontaneous and free flowing expression of our uniqueness. $270

November 2-28

The Roots of Self-Reliance:
A Curriculum for Personal Courage
David Schiffman, Dee Mundschenk, & Dick Galland

This monthlong workshop will combine the complementary approaches of gestalt, encounter, and sensory awareness with the rigorous physical preparation of jogging, psychocalisthenics, and fasting, leading to wilderness survival skills, among which will be climbing, bouldering, rappeling, hiking, orienteering, and emergency first aid.

The participants in this workshop will have the opportunity to explore the nature and purpose of personal boundaries, whether as illusions to be transcended or as tools of self-survival. The emphasis will be on the achievement of a more harmonious balance between the mental, physical, emotional, and transcendent realms of experience, working towards greater personal expansion and openness with others.

The program will also provide time to explore the basic elements underlying group process and individual growth. We will practice the use and development of intuitional sensing in examining all forms of personal interaction. During the final week of the workshop participants will have the opportunity to use newly synthesized skills and information by acting in the capacity of group leader.

Other approaches will include journal work, meditation and visualization techniques, and dream study. Information will be sent regarding advance preparation required and equipment needed. $1200

Weekend of November 7-9

Energy and Hypnosis with Bernard Gunther & Lee Pulos

The emphasis of this workshop will be to teach participants techniques that can be taken home and used after the weekend is over. The specific focus of the seminar will be the use of hypnosis, self-hypnosis, guided fantasies, breathing, and chakra meditations to increase self-direction and paranormal and psychic abilities. Special attention will be devoted to ways in which suggestion can be used to enhance and transmute personal transpersonal emotional mental creative energy. $110

Introduction to Selective Awareness & Self-Hypnosis
Emmett Miller

The present-day student of health recognizes that the vast majority of physical disease patterns and essentially all psychological problems are merely the result of faulty programming of the "Human Biocomputer." Yet seldom can either physician or patient make use of this well-demonstrated fact. The reason for the paradox is simple: you must know the language in order to talk to a computer (garbage in; garbage out). Selective awareness is self-applied, using your conscious mind—in a state of deep relaxation and concentration—to systematically explore and experience your world of experience and memory within. We will investigate selective consciousness through auto-suggestion; the elimination of unwanted symtoms, habits, and emotional response patterns; effective learning, listening, and communication; and body awareness. $110

Week of November 9-14

Exploration & Integration / Arthur & Janica Fox

Come and experience a combination of encounter, gestalt, sensory awareness, and massage surrounded by the richness of Big Sur and the Esalen grounds. Use these to explore more of your awareness and your capacity for openness. We will also explore ways of retaining and integrating our experiences so that we have access to them not just at Esalen, but also when we return home. $270

Towards a More Sensitive Relating / Charles Brooks

In an increasingly alienated world where mechanical ease often makes communication shallower, many of us are eager to find more meaningful contact both with ourselves and with others, and with our activities whatever they may be. We would like really to get in touch. But the conventional approaches we have learned, our social and intellectual conditioning, lie like callouses over our living nerve ends and, though occasionally useful, act as effective barriers between the perceiver and the perceived. The reality both of ourselves and of those we meet can only be discovered and explored when we begin to sense and discard the techniques and defenses we have come to rely on—when we become again consciously living organisms, open, as we were in childhood, to the unedited messages of our senses.

In this workshop, which will be devoted to practice rather than theory, a beginning will be made toward exploring anew our natural capacities for clearly perceiving and relating to those around us and to the life within us, and to the many tasks which life presents. $270

Recommended reading: Sensory Awareness: The Rediscovery of Experiencing by Charles Brooks.

Weekend of November 14-16

Steps to an Ecology of Mind / Gregory Bateson

In the last twenty years, the theoretical advances in cybernetics and advances in the study of personal interaction have led to new ways of looking at the living world, including everything from biology to poetry and politics. The workshop will explore these ways of perceiving and thinking. $110

Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain: The Watercourse Way T'ai Chi
Al Chung-liang Huang

An introduction to t'ai chi and creative Taoist philosophy as explained and exemplified in the book, Tao: The Watercourse Way by the late Alan Watts and Al Chung-liang Huang, and in Huang's book, Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain. The meeting of East and West will be explored in terms of everyday living, of transforming intellectual understanding of the East into action, and of making useful applications to the way of life in the West.

". . . here it will become apparent to many who used to look down upon body as a hindrance or an encumbrance of the spirit, that the body in its very movements can be a deeper revelation of the essence of our being than all our religious and philosophical assumptions. What Al Huang demonstrates and teaches is that the inspired body is a manifestation of universal forces which flow through us, unless we block them by our arbitrary judgments and short-sighted aims and intentions. He teaches us to flow with the Tao and to restore the lost harmony of our lives."

—Lama Anagarika Govinda

$110

November 21-23

Friends of Esalen Weekend

This weekend is for people who want to BE at Esalen, people who have been at Esalen before or who have contributed to Esalen through the Friends of Esalen program. No formal groups will be scheduled. We will be here together; participants will live their own script with the Esalen grounds as their stage.

Limited to 60 participants. $60

Week of November 16-21

The Seven Levels & Four Areas of Personal Development: A Gestalt Approach
Jack Downing

You're either busy being born or busy diein'.

—Bobby Dylan

We all are beings in constant change, usually in directions unclear and manners unknown. An orientation to self-evolution using structured gestalt techniques will be presented here. Areas covered will include money, sex, power, and death. $300

Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain: The Watercourse Way T'ai Chi
Al Chung-liang Huang

For workshop description, see November 14-16. $270

Week of November 23-28

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 30. $240

The Politics of Peace / Janet Lederman

Living with ABSURDITY

$270

Energy Responsibility: A Synthesis of Bioenergetics & Gestalt
Alan Schwartz

Energy responsibility synthesizes the philosophies of bioenergetic and gestalt therapies. Energy is movement. When movement is blocked, the organism cannot function to nourish the person towards a mature sense of self. This workshop will move in the direction of awareness by attempting to work through energy blocks. This release will provide a person with the opportunity to integrate body-feelings-mind into a total sense of what he/she is as an organism. Recommended for teachers, those in mental health professions, and all who are committed to growing. $270

November 23-December 12

Renascence: Integration of Mind, Body, & Spirit
Michael Butler

Michael Butler writes: "My interest is in mind, body, and spirit working together. I want to develop the spirit because it can make the work of becoming a whole person easier—in fact, it can make it a joy. At the same time, I believe that spirituality must be human, which means it is grounded solidly in love of oneself and love of other people.

As an approach, I choose to focus on undiscovered strengths rather than on flaws, on essence more than on personality, on transmuting the energy within blocks rather than attempting to do away with the blocks. On win/win rather than win/lose exchanges between people. I choose this way of working because it is true and because we are all equals in the process of becoming. Our flow will guide the flow of the work, which may include the following:

Work with emotions: a positive kind of encounter, and establishment of group trust matrix.

Body work: rolfing, massage, and gestalt practices.

Focus on the spiritual: meditation, centering, and grounding practices.

Integration of emotional, physical, and spiritual work; theoretical underpinnings of the work; application to everyday life.

Throughout the three weeks, emphasis will be on those growth practices which can be translated directly to everyday life." $910

Mountain Aesthetics—The Humanity of Ascent
Michael Tobias

We will climb rocks overlooking the Pacific Ocean and think about the experience with slides, film, discourse, and braille. As mentality seeks solidity, physicality craves imagination. "Who can look at the sky to keep from falling?"

Participants are asked to read George Steiner's After Babel (Oxford, 1975) and Rene Daumal's Mount Analogue (City Lights, 1972). $110

Weekend of November 28-30

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 30. $100

Centering, Self Awareness, & the Spirit of Play / Bob Kriegel

This workshop will teach centering: the process of finding that calm place within ourselves that is in balance and harmony. Active games of all types—including energy games, street and playground games, theatre games, new games, and new approaches to traditional sports—will be used for experiencing "center" and for exploring self-awareness. We will explore how game behavior magnifies our reaction patterns, giving us a clearer, more vivid picture of ourselves. We will also use gestalt, role playing, guided fantasy, and psychosynthesis techniques to bring our new awareness to a more conscious level. $110

Energy Release & Integration Through Bioenergetics
Alan Schwartz

Read the description of the weeklong workshop. This weekend will concentrate on releasing blocked energy and integrating resulting awarenesses on the emotional and mental levels. The weekend should be thought of as an introduction to the concept of energy flow and its relation to a stronger sense of self. $110

Week of November 30-December 5

A Gestalt Workshop for Professionals / Stella Resnick

This workshop is designed for people who are working as group leaders, therapists, and in related fields. We will review basic principles of gestalt awareness through discussion and practice. Some time will be set aside for revolving leadership under supervision. $270

Centering / Robert Nadeau

Being centered is working in harmony with yourself. It is applicable in everything—movement, sports, working, teaching, meditation—all aspects of living. We'll learn to recognize and function from center in the midst of daily activities and pressures. $270

Celebration—The Spirit of '76 / Betty Fuller

A five day Thanksgiving workshop designed to throw off the shackles of the soap operas of our lives and liberate ourselves from the external and arbitrary controls we feel in "shoulds," "oughts," and "have-to's." We will create and experience the freedom and responsibility inherent in choice and declare our independence in self-support. Encounter based, the group will summon and support its native powers to make whole with experiences in theatre games, gestalt, psychosynthesis, feldenkrais movement, meditation, massage, and laughter. Have what you want. Celebrate what is and what works. Get OFF it—get WITH it—get it UP—and get it ON! Liberty—NOW! $270

Opening the Feelings

RADIX NEO-REICHIAN WORKSHOPS
(formerly Interscience Workshops)

To grow in the capacity to experience and express deep feeling, to connect up with oneself and to contact others is the aim of this series of workshops which employ neo-Reichian techniques of emotional release. The Radix Intensive, a period of individual work within a small group setting, is practiced by Charles and Erica Kelley and their staff at the Radix Work Shop. The Intensive, like other neo-Reichian techniques used in these workshops, grew from the discovery by Charles Kelley's teacher, Wilhelm Reich, of the way in which feeling is rooted in the flow of energy in the body, and is blocked by chronic muscular contractions which Reich called the muscular armor. Freeing the armor enables the student to open feeling that is buried and to soften and free feeling that is too strong and has been held in for fear of explosion.

In these workshops armor is softened by simultaneous work on the character and body, using techniques not only from Reich, but also from bioenergetics, sensory awareness, and other body-oriented approaches. Groups will be kept small—never more than eight per leader—so that significant individual help can be given. Grief or pain, fear and rage that have been held in since childhood emerge in these workshops. As the participant accepts and works through these negative feelings, he discovers a new capacity for pleasure, trust, and love. In time the sexual experience changes profoundly as tender and sexual feelings for the mate intensify and merge.

SCHEDULE:

Oct 26-31	Elaine Warburton, Laura Dillon, & Lara Amber
Dec 14-19	Laura Dillon, David Sherman, & Connie Cossette
Jan 18-23	Roger Andes, Siri Mishler, & Jacoba Teague

Weekend of December 5-7

Workshop for Gay Women/Gay Men
Sally Smith & Paul Rebillot

A chance for gay women and gay men to meet at Esalen and share joys, problems, directions, massage, and life styles. The groups will meet separately and together when appropriate during the weekend. $110

Self Hypnosis, Selective Awareness, & Movement
Emmett & Nitza Miller

Movement requires the use of muscular activity in varying degrees of intensity. So, too, thought processes and interpersonal communication proceed through stages of higher and lower energy. Most of our personal and social difficulties (symtoms, unwanted emotions, maladaptive habit patterns) can be eased when we learn to react in accordance with and in response to our internal and external environment.

In this workshop we will learn and apply the principles of self-hypnosis and selective awareness, as well as those of dance and movement therapy, to expand our self-awareness and the ability to adjust our minds and bodies to changing experiences. $110

Tuning In / Janet Zuckerman

Many of us are operating as tape recorders. We switch on in the morning at "high" or "low" speed and play our tapes in response to the buttons being pushed by people or events. We are vaguely aware that life seems repetitive, or dull, that time is often something to be gotten through instead of savored, but this awareness is lost in the "noise" and business of day to day living.

This weekend will be devoted to bringing our attention to what we are doing—how we are really acting and thinking. Once we are aware of our tapes, we can go off automatic and begin to enjoy our interactions with one another. We will be using gestalt process, encounter, sensory awareness, and other techniques to tune in to ourselves and each other. $100

Week of December 7-12

Growth Through Risk-Taking / David Schiffman

This workshop provides the opportunity for the group members to come to terms with the definitions by which they live. Through a series of structured risk-taking situations, the use of gestalt, role playing, fantasy, and encounter techniques, the participants can accept or transcend the boundaries from which they approach the world. Emphasis will be placed on the expression of anger, affection, sexuality, and the transcending of roles. This workshop is especially useful for people who have had previous encounter experience. $270

A Week with Will Schutz / Will Schutz

Within the format of an encounter group we shall explore many body methods, intrapsychic techniques, demonstrations, and theoretical discussions relevant to whatever happens in the group. $270

The Body Shop: Movement & Massage / Gabrielle Roth

For workshop description, see November 2-7. $270

Weekend of December 12-14

Invitations to Openness / Walt & Maurica Anderson

We will work with these basic propositions: 1) An increased capacity for personal openness and honesty makes life easier and a lot more interesting; 2) The need for privacy is to be respected; 3) Openness is best achieved in response to an invitation, not a demand. We will all explore our own boundaries of privacy /openness, and will work with some techniques for being open—and inviting openness in everyday life. $110

A Weekend with Will Schutz / Will Schutz

For workshop description see December 7-12. $110

Eutonie / Marion Von Blumenthal

Eutonie is conscious tonus regulation. This process includes free expression in movement. We will move according to natural law based on anatomical structure, gravity and postural reflex (transportreflex), and inner and outer space.

An unimpaired body image is the essential relating factor between postural and personal structure. To regain an unimpaired body image, we will develop skin and proprioceptive sensibility influencing muscle and bone function.

Only as we manage to create order in ourselves will we be able to create order in relationship to others and to the world around us. $110

Getting Together the Family Within / John-Raphael Staude

Who are you? Perhaps you have found that you are many people, that different aspects of you come through in different situations or at different times. In this workshop we will use drawing, writing, and theatre games along with gestalt and psychosynthesis techniques to help us get to know and get together our family within. This workshop is particularly suited to people who have already established contact with their "creative child" or other internal figures, and to anyone who likes to learn through play. $110

Week of December 14-19

The Politics of Peace / Janet Lederman

For workshop description see November 23-28. $270

Opening the Feelings: A Neo-Reichian Radix Workshop Laura Dillon, David Sherman, & Connie Cossette

For workshop description see page 26. $300

Developing Your Own Yoga / Peggy Morrison & Dick Horan

This workshop is an exploration of the body with the focus on discovering ways of relaxation and increasing flexibility and strength. The work includes massage, meditation, hatha yoga, and movement. $270

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 30. $240

Gestalt Practice / Richard & Christine Price

Perfect like Great Space
the Way has nothing lacking, nothing in excess.
Truly because of our accepting and rejecting
We have not the suchness of things.
—Sengtsan (3rd Zen Patriarch)

What is, is.
—Fritz Perls

Gestalt practice is a form—nonanalytic, noncoercive, nonjudgmental—evolving out of the work of Fritz Perls, relating that work to ways of personal clearing and development both ancient and modern. To the extent that awareness is made primary relative to action, gestalt practice has a strong relationship to some forms of meditation and visualization. In that emotional and energetic release and rebalancing are allowed and encouraged, the relation to some Reichian work is close.

The emphasis is *intra*personal rather than *inter*personal. Those who primarily wish interpersonal work are advised to attend an encounter rather than a gestalt group.

Participants are explicitly not "patients" but persons consenting actively to work (or play) in awareness. The "leader" functions to reflect, clarify, and flow with whatever emerges in this process. The aim is unfoldment, wholeness, growth rather than "adjustment," "cure," or "accomplishment."

Food for Thought

The following is a review of an article published in 1974 in The Journal of Consulting and Clinical Psychology (Volume 42, Number 3, Pages 337-345) by two University of Miami psychologists, Janet McCardel and Edward Murray. The study, entitled "Non-Specific Factors in Weekend Encounter Groups," involved several different kinds of groups on an island of the Florida Keys. In highly structured Group 1, sharing dyads, cooperation squares, blind walks, decision-making, and other exercises were utilized during sixteen hours of encounter. Group 2, a medium structured group, spent approximately six hours in exercises similar to those of the highly structured group, and the rest of the time in unstructured T-group meetings. A minimal structure group spent the entire time (sixteen hours) sitting in a circle verbalizing (with no exercises or gimmicks) about personally meaningful things. The group leaders, all professional women in their early 30's, were trained in social work, clinical psychology, and educational psychology, and were experienced practitioners in the kind of group work they were doing. A fourth group, called the on-site control group, was a "structure-free" relaxation weekend. The leader of this group was a secretary and former dance teacher in a junior college, holding no advanced degrees. Participants in this group were led to believe that they were to be in an encounter group; they were told that this kind of weekend would relieve them of the physical and mental stress of everyday life. The sixteen hours of training time was spent in ballroom dancing, learning the cha cha, charades, treasure hunts, walks around the key (Pigeon Key), volleyball, and party games such as password. "All meaningful or therapeutically oriented discussion was carefully avoided." An additional at-home control group of subjects simply stayed at home for an entire weekend.

Psychological testing of participants was conducted three days before coming to these groups, toward the end of the groups, and then ten weeks later. The battery of self-report measures included: The Personal Orientation Inventory—comprised of items regarding such constructs as "self-actualization," "self-regard," "self-acceptance," "acceptance of aggression," and "capacity for intimate contact"; the Marlow-Crown Social Desirability Scale—concerned with assessing the extent to which people present themselves in a socially desirable or defensive fashion; the Rokeach Dogmatism scale—concerned with the openness or closedness of belief systems, general intolerance, rigidity of thought, and authoritarian attitudes; an assumptions opinionnaire about encounter groups and groups in general; and a series of sociometric rating measures.

Findings: In comparison with the at-home control group, the three encounter groups showed significant improvement by the end of the weekend on various self-report measures; they did not differ among themselves to any great extent. On the other hand, the on-site control group did not differ significantly from the three encounter groups and even tended to be "less defensive, less dogmatic, and more attuned to encounter assumptions than the three encounter groups . . . In fact, the on-site control group made the most substantial improvement from pretest to posttest (p 341)." Follow-up data obtained ten weeks after the group experience indicated the at-home control group to be significantly less improved than the other four groups combined on such measures as Self-Actualizing Value, Existentiality, Feeling Reactivity, Self-Regard, Acceptance of Aggression, and Capacity for Intimate Contact. The on-site control group was not significantly different from the three encounter groups on any of these scales. However, "The encounter groups, if anything, moved closer to the at-home control group on Dogmatism. In fact, the on-site control group was significantly less dogmatic than the three encounter groups combined . . . (p 343)."

Esalen/University of Michigan Conference

The seventh conference co-sponsored by Esalen and a university will take place November 1-2, 1975 at the Southfield Inn near Detroit, Michigan. The co-sponsoring institution is the University of Michigan. Among the leaders will be Janet Lederman, George Leonard, Jim Fadiman, and Will Schutz. This conference differs from our previous weekend conferences in that it is primarily focused for the student community. While a great many students from Michigan, Ohio, Illinois, and western New York State are anticipated, we also urge our alumni and others interested in renewing or making contact with Esalen to attend.

Please write to Carol Levine, Esalen Institute, 1793 Union Street, San Francisco, CA 94123 for further information.

Experiencing Esalen at the Organizational Level

In February, 1975, 112 computer equipment personnel representing a large corporation came to Esalen for three days to do organizational development work complemented by sports and body work aimed at enhancing employee cooperation and awareness of body energy. One of the company management personnel who coordinated the program later wrote:

"We arrived at an agreement that in order for an organization to become more aware of its problems, each individual in that organization must become more aware of his own capabilities, restrictions, and limitations. Out of this understanding grew the belief 'if each member of the marketing team can increase his awareness of his own boundless potential by any measurable degree, then the effectiveness of the force he contributes to has to be enhanced drastically.' We then set our theme for the rally . . . . From this theme grew other slogans such as 'Experience Teamwork, Experience Loyalty, Experience Pride.'

"The 'Experience' theme gradually evolved into suggestions about including an 'Outward Bound' activity for this year's rally. Since this involved a physical fitness prerequisite, this idea soon gave way to something less physical but still requiring total involvement. Then came Esalen.

"Our initial fears were:

1) Spartan accommodations—60 miles from civilization, no TV, no room service, no hard liquor supply, no bars, etc.

2) Menu—no selection, cafeteria style.

3) People—none of us had ever met any of the staff—long hairs.

4) Drugs—we heard rumors and, of ignorance, chose to believe them.

"Our reflections after the experience are these:

1) Accommodations are quite nice. The lack of TV, radio, booze, room service only serves to improve one's own perception of those sounds, smells, sights which form our basic environment.

2) Wide selection of entrees is not required when the food offered is so delicious.

3) We are all people.

4) The only drug we found was love.

"In short, the environment is conducive to getting back to the basics and experiencing yourself. We feel that we successfully accomplished our goal beyond all expectations. The feedback from all those who participated is very positive and extremely gratifying to those who helped plan the rally. Every man in the force got something tangible from the experience (particularly the organizational development) and the sales force is now united toward achieving their goal as never before. Many will return on their own time."

Love,
Michael Mann

WORK-STUDY PROGRAM

Beginning November 2, 1975, a special residence program at Esalen / Big Sur will be available for those interested in living and working in the Esalen community. Resident leaders, including Janet Lederman, Peggy Morrison, Richard Price, Christine Price, Beverly Silverman, Julian Silverman, and Janet Zuckerman, will coordinate and lead sessions in gestalt, encounter, body work, and other approaches currently practiced at Esalen. In addition, regular weekend workshops will be available at special rates. Participants will work 32 hours per week on the grounds or at South Coast. Work will be assigned according to the needs of our community. Room and board is $300 per four week period, based on shared accommodations of up to three persons to a room at our South Coast Living Center. The program is 28 days, beginning on a Sunday. If interested, please apply to Elaine Simon, Esalen Work-Study Program, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, Ca 93920. Only a limited number of applicants will be accepted: apply as early as possible.

"...and polish up the big brass doors"

SOUTH COAST CENTER

The living center is slowly evolving into a participatory environment
- vital
- changing
- designing, redesigning inner and outer space with residents responsible for their own evolution.

The South Coast Center, located a mile and a half north of Esalen, is a living center for people who would like to be in contact with Esalen and its facilities but who are not interested in an intensive workshop program. Studios (room, balcony, and bath) are available for $350 per month. A monthly meal ticket may be purchased at Esalen for $200 and residents may set up light cooking facilities in their rooms for preparing their own meals. Laundry room privileges are available for a small monthly charge and a heated pool and sauna are available at no extra cost. South Coast studios may be reserved through the Esalen / Big Sur office.

ONGOING RESIDENTIAL PROGRAM

Offered from September through May, the Ongoing Residential Program is designed for those who would like to have time and space in the Esalen environment for an intensive workshop program over a long term. A minimum stay: 26 days (or four "weeks" and three weekends).

Participants may select any of the five-day workshops offered during their stay. Weekend workshops are available at special prices. Some programs are cancelled, so second choices are advised. Some special staff programs will also be open to residents. Cost: $960 per 26-day period.

Body Work & Energy Awareness / Jerry Nolly

One of the best assurances of health and well being is an unrestricted flow of energy through the tissues of the body. The focus of this workshop will be on our bodies and the energetic processes which move us. We will work with a variety of systems including t'ai chi, sensing, massage, relaxation, bioenergetics, and meditation. Our emphasis will be on sensing and generating energy flow, locating and releasing tension, and grounding and centering energy. $110

You Don't Have to Suffer to Feel Good / Harry Sloan

Frequently people come to workshops believing the only way to get in touch with themselves is through pain, anguish, and earth-shaking breakthroughs. Growing becomes humorless and heavy and so does life. Though real experience will not be avoided, this workshop will tap into the absurdity of conflicts and problems, offering the participants an opportunity to develop perspective and laugh at the seemingly tragic fates they have chosen. $110

Body Energy & Self Expression
Hector Prestera & Ron Kurtz

Bioenergetics, gestalt, physical character analysis, and guided fantasy as well as concepts from acupuncture and rolfing will be utilized to assist participants in contacting and freeing their body blocks and opening the way to "feelingful" and balanced self expression. $110

Energy Healing / Bernard Gunther

This workshop will explore the assumption that physical, emotional, mental illness is the direct or indirect result of excessive chronic tension and withholding: dis/ease. This holding back of energy, excitement, and expression creates a surface sense of security at the expense of aliveness and well being. In this workshop we will use various techniques to begin the process of cleansing, balancing, centering, and healing your whole being. Special focus will be given to the seven energy centers (chakras), breathing, guided fantasies, and the reprogramming of thought and habit patterns—various simple practical methods that can perpetuate health and higher functioning throughout life. $110

Week of December 21-26

Music & the Healing Arts
Charles Lloyd, Georgia Kelly, Myrtle Ratcliffe, & Guest Leaders

Several musicians whose similarity lies in the use of their music in healing will present their approaches to health through music as well as meditation, diet, exercise, and massage. The week will include performances from the artists as well as sessions in movement and massage from Esalen staff members and guest leaders, all emphasizing the process of cleansing and self renewal during this season of celebration. $270

A Tender Invitation / Harry Sloan

For workshop description see October 5-10. $270

Energy: Meditation Self Regulation Synthesis
Bernard Gunther

We are all almost unlimited sources of joyous energy; we squander many of these resources. Blocked by fear, habit, and limitation, we dam ourselves in destructive energy expression: various forms of mental-physical-emotional symptoms and illness. In this workshop we will learn to release, redirect, and reintegrate behavior patterns through the use of breathing, guided fantasies, chakra meditation, awareness, and hypnosis. The experience will be a synthesis of gestalt, yoga, psychosynthesis, and movement with special emphasis on an individual program of these methods that can be used in daily life. $270

Gestalt Practice / Richard & Christine Price

For workshop description see December 14-19. $270

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

Coordinated by Janet Zuckerman

These workshops are designed for people who have not previously been to Esalen/Big Sur. The emphasis is on finding those approaches to self-awareness that work most effectively for the individual participant. Some of the following experiences are available at each Experiencing Esalen workshop: sensory awareness, gestalt awareness training, encounter, theatre games, guided fantasy, meditation, bioenergetics, massage. There is time to experience and explore the natural magnificence of the Big Sur coast.

Suggested reading: Gestalt Therapy Verbatim (Perls) and The New Education (Kelley).

Re-Owning Your Power: Renewal & Personal Awakening Through the Physical Experience
Dyveke Spino

For workshop descript on see October 24-26. $110

Knock. Knock. Who's There? / Betty Fuller

Who? What? Why? When? Where? Am I? How do I know? What's it all about? There appear to be no answers when we're bound by yesterday's unfinished business, stuck in today's soap opera, and hiding in tomorrow's fantasies. In this gestalt-encounter weekend we'll explore and play with these riddles in present time-here/now—using theatre games, psychosynthesis, feldenkrais movement, meditation, and massage among other ways to be and let be as we discover, explore, and celebrate our selves. For singles and couples of all kinds. $110 per person.

A Choice Workshop: The Act of Willing / Lenore Lefer

Many of us tend to make our life choices without full awareness. We sometimes wait, decide impulsively, reactively, hastily, or without purpose. The more conscious we are of the act of choosing, the more we open ourselves to the experience of joy and freedom. Using the framework of psychosynthesis, we will explore how we can choose using our will. The aim is towards learning the process of making conscious choices, thereby taking responsibility for our life's purpose and direction. $110

Begin the New Year:
Annual Body Tune-up & Celebration of Life
Barbara Clemans

We seem to oscillate between two states of body-consciousness: hypertension and sleep. To be relaxed, awake, and yet energetic is a rare state of being. Let us take this time to recondition and renew our selves and to recharge our connection to the life force flowing within, around, and through us all. We will learn self-help and health rituals that can be continued on a daily basis, energy contact massage to enhance the intrinsic flow, music to sensitize and reawaken the connection to the universe, and meditation to still inner chatter. $110

Week of December 28- January 2

I'm Entitled! / George & Judith Brown

This workshop teaches the process of owning what each of us has available in both our inner world and in our outer world, and appreciating the ways we interrupt our own natural growth and personal and interpersonal development. Then we can recognize what is and what isn't and what could (not "should") be and relish the choices, challenges, adventures, and peace to which we are all entitled. Suitable for couples or individuals. Limited to 20. $270

Celebration—The Spirit of '76 / Betty Fuller

A five day New Year's workshop designed to throw off the shackles of the soap operas of our lives and liberate ourselves from the external and arbitrary controls we feel in "shouls," "oughts," and "have-to's." We will create and experience the freedom and responsibility inherent in choice and declare our independence in self-support. Encounter based, the group will summon and support its native powers to make whole with experiences in theatre games, gestalt, psychosynthesis, feldenkrais movement, meditation, massage, and laughter. Have what you want. Celebrate what is and what works. Get OFF it—get WITH it—get it UP—and get it ON! Liberty—NOW! $270

An Integrative Approach to Self Actualization
Ilana Rubenfeld

The sea always has waves . . . waves are the sea . . . sea and waves are one. To speak of waves apart from the sea is a delusion—so mind and body are one!

The focus in this workshop will be on experiencing one's own body and emotions as a total organism. Emotions and memories are often stored in our bodies, resulting in tension and imbalance. A unique blend of gestalt, Alexander technique, and feldenkrais exercises will be used as a gateway to contacting, expressing, and working through deep feelings. Massage staff will be on hand to assist the workshop.

We have the choice to contact ourselves and each other with joy, sadness, compassion, humor, ideas, and with the body—the whole person. $270

Training Workshop in Responsible Energy:
A Synthesis of Bioenergetics & Gestalt
Alan Schwartz

The study of energy and the human organism involves learning about the elements of characterology. Through experiential and didactic learning participants will gain an understanding of various character structures as defined by Reich and Lowen. Those who work in education, therapy, counseling, and guidance must be willing to consider themselves data for learning as we explore the blocks to energetic flow on both psycho-physical and feeling levels. The intent is to add an energetic dimension to the knowledge and skills already present in participants. A priority will be to explore the relationship between bioenergetics and gestalt with an eye to creating a sense of harmony and synthesis. $270

Weekend of January 2-4

The Politics of Peace / Janet Lederman

For workshop description see November 23-28. $110

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop descript on see page 30. $100

The Feldenkrais Method: A Psychophysical Education Through Body Movements Judith Stransky

Dr Moshe Feldenkrais has originated and developed a method of re-educating the total being and tapping our unused potential through the means of body exercises and movements. This leads to an expansion of awareness, and to a greater range of experience. The exercises involve integration of the physical and the mental, release of fixed habits that restrict us, differentiation of parts of the body, relaxation and balance, improvement in alignment, and suppleness. The approach is through pleasure, not strain, combined with breathing techniques. $110

Alan Watts Revisited / Robert Shapiro

This workshop will be an experience of showing, telling, touching, chanting, meditating, and experiencing Alan Watts through a variety of audio visual formats, including his last film, "Work as Play," and his out-of-print records, "Why Not Now" and "Om."

There will be opportunity for dialogue through the use of sensing, feeling, and hearing for those who are aware of feelings of incompleteness, unfinished gestalts, and double binds—trying to blow your mind and come to your senses and sensing your minds and trying to mind your senses. $110

Rest & Renewal for the New Year / Deborah Medow

In these changing times of stress and growth, let us pause to renew our energy and regain our balance of body/mind/spirit. We will start the new year by exploring different ways of touching our own centers —of feeling at one with ourselves and the universe.

The group will meet at Esalen's "Big House," where we will prepare most of our own meals for a cleansing diet. We will have morning meditations at the mineral baths and will do sessions in massage and movement, hatha yoga, and chanting, as well as an introduction to the principles of polarity therapy. There will be time to enjoy the Esalen grounds and the Big Sur coast. $110

Week of January 4-9

Renascence / Michael Butler

Within each of us is an untapped seed of emotional and spiritual energy that we can systematically learn to discover and nourish. The goal of this workshop is to teach the ability to tune into and develop that seed center of self.

The daily meetings will be an integration of emotional, spiritual, and body work. The interpersonal will be explored through a new kind of positive encounter. Individual work will be gestalt oriented. Emotional work will be grounded in quieting and meditation practices at the Esalen baths. Emphasis throughout will be on means of translating Esalen growth practices into everyday life. $270

Your Personal Resurrection / Paul Rebillot

To suffer one's death and be reborn is not easy.
—Fritz Perls

The Time: Moving into 1976
The Place: Big Sur
The Theme: Death and dying; Life and living
The Script: Gestalt, magic, improvisation, meditation, movement, and song
The Cast: You and me

Hypnotherapy & Movement / Emmet & Nitza Miller

To us, therapy is a means for capturing the spirit and momentum of enjoyable experiences in the past and projecting them into the future. Further, it allows us to trace maladaptive patterns—symptoms, habits, emotions, and blocks—to their source, as far back as infancy or further, and extinguish them.

Participants will learn to enter and use the hypnotic state for relaxation, imagery, and age regression. Movement will be used to help intensify emotional experiences, to transmit desirable self-concepts to the body, and to develop means of truly enjoying the body. Of special interest will be multiple experiences of going from a desirable mental image in hypnosis directly into a full movement experience, without pausing at the "waking" level. $270

Advanced Training Workshop in Responsible Energy Alan Schwartz

This is an advanced week of training for those either having taken the first week's work or having sufficient background in workshop training and/or therapy practice using energy techniques or gestalt. In addition to theoretical and practical input about energy techniques, participants will work with each other in dyads. Emphasis will be on integrating energy work with specific interests of participants. Application of responsible energy techniques to therapy, education, and other helping professions will be discussed and experienced. $270

January 4-16

The Inner Road to Health—Approaches to Healing & Self-Healing
Al Drucker, Barbara Braunstein, Guest Leaders, & Esalen Staff

This is a workshop for staying well and helping others stay well. There are two longterm programs of this type scheduled per year, one in March and the other in September, each lasting four weeks or longer, and two shorter twelve day seminars, such as this one, offered in July and January. The basic premise of these workshops is simply that as we immerse ourselves in a nourishing environment, take in good food, lighten the load of excess baggage and attachments that clog up our lives, do wholesome, satisfying work, and engage in a daily physical and spiritual cleansing practice, our body-mind comes into harmony and order. Then we are best prepared to embark on the inner journey of evolving in consciousness. It is on this spiritual path, within the deepest wellsprings of our being, that we will discover the healing current that permits us to guide others to health and to heal ourselves.

The subjects covered in these twelve days will be an introduction and a synthesis of many of the health and healing approaches taught at Esalen. Depending on group interest, these will include gestalt and other personal process work, massage, rolfing, acupuncture, bioenergetics, shiatsu, polarity, herbal and homeopathic systems, psychic and energy healing processes, fasting, nutrition, iridology, astrology, movement, and dance. The daily physical and spiritual practice will include meditation, chanting, yoga postures, t'ai chi form, Arica exercises, jogging, feldenkrais work, and aura-cleaning at the baths. There will also be opportunities for gardening and other community work; we will prepare some of our own organic meals. The workshop will be held at Esalen's "Big House" and many of the participants will be housed there. The Big House is a beautiful mansion located on cypress-covered cliffs overlooking the rocky coastline of Big Sur, across Hot Springs Canyon from the main Esalen grounds.

Some partial scholarships will be available and upon application will be awarded on the basis of need: for this a work commitment will be required. For further information on these seminars and the apprenticeship program, see the next Esalen catalog. $590

Body Energy and Self Expression
Hector Prestera & Ron Kurtz

For workshop description see December 19-21. $110

Yoga for Modern Living / Joel Kramer

This workshop on the physical, psychological, and spiritual aspects of yoga is geared to make yoga meaningful as a tool for the adventure of self-exploration in day-to-day living.

This approach teaches you to be in touch with yourself as a living process and to tune into the energy systems of your mind and body so that you rapidly become your own teacher.

The workshop combines hatha yoga (the physical) and jnana yoga (the mental-psychological) in an approach that explores the "edge" or frontiers of the Self both mentally and physically.

Friday night: Introductory lecture-demonstration
Saturday: Two sessions of hatha yoga, three sessions of jnana yoga
Sunday: Two sessions of hatha yoga, one session of jnana yoga

Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain: The Watercourse Way T'ai Chi
Al Chung-liang Huang

For workshop description see November 14-16. $110

Week of January 11-16

A Gestalt Workshop / John Stevens

For me, gestalt is more a way of living than a therapy—something you do with others, not to them. Individual gestalt awareness work will be our major focus. We will also do some t'ai chi (a la Al Huang) as a way of exploring balance and centering in our lives, and as a metaphor for psychological balance and centering in the present moment of experience. $270

Experience of Esalen
Janet Zuckerman & Esalen Staff

During the past several years the Experience of Esalen workshops have offered people an opportunity to sample, taste, and touch on a variety of nourishing and unique experiences intrinsic to Esalen. However, they are usually offered in the form of a weekend or a week. Now for the first time we have designed a three week format to bring you MORE.

The emphasis is on finding those approaches to self-awareness that work. We will use all our available resources . . . gestalt . . . soft encounter . . . bioenergetics . . . massage . . . body movement . . . yoga . . . meditation . . . caring . . . love and humor. $820

Boundaries of Liberation for Men & Women
Jacqueline Larcombe Doyle

Through encounter, gestalt, and psychodrama techniques we will examine the issues which underlie our choice of mode (from traditional to liberated) for relating to our friends and mates. We will explore the boundaries of our concept of self and sex role. $110

Centering / Robert Nadeau

Experiencing the Wisdom of the Body / Barbara Clemans

The body is the theatre of our inner resistances; catch the cue, learn the lines, and explore the hidden voices of the psyche. How? One way is to obviate the blocks and resistances and give catharsis to the early trauma which resides there.

In this workshop, we will explore a different path, that of increasing energy flow, sense of wellbeing, and spontaneity to such a degree that we experience resistance from a "transpersonal" or objective space. Perception changes and resolutions of conflicts seem to emerge without effort.

The spotlight is on the body, focusing on the quality of ease, not stress. We will use feldenkrais exercises, sensing, sound/movement, breath, meditation, and massage to flow through tension and toward others with a heightened sense of ourselves and a deeper sense of intimacy. $110

Week of January 25-30

The Christian Myth Revisited
Joseph Campbell & Sam Keen

In recent years tulkus, roshis, and gurus from the East have come as missionaries to the West bringing meditation, mantra, and a rich spiritual technology for achieving satori. The time seems ripe to look again at the native religious insights of the Western tradition.

This workshop will focus on the myths, heroes, and spiritual technology of the Judeo-Christian tradition. It will include in depth psychological probes into: the ideas of creation, incarnation, resurrection, and the kingdom of God; the relation of the mystical and the moral; and the image of life as a pilgrimage. The method will include experiential exercises, theoretical comparisons of Dante's vision of the descent and ascent of the soul with the myth of the rising of the kundalini, and a comparison of Eastern and Western notions of the stages of the religious life. $300

Holistic Medicine and Traditional Healing

Coordinated by
Joan Halifax-Grof, Stanislav Grof, & Kenneth Pelletier

A four week interdisciplinary institute for 28 physicians and health care professionals

Under the direction of Joan Halifax-Grof, Stanislav Grof, and Kenneth Pelletier, Esalen is gathering 25 faculty members at Big Sur to offer 150 hours of theoretical, experiential, and practical sessions in holistic medicine and traditional healing. The material presented during this training institute will cover four major thematic areas:

Area 1: Holistic and Humanistic Trends in Medicine

Sessions in this thematic area will focus on those developments in medicine that emphasize body/mind interactions and the importance of treating the whole human organism as an integral unit. Individual contributions will involve revolutionary approaches to the therapy of cancer, the use of psychedelic drugs for altering the experience of dying, the theory and practice of acupuncture, the healing potential of biofeedback techniques, basic principles of structural integration (rolfing), an introduction to the feldenkrais method, and a program for the awakening of potential in the aged.

Area 2: Shamanism, Indigenous Healing Arts, and Psychic Healing

This area will be introduced by an historical and crosscultural overview of indigenous healing systems and a discussion of their relationship to contemporary medicine. Anthropologists who have worked with various nonwestern cultures will describe shamanic practices and paradigms of charismatic healing. Participants will explore various approaches to shamanism, indigenous medicine, and psychic healing. There will be illustrated lectures and films on the techniques and mythologies underlying healing systems in different cultures.

Area 3: Transpersonal Psychology and Psychotherapy

This area will focus on the history, theory, and practice of transpersonal psychology. The participants will be acquainted with new maps of consciousness emerging from psychedelic research. This cartography makes it possible to integrate contemporary personality theories with the image of the human being reflected in ancient and nonwestern philosophical and religious systems.

Area 4: Interpersonal and Self Exploration

The approaches for exploring and understanding the group's and one's own personal processes will be many. These will include gestalt practice, psychosynthesis, encounter, and various forms of meditation (sitting, mantram, music, mandala, and moving). During the entire four week period, non-drug technology for self-exploration will be available for use by participants. This laboratory equipment consists of an isolation tank, sonic driver, clinical photic driver, biofeedback equipment, and a kinaesthetic device (lotus cradle). This will make it possible for participants to explore unusual states of consciousness induced by various techniques.

Faculty:

In addition to Esalen staff, the faculty will include the following:

Lowell Bean, PhD	Nitza Broide Miller
Joseph Campbell	Barbara Myerhoff, PhD
James Fadiman, PhD	Hector Prestera, MD
Betty Fuller	David Schiffman
Michael Harner, PhD	Lenore Schwartz, PhD
Sam Keen, PhD	Carl Simonton, MD
Antoinette Lilly	Stephanie Simonton
John Lilly, MD	Rolling Thunder
Gay Luce, PhD	Sharon Wheeler
Emmett Miller, MD	Arthur Young

This institute will take place in the Study Center, a beautiful mansion located on cypress-covered cliffs overlooking the rocky coastline of Big Sur, across Hot Springs Creek from the main Esalen grounds. The learning format will combine didactic seminars, experiential sessions, special lectures, individual tutorial sessions, and selected film material. During the course of the institute, various theoreticians and healers not listed on the faculty will visit the program and share their views and techniques as time will permit.

Some regular Esalen weekend workshops, scheduled in the catalog, will be open to participants for an additional $23. All Esalen facilities will be available, such as the hot sulphur baths, fresh water heated pool, sauna, and (for a separate fee) rolfing, massage (Esalen, shiatsu, polarity), and acupuncture.

This program is limited to 28 health care professionals. The tuition is $1150. If you wish to apply, send a letter containing biographical information and a current photograph to Joan Halifax-Grof, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

JACK DOWNING, a native Oklahoman, has gained experience and some wisdom in psychiatry, public health, psychedelic drugs, rolfing, gestalt therapy, and Arica training. He is currently in the private practice of psychiatry and structural integration as well as leading workshops. (p 24)

JACQUELINE LARCOMBE DOYLE is a psychologist, feminist therapist in private practice, teacher, consultant to industry, to school and prison drug programs, and supervisor to radical therapists. She co-founded a center for personal and social change, Greenhouse, Inc, in Cambridge, Massachusetts, where she has served as vice president and director of group training. She was formerly on the faculty of the Department of Psychiatry at the University of New Mexico medical school. She was an Esalen resident fellow in 1969. (p 34)

EDWARD DREESSEN has been a practitioner of aikido and jujitsu for the past twelve years. (p 20)

AL DRUCKER grew up in pre-war Germany and Poland and came to New York as a ten-year-old. He spent fifteen years as a space scientist before coming to Esalen as a resident fellow. He studied with Fritz Perls and Virginia Satir, and later with Ida Rolf to become an advanced practitioner of structural integration (rolfing). He trained in England with J R Worsley in acupuncture, with Bernard Jensen in nutrition and iridology, with the late psychic George Simon, and with the Arica Institute. All these disciplines were steps preparing him for the spiritual path, as he came under the influence of his teacher, Sathya Sai Baba, with whom he spent six months in India last year. (pp 20, 33, 35)

ANN FARADAY is a psychologist who has pioneered self-interpretation of dreams. Her well-known three-stage method evolved from many years of experimental dream research in the laboratory plus training in hypnotherapy, Freudian and Jungian analysis, and gestalt practice. Her experience convinced her of the limitations of all dream theories used by psychotherapists and of the need for a radically new approach whereby the dreamer learns to understand his/her own unique dream language. She is author of Dream Power and The Dream Game and is currently experimenting with expansion of consciousness through dreams. (pp 5, 22)

ARTHUR FOX is an organizational consultant and group leader. He was a 1969 resident fellow at Esalen. Formerly the director of the Esalen College Program and Extended Learning Center, he is now developing a new program of physical education and athletics at the Urban School in San Francisco. (pp 19, 23)

JANICA FOX did research in groups at Harvard and was a 1969 Esalen resident fellow. For the past eight years she has been leading groups at Esalen, around the country, and in Europe. She has a private practice in the San Francisco Bay Area. (pp 8, 19, 23)

BETTY FULLER, a humanist counselor, is co-founder of the Body/Mind Experiential Learning Center in San Francisco, where she teaches feldenkrais movement and counsels individuals and couples privately and in groups. Betty's background includes over thirty-five years of theatre production, an Esalen resident fellowship, and training by Werner Erhard to lead est graduate seminars. (pp 21, 25, 31, 35)

DICK GALLAND is a husband and father, a mountaineer, kayaker, and trout fisherman. He was the founding director of the Texas Outward Bound School. He is presently consulting with institutions, designing programs for various institutions, and developing an extended experiential program that integrates wilderness activities with several humanistic disciplines. (p 23)

BILL GLOVER is certified in massage and has extensive experience and training in different approaches to the body. Among the persons with whom he has studied are Doris Brever and Marion Rosen, a physical therapist. (p 8)

DANIEL GOLEMAN has done research at Harvard on the psychophysiological effects of meditation. He integrates his psychological training with teachings received from Indian yogis, Buddhist monks, and Tibetan lamas during his two year stay in India and Ceylon. He is especially interested in Abhidharma, the Buddhist psychological system, which he studied in theory and practice under the supervision of Nyanponika Mahathera, Anagarika Munindra, and S N Goenka. (p 20)

RAYMOND GOTTLIEB is a practicing optometrist and a specialist in sensory integration and the development of consciousness. He is a research fellow of the Humanistic Psychology Institute and a consultant at the Sonoma State Hospital and other agencies in perceptual training and learning disabilities. Dr Gottlieb has taught the Bates System since 1970. He believes that visual problems are stress-induced and are reversible. He currently practices in Cotati, California. (pp 5, 6)

LAMA ANAGARIKA GOVINDA studied religion and philosophy in Europe as well as Tibet and India. He is a renowned scholar of Tibetan Buddhism, having written the following works: The Psychological Attitude of Early Buddhist Philosophy, The Foundations of Tibetan Mysticism, and The Way of the White Clouds. He recently brought out a revised edition of the Tibetan Book of the Dead and is presently engaged in the completion of a book, Creative Meditation and Multi-Dimensional Consciousness. (p 20)

The illustrations in this issue are keyed to a Buddhist theme reflecting the Buddhism and Mind workshop in Big Sur (see page 20). Historical and cultural variety is emphasized from Tibetan woodcuts through Indian and Zen Buddhist art to present day Western expression. Underlying accent on daily work-practice may be noted, beginning with the cover illustration, Han-Shan and Shih-Te, two beloved Zen recluses who preferred kitchen jobs to positions of monastic importance.

The catalog design is by Red Dog Pieface; typography is by Mary Laughridge, the Esalen Media Center.

Esalen Institute is a center to explore those trends in education, religion, philosophy, and the physical and behavioral sciences which emphasize the potentialities and values of human existence. Our activities consist of seminars and workshops, residential programs, consulting, and research.

We exist to sponsor, encourage, synthesize, and attempt evaluation of work in these areas, both inside and outside our own organizational framework. Since we are a center for experimental education, we ask that persons come to our programs out of an educational interest. We ask that no one come whose interest is "cure." We point out here, as we have in workshops and seminars, that some persons, particularly those with a history of psychiatric problems, may find some programs difficult, trying, or potentially risky. We recommend that in case of any doubt, a physician or trusted counselor be consulted.

Special Information

THE ESALEN CATALOG is published quarterly. Subscription cost for one year is $2 for the United States, $4 for Canada and Mexico and $12 for all other countries. Those attending Esalen workshops and conferences are automatically added to the mailing list for one year. A single inspection copy of the current issue is available free upon request from the San Francisco office. Do not direct subscription inquiries to Big Sur.

CONTRIBUTIONS to Esalen Institute are tax deductible. Various medical, educational, and other institutions have provided expenses for participants in some workshops and seminars in the form of donations to scholarship funds. See Friends of Esalen membership below.

ACCREDITATION and the USE OF ESALEN'S NAME: Some individuals and groups have involved Esalen's name to imply that we have given some sort of accreditation to their activities. We have told everyone to stop using our name in such a manner. Of course people use insights and techniques they bring from our programs, but we confer no certificates, diplomas, or other symbols of formal status such as those conferred by professional associations and schools.

RECORDINGS OF ESALEN PROGRAMS: For a catalog of recordings of Esalen / San Francisco programs and Esalen / Big Sur programs conducted prior to 1973, contact Big Sur Recordings, 2015 Bridgeway, Sausalito, California 94965.

For information on buying audio tapes of more recent programs in Big Sur, contact the Media Center, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920. When writing specify the subject matter or leaders in which you are interested.

Commercial use of Esalen program tapes is prohibited; all rights are reserved.

Big Sur Information

For reservations and information, write or call:

for general information.

Esalen/Big Sur lies 300 miles north of Los Angeles and 175 miles south of San Francisco. It is directly over the shoreline of the Pacific with the Santa Lucia Range rising sharply behind. The property, which has natural hot baths, was once the home of a North American Indian tribe known as Esalen.

We are a 45-mile drive south from Monterey, 11 miles south of Nepenthe, on California Coast Route 1. From the south, we are 50 miles north of San Simeon. A lighted sign on the ocean side of the highway reads: Esalen Institute—By Reservation Only.

Deposit Information: Big Sur programs require an advance deposit of $20 for weekend groups, $70 for five-day groups, $200 for two-week groups, $300 for three-week groups, and $400 for month-long groups. Deposits are not refundable but, with five days' notice, may be transferred to other Esalen programs. Please mail Big Sur reservations to Esalen/Big Sur. Do not mail Big Sur reservations to Esalen/San Francisco. Balance of payment is due on arrival. Esalen accepts Master Charge and American Express. U S currency only, please.

Scholarship Information: If you need scholarship assistance for a long term Esalen/Big Sur program, write for a scholarship application form before making a reservation (allow at least 3 weeks for processing as we have many applications). If your application is approved, please make a reservation as soon as possible after receiving notice. No scholarship assistance is available for June 15–August 31 programs or for weekend programs.

General Information: Workshop fees cover tuition, food, and lodging. Rooms are shared by two or three workshop participants. Camping on the grounds is prohibited.

Weekend programs begin with dinner on Friday and end with lunch on Sunday. Five-day and longer programs begin with dinner on Sunday and end with lunch on Friday. Rooms become available at 5 pm; however, guests are welcome to arrive anytime after lunch.

Esalen/Big Sur has no child care facilities. Please do not plan to bring children. We also ask workshop participants not to have guests. Alas, no pets.

Esalen's flourishing organic garden provides the kitchen with many of its vegetables and herbs. Our breads and pastries are made by Esalen bakers.

Limousine Service: Those traveling by air or bus can obtain limousine service to Esalen/Big Sur by notifying the Big Sur office of time of arrival. Pickups are made at the Monterey Airport and the Greyhound terminal at 5–5:30 pm each Sunday and Friday. The cost is $10 per person one way, payable on arrival at Esalen.

Seminarians as Staff (Karma Yoga): Seminarians in residence for a week or longer at Esalen are asked to contribute several hours per week to the kitchen staff. These hours do not interfere with scheduled groups or meals. Your help enables us to meet the pressures of peak working times and enables you to experience Esalen from the inside out. A staff member will appear at your first workshop meeting to schedule volunteer help.

San Francisco Information

For reservations, literature, tickets, and information, write or call:
Esalen Institute, 1793 Union Street, San Francisco, California 94123.
Phone: (415) 771-1710; 9:30–5:30 Monday through Saturday.

Reservations: Reservations close 5 days prior to the program, in order to facilitate planning and for the convenience of participants' time plans. A non-refundable deposit must accompany registration as follows: $10 per person for programs costing under $35; $20 for programs costing under $100; $50 for those over $100, unless otherwise noted. Mail reservation form with check to Esalen Institute, 1793 Union Street, San Francisco 94123. Balance is payable at the first session of the program. Do not send San Francisco reservations to Big Sur. Esalen accepts Master Charge and American Express.

Information literature and tickets for lectures may be obtained Monday through Saturday 9:30–5:00 pm at 1793 Union Street, San Francisco 94123. Tickets obtained by mail will indicate the exact location and time of events; when not sold out in advance, tickets may be purchased at the door.

Workshop schedules: One day workshops generally meet from 10 am to 6 pm. Saturday and Sunday weekend workshops meet from 10 am to 6 pm each day. Friday through Sunday weekend workshops meet approximately from 8 to 11 pm on Friday, from 10 am through the afternoon and/or evening on Saturday, and from 10 am to early afternoon on Sunday. Schedules are not rigid, however, and exact meeting times are discussed at the first session.

Accommodations: Most San Francisco programs are non-residential. Participants in these programs must reserve their own accommodations at local hotels or motels. Unless stated otherwise, meals are not provided at such workshops.

Location: Participants will be informed of workshop location prior to the workshop date. Esalen uses several facilities in the Bay Area for its programs, including its own building at 1793 Union Street, San Francisco. Call the San Francisco office for advance information on program location.

Recommended dress: Workshops are informal. Slacks and flat shoes are recommended for women, sport clothes for men.

Bookstore: Esalen's Bookshop provides a comprehensive selection of books ranging from general psychology, life sciences, and education to the Eastern philosophies, Jung, and the mystics. It is open Monday through Saturday, 9:30–5:30 pm, and Sundays when workshops are in process (On Sundays call before dropping in).

Catalog Theme

This issue attempts to relate the scientific-experiential-artistic focuses at Esalen. It relates the scientific to the experiential and the mundane to the artistic. Michael Murphy's and Jack Sarfatti's article on page 3 describes how some physicists are moving from the exclusively rational framework for viewing the world to the experiential framework. Janet Lederman's article on page 22 describes the possibility of learning from one's own experience rather than learning from what people tell us the world is like. Part of learning from experience is paying attention to the seemingly insignificant parts of the world. Plantain, pictured on page 4, may be considered a weed to be pulled and discarded and yet in some cultures its leaves have been used as a skin poultice to treat rattlesnake bites and other wounds. The photos of plants in this catalog encourage the reader to see the plants in a new way, to focus on the texture represented in each picture rather than seeing them as illustrations in a scientific textbook.

Physics and Consciousness

CONSCIOUSNESS SHIFT TOWARD A "STATE-SPECIFIC" PHYSICS

By: Michael Murphy & Jack Sarfatti

In nearly every esoteric psychology, East and West, a distinction is made between rational mind and illumined knowing. This is true for Neo-platonism, Pythagoreanism, Sufism, Kabbalism, Christian mystical theology, and Hindu-Buddhist psychology. The following passage from Sri Aurobindo's The Life Divine illustrates this understanding:

"Mind in its essence is a consciousness which measures, limits, cuts out forms of things from the indivisible whole and contains them as if each were a separate integer. Even with what exists only as obvious parts and fractions, Mind establishes this fiction . . . that they are things with which it can deal separately and not merely as aspects of a whole . . . . It is this essential characteristic of Mind which conditions the workings of all its operative powers . . . (it) may divide, multiply, add, subtract, but it cannot get beyond the limits of this mathematics . . . . Mind cannot possess the Infinite, it can only suffer it or be possessed by it; it can only lie blissfully helpless under the luminous shadow of the Real . . . ."

In the literature of Eastern philosophy, paradox is a sign of the mind's essential limitation. Ordinary reason is not quick enough to comprehend it and must surrender to another mode of apprehension. This is the reason for koans in Zen training: when a paradox is held in consciousness until reason grows weary, until it is finally baffled and goes into crisis, "Big Mind" appears to leap around both horns of the dilemma. In psychological terms, one might say that consciousness then is expanded. We believe that something like this kind of koan-induced crisis exists at present in the field of theoretical physics.

Heisenberg's Uncertainty Principle, Bohr's Principle of Complementarity, and Kurt Gödel's Incompleteness Theorem are signs of this fragmented state. Like Eastern philosophy, they suggest that ordinary reason may have to give way to another kind of knowing if the secrets of nature are to be understood in greater depth. We come then to the possibility that physics may have to be "state-specific" in the sense suggested by Charles Tart. In this formulation, a particular state of consciousness mediates our knowing: certain states give access to certain kinds of knowledge, as for example in trances where clairvoyant insight is achieved by certain psychics, or in telepathic dreams. In this sense, a particular state of consciousness is like a particular scientific instrument—e.g. a telescope or microscope—because it gives us access to things beyond the range of our ordinary senses. Perhaps a new kind of inspired physicist, experienced in the yogic modes of perception, must emerge to comprehend the further reaches of matter, space, and time.

There is a long precedent for this suggestion. Among the classical powers, or siddhis, induced by the practice of yoga are specific abilities for comprehending the secrets of nature. Kayavyuha-jnana, for example, is the knowledge of one's internal organs, physiological processes, anatomical structures, energy centers, and cerebrospinal systems through a direct yogic perception; viprakrista-jnana is the perception of information-waves which are ordinarily invisible; and anima, one of Patanjali's eight classic siddhis, is the ability to reduce the center of consciousness "to the size of an atom" in order to directly experience the smallest units of matter. There are hundreds of extraordinary powers like these described in the Indian scriptures. Perhaps they will be the modalities of knowledge in the physics of the future.

But what of reproducibility? How can this kind of "subjective experience" be verified by others? According to the great contemplative traditions, the knowledge gained through such processes of expanded awareness can be verified by persons who undergo the requisite discipline. In this, the physics of the future would be like the physics of today, for there are relatively few physicists in the world now who have the requisite training and knowledge to explore and verify most of the fundamental assertions of relativity theory or quantum mechanics. As in the further reaches of yogic knowledge, an extremely specialized training is necessary in physics to plumb the mysteries of time, space, and matter.

A "state-specific" physics would not eliminate the kind of physics practiced now; it would simply be another branch of the science. A physicist (if he were still called that) trained in yogic perception would compare his discoveries with those deriving from today's "normal" physics, and there would probably be a "principle of complementarity" existing between the insights derived from the various consciousness states, "normal" and "yogic." Physics then would be "multi-state-specific" and entirely empirical (in this broadened sense), its findings made with instruments ranging from the ordinary senses and their physical extensions (telescopes, radar, etc.) to the subtle yogic ways (indriyas) of apprehending the universe.

Physics Month

Esalen Institute and the Physics Consciousness Research Group of San Francisco are conducting a monthlong workshop in Big Sur this January on some of the conceptual gaps and possibilities in theoretical physics and the relevance of modern physical thought for consciousness transformation on the planet. Invited participants will receive room and board courtesy of Esalen Institute and will share their research hopes, fears, and visions regarding the future of academic physics and its role in society. One of the key questions will concern the role of consciousness in the interpretation of quantum mechanics. Results of the working sessions will be made available to the public through papers, tapes, and seminars. In addition, a weekend workshop featuring some of the physicists participating in the monthlong has been included in Big Sur programming for January 23–25. Reservations for the weekend program may be made through the Esalen/Big Sur office.

PROGRAMS IN SAN FRANCISC

". . . . if a flower or plant dares climb through the crack in the asphalt." (see p 22)

January 3–4

Exploring Astrological Archetypes
Jim Shere & Yanni Toussulis

Weekend workshop $50

Using specially prepared horoscopes, we will explore some of the archetypal patterns we have chosen and work to re-own them. The process used will be a uniquely structured guided fantasy employing gestalt, movement, and group interaction. Two weeks' advance registration is required since we will be using your horoscopes in designing the activities. Please submit the following birth data: place of birth; time of day; day, month, and year.

January 4

You Can't Get Enough of What You Don't Really Want (Creating the Space to Lose Weight)
Barbara Clemans

One-day workshop $25

Most "fat" people have two orientations toward eating: "forbidden food" and "diet food," which puts us in an either or position—feast/famine, stuff/starve. Diets don't work because we never practice a balanced orientation toward eating.

In this workshop we will take a look at our eating habits using guided memory experience and fantasy. We will taste with discrimination, discover how we use food and why, and learn alternate ways of fulfilling our needs. We will begin to recognize unconscious attitudes about our body, look at the source of these attitudes, and practice in a positive way. Bring your favorite food!

January 6

An Evening of Yoga, Philosophy and Techniques
Jinendra Jain and Katherine Da Silva Jain

Single evening event

An evening to introduce Katherine and Jinendra, two promising newcomers to the Bay Area, and to give you a taste of what they teach—meditative hatha yoga, integrative singing, meditation, and their philosophy of yoga.

$3.50 per person; 8-10 30 pm; 1793 Union Street, San Francisco

January 7–February 11

Continuing Gestalt Group / Zoe Snyder

Six Wednesday evenings, 7-9 pm $60

This is a group in which to experience and explore ourselves and our interactions with each other over a longer period of time than is available in a weekend workshop. Meetings will include gestalt exercises and hot seat work to get in touch with our feeling and become more aware of creative choices.

January 10

Rediscovering Your Vision / Raymond Gottlieb

One-day workshop $25

Dr Gottlieb will discuss the basic principles behind the Bates system of "Better Sight Without Glasses" and other approaches related to the improvement of vision. He will teach specific exercises within an integrated whole body approach to removing the stress that hinders vision. Limited to 25 people.

January 10-11

Extending Our Frontiers Through Yoga
Jinendra Jain and Katherine Da Silva Jain

Weekend workshop $50

We need to use all our inner resources to live more satisfying lives. Yoga both enhances our existing powers and unfolds our latent potentials.

This weekend workshop is an opportunity to imbibe a philosophy and learn techniques to discover and utilize resilience of body, quietness of mind, joy of heart, refinement of intelligence, and creativity of soul. It will include talks and discussions on the relevance of various forms of yoga, meditative hatha yoga, integrative singing, and mantra meditation.

January 11

Touching: A Massage Workshop / William Glover

One-day workshop $25

In the workshop we will explore what touching means to us and learn ways to go about it. Time will be spent tuning into one's own body, developing the sense of touch, learning technique, and exchanging massage in an atmosphere stressing caring and communication.

January 12-16

Energy Responsibility: A Synthesis of Bioenergetics & Gestalt
Alan Schwartz & Virginia Wink

Five-day nonresidential workshop $150

Energy responsibility synthesizes the philosophies of bioenergetic and gestalt therapies. Energy is movement. When movement is blocked, the organism cannot function to nourish the person towards a mature sense of self. This workshop will move in the direction of awareness by attempting to work through energy blocks. This release will provide a person with the opportunity to integrate body-feelings-mind into a total sense of what he/she is as an organism. Participants should wear appropriate clothing to experience actualizing the concepts of FLOW (the connectedness and movement of energy through the total body) and GROUNDING (the connectedness of the energetic organism with reality).

Workshop will meet Monday through Friday, 10 am-6 pm.

January 16-18

Cross-Country Skiing
Dick Strong & Ann (Cricket) MacKinlay

Residential three-day workshop $110

The group will stay at a mountain lodge and spend the days combining ski touring instruction with sensory awakening, yoga, and breathing exercises. Evenings will be devoted to rest, massage, and general conviviality. This workshop is intended for those without skiing experience and for downhill skiers who wish to try the Nordic (and ancestral) version of the sport. Meals are included from Friday night through Sunday noon. Payment should be made in full five days prior to the start of the workshop.

January 16-18

Theatre of the Self / Arnold Weinstein

Weekend workshop $60

Arnold Weinstein is a Broadway and Off-Broadway playwrite and director who will lead workshop participants in the production of a collectively conceived and executed theatre work drawn from the hearts and heads of the workshop. We will form the content when we meet to find out what we want to say and to whom. This is a non-theatric use of theatre which comes on like a giant analysis and ends with a little production, helping to find the self in someone else. Group therapy, acting, writing, storytelling, parables, jokes, philosophy, heaven and hell, music, games, and the good old fashioned act of being will be used towards a production in collaboration with professionals. Following the presentation there will be discussion and . . . analysis. Opening and Closing Night, Sunday, January 18, at 8 pm, for a guest audience.

Psychosynthesis: A Choice Workshop / Lenore Lefer

One-day workshop $25

Many of us tend to make our life's choices without full awareness. We sometimes wait, decide impulsively, reactively, hastily, or without purpose. The more conscious we are of the act of choosing, the more we open ourselves to the experience of joy and freedom. Using the framework of psychosynthesis, we will explore how we can choose to use our will. The aim is towards learning the process of making conscious choices, thereby taking responsibility for our life's purpose and direction.

January 18

Run In / Mike Spino & Andrea Giacomini

One-day workshop $25

We've designed this workshop to explore our inner process in relation to the physical potentials of running. Using guided fantasy and visualization, art work, zen walk, and training models based on various running gaits and tempos, we will explore our psycho-physical capacities.

Close Yet Free in Marriage & Other Significant Relationships: Communication Experience for Couples
Gerald Smith

Single evening event

Being free to grow yet close to be intimate is the main dilemma of every important relationship. This talk will include specific "experiences" for creatively coping with this dilemma of keeping a relationship alive.

$10 per couple. 8-10:30 pm, First Unitarian Church, Franklin & Geary Streets, San Francisco.

January 24–25

Altered States of Consciousness Workshop
Bernard S Aaronson

Weekend workshop $50

Throughout our history people have sought mystical states and states of ecstasy. These have been powerful motivating forces which have led people into long sojourns in the desert, long fasts, and other aesthetic practices. Most recently, this has been an important factor in the use of psychedelic drugs and other similar substances.

This workshop will focus on learning meditation, chanting, and auto-hypnosis. Participants will be led through a series of exercises in which they can learn to create and evoke these states in themselves.

The exercises will be derived from both Eastern and Western traditions and will include material from all of the major cultural areas of the world. Each person in the workshop will be encouraged to find his/her own path.

January 24–25

On Friendship / Edward Maupin

Weekend workshop $50

This workshop begins with the assumption that a relationship with a friend can be more intense and rewarding than with a lover. We frequently hold back from experiencing the full depth of friendship lest the energy we feel turn sexual. Conversely, we sometimes turn to sexual interplay when the actual nature of the attraction is more subtle, potentially more rewarding, and involves quite different body systems. During this weekend we will develop wider possibilities through systematic exploration of different body centers, body awareness techniques, examination of beliefs and fears, and interpersonal experiments.

January 25

Bioenergetics / Michael Conant

One-day workshop $30

Working primarily as a group, we'll use bioenergetic, neo-Reichian, and gestalt approaches intensively to center in our bodies and thus deepen vital contact with ourselves and each other. One or two individual bioenergetic sessions may also take place during the day for demonstration purposes.

January 28

Fear / George Pransky & John Enright

Evening workshop

Fear and anxiety seem chronic and widespread. Many of us spend hours a day in, or on the edge of, the experience of fear. We have isolated several points of view about fear, any one of which when thoroughly experienced and absorbed can make a significant difference in the frequency and intensity with which fear will be experienced. In this evening, we will present some of these points of view. Come prepared to work, and possibly even experience a little anxiety on the spot!

Wednesday evening, 7–10:30 pm. $10 per person.
First Unitarian Church, Geary and Franklin Streets, San Francisco.

January 30

Dance as Meditation / Adele Chu Drummond

Single Evening Event

Dance in the East has always been used as a form of meditation. In this workshop we will experience our own watchful awareness through t'ai chi, yoga, and Indonesian movements. Come share your graceful quiet spaces with us.

$5 per person, 8–10:30 pm. First Unitarian Church, Geary and Franklin, San Francisco.

Single Evening Events

(For a complete description of events, see chronological program listings.)

All programs will be held at the First Unitarian Church, Franklin and Geary Streets, San Francisco, unless otherwise noted. Tickets are available at the door as space permits.

Introduction to Aikido with Emphasis on Centering & Energy Awareness / Robert Nadeau

One-day workshop $15

Aikido is the Japanese art of self-defense with the emphasis placed on centering, harmony, and blending. It is presented as a physical manifestation of the energy and spiritual laws of the universe. We will start with the centering practices in the physical dimension, move to centering as mental awareness, and culminate in meditation with centering as a focus for spiritual unfolding. The workshop will emphasize the relationship between all three levels.

Saturday, 12:30–4:30 pm.

January 31–February 1

A Day of Gurdjieff Studies
Members of the Gurdjieff Foundation of California

This workshop is for serious people who have tried everything and are still uncertain whether to call themselves Christians, Buddhists, Sufis, or something else. This is a once-only program of activity and discussion conducted by the Gurdjieff Foundation of California, preceded by an evening interrogative lecture by Theodore Roszak with Dr Henry Leroy Finch and other guest panelists.

The program includes a residential evening and one day workshop at the Westerbeke Ranch.

Limited to 25 participants. $125

February 1

Discovering the Voice / Kate Fitzmaurice

One-day workshop $25

We will work on freeing the flow of breath and releasing the tension that inhibits resonance and expressiveness. We will also work towards integrating the voice with the whole personality. Limited to twelve people.

February 3–March 2

Body Experience / William Glover

This will be an evening series devoted to experiencing the body. Through a variety of processes and exercises drawn from popular body approaches, we will attempt to become more familiar with and learn from our embodied selves. Disciplines used will be bioenergetics, sensory awareness, and massage. The emphasis will be on getting at one's own experience rather than learning someone else's system. Wear loose clothing.

Five Tuesday evenings, 8–10 pm. $60
1793 Union Street, San Francisco.

February 5

Demythologizing at Mid-Life
Bob Cromey & Helen (Laney) Stephens

Single evening event $4.00 8–10:30 pm

This experiential evening will focus on both the myths and the opportunities of people at mid-life. We will confront the issues of loneliness, changing body image, illness, and dying as well as sexuality, intimacy, joy, and pleasure. People can discover life as fresh and exciting when the richness and maturity of mid-life is accepted in all its fullness.

First Unitarian Church, Geary and Franklin Streets, San Francisco.

FUTURE WORKSHOP ANNOUNCEMENT

April 4, 1976

Festival of the Happy Martial Arts
A Day of Demonstration, Participation and Celebration

9 am–6 pm, Miyako Hotel, Post & Laguna, San Francisco.

dancing the martial arts introduction to aikido and t'ai chi fun and games with karate and kung fu basic self defense for women & men energy awareness, East & West
the way of the warriors

Some people think of oriental martial arts in terms of Bruce Lee movies and brick breaking demonstrations. Actually, the principles and basic practice of aikido, t'ai chi, kung fu, and others can be usefully applied to everyone's life, leading toward inner calm in facing everyday problems.

This festive day is for those with no experience as well as for practitioners of martial arts who wish to open themselves to new approaches. There will be full scale demonstrations by masters, involving multiple artwork, sword dance, and stick kata. Most of the day will be devoted to experiential sessions. The Festival of Martial Arts will be moderated by George Leonard and will feature Robert Nadeau, Al Chung-liang Huang, Betsy Hill, Frank Doran, Gia Fu Feng, Wendy Palmer, and others.

February 6–8

Psyche and Symbol / Joseph Campbell

Residential weekend workshop $110

How do we find what C G Jung has termed "our own mythology"? Are the myths by which we think we are living (Biblical, Classical, Oriental, or what not) the actual governors of our lives?

The discussions of this seminar will be based on a series of slide-lectures, introducing and illustrating Jung's theory of the Unconscious, and proceeding to the presentation of examples both of modern individual dream sequences and of traditional mythological quests. The aim will be to demonstrate, at once, the universal and the particular (historically and biographically conditioned) aspects of the materials of all visionary experience, and to arrive at some notion of how we may discover in the contexts of our own activated imaginations creative sources for an enrichment of our lives.

February 7–8

Symbols and Consciousness / Sanford Rosenberg

Weekend workshop $50

Human beings today more than ever live in a symbolic universe. When we consciously look at the world through the lens of our symbols we transform both the world and ourselves. Two of the most powerful sources of symbolic material are dreams and films (the externalized dream). In this workshop we will work with our dreams and film experiences through the use of gestalt, existential analysis, and Jungian work so that they will become vehicles of personal transformation and growth.

February 11

Life Moods / Gabrielle Roth

Share an evening moving with Gabrielle Roth and her musical friends.

$5 per person; 8–10:30 pm.
First Unitarian Church, Geary & Franklin Streets, San Francisco.

February 12

Bioenergetic Analysis with Pairs / John Bellis

Evening workshop $12.50

This workshop will be devoted to the exploration and analysis of characterological blocks which impair the flow of energy and disrupt communication in pairs or couples. It would be helpful if participants have a basic background in bioenergetic understanding of character and of grounding. There will be demonstrations of both individual analysis and of pairs.

Thursday evening; 4–10 pm.

February 14

Approaches to the Feminine: A Workshop for Men & Women
José & Miriam Argüelles

One-day workshop $25

A psychological, mythological, and historical overview of the feminine will be supplemented by meditation, discussion, and creative exercises emphasizing personal rediscovery of the feminine. Subjects to be explored include: the primacy of the feminine; feminine wisdom; feminine and inspiration; feminine and healing; feminine and creativity; and feminine and the unborn masculine.

February 14–15

Demythologizing at Mid-Life
Bob Cromey & Helen (Laney) Stephens

Weekend workshop $50

This seminar is for persons, now at mid-life and beyond, who are grappling with issues of death and dying, sexuality, loneliness, vocational change, divorce, and aging. The purpose is to destroy many of the myths which frighten people at mid-life, including "declining" good looks, changes in sexual activities, difficulties in relating to younger people, death as horror, work as deadly, and relationships as sour. New ways will be presented to make friends, deepen intimacy, and to find joys in the maturing process.

February 15

Pepper Stress Training / Raymond Gottlieb

One-day workshop $25

The "Pepper-Stress" approach was designed initially to help underachieving students in academic, athletic, and artistic abilities. The technique involves setting up tasks which require sensing, remembering, and responding at the level of stimulation. This requires an opening up of abilities. Gradually situations are made more complex and include finer and finer movement tasks. The idea is to develop action motivated by intuition, without thinking. The workshop will teach "stress" games for home practice as well as the theory behind the training.

February 17–March 11

Techniques of the Apprehension of the Beyond:
Vijnana Bhairava Tantra
William Pennell Rock (Swami Anand Veereshwar)

Eight Tuesday and Thursday evenings $75

The Vijnana Bhairava Tantra or "Techniques of the Consciousness Beyond" refers to the consciousness that is beyond suffering. It is an ancient Shaivite scripture composed of 112 exercises given by Lord Shiva and reputed to be the basis of all meditation techniques known to the world. The course work will consist of practicing in an ordered fashion the first 24 exercises, including meditations, breathing, centering, and mental disciplines, and discussing their significance and use. Assignments will include practical work and practice of techniques. The text for the course will be Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh's discourses on the text published under the title, "The Book of Secrets."

February 17, 19, 24, 26 and March 2, 4, 9, 11. From 8–10:30 pm at 1793 Union Street, San Francisco.

February 20

Carnival! / Adele Chu Drummond

Single evening event

Come celebrate Carnival with us! We will dance and chant to re-create the atmosphere of Panama, Brazil, and Trinidad at festival time. Wear something festive that you can move in. Children are welcome. Live Latin music.

$5 per person (children free); 8-10:30 pm.
First Unitarian Church, Geary & Franklin Streets, San Francisco.

February 21

Biofeedback and Altered States of Consciousness
Eleanor Criswell

One-day workshop $25

This workshop will focus on biofeedback as it relates to self-exploration, self-development, and altering consciousness. An understanding of biofeedback, how to experience it and how to use your own body signals as feedback, will be included. Participants will experience several different kinds of biofeedback machines.

February 21-22

Breaking Free / Esther Genner

Weekend workshop $50

There are times when we need to break free from old patterns and change our way of being. The break may be an actual separation or a symbolic one; one may leave a situation, place, or person, or one may simply perceive and act differently. Breaking free involves risk and expansion into the new and untried. We will explore ways to do this through gestalt, encounter, and guided fantasy.

February 22

Knowing & Moving the Body
Frank Ottiwell & Giora Pinkas

One-day workshop $25

This workshop will draw on the work of F M Alexander and Moshe Feldenkrais in mobilizing and re-educating the body/self. Techniques to improve postural alignment and release blocked energy will be taught individually and applied to such everyday activities as sitting, standing, walking, and bending. Group exercises, performed within each individual's range of ease and enjoyment, will be used to increase kinesthetic awareness and to show the use of awareness and movement as self-teacher.

February 28

Centering to Energy Awareness to Meditation
Robert Nadeau

One-day workshop $25

Awareness begins with the self. Centering is the doorway to the energy activity of the universe. Energy is the common denominator of the universe and energy awareness is the basis for meditation. This will be a day-long session emphasizing a natural practice pattern for awareness.

February 28-29

Beginning Again / Gerald Smith

Weekend workshop $50

This workshop is designed for people coming out of divorce or an important nonmarital relationship. Focus won't be on the pain of the past but on making the most of right now and the life ahead. There will be both large and small group experiences with some serious as well as pleasurable work.

February 29

Reflexology / Anna Kaye

One-day workshop $25

Reflexology or "zone therapy" is based on the theory that energy travels in the body in "zones" or patterns which connect reflexes in the feet to organs in the body. In this theoretical and experiential workshop Anna Kaye will demonstrate methods of stimulating these reflexes by specialized massage work on the feet.

March 4

Women in Action / Gabrielle Roth

Single evening event

This event is being created to experience the nature of feminine strength and how it moves in the world.

$5 per person; 8-10:30 pm.
First Unitarian Church, Geary & Franklin Streets, San Francisco.

March 6-7

Towards a More Sensitive Relating
Charlotte Selver & Charles Brooks

Weekend workshop $60

In an increasingly alienated world, where mechanical ease often makes communication shallower, many of us are eager to find more meaningful contact both with ourselves and with others, and with our activities whatever they may be. We would like really to get in touch. But the conventional approaches we have learned, our social and intellectual conditioning, lie like callouses over our living nerve ends and, though occasionally useful, act as effective barriers between the perceiver and the perceived. The reality both of ourselves and of those we meet can only be discovered and explored when we begin to sense and discard the techniques and defenses we have come to rely on—when we become again consciously living organisms, open, as we were in childhood, to the unedited messages of our senses.

In this workshop, which will be devoted to practice rather than theory, a beginning will be made in exploring anew our natural capacities for clearly perceiving and relating to those around us and to the life within us, and to the many tasks which life presents.

Dill - Anethum graveolens

March 6–7

Workshop for Body Therapists / Richard Heckler

Weekend workshop $50

This workshop is designed for persons currently working in or studying the body therapies of massage, polarity therapy, rolfing, shiatsu, reflexology, acupuncture, or related mind/body therapies. Emphasis will be placed on ways to read and approach bodies, and the ability to operate and work from a center that increases energy flow and economizes effort. Ways to ground ourselves and stay clear from unwanted toxins will also be practiced.

March 10

Life Is an Experience To Be Lived, Not a Problem To Be Solved / Janica Fox

Single Evening Event

We all spend time and energy mulling over the problems of the past and worrying about the problems of the future. This can so consume our energy that we forget how to focus and be aware of our moment to moment, ever fascinating experience of the present. Come and spend an evening relearning that precious ability.

$3 per person, 8–10:30 pm, 1793 Union Street, San Francisco.

Spring 1976

Advanced Massage Seminar / Jane Walter

$200 16 sessions

This seminar is designed for those interested in exploring and expanding the concept and use of massage in healing ourselves and others. It will bring together specialists in various approaches to massage. Each of the contributors will offer three or four classes in their area of specialization, which will include theory, demonstration, and supervised practice sessions so that the participants will have an experiential appreciation of the material.

Contributors will include the following:

Jane Walter, masseuse, will present her work in the Esalen style of massage. Her work will focus on joint work as well as individualized, intuitive massage.

Jacques de Langre, author of two books on Do-In, will discuss this system of diagnostic and restorative self-massage.

Marion Rosen, a physical therapist with thirty-five years' experience, will describe her work and the use of massage to free the breathing process.

Ray Stubbs, masseur and staff member at Devta, will present his approach to shiatsu.

These classes are open to the public. For further information, contact Jane Walter, program coordinator, through the Esalen San Francisco office.

March 12–14

Inner Visions and Explorations with Hypnosis / Lee Pulos

Weekend workshop $50

The theme of this workshop will be both educational and exploratory. Participants will be taught a variety of hypnotic and self-hypnosis techniques that can be used on an ongoing basis after the workshop is over. Each person will experience hypnosis and the opportunity to hypnotically induce dreams, program for habit changes, and to get in touch with subconscious motivation through automatic writing and ideo-motor questioning. The exploratory aspects will deal with extending our consciousness into paranormal and psychic dimensions. An added emphasis will be to teach participants hypnotic-visualization techniques for self-healing and health management.

March 13

The Innerspaces of Running: A New Approach to Running Mike Spino

One-day workshop $25

Focusing on the running experience, this workshop will introduce a holistic method of mind/body development. Each participant will be taught various running gaits and tempos, muscle/skeletal exercises, breathing techniques, and philosophy and lore related to optimum physical fitness. There will be special emphasis on guided fantasy, inner space development, and creativity in quest for extraordinary experiences. Each person will receive an individual consultation and have the opportunity to continue towards personal goals on an ongoing basis.

March 13–14

Giving a Gift: Massage for Couples / Ray Stubbs

Weekend workshop $90 per couple

Massage enhances our awareness of the caring and erotic aspects of personal relationships. We will explore material designed to increase our awareness of our physical and emotional body. This will be a weekend of sharing with your partner, learning to give and receive a gift of pleasure.

March 18

Psychic Liberation / Eleanor Criswell

Single evening event

This workshop will explore ways to liberate psychic capacity from our habitual modes of consciousness. Using a variety of techniques, such as biofeedback, optokinetic training, concentration and meditation, Kirlian photography, I Ching, and various parapsychological techniques, we will move toward awakening and enhancing psychic awareness in our everyday lives.

Thursday evening; 8–10:30 pm; $3.50
1793 Union Street, San Francisco.

March 19

Workshop Performance
Anna Halprin & The Dancers' Workshop

Single evening event

The Dancers' Workshop has a new performing group and a new performance concept called workshop performance. This concept combines the theatrical values of the Dancers' Workshop performance with learning and participation appropriate to a workshop. Participants will both witness the performing group present a dance and also have the opportunity to do a dance themselves.

$5 per person; First Unitarian Church, Geary and Franklin Streets, San Francisco.

March 20

The Mandala as a Life Force / Carol Davis

One-day workshop $25

Living within the boundaries of the circle of the mandala (which is the self) requires grace and balance. Keeping the center in place is an art. The mandala presents the discipline of its rhythmical pattern moving like the spokes of a turning wheel. During a life this wheel picks up moss, rock, sadness, or anger which may become obstacles to the smooth turning unless they are treated properly. The design of the workshop is to use the art of creating mandalas along with psychosynthesis techniques, guided fantasy, dance, and dialog to discover, bless, and overcome obstacles. No art talent or experience is necessary. Bring your favorite art materials if you have them.

March 20–28

Demystifying the Group Process
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

Extended growth program $150

This program will provide an opportunity to explore the basic elements underlying group process and individual growth. We will examine techniques, strategies, and theoretical components inherent in all forms of personal interaction and the use of specific themes in facilitating focus and flow in group sessions. Some of the themes to be covered include: Growth Through Risk Taking; The Creative Use of Passion and Struggle; The Transmutation of Sexually Embodied Roles; Integrating Transcendent Energy with Personal Forms and Behavior; Witnessing Pain Without Becoming It; and The Healing Aspects of Humor. We will work within an experiential and didactic framework with each participant having the opportunity to utilize newly synthesized skills and information by acting in the capacity of group leader. This workshop is particularly useful for people in the helping professions. However, it is open to anyone who would like to clarify and refine his/her understanding of a process which has normally been considered too intuitive to be grasped cognitively.

This workshop will consist of two weekend workshops, March 20–21 and March 27–28, and four evenings, March 22, 23, 25, and 26, from 8 to 10:30 pm.

March 21

Shiatsu Workshop / Kathy Dickman

One-day workshop– $25

Shiatsu (Japanese pressure-point therapy) reaches deeper than surface massage to release tense areas of blocked energy. It becomes a refined form of body work when both participants focus their awareness on a single point, the giver applying pressure from the outside as the receiver lets go from the inside. Giving, you learn to "listen" with your hands: receiving, you learn to consciously release tense places at your own speed.

March 27–28

Breath and Self / George Downing

Weekend workshop $50

Unlocking the breath can rapidly put us in touch with a deeper sense of who we are.

Combining a number of verbal and nonverbal approaches including bioenergetics, massage, and gestalt, we will explore, separately and together, our rhythms of feeling, expression, contact, and creativity.

March 27–28

Tennis Flow / Dyveke Spino

Weekend workshop $50

This workshop incorporates principles of physical fitness training, body awareness and movement techniques, and imagery along with traditional tennis methods. It is an integration of Ms Spino's five-point formula in her holistic approach to the sport, consisting of: a) strength training, b) flexibility, c) endurance, d) sensing, e) inner-space. The overall effect is a more pleasureful, effective, and personally significant tennis game. Bring your racquet and a can of tennis balls. Limited to 20 people.

ENCOUNTER

The ground rules of encounter are that participants be open and honest in a group setting, that they avoid mere theorizing and instead talk about their feelings and perceptions. There is often an emphasis on eliciting emotions which lead to positive or negative confrontations rather than away from them. The focus of encounter is to explore interpersonal relations. Over the past years encounter, as practiced at Esalen, has evolved into a broad approach incorporating several related disciplines to achieve its aims. Techniques and insights gained from gestalt, sensory awareness, bioenergetics, massage, movement, and structural integration are all part of Esalen's encounter groups today.

GESTALT

Gestalt Awareness Training is a theory and approach to personality integration first developed by Fritz and Laura Perls, though new styles and methods are being developed by other leaders. The goal of the training is to assist the participants to utilize excitement and awareness and to develop responsibility. Excitement—to have life energy freely available and flowing, not blocked. Awareness—to be conscious of my energy as and where it flows; to have action accessible to consciousness, not happening mechanically. Responsibility—to know and act on the principle that I am the one who acts, thinks, and feels whatever it may be that I act, think, or feel. No one else or no event influences me except with my consent. At times, everyone in the workshop may work simultaneously with some awareness exercise, or in interaction with each other. More traditionally, a fair amount of time will be spent with participants working individually with the leader. The starting point for such individual work is whatever is here and now of most involving concern for the organism; a fantasy or dream, an interaction with another person, a memory, or a physical posture. "Problems" are welcome as starting points, if they are truly present and not merely verbally presented. In keeping with the gestalt emphasis on personal responsibility, the leader usually leaves the initiative for such work with the participants. The assumption is made that participants are not "patients" but are persons responsible for their own life decisions.

STRUCTURAL INTEGRATION (ROLFING)

Structural Integration or Rolfing is a method of deep manipulation of the musculo-skeletal system that aims at balancing the major segments of the body. We have learned that connective tissue (fascia, tendons, ligaments) can be lengthened by palpation and direct manipulation; this makes it possible to reorganize the basic body lines. A properly organized body will be subject to less stress and will move in a more economical way. Structural Integration has a second principle: posture is behavior. Humans are psychophysical organisms; one cannot divorce their physical from their psychological functions. When you change the structure, you change the function.

PSYCHOSYNTHESIS

Psychosynthesis is a psychological and educational approach for recognizing and harmonizing the many, often conflicting, elements of our inner lives. It is a developmental process based on a positive conception of man/woman within an evolving universe. Starting with each person's existential situation as he or she perceives it, personal growth is organized into a process aiming at the integration of personality and the emergence of an effective unifying center of being and awareness, the Self. The practical work of psychosynthesis chooses in each situation the appropriate progressive activities among many techniques and methods available. Some of these are: guided imagery, movement, self-identification, creativity, gestalt, meditation, training of the will, symbolic art work, journal keeping, ideal models, and development of intuition. The emphasis is on fostering an ongoing process of growth that can gain momentum and bring about a more joyful, balanced actualization of one's life.

MASSAGE

Massage is a healing art. It is practiced to help the body relax, to release tensions, to balance the energy flow, and to soothe the being with gentle caring. Massages are given individually; workshops, classes, and private lessons are available.

T'AI CHI CHUAN

T'ai Chi Chuan is an ancient Chinese exercise discipline practiced for health, meditation, energy flow, and self-defense. The slow, flowing movements of this "shadow boxing" comprise the oldest and "softest" of the Asian martial arts. Developed from the Chinese practice of nei kung, or inner exercise, it is part of the system of Taoist yoga. The term t'ai chi can be translated as "grand ultimate" and is expressed by the familiar symbol of yang and yin. It is thus rooted in the Chinese philosophy of change as expressed in the I Ching.

SHIATSU MASSAGE

Shiatsu massage is the oriental healing art in which the hands are used to apply pressure to acupuncture points over the entire body, allowing the springs of life to flow.

BIOENERGETIC ANALYSIS

Bioenergetic analysis attempts to understand the life of the body through its expression of vitality, gesture, emotion, feeling, and relationship. The body is viewed as an energetic process that participates as the world in the world of instinctual, social, imaginative, and creative realms. Bioenergetics seeks to develop an individual's range of expression by working through this process.

Center for Energetic Studies

for the Study of the Life of the Body

The Center for Energetic Studies, under the direction of Stanley Keleman, is a program of teaching, workshops, and publishing concerning the development of bodily process as the basis for life—how individuals form both themselves and their worlds.

Programs during the coming year are the preparation and ground for a biological learning community, and will be led by Keleman and other leaders whose perspective is that the way we live our bodies expresses the human condition. In addition to the following programs, extended study programs are currently being conducted at the Center.

PROGRAMS WITH STANLEY KELEMAN

February 6–April 9

Anatomy of Feeling: A Practical Approach to the Layers of the Body
Stanley Keleman & Shelly Hendler

What does it mean to work with a body? One must be familiar with the inside. This is a ten-week course on the connection between human anatomy and human emotions. Using material from the medical sciences, the course is set up to initiate us into viewing the inside of the body as we go down, layer by layer, to show the organization, system by system, skin to bone. Through a unique combination of visual materials, the insides of our bodies will be in front of us to see and learn from. Included will be a film series on the dissection of the body, and visual presentations on the relation of structure to function at all levels. The course will be taught jointly by Stanley Keleman and Shelly Hendler, professor of biochemistry and research consultant to the Salk Institute in molecular biology, and is structured to provide a fundamental understanding of the body as the basis for feeling. This course is a primary and original alternative to the prevailing mechanical view of the body, and is recommended to anyone working with the body as a living organism.

The program will consist of ten meetings. Discussion and visual material will be combined each evening to unfold the structure, organization, and function of cells, skeleton, muscles, organs, membranes—how the body's layers relate to feeling and character. Emphasis will be on the practical considerations of what it means, anatomically and emotionally, to work with the body through touch, breath, and movement.

Ten Friday evenings, beginning February 6. Tuition, $200. To register, send a $50 advance deposit to the Center.

February 22, March 28

How to Understand and Work with the Living Body
Stanley Keleman

Two one-day workshops $40 each day

Two workshops with Stanley Keleman, for doing direct bodily work. Registration may be in either or both days. To register, send a $20 per day advance deposit to the Center.

Sundays, 10 am–5 pm.

ADDITIONAL PROGRAMS OF THE CENTER

January 12–February 2

Body and Identity / Ian Grand

Four-evening workshop $50

This evening program focuses on the relationship between bodily attitudes and identity using approaches developed at the Center. We will work with the bodily identity we maintain in the world, and the feelings that emerge as we experience ourselves differently.

Monday evenings, January 12, 19, 26 and February 2, 7–10 pm.

January 29–February 19

Opening Movement/Dance / Tamara Greenberg

Four-evening workshop $25

This series of ongoing evening workshops will encourage a fuller range of expressive movement, alone and with others.

Thursday evenings, January 29, February 5, 12, and 19, 7:30–10 pm

February 9–11

Open Bioenergetic Workshop / John Bellis

Three-evening workshop $50

This bioenergetic workshop with John Bellis, senior training analyst at the New York Institute for Bioenergetic Analysis, will include both demonstration and group experience. Dr Bellis emphasizes the creative use of the voice in his methods.

Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday evenings, 7–10 pm

February 15

Self-Experience / Ian Grand

One-day workshop $25

Using techniques developed at the Center, we will work with how we experience ourselves bodily, how we learn from ourselves, and how we create our reality by our sensations, movements, and expressions.

Sunday, 10 am–6 pm.

March 6

Dance/Movement Workshop / Tamara Greenberg

One-day workshop $25

Participants will explore areas of contact, privacy, feeling, and self-expression using movement to heighten their experience of themselves and each other.

Saturday, 10 am–5 pm.

March 13–14

Open Bioenergetic Workshop / Paul Aikin

Weekend workshop in Davis, California $50

Through working individually and in a group with procedures developed at the Center, this workshop will deal with the way we live in our bodies and express our emotions.

Saturday and Sunday, 10 am–5 pm.

PROGRAMS IN BIG SUR

Week of January 4-9

Renascence / Michael Butler

Within each of us is an untapped seed of emotional and spiritual energy that we can learn to discover and nourish. The goal of this workshop is to teach the ability to tune into and develop that seed center of self.

The daily meetings will be an integration of emotional, spiritual, and body work. The interpersonal will be explored through a new kind of positive encounter. Individual work will be gestalt oriented. Emotional work will be grounded in quieting and meditation practices at the Esalen baths. Emphasis throughout will be on means of translating Esalen growth practices into everyday life. $270

To suffer one's death and be reborn is not easy.

—Fritz Perls

The Time: Moving into 1976
The Place: Big Sur
The Theme: Death and dying; Life and living
The Script: Gestalt, magic, improvisation, meditation, movement, and song
The Cast: You and me

Hypnotherapy & Movement / Emmett & Nitza Miller

To us, therapy is a means for capturing the spirit and momentum of enjoyable experiences in the past and projecting them into the future. Further, it allows us to trace maladaptive patterns—symptoms, habits, emotions, and blocks—to their source, as far back as infancy or further, and extinguish them.

Participants will learn to enter and use the hypnotic state for relaxation, imagery, and age regression. Movement will be used to help intensify emotional experiences, to transmit desirable self-concepts to the body, and to develop means of truly enjoying the body. Of special interest will be multiple experiences of going from a desirable mental image in hypnosis directly into a full movement experience, without pausing at the "waking" level. $270

Training Workshop in Responsible Energy / Alan Schwartz

This is training for those having sufficient background in professional workshops and/or therapy practice using energy techniques or gestalt. In addition to theoretical and practical input about energy techniques, participants will work with each other in dyads. Emphasis will be on integrating energy work with specific interests of participants. Application of responsible energy techniques to therapy, education, and other helping professions will be discussed and experienced. $270

Weekend of January 9-11

Body Energy & Self Expression
Hector Prestera & Ron Kurtz

Bioenergetics, gestalt, physical character analysis, and guided fantasy as well as concepts from acupuncture and rolfing will be utilized to assist participants in contacting and freeing their body blocks and opening the way to "feelingful" and balanced self expression. $110

Yoga for Modern Living / Joel Kramer

This workshop on the physical, psychological, and spiritual aspects of yoga is geared to make yoga meaningful as a tool for the adventure of self-exploration in day-to-day living.

This approach teaches you to be in touch with yourself as a living process and to tune into the energy systems of your mind and body so that you rapidly become your own teacher.

The workshop combines hatha yoga (the physical) and jnana yoga (the mental-psychological) in an approach that explores the "edge" or frontiers of the Self both mentally and physically.

Friday night: Introductory lecture-demonstration
Saturday: Two sessions of hatha yoga, three sessions of jnana yoga
Sunday: Two sessions of hatha yoga, one session of jnana yoga
$110

Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain: The Watercourse Way T'ai Chi
Al Chung-liang Huang

An introduction to t'ai chi and creative Taoist philosophy as explained and exemplified in the book, Tao: The Watercourse Way by the late Alan Watts and Al Chung-liang Huang, and in Huang's book, Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain. The meeting of East and West will be explored in terms of everyday living, of transforming intellectual understanding of the East into action, and of making useful applications to the way of life in the West.

". . . here it will become apparent to many who used to look down upon body as a hindrance or an encumbrance of the spirit, that the body in its very movements can be a deeper revelation of the essence of our being than all our religious and philosophical assumptions. What Al Huang demonstrates and teaches is that the inspired body is a manifestation of universal forces which flow through us, unless we block them by our arbitrary judgments and short-sighted aims and intentions. He teaches us to flow with the Tao and to restore the lost harmony of our lives."

A Gestalt Workshop / John Stevens

For me, gestalt is more a way of living than a therapy—something you do with others, not to them. Individual gestalt awareness work will be our major focus. We will also do some t'ai chi as a way of exploring balance and centering in our lives, and as a metaphor for psychological balance and centering in the present moment of experience. $270

Experience of Esalen
Janet Zuckerman & Esalen Staff

During the past several years the Experience of Esalen workshops have offered people an opportunity to sample, taste, and touch on a variety of nourishing and unique experiences intrinsic to Esalen. However, they are usually offered in the form of a weekend or a week. Now for the first time we have designed a three week format to bring you MORE.

The emphasis is on finding those approaches to self-awareness that work. We will use all our available resources . . . gestalt . . . soft encounter . . . bioenergetics . . . massage . . . body movement . . . yoga . . . meditation . . . caring . . . love and humor. $820

Boundaries of Liberation for Men & Women
Jacqueline Larcombe Doyle

Through encounter, gestalt, and psychodrama techniques we will examine the issues which underlie our choice of mode (from traditional to liberated) for relating to our friends and mates. We will explore the boundaries of our concept of self and sex role. $110

Centering / Robert Nadeau

Being centered is working in harmony with yourself. It is applicable in everything—movement, sports, working, teaching, meditation—all aspects of living. We'll learn to recognize and function from center in the midst of daily activities and pressures. $110

Introduction to Selective Awareness & Self-Hypnosis
Emmett Miller

The present-day student of health is confronting the possibility that the vast majority of physical disease patterns and essentially all psychological problems are the result of faulty programming of the "Human Biocomputer." Yet seldom can either physician or patient make use of this theory. The reason for the paradox is simple: you must know the language in order to talk to a computer (garbage in; garbage out). Selective awareness is self-applied, using your conscious mind—in a state of deep relaxation and concentration—to systematically explore and experience your world of experience and memory within. We will investigate selective consciousness through auto-suggestion; the elimination of unwanted symtoms, habits, and emotional response patterns; effective learning, listening, and communication; and body awareness. $110

Week of January 18-23

A Week with Will Schutz / Will Schutz

Within the format of an encounter group we shall explore many body methods, intrapsychic techniques, demonstrations, and theoretical discussions relevent to whatever happens in the group. Humor is allowed in this group. $300

Gestalt Practice / Richard & Christine Price

Perfect like Great Space
the Way has nothing lacking, nothing in excess.
Truly because of our accepting and rejecting
We have not the suchness of things.
—Sengtsan (3rd Zen Patriarch)

What is, is.
—Fritz Perls

Gestalt practice is a form—nonanalytic, noncoercive, nonjudgmental—evolving out of the work of Fritz Perls, relating that work to ways of personal clearing and development both ancient and modern. To the extent that awareness is made primary relative to action, gestalt practice has a strong relationship to some forms of meditation and visualization. In that emotional and energetic release and rebalancing are allowed and encouraged, the relation to some Reichian work is close.

The emphasis is *intra*personal rather than *inter*personal. Those who primarily wish interpersonal work are advised to attend an encounter rather than a gestalt group.

Participants are explicitly not "patients" but persons consenting actively to work (or play) in awareness. The "leader" functions to reflect, clarify, and flow with whatever emerges in this process. The aim is unfoldment, wholeness, growth rather than "adjustment," "cure," or "accomplishment."

Suggested reading: Gestalt Therapy Verbatim (Perls); Tao Te Ching (Lao Tzu); Cutting Through Spiritual Materialism (Chogyam Trungpa); The Power of Mindfulness (Nyanaponika Thera); Exploring the Crack in the Cosmic Egg (J C Pearce). $270

Contact & Communication
Julian & Beverly Silverman & Guest Leaders

The ways we contact and communicate with ourselves and with others determine the kind of world that we live in. When we change these ways we can actually change our world. This is what the workshop is about.

Our emphasis is on the relationship between individual process and group process. Our concern is with developing a way of being in which one's senses are open and one's contacting of others is flexible. The learning which takes place occurs with a group of individuals who share and change in relation to each other. Emphasis is placed upon body in relation to mind. $610

A Weekend with Will Schutz / Will Schutz

Physics and Consciousness
Michael Murphy, Jack Sarfatti, Saul Paul Sirac, Fred Wolfe, George Leonard, Peter Slessel, & John King

When you get right down to it, many of the findings of modern quantum physics look very much like the processes of consciousness. Breakthroughs in physics may also give answers to problems of psychic phenomena. Certainly current observations and theories in physics and astronomy are radically altering our scientific view of the universe. Perhaps they will also alter our personal view of reality.

This lecture series presents authorities from physics, astronomy, and consciousness to explain recent theories and discoveries in physics and astronomy and to discuss their implications for psychic phenomena, consciousness, and alternative views of reality. The presentations will be for laymen as well as for persons who have some knowledge of the subjects.

"The seemingly fantastic propositions of parapsychology appear less preposterous in the light of the truly fantastic concepts of modern physics."
—Arthur Koestler

Experiencing the Wisdom of the Body / Barbara Clemans

How can we experience the wisdom of the body? One way is to remove blocks and resistances and give catharsis to the early trauma which resides within the body.

Focusing on the quality of ease, not stress, we will use feldenkrais exercises, sensing, sound/movement, breath, meditation, and massage to flow through tension and toward others with a heightened sense of ourselves and a deeper sense of intimacy. $110

Joseph Campbell & Sam Keen

In recent years tulkus, roshis, and gurus from the East have come as missionaries to the West bringing meditation, mantra, and a rich spiritual technology for achieving satori. The time seems ripe to look again at the native religious insights of the Western tradition.

This workshop will focus on the myths, heroes, and spiritual technology of the Judeo-Christian tradition. It will include in depth psychological probes into: the ideas of creation, incarnation, resurrection, and the kingdom of God; the relation of the mystical and the moral; and the image of life as a pilgrimage. The method will include experiential exercises, theoretical comparisons of Dante's vision of the descent and ascent of the soul with the myth of the rising of the kundalini, and a comparison of Eastern and Western notions of the stages of the religious life. $300

You are invited to go beyond where you are through seeing how you keep yourself behind. Beyond is a rich, alive experience—love, anger, joy, sadness, and spirituality. Behind is a fear of seeing what is there. Participants will be offered a chance, a tender invitation, to see what is behind and go beyond. Traditional encounter, gestalt, bioenergetic and psychosynthesis techniques will be utilized, in addition to a new approach aimed at developing perspective, the ability to "see oneself beyond the impasse." $270

Verse . . . to familiarize by close association, study, and experience.
University . . . Universe . . . LEARNING?
Without an experiential base
LEARNING
becomes "literary" . . . literature/fiction with "authority" always . . . in print
IM-PRINT!

(. . . without an experiential base . . .)
This can only lead to alienation/fear and containment
. . . a form of participation that has led us to the creation of personal SYSTEMS OF DEFENSE.
(. . . projected out . . . how much DO we spend on our national defense system?)
Education becomes a form for continuing warfare.

We always participate in our education . . . either as a closed or open system . . . be it implicit or explicit. In an outside authority (literary) based system our participation is most often implicit and resistant as well as dis-connected. The discovering energy/vitality is now used to protect the learner and fortify against the intrusion often called "EDUCATION."

The learner is her/his own re-source person, using her/his own "organism" as a feed-back system, making dis-coverings. Essentially, our educational system by-passes self-discovering and opts for reading about the fantasy of others. We come from an educational system that insists that the learner gather a particular kind of information, chart that information, re-organize that information according to some made up scheme of right and wrong. We have a "check-out" system as opposed to a dis-covering system. Much of our exciting exploration takes place in space programs as opposed to explorations on planet earth. We could be exploring new ways of being (non-defensive), using the technology available to us. We could be re-creating new kinds of being with the same kind of energy devoted to autistically gathering and charting information. I wonder what would happen if we stopped teaching political history to our young and focused instead on natural (science) history . . . the FIRST learnings coming from nature and through the senses with as little interference as possible . . . allowing children and adults to discover for themselves and continuing our learning wherever we are or whatever we are doing . . . always going back to the self as a resource person . . . the self as a departure point . . . the launching pad . . . the home base . . . a place for returning/reflecting. Would we continue to work in relationship to nature, with more focus on HOW we work WITH the planet of which we are a part, but from which we have been so dis-connected. By the age of five we were put into "schools" . . . a building away from nature. We played on asphalt instead of fields, we climbed steel jungle gyms instead of trees. A great deal of effort was put into clearing away a patch of land, building a box with cubicles, separating us into "peer-groups," testing us, filing us, and grading us. If we were the "appropriate" age we could play with selected animals and token objects of nature. We planted marigolds in little pots for mother's day. And then . . . that important moment when we were old enough to really learn. We got to learn about political history, a way of viewing reality and highly selective information. We got to learn about war. We began to view history as a stretch of time punctuated by wars . . . necessary since that's what happened. (At least anybody who was somebody was involved with this activity . . . heroes all.) Except on one page of the US History book, that paragraph about George Washington Carver discovering peanut oil. Based on our input it is no surprise that our surpreme achievements have been our bombs, our abilities to kill on a colossal scale, and that we have become high achievers in killing, destruction, abuse, intrusion, and creative violation . . . and if a flower or plant dares to climb through the crack in the asphalt it must be removed or recovered by more asphalt.

Can you imagine young children swimming with ducklings, touching little fishes, listening to birds, being part of the changing seasons of wild flowers instead of reading ABOUT seasons and learning to "tell time"? Can you imagine children discovering other systems of "time"? I remember children in Los Angeles not comprehending the words "fall, autumn, snow," trying but not understanding the word "season," for in Los Angeles there are no seasons as they exist in other parts of the country. But much time is spent "teaching" ABOUT and learning to spell words that have no experiential meaning. Little children trapped in eye glasses so they might read ABOUT things with which they have no direct experience. Encase the eyes in glass and learn about your world in books so that we may decide whether you are bright or dull, whether you may be among us or put aside. So here we are, hearing and seeing each other according to past im-prints, learning about us according to what's in print.

My vision was fine
for me
then . . . someone insisted (!)
I see a particular thing . . . a particular way imposing a structure imposing a struggle (?)
WHAT HAPPENED TO:
The pleasure of my own attention to . . .
getting to know
the time for learning about and even more unfolding with acting and reflecting
CELEBRATING the EXPERIENCE of SENSING my OWN ABILITIES (alone)
OUR ABILITIES (together)
EXPLORING DIMENSIONS YET UNKNOWN! (. . . to us)

My Body Is My Temple / Gabrielle Roth

This seminar is designed for those who wish to experience the inscrutable mysteries of our temple and how we move and change. Specifically, we will work with the imaginative, inspirational, and intuitive levels of our physical consciousness. $110

Centering, Self Awareness, & the Spirit of Play / Bob Kriegel

This workshop will teach centering: the process of finding that calm place within ourselves that is in balance and harmony. Active games of all types—including energy games, street and playground games, theatre games, new games, and new approaches to traditional sports—will be used for experiencing "center" and for exploring self-awareness. We will explore how game behavior magnifies our reaction patterns, giving us a clearer, more vivid picture of ourselves. We will also use gestalt, role playing, guided fantasy, and psychosynthesis techniques to bring our new awareness to a more conscious level. $110

Growth Through Risk-Taking / David Schiffman

This workshop provides the opportunity for the group members to come to terms with the definitions by which they live. Through a series of structured risk-taking situations, the use of gestalt, role playing, fantasy, and encounter techniques, the participants can accept or transcend the boundaries from which they approach the world. $110

Liberation Issues: For Men & Women
Jacqueline Larcombe Doyle

Through Reichian methods, encounter, gestalt, and psychodrama techniques we will examine the issues which underlie our mode (from traditional to liberated) for relating to our friends and mates. The boundaries of our concept of self and sex role will be explored. Some of the issues stimulating this search for liberation spring from needs for space, time, privacy, and sexuality. We will deal with these and other themes of individuality and closeness to the men and women we love.

For singles and couples. $270 per person.

Energy: Meditation Self Regulation Synthesis
Bernard Gunther

We are all almost unlimited sources of joyous energy; we squander many of these resources. Blocked by fear, habit, and limitation, we dam ourselves in destructive energy expression: various forms of mental-physical-emotional symptoms and illness. In this workshop we will learn to release, redirect, and reintegrate behavior patterns through the use of breathing, guided fantasies, chakra meditation, awareness, and hypnosis. The experience will be a synthesis of gestalt, yoga, psychosynthesis, and movement with emphasis on an individual program of these methods that can be used in daily life. $270

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff
Coordinated by Janet Zuckerman

These workshops are designed for people who have not previously been to Esalen / Big Sur. The emphasis is on finding those approaches to self-awareness that work most effectively for the individual participant. Some of the following experiences are available at each Experiencing Esalen workshop: sensory awareness, gestalt awareness training, encounter, theatre games, guided fantasy, meditation, bioenergetics, massage. There is time to experience and explore the natural magnificence of the Big Sur coast.

Suggested reading: Gestalt Therapy Verbatim (Perls) and The New Education (Kelley).

Program for the Advanced Study of Culture and Consciousness

Under the direction of Joan Halifax-Grof and Stanislav Grof, Esalen is offering a series of long-term, residential, interdisciplinary programs designed to provide advanced training for professionals and graduate students. All programs will employ an experimental learning form developed by the coordinators; this new approach combines both cognitive and experiential elements, intrapsychic and interpersonal sessions, and modern technology for the exploration of consciousness. The objective is to utilize fully both the specific input of highly qualified guest faculty and also the resources within the group of participants. These programs will systematically cover various aspects of research in culture and consciousness. Each of the residential programs will be individually designed and will not be repeated.

February 1-27

HOLISTIC MEDICINE & TRADITIONAL HEALING

Coordinated by
Joan Halifax-Grof, Stanislav Grof, & Kenneth Pelletier

A four week interdisciplinary institute for 28 physicians and health care professionals

Esalen is gathering over thirty faculty members at Big Sur to offer 150 hours of theoretical, experiential, and practical sessions in holistic medicine and traditional healing. The material presented during this training institute will cover four major thematic areas:

Area 1: Holistic and Humanistic Trends in Medicine

Sessions in this thematic area will focus on those developments in medicine that emphasize body/mind interactions. Individual contributions will involve revolutionary approaches to the therapy of cancer, the use of psychedelic drugs for altering the experience of dying, the theory and practice of acupuncture, the healing potential of biofeedback techniques, basic principles of structural integration (rolfing), an introduction to the feldenkrais method, a program for the awakening of potential in the aged, and experiments aimed at creating a new psychobiologically healthy environment for birth.

Area 2: Shamanism, Indigenous Healing Arts, and Psychic Healing

This area will be introduced by an historical and crosscultural overview of indigenous healing systems and a discussion of their relationship to contemporary medicine. Anthropologists who have worked with various nonwestern cultures will describe shamanic practices and paradigms of charismatic healing. Participants will explore various approaches to shamanism, indigenous medicine, and psychic healing. There will be illustrated lectures and films on the techniques and mythologies underlying healing systems in different cultures.

Area 3: Transpersonal Psychology and Psychotherapy

This area will focus on the history, theory, and practice of transpersonal psychology. The participants will be acquainted with new maps of consciousness emerging from psychedelic research. This cartography makes it possible to integrate contemporary personality theories with the image of the human being reflected in ancient and nonwestern philosophical and religious systems.

Area 4: Interpersonal and Self Exploration

The approaches for exploring and understanding the group's and one's own personal processes will be many. These will include gestalt practice, psychosynthesis, encounter, and various forms of meditation (sitting, mantram, music, mandala, and moving). During the entire four week period, non-drug technology for self-exploration will be available for use by participants. This laboratory equipment consists of an isolation tank, sonic driver, clinical photic driver, biofeedback equipment, and a kinaesthetic device (lotus cradle). This will make it possible for participants to explore unusual states of consciousness induced by various techniques.

This institute will take place in the Study Center, a beautiful mansion located on cypress-covered cliffs overlooking the rocky coastline of Big Sur, across Hot Springs Creek from the main Esalen grounds. The learning format will combine didactic seminars, experiential sessions, special lectures, individual tutorial sessions, and selected film material. During the course of the institute, various theoreticians and healers not listed on the faculty will visit the program and share their views and techniques as time will permit.

Some regular Esalen weekend workshops, scheduled in the catalog, will be open to participants for an additional $23. All Esalen facilities will be available, such as the hot sulphur baths, fresh water heated pool, sauna, and (for a separate fee) rolfing, massage (Esalen, shiatsu, polarity), and acupuncture.

This program is limited to 28 health care professionals. The tuition is $1150. If you wish to apply, send a letter containing biographical information and a current photograph to Joan Halifax-Grof, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

WORK-STUDY PROGRAM

Beginning November 2, 1975, a special residence program at Esalen/Big Sur will be available for those interested in living and working in the Esalen community. Resident leaders, including Janet Lederman, Peggy Morrison, Richard Price, Christine Price, Beverly Silverman, Julian Silverman, and Janet Zuckerman, will coordinate and lead sessions in gestalt, encounter, body work, and other approaches currently practiced at Esalen. If work scheduling permits, regular weekend workshops will be available at special rates. Participants will work 32 hours per week with the Esalen staff. Work will be assigned according to the needs of our community. Room and board is $300 per four week period, based on shared accommodations of up to three persons to a room at our South Coast Living Center. The program is 28 days, beginning on a Sunday. If interested, please apply to Elaine Simon, Esalen Work-Study Program, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920. Applications may be submitted at any time; a new program starts every four weeks.

SOUTH COAST CENTER

The living center is slowly evolving into a participatory environment

vital
changing
designing, redesigning inner and outer space with residents responsible for their own evolution.

The South Coast Center, located a mile and a half north of Esalen, is a living center for people who would like to be in contact with Esalen and its facilities but who are not interested in an intensive workshop program. Studios (room, balcony, and bath) are available for $350 per month. A monthly meal ticket may be purchased at Esalen for $200 and residents may set up light cooking facilities in their rooms for preparing their own meals. As part of our program of integrating residents into the working community, South Coast residents are asked to contribute eight hours per week of work to the community. In addition, due to the large number of people who want to be at South Coast, we have put a term of three months on all South Coast residencies. South Coast studios may be reserved through the Esalen/Big Sur office.

ONGOING RESIDENTIAL PROGRAM

Offered from September through May, the Ongoing Residential Program is designed for those who would like to have time and space in the Esalen environment for an intensive workshop program over a long term. A minimum stay: 26 days (or four "weeks" and three weekends).

Participants may select any of the five-day workshops offered during their stay. Weekend workshops are available at special prices. Some programs are cancelled, so second choices are advised. Some special staff programs will also be open to residents. Cost: $960 per 26-day period.

Weekend of February 6-8

Introducing Humanology: A Journey Deep into the Self
Shama Kirn Singh Harvey & Rama Kirn Singh Comeau

This workshop will synthesize techniques of Western psychology and merge them with Eastern techniques for awareness drawn from the science of kundalini yoga and humanology as taught by yogi Bhajan. This weekend will focus on male and female polarities through mutual deep meditation and the self cleansing process in interpersonal relating. The work will involve understanding mind/body energy dynamics through meditation and breath techniques drawn from the system of yoga known as humanology. $110

Meltingintwone / Bernard Gunther

Often we have sex when what we are really seeking is an open closeness, caring, energy sharing to quiet an intense underlying sense of tension, anxiety, and emptyness. Intimate relationships are most rewarding when thay are not only pleasurable but uplifting, continually new and renewing. In this workshop for couples we will explore delicate ways to exchange energy that can raise a relationship from the physical mundane to a higher plane of consciousness, intimacy, and awareness. In this experience we will explore various aspects of mutual meditation, motionless contact, energy transmutation, polarity therapy, and nonverbal communication; moving from intensity toward ecstatic bliss. $110 per person.

Holistic Treatment of Cancer Patients
Carl & Stephanie Simonton

This workshop will present the work with cancer patients being done by the leaders. The workshop will include the rationale for their development of a holistic treatment of cancer patients, integrating standard medical treatment with intensive psychotherapy and meditation techniques. A current statement of the approach will be outlined, including their emphasis on psychological, physical, and religio-spiritual parameters. A historical perspective will also be given to the research on the psychophysical aspects of cancer dating from the 19th century through the present. The Simontons will summarize the current findings in their investigation of the psychological profile of patients who go into remission after being diagnosed as terminal.

The workshop will also include an experiential treatment of the group therapy processes used with cancer patients in an attempt to give the participants first-hand knowledge of their specific techniques. $110

Your Life as Dance / Anna Halprin & Xavier Nash

The annual workshop of the San Francisco Dancers' Workshop at Esalen, conducted by Anna Halprin and the Dancers' Workshop staff, was initiated at the invitation of Fritz Perls over ten years ago and has been offered once each year since that time. Please come and join us. $110

Renascence / Michael Butler

For workshop description see January 4-9. $270

Personal Style & Personal Gestalt / Jack Downing

Each of us has our own individual life style, our personal gestalt characterizing each phase of our life. We can be aware of the way movement relates to interpersonal relationship, of how body chemistry determines our life goals. Drawing our own major life portrait will be the object of this workshop, using techniques newly invented for this purpose, as well as traditional methods such as behavioral feedback, group interaction, and gestalt uncovering and integrating methods. In order that the group can develop as fast as possible, please come only if you have had previous experience. $300

Contact & Communication
Julian & Beverly Silverman

The ways we contact and communicate with ourselves and with others determine the kind of world that we live in. When we change these ways we can actually change our world. This is what the workshop is about. $270

God, Sexual Energy, & Your Body / Gabrielle Roth

Sexual energy is the key which opens the door for us between spirit and matter. This will be the first in a series of workshops designed to penetrate the religious/sexual gap as it exists in our consciousness, attitudes, and actions. The purpose is to experience ourselves as god, as sexual and as physical beings. $270

Weekend of February 20-22

Shamanism Workshop / Michael Harner

The writings of Carlos Castaneda will be the point of departure for an intensive exploration of ancient shamanic knowledge. Participants will be taught the basic techniques of shamanic power used by North and South American Indian shamans as reinterpreted by the workshop leader for application within our own lives. The accumulation and utilization of shamanic power will be related to such subjects as altered consciousness, sexual energy, and body awareness. Exercises will be conducted in the methods used by shamans to affect natural phenomena and to heal the sick in primitive cultures. $110

The Gestalt Process:
I would like to free myself from limitations!
Jorge & Charlotte Rosner

We can all stop our growth and limit our freedom by fear, internal conflicts, and fantasy. In this workshop we will explore the ways in which we inhibit ourselves from living a full, exciting, and joyous life. Depending upon the needs of the group, the work may include art, theater, and body work, all with gestalt process as the central focus. $270

Centering / Robert Nadeau

For workshop description see January 16-18. $270

Weekend of February 27-29

Interpersonal Sensing / Simone Surpin

Within each of us is a place where we can receive and give caring and love. The focus of this weekend is to explore how we can reopen our channels to this way of being: how we can nourish and stay alive to our own experiences and feelings, and share them with others. Toward this end our group process will include the practice of listening to the vibrational statements, exchanges, and energy flows in which we are constantly partaking. We will also make use of body work, massage, gentle bioenergetics, and various forms of energy awareness practices. (Limited to 12 participants.) $110

Your Most Precious Beliefs and Their Detection
John & Antoinette Lilly

Each of us has belief systems—some spoken, some unspoken, some known, and some unknown. The personal hunt for these beliefs, the struggle to find them, to articulate them, can be a rewarding experience. Once found, once articulated, once written down, once mastered, these beliefs no longer cause one to be an unwilling non-voluntary programmee of their dictates. One becomes a programmer of one's beliefs, through the new and novel meta-belief operator to be presented and its use taught in this workshop/lecture. $110

Tuning In / Janet Zuckerman

Many of us are operating as tape recorders. We switch on in the morning at "high" or "low" speed and play our tapes in response to the buttons being pushed by people or events. We are vaguely aware that life seems repetitive, or dull, that time is often something to be gotten through instead of savored, but this awareness is lost in the "noise" and business of day to day living.

This weekend will be devoted to bringing our attention to what we are doing—how we are really acting and thinking. Once we are aware of our tapes, we can go off automatic and begin to enjoy our interactions with one another. We will be using gestalt process, encounter, sensory awareness, and other techniques to tune in to ourselves and each other. $100

Week of February 29-March 5

Esalen/Big Sur will be closed for this five day period to allow for organizational development work among the staff.

Weekend of March 5-7

Workshop on Energy Consciousness / Simone Surpin

This weekend will focus on teaching how energy flows through our bodies and within the one body of our group. We will explore how we can nourish ourselves and stay alive to our own experiences and feelings and share them with others.

We will learn about sensing energy exchanges, both verbal and nonverbal, and do some experiential work with energy fields. There will also be an introduction to various forms of gentle body work and meditation.

Enrollment is limited to 14 people. $110

Energy Awareness / Bernard Gunther

Physical, emotional, mental illness may be the result of excessive chronic tension and withholding: dis/ease. This holding back of energy, excitement, and expression creates a surface sense of security at the expense of aliveness and well being. In this workshop we will use various techniques to begin the process of cleansing, balancing, and centering your whole being. Special focus will be given to the seven energy centers (chakras), breathing, guided fantasies, and the reprogramming of thought and habit patterns—various simple practical methods that can perpetuate health and higher functioning throughout life. $270

March 7–26

Western Roundup—A Pioneer Project

Coordinator: Margaret Conway, Director, Montana Learning Unlimited, & Esalen Staff

This workshop will be a repeat of last year's successful workshop sponsored by Montana Learning Unlimited, a new growth center in Helena, Montana, which is assembling a group of people from Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, and nearby northwest states to participate in a three week workshop at Esalen. If you are from that area, we invite you to join us.

The human potential movement has been, for a long time, centered on the east and west coasts. We've met many individuals who sought experience at these centers and returned home to wonder, "Am I alone? Is there anyone else who is involved in the same things? How can I bring these concepts and practices into my life here at home?" In response to this, we have designed a program to explore together the developing disciplines—physical, mental, emotional, and spiritual—in the study of human growth and consciousness. Our aim is to adapt the work to the particular needs of our own geographical area and to form a support group to help one another and to further the development of human potential practice in our home areas.

Limited to fifteen persons, our group will spend nineteen days together at Esalen. There will be two sessions daily with Esalen leaders and evening meetings with Margaret Conway to integrate the experience and maintain a flow of communication. Weekends will be free to enjoy the seashore and mountains of Big Sur, visit San Francisco, or attend weekend workshops listed in the Esalen catalog (at a reduced rate).

The nineteen day program will include work in bioenergetics, encounter, gestalt, psychosynthesis, massage, movement, and meditation.

Inquiries, reservations, and car pool arrangements will be handled by Montana Learning Unlimited, 58 North Last Chance Gulch, Helena, Montana 59601. Tel (406) 442-7402. Reservations must be accompanied by a deposit of $300 and should by made by February 3. $820

March 7–April 9

THE INNER ROAD TO HEALTH—Approaches to Healing and Self-Healing

Al Drucker, Barbara Braunstein, Richard & Christine Price, Guest Leaders & Esalen Staff

This is a workshop for staying well and helping others to stay well. The subjects covered will be an introduction and synthesis of many of the health and healing approaches taught at Esalen. The basic premise here is that as we immerse ourselves in a nourishing environment, as we clear out the load of excess baggage and attachments that we carry around in our lives, as we engage in a daily spiritual and physical practice and do wholesome satisfying work, and as we learn to live in a state of love and grace, our body-mind comes into harmony and order. Then we find ourselves on an inner spiritual journey of expanding consciousness. It is on this path, within the deepest wellsprings of our being, that we experience the healing current that permits us to heal ourselves and to guide others to health.

We will begin the workshop with a three-day organic fruit juice fast to cleanse the physical system and a marathon session to start the emotional cleansing process. Throughout the month we will provide a special healthful diet; for this we will do some of our own meal preparation, harvesting some of our food directly from the garden. The workshop will be held in the Big House and many of the participants will be housed there. This is a beautiful mansion located on cypress-covered cliffs overlooking the rocky coastline of Big Sur, across Hot Springs Creek from the main Esalen grounds.

This present program is the third time this experience has been offered. The previous two programs given in March and September 1975 filled quickly, so interested individuals are encouraged to apply early. Because of the intensity of the previous workshops we have gone to a five-week format, permitting a final week of integration and synthesis of the large range of material presented. We are also planning a four to six month apprenticeship program in the healing arts following this workshop in April 1976. This will be for up to ten participants selected primarily from the four or five week workshops. The apprenticeship training will be incorporated in the ongoing Esalen work-scholar program; this permits a considerably reduced monthly tuition cost.

To apply for the March 1976 five-week workshop, please send us a short note about yourself that will help us know you. Include your age, your interests, and your state of health; also include a photo, if you have one. Mail to "Inner Road to Health Workshop," Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920. Upon confirmation of your acceptance, we require the deposit within two weeks in order to reserve your space. Some partial scholarships will be available and awarded on the basis of need; for this a weekly work commitment is required.

The schedule and list of possible topics that follows will serve as a basis for group selection of the actual program to be used during the workshop.

Pathways to Sensuality / Sylvia Kars & Jeanne Newman

The aim of this workshop is to open participants to a variety of ways to communicate with a partner, both verbally and through touch, so that each partner's pleasure and spontaneity is heightened. Workshop members will do a graduated series of sensuality enhancement exercises and will learn how to combine their own knowledge and experience with new sensory awareness and communication principles. The goal is to create a balance of active and passive situations for each partner so that each can benefit from the experience of the other. A safe, non-threatening environment is carefully established; no one has to do anything he or she does not want to do. Feedback sessions after each exercise provide the opportunity for increasing awareness and sensitivity between partners. Partners will rotate throughout the weekend.

Workshop begins clothed and clothing then becomes optional. Couples will be given preference, but it is not necessary to bring a partner to attend. Explicitly sexual behavior is not permitted within the context of this workshop; this is a workshop to enhance the experience of sensuality. $110 per person

(formerly Interscience Workshops)

To grow in the capacity to experience and express deep feeling, to connect up with oneself, and to contact others is the aim of this series of workshops which employ neo-Reichian techniques of emotional release. The Radix Intensive, a period of individual work within a small group setting, is practiced by Charles and Erica Kelley and their staff at the Radix Work Shop. The Intensive, like other neo-Reichian techniques used in these workshops, grew from the discovery by Charles Kelley's teacher, Wilhelm Reich, of the way in which feeling is rooted in the flow of energy in the body, and is blocked by chronic muscular contractions which Reich called the muscular armor. Freeing the armor enables the student to open feeling that is buried and to soften and free feeling that is too strong and has been held in for fear of explosion.

In these workshops armor is softened by simultaneous work on the character and body, using techniques not only from Reich, but also from bioenergetics, sensory awareness, and other body-oriented approaches. Groups will be kept small—never more than eight per leader—so that significant individual attention can be given. Grief or pain, fear, and rage that have been held in since childhood emerge in these workshops. As the participant accepts and works through these negative feelings, he/she discovers a new capacity for pleasure, trust, and love. In time the sexual experience changes profoundly as tender and sexual feelings for the mate intensify and merge.

SCHEDULE:

Jan 18-23	Roger Andes, Siri Mishler, & Jacoba Teague
Feb 20-22	Laura Dillon, Roger Andes, & Greg Barnum
April 4-9	Charles & Erica Kelley & Mark Dunlap

Woman to Woman / Man to Man
Dee Mundschenk David Schiffman

"The woman that most needs liberating is the woman in every man, and the man that most needs liberating is the man in every woman."
—Rev William Sloan Coffin

Taking advantage of the natural affinity and support that people of the same sex can afford one another, the men and women in this workshop will meet separately as well as together. We will create an ambience of tenderness and support to provide opportunities to clarify the nature of who we are as men in the absence of women and who we are as women in the absence of men and what happens when we come together. The themes we will explore are our sexuality, our friendships, our body images, our coupling, our creativity, our relationship to power, our expectations of each other. The workshop will be grounded in the techniques of gestalt, encounter, fantasy, massage, and bioenergetics. $270

Feldenkrais & Massage / Barbara Clemans

Moshe Feldenkrais is the originator of a simple yet powerful new body technique. The exercises are pleasant and relaxed, each fifty minute segment being a different lesson. The work allows for the experience of integration, relaxation and balance, improvement in fluidity, and ease in movement.

Carrying the awareness gained from the exercises to our experience with each other in massage, we will heighten our awareness of self-image and experience the relationship of body, mind, and psyche. $270

Weekend of March 19-21

Basic T'ai Chi Massage / Judy Unell

Two ancient arts blend and flow. This is a caring massage method combining pressure points, muscle and sensory strokes with t'ai chi movement, which transmits a special rhythm and energy flow, relaxing but invigorating the giver as well as the receiver. For either the beginner or the professional, this method presents a basic understanding of the easy uses of body weight and the elimination of strain through rhythmic movement. $110

Opening the Feelings: A Neo-Reichian Workshop
Laura Dillon

The aim of this workshop is to help participants free up their capacity to experience and express deep feelings. Emotions are held in the body through muscular tensions which Wilhelm Reich called muscular armoring. Through the use of Radix emotional release techniques developed by Charles Kelley and other body oriented approaches we will work to soften these tensions and release the feelings held there. The group will provide a supportive nurturing atmosphere to enhance the process of emotional release. $110

Towards a More Sensitive Relating
Charlotte Selver & Charles Brooks

In an increasingly alienated world where mechanical ease often makes communication shallower, many of us are eager to find more meaningful contact both with ourselves and with others. We would like really to get in touch. But the conventional approaches we have learned, our social and intellectual conditioning, lie like callouses over our living nerve ends and, though occasionally useful, act as effective barriers between the perceiver and the perceived. The reality both of ourselves and of those we meet can only be discovered and explored when we begin to sense and discard the techniques and defenses we have come to rely on—when we become again consciously living organisms, open, as we were in childhood, to the unedited messages of our senses.

In this workshop, which will be devoted to practice rather than theory, a beginning will be made toward exploring anew our natural capacities for clearly perceiving and relating to those around us and to the life within us, and to the many tasks which life presents. $110

Energy / Bernard Gunther

We are all fields of energy living in an energy field. Our potential is limitless, yet we frequently find ourselves operating in fatigue and limitation. This damming of the Self is caused by excessive tension, shallow breathing, toxic relationships, and nonfocused thought, which rob the organism of vitality and pleasure. How to tap this infinite supply of energy, how to rechannel and raise sexual energy, and how to apply this knowledge in everyday activity will be the task of this seminar. In this work we will explore aspects of hypnosis, yoga, gestalt, psychosynthesis, and color sound chakra meditation to experience more fully our flow of vital and psychic energy. $110

Exploration & Integration / Arthur & Janica Fox

Come and experience a combination of encounter, gestalt, sensory awareness, and massage surrounded by the richness of Big Sur and the Esalen grounds. Use these experiences to explore more of your awareness and your capacity for openness. We will also explore ways of retaining and integrating our experiences so that we have access to them not just at Esalen, but also when we return home. $110

Exploring Self-Acceptance / David Schiffman

The focus of this workshop is the creation of a more positive and open-ended self concept. Through the use of structured risk-taking situations, gestalt, role-playing, fantasy, and encounter techniques, participants can accept or transcend the self-imposed boundaries from which they approach the world. Emphasis is on searching out unique personality strengths, individual capacities, and latent powers as a means of achieving productive, creative functioning. $110

We Are All Dancers / Betty Fuller

A work/play shop for the dancer in every body—even those who hate to move! This synthesis of gestalt awareness training with feldenkrais effortless exercise works on the body/mind to dissolve tensions, holdings, blocks, and barriers to mobilization of energy and full self-expression. Everyone can experience increased energy, vitality and flexibility, improved posture (physical and mental), expanded consciousness, and enhanced self-image. We will explore—experientially—the relatedness of gestalt, rolfing, psychosynthesis, feldenkrais, and est and use before and after photographs. $110

Changing Courses in Midstream / Jack Gaines

The change from what you are doing to what you want to do is not easy for most people—at any age. Many of us talk of changing life styles, getting out of the rat race, no longer willing to look for our identity in an endless string of shiny new possessions. Some of us do. Few among those who do are prepared for the impact of change and/or idleness. This is an exploratory seminar for people who are interested in the development of new attitudes preparatory to changing career and family responsibilities. $110

Group Mind—Bodyfield Energy Ring / Michaeleen Kimmey

We center each body-field in the configuration of a perfect circle. The linking up of each person in this ring provides heat and light sensations. The energy ring provides us with a form to share and express an experience in a nonverbal and noncognitive manner, allowing us to explore and understand our intuitive faculties. This workshop is designed to help those of us in human services to learn more about the vibrational sharing of ourselves in community. $270

Cooking as a Sensory Feast / Myrtle Ratcliffe

Food preparation can be a special time for the senses when we include music, meditation, movement, and an awareness of our own rituals in cooking. In the Esalen kitchen we will prepare at least one meal together, combining high energy cooking with plenty of time to relax, experience massage, and enjoy the feast. $110

You & Universal Motion / Robert Nadeau

The physical conscious system operates in direct relationship to a larger energy activity or universal motion. It is important to recognize this activity as a "friend" and learn to work in harmony with it. We will explore energy and our "marriage" with it through meditation, centering, and body movement. $110

Introduction to Gestalt Practice / Joan Fiore

After introducing the "language" of gestalt and various gestalt experiments in breath, body, and feeling awareness, this workshop concentrates on providing the opportunity for intensive individual gestalt work in a supportive group setting. Suitable for novices as well as veterans. $110

Week of April 18-23

Massage Intensive / The Esalen Massage Crew

The Esalen massage crew, with its unique variety of approaches and styles, will teach basic techniques for giving and receiving massage, both for immediate relaxation of tension and as a way of caring. Emphasis here is on deepening the quality of touch-communication and heightening awareness of the energy flow between the body in motion and the body at rest.

The group will meet daily at the mineral baths. Limited to 16. $240

The Rites of Passage:
A Seven Day Pilgrimage Through the Big Sur Wilderness
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

The workshop is intended to create an experience which will support and intensify the simplification and cleansing necessary for a greater sense of personal clarity and grace.

We will spend seven days together leading a simple existence, eating sparingly, carrying all our essentials on our backs, traveling together through the back country of Ventana Wilderness.

We will pay attention to and take care of ourselves through a variety of disciplines and forms, including psycho-calisthenics, meditation, gestalt, intuitional sensing, as well as the more traditional wilderness skills. The emphasis will be on creating a richer, more harmonious balance between the mental, physical, and spiritual realms of existence.

Registration for the workshop should be at least two weeks in advance so that proper advance preparations and information can be sent regarding equipment and exercise. $210

PROGRAMS IN BIG SUR

Workshops in the Health and Healing Arts

A three to six month residential combined work-scholar and internship program will commence in May 1976. Present plans are for participants to work three days per week for Esalen, followed by three days per week training in the health and healing arts. Details of program and tuition will be sent on request; address letter to Inner Road to Health Workshop, Esalen, Big Sur, California 93920.

An eight week Inner Road to Health workshop with Dick and Chris Price, Al Drucker, Barbara Braunstein, guest leaders, and Esalen teaching staff will start September 12, 1976. With this workshop, the programs which have been very successful in the past as four or five week programs will go to a longer format and more comprehensive content. Participation is by application; see the description of the March 1976 Inner Road to Health workshop (p 29) for additional details.

FUTURE WORKSHOP ANNOUNCEMENTS

Workshops of more than one week require special planning for participants. Whenever possible we will announce such workshops well in advance. More detailed descriptions—and any changes—will appear in the catalog covering the period in which the workshop is scheduled.

SCHIZOPHRENIA & THE VISIONARY MIND

Coordinated by
Stanislav Grof & Joan Halifax-Grof

A four week, interdisciplinary institute for professionals and graduate students in the fields of psychiatry, psychology, religion, philosophy, and anthropology. Under the direction of Stanislav Grof and Joan Halifax-Grof, Esalen Institute is gathering twenty-five faculty members at Big Sur to offer over 150 curriculum hours of didactic and experiential sessions exploring the relationship between schizophrenia and the visionary experience. The material presented during this institute will be divided into four major thematic groups.

Area 1: Biochemical, Psychological, and Cultural Variables in Schizophrenia

This thematic area will be introduced by a critical review of the existing biochemical hypotheses of schizophrenia. The implications of clinical research with LSD for understanding the schizophrenic process will be discussed with the participants; some of the early results of psychedelic therapy with psychotic patients will be described and illustrated by clinical examples. Investigators who have made original contributions to family research in schizophrenia and psychotherapy with psychotic individuals will share their findings and present views. Special attention will be paid to religious, mystical, and mythological themes occurring in the schizophrenic process and to crosscultural variables in psychosis. Art of psychotic individuals and selected film material will be used to facilitate the understanding of the world of the schizophrenic.

Area 2: Mystical Experience: Spontaneous and Induced

The emphasis in this area will be on visionary experiences occurring spontaneously under certain special circumstances and those induced by ingestion of psychedelic drugs or by nondrug technology. We will explore the therapeutic potential of mystical states and their lasting effect on personality structure, world view, and hierarchy of values of the experiencer. Special emphasis will be put on the experiential territory in which mysticism and schizophrenia seem to overlap and merge.

Area 3: Self-Exploration and Group Process

This area involves exploration of individual and group techniques through which the participants can reach experiential understanding of certain aspects of the psychotic process. The spectrum of experimental approaches will range from gestalt awareness and bioenergetic exercises to shamanic procedures, mandala work, and laboratory techniques for inducing altered states of consciousness. Nondrug technology, including sensory isolation tank, lotus cradle, stroboscopic light, sonic driver, and biofeedback equipment, will be available for supervised use by participants in pursuing their own self-exploration.

Faculty will include:

Gregory Bateson
Joseph Campbell
Al Drucker
Wilson van Dusen, PhD
Erik Erikson
Betty Fuller
Stanislav Grof, MD
Michael Harner, PhD
Richard Horan
Joan Halifax-Grof, PhD
Al Hubbard, PhD

John Lilly, MD
Antoinette Lilly
Peggy Morrison
Claudio Naranjo, MD
Humphrey Osmond, MD
Kenneth Pelletier, PhD
John Perry, MD
Richard Price
Christine Price
William Schutz, PhD
Beverly Silverman
Julian Silverman, PhD

This institute will take place in the Esalen Study Center, an old Big Sur mansion located on cypress covered cliffs overlooking the Pacific Ocean. The learning format will combine didactic seminars, experiential workshops, special lectures, individual help in self-exploration for altering consciousness, and selected film material.

The program is limited to twenty-eight participants selected from applicants. The fee is $1,150 including room and board. Some working scholarships are available to students on the basis of need. Scholarship forms can be obtained from Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.

If you wish to enroll in the program, send a letter containing biographical information and current photograph to Stanislav Grof, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.

MICHAEL TIERRA has lived several years in the mountains of northern California, where he was first introduced to the use of herbs for healing by members of the Karok Indian tribe. Since then he has been a student and protege of Dr Christopher of Utah. He is a practitioner of several of the natural healing arts, including herbs, diet, acupuncture, and iridology. At present he is a disciple of Hari Das Baba. (p 31)

YANNI TOUSSULIS studied counseling psychology at Lone Mountain College, has trained in gestalt counseling with John Enright, and has taught through the Esalen College Program. (p 4)

U

JUDY UNELL, a member of the American Massage and Therapy Association, is one of the West Coast's best known massage therapists and the originator of t'ai chi massage. She was staff massagist for Kairos and has led workshops throughout the U S. Licensed in Los Angeles, she uses neo-Reichian emotional releasing in her teaching and private practice. She has trained and given individual instruction with The Radix Institute. (p 31)

W

JANE WALTER is a certified masseuse in private practice in San Francisco, working on a referral basis from therapists. She trained in massage with Gunver Jackson, Margaret Elke, and Kathy Dickmann (shiatsu), and has been teaching massage for three years. Currently she is training to become a physicul therapist. (p 10)

ARNOLD WEINSTEIN, in addition to playwriting, has functioned as a poet, lyricist, director, and teacher. His first play, The Red Eye of Love, was produced by the Living Theatre in 1961. He wrote the book and lyrics for Metamorphoses. He also translated Mahagony by Brecht-Weill which was done in New York off-Broadway and at the San Francisco opera. He has worked with Mose Allison, Elvin Jones, and John Coltrane. (p 5)

SHARON WHEELER trained in massage at Esalen/Big Sur and in structural integration with Ida Rolf, as well as in structural patterning with Judith Aston. She has led workshops in Esalen massage and has been a practitioner of rolfing and structural patterning in New York and at Esalen/Big Sur. (p 24)

VIRGINIA WINK combines a knowledge of dance therapy and Laban movement analysis with bioenergetics in her work. She was formerly a dance therapist at Manhattan State Hospital in New York, and has taught creative dance classes. Currently she is a bioenergetics therapist in private practice in New York City, where she also conducts classes in movement and exercise at the Institute for Bioenergetic Analysis. (p 5)

FRED WOLF, a physicist, is devising ways to teach the experiences behind the physics theories, even to people who formerly could not "get" physics. Professor Wolf is director of education and communications of the Physics/Consciousness Research Group, and is also professor of physics at San Diego State University. He has recently returned to the U S from the University of Paris where he was a visiting professor. He is co-author of Space, Time and Beyond. (p 21)

Z

JANET ZUCKERMAN, a former New York advertising executive, wife, and mother, came to Esalen in 1971 as a resident fellow. She has trained in group process with Julian and Beverly Silverman, Betty Fuller, Janet Lederman, and Will Schutz. She has been leading groups for four years and sees this work as creating a "safe place" where participants allow themselves to experience change and receive support. (pp 20, 23, 27)

The Ultimate Athlete
by George Leonard
8.95

Yogi Tag??? Infinity Volleyball??? Slaughter??? Gotcha??? These new games, a part of a whole new look in sports and physical education, include the principle of the "energy body" (derived from the Japanese body system of aikido) and are included in a new book by George Leonard. Focusing on expanded human energy and awareness, Leonard explores games and the possibilities of the body transcending itself in reaching for the goal of the spirit. He combines discussion of the mythology, history, and evolution of sports with imaginative and daring speculation into the athletic dimensions of running, flying, diving, and risking. From this emerges the vision of the Ultimate Athlete: one who plays the game of life intensely, aware that the prize is the play itself.

Your Body Speaks Its Mind
The Bio-energetic Way to Greater Emotional and Sexual Satisfaction

by Stanley Keleman
7.95

Your Body Speaks Its Mind is Stanley Keleman's definitive work on how to understand the language and wisdom of the body. According to Keleman, "We do not have bodies, we are bodies . . . your body is not only alive, but formative." Using his experiences of working with people, he shows how they achieve formative experiences which put them in touch with the full range of human emotions. Keleman draws upon his vast training to demonstrate how, after years of denial, you can unlock your body. Through his program for "grounding" and "experiencing," he tries to provide ways to deal with the anxiety and anger confined through years of denial in a tense musculature and to help people free themselves to express the positive and loving feelings previously unavailable.

Transpersonal Psychologies
edited by Charles T Tart
16.50

What happens in religious ecstasy? Is it, as some clinicians claim, only a semi-hysterical fluttering of the pulse, a sudden injection of adrenal fluid into the system? Or is it as the mystic maintains, an inexplicable, ineffable gift? Or . . . ?

In Transpersonal Psychologies, Charles T Tart and nine other contributors begin the quest by translating mystical traditions—spanning the gamut from Zen Buddhism to Sufism to Western magic—into the language of science.

Beginnings Without End
by Sam Keen
5.95

Beginnings Without End is, like the Tibetan Book of the Dead, about death and rebirth, identity crises, and how to begin again. It is a manual of the principles of psycho-alchemy, a guide book for the journey through time.

Song of the Siren
A Parapsychological Odyssey
by Stanley Krippner
12.50

Sacred Tradition and Present Need by Jacob Needleman and Dennis Lewis
10.00

The current spiritual ferment in America epitomizes the yearning of twentieth-century man for catalytic answers to the fundamental questions of existence. The new religions; experiments with meditation and other religious techniques; attempts at self-exploration and human relations through sensory awareness, encounter, and communes have now spread throughout the world. This book is an attempt to turn away from all this ferment. Instead, it raises questions: Has the "spiritual revolution" lost its direction in a profusion of innovations? In our haste to reject outworn religious forms, customs, and ideals, have we overlooked the truths that have guided traditional life and thought since time immemorial? And can the ancient traditions cut through our present confusion and speak anew to Western man's need?

Special Information

THE ESALEN CATALOG is published quarterly. Subscription cost for one year is $2 for the United States, $4 for Canada and Mexico and $12 for all other countries. Those attending Esalen workshops and conferences are automatically added to the mailing list for one year. A single inspection copy of the current issue is available free upon request from the San Francisco office. Do not direct subscription inquiries to Big Sur.

CONTRIBUTIONS to Esalen Institute are tax deductible.

ACCREDITATION and the USE OF ESALEN'S NAME: Some individuals and groups have involved Esalen's name to imply that we have given some sort of accreditation to their activities. We have told everyone to stop using our name in such a manner. Of course people use insights and techniques they bring from our programs, but we confer no certificates, diplomas, or other symbols of formal status such as those conferred by professional associations and schools.

RECORDINGS OF ESALEN PROGRAMS: For a catalog of recordings of Esalen/San Francisco programs and Esalen/Big Sur programs conducted prior to 1973, contact Big Sur Recordings, 2015 Bridgeway, Sausalito, California 94965.

For information on buying audio tapes of more recent programs in Big Sur, contact the Media Center, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920. When writing specify the subject matter or leaders in which you are interested.

Commercial use of Esalen program tapes is prohibited; all rights are reserved.

Big Sur Information

For reservations and information, write or call:
Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.
Phone: (408) 667-2335, 10 to 4 every day;
10 to 8 Sunday & Friday.

In Los Angeles call:
Nancy Lunney
(213) 394-5576
for general information.

Esalen/Big Sur lies 300 miles north of Los Angeles and 175 miles south of San Francisco. It is directly over the shoreline of the Pacific with the Santa Lucia Range rising sharply behind. The property, which has natural hot baths, was once the home of a North American Indian tribe known as Esalen.

We are a 45-mile drive south from Monterey, 11 miles south of Nepenthe, on California Coast Route 1. From the south, we are 50 miles north of San Simeon. A lighted sign on the ocean side of the highway reads: Esalen Institute—By Reservation Only.

Deposit Information: Big Sur programs require an advance deposit of $20 for weekend groups, $70 for five-day groups, $200 for two-week groups, $300 for three-week groups, and $400 for month-long groups. Deposits are not refundable but, with five days' notice, may be transferred to other Esalen programs. Please mail Big Sur reservations to Esalen/Big Sur. Do not mail Big Sur reservations to Esalen/San Francisco. Balance of payment is due on arrival. Esalen accepts Master Charge and American Express. U S currency only, please.

Scholarship Information: If you need scholarship assistance for a long term Esalen/Big Sur program, write for a scholarship application form before making a reservation (allow at least 3 weeks for processing as we have many applications). If your application is approved, please make a reservation as soon as possible after receiving notice. No scholarship assistance is available for June 15–August 31 programs or for weekend programs.

General Information: Workshop fees cover tuition, food, and lodging. Rooms are shared by two or three workshop participants. Camping on the grounds is prohibited.

Weekend programs begin with dinner on Friday and end with lunch on Sunday. Five-day and longer programs begin with dinner on Sunday and end with lunch on Friday. Rooms become available at 5 pm; however, guests are welcome to arrive anytime after lunch.

Esalen/Big Sur has no child care facilities. Please do not plan to bring children. We also ask workshop participants not to have guests. Alas, no pets.

Esalen's flourishing organic garden provides the kitchen with many of its vegetables and herbs. Our breads and pastries are made by Esalen bakers.

Limousine Service: Those traveling by air or bus can obtain limousine service to Esalen/Big Sur by notifying the Big Sur office of time of arrival. Pickups are made at the Monterey Airport and the Greyhound terminal at 5–5:30 pm each Sunday and Friday. The cost is $10 per person one way, payable on arrival at Esalen.

Seminarians as Staff (Karma Yoga): Seminarians in residence for five days or longer at Esalen are asked to contribute several hours per week to work with the staff. Your help enables us to meet the pressures of peak working times and enables you to experience Esalen from the inside out. A staff member will appear at your first workshop meeting to schedule volunteer help.

San Francisco Information

For reservations, literature, tickets, and information, write or call:
Esalen Institute, 1793 Union Street, San Francisco, California 94123.
Phone: (415) 771-1710; 9:30–5:30 Monday through Saturday.

Reservations: Reservations close five days prior to the program, in order to facilitate planning and for the convenience of participants' time plans. A non-refundable deposit must accompany registration as follows: $10 per person for programs costing under $35; $20 for programs costing under $100; $50 for those over $100, unless otherwise noted. Mail reservation form with check to Esalen Institute, 1793 Union Street, San Francisco 94123. Balance is payable at the first session of the program. Do not send San Francisco reservations to Big Sur. Esalen accepts Master Charge and American Express. U S currency only, please.

Information literature and tickets for lectures may be obtained Monday through Saturday 9:30–5:00 pm at 1793 Union Street, San Francisco 94123. Tickets obtained by mail will indicate the exact location and time of events; when not sold out in advance, tickets may be purchased at the door.

Workshop schedules: One day workshops generally meet from 10 am to 6 pm. Saturday and Sunday weekend workshops meet from 10 am to 6 pm each day. Friday through Sunday weekend workshops meet approximately from 8 to 11 pm on Friday, from 10 am through the afternoon and/or evening on Saturday, and from 10 am to early afternoon on Sunday. Schedules are not rigid, however, and exact meeting times are discussed at the first session.

Accommodations: Most San Francisco programs are non-residential. Participants in these programs must reserve their own accommodations at local hotels or motels. Unless stated otherwise, meals are not provided at such workshops.

Location: Participants will be informed of workshop location prior to the workshop date. Esalen uses several facilities in the Bay Area for its programs, including its own building at 1793 Union Street, San Francisco. Call the San Francisco office for advance information on program location.

Recommended dress: Workshops are informal. Slacks and flat shoes are recommended for women, sport clothes for men.

Bookstore: Esalen's Bookshop provides a comprehensive selection of books ranging from general psychology, life sciences, and education to the Eastern philosophies, Jung, and the mystics. It is open Monday through Saturday, 9:30–5:30 pm, and Sundays when workshops are in process (On Sundays call before dropping in).

The theme of this issue is schizophrenia. In a research project designed by Drs. Julian Silverman & Maurice Rappaport, a review of which appears on pages 24–25, the researchers found that conventional anti-psychotic drug therapy may not be the best treatment for schizophrenia. In fact, patients who were treated with a placebo while in the hospital and who were off medications after they left the hospital showed a much lower rehospitalization rate than those who were treated with conventional drugs. The researchers' explanation of these results is that for certain patients the bizarre behavior exhibited by the patient during schizophrenia reflects an attempt at deep personality reorganization and the suppression of these symptoms by anti-psychotic drugs may hinder the ability of the patient to recover. These results and other approaches to treating schizophrenia will be dealt with in the May 2–28 Schizophrenia & the Visionary Mind workshop coordinated by Stanislav Grof (described on page 26.)

April 2-4

Opening the Feelings: A Radix Neo-Reichian Workshop
Lara Amber

Weekend workshop $50

This workshop will explore a direct body approach to deep emotional release, rooted in the work of Wilhelm Reich and his students. Feeling is blocked by the chronic unconscious patterns of muscular tension that Wilhelm Reich called "muscular armor." Utilizing mostly non-verbal techniques, we will concentrate on breaking patterns of breathing and muscular tension so that the life-force (radix) can flow and allow full expression of deep emotion. As the armor softens and the student allows the negative emotions—fear, anger, pain—to emerge, he realizes a new capacity for trust, love and joy. Over time the sexual experience changes in profound and deep experiential ways. Included in the workshop will be both individual and group feeling work as well as exercises from other body-oriented disciplines.

April 3

Conscious Dreaming: Senoi Dream Workshop / Gary Zukav

One-day workshop $25

In this workshop we will enter our dream lives consciously and use them to improve our waking lives. We will take a genuine voyage into our minds using techniques adapted from the Senoi indians of Malaysia. The day will include active sharing of dreams, guided fantasy, artwork, and other Senoi methods.

April 3-4

Friendship and Support Systems
Marsha Angus & Kate Sherman

Weekend workshop $50

We want to reconsider the function of friendship—and to remember how to be close and loving without necessarily being in sexual relationship.

We want to reawaken the many ways of knowing each other. The focus will be on how we select, care for, maintain and deepen our friendships—and how we can create for ourselves support systems beyond our primary or family relationships. This workshop is for men and women.

April 4

Introduction to Small-scale Life Support Systems
Molly Jones, Charles O'Loughlin & the Farallones Institute

One-day workshop $25

We will explore the importance of the biological environment in the health of the individual and the human community at large. Small-scale systems of life support at the Integral Urban House will be discussed and demonstrated. We will focus on practical aspects of time saving food raising techniques for busy people with special emphasis on vegetable gardening and nutrient recycling through aerobic composting.

April 6-May 27

Advanced Massage Seminar / Jane Walter

Tuesday & Thursday evenings, 16 sessions, 7-10pm
$200 per person

This seminar is designed for those interested in exploring and expanding the concept and use of massage. It will bring together specialists in various approaches to massage. Each of the contributors will offer three or four classes in their area of specialization, which will include theory, demonstration, and supervised practice sessions so that the participants will have an experiential appreciation of the material.

Contributors will include the following:

Jane Walter, masseuse, will present her work in the Esalen style of massage. Her work will focus on joint work as well as individualized, intuitive massage.

Jacques de Langre, author of two books on Do-In, will discuss this system of diagnostic and restorative self-massage.

Marion Rosen, a physical therapist with thirty-five years' experience, will describe her work and the use of massage to free the breathing process.

Ray Stubbs, masseur and staff member at Devta, will present his approach to shiatsu.

Randy Reusch, masseur and dulcimer player extraordinair from Canada, will present his work in connective tissue and "point work."

These classes are open to the public. For further information, contact Jane Walter, program coordinator, through the Esalen San Francisco office.

April 7-28

A Mind to Write / Freda Morris

Four Wednesday evenings, 8-10:30 pm $40

Do you have a book in your head? A book half finished? A finished book or article but can't stand the rejection slip blues? Whether you're not yet started writing or are a professional writer, this course will give you methods of solving whatever is standing in your way of writing success. Each person will be taught self-hypnosis and methods for using it to deal with writing problems.

We will use a check list of common writing inhibitors to ferret out each person's problems. Then individualized programs will be worked out, progress checked and modifications made each week.

The instructor is a hypnotherapist, former professor of medical psychology at UCLA and author of the book, Self-Hypnosis in Two Days and numerous magazine and journal articles.

April 10-11

Self Hypnosis: Selective Awareness and Movement
Emmett Miller & Nitza Broide Miller

Weekend workshop $50

Movement requires the use of muscular activity in varying degrees of intensity. So too, thought processes and interpersonal communication proceed through stages of higher and lower energy. Most of our personal and social difficulties (symptoms, unwanted emotions, maladaptive habit patterns) can be eased when we learn to react in accordance with and in response to our internal and external environment.

In this workshop we will learn and apply the principles of self hypnosis and Selective Awareness, as well as those of dance and movement therapy, to expand our self awareness and the ability to adjust our minds and bodies to changing experiences.

April 11 (Palm Sunday) through April 16 (Easter Sunday)

Approaches to Healing and Wholeness

Yes! We are all healers—to the extent that we wish to develop our natural healing abilities. Celebrate Holy Week at the Westerbeke Ranch with a group of healing people who believe that health is a manifestation of the interaction of the body, mind, and spirit.

Explore and develop alternative methods of healing. General healing approaches will be demonstrated and discussed. Resident faculty will lead discussions and experiential sessions in massage, psychic awareness, and theoretical measurement systems for the understanding of the energy bodies of living beings. In addition, visiting leaders will teach the full range of experience necessary for the unfolding and realization of healing potential.

Easter Sunday will be celebrated with a sunrise service incorporating the teachings of the past week with ceremonies lead by participants and faculty.

The fee for the seven days, including psychic diagnosis and practical healing experience, is $300.00. Bring running clothes, bathing suit, flashlight, and a journal.

Resident Faculty:

Anne Armstrong	Patricia Sun
Jim Hickman	Patricia Westerbeke
Gay Luce	Ranch staff
Dr. Lee Sannella,M.D. (resident physician)

Visiting Faculty:

Dr. Stanley Krippner—healing and techniques from around the world

Gabrielle Roth—energy awareness day: a day of movement from without and within

Bob Menzies—healing herbs (an herb walk will introduce the healing herbs of Northern California)

Dyveke Spino & Dr. John Travis,M.D.—High Level Wellness Day; an exploration of the elements of health including physical awareness, nutrition, and the Wellness Inventory

Stanley Keleman—death and dying experience

Limited to 20 participants

April 10-11

Exploring Astrological Archetypes
Jim Shere & Yanni Toussulis

Weekend workshop $50

Using specially prepared horoscopes, we will explore some of the archetypal patterns we have chosen and work to re-own them. The process used will be a uniquely structured guided fantasy employing gestalt, movement, and group interaction. Two weeks' advance registration is required since we will be using your horoscopes in designing the activities. Please submit the following birth data: place of birth; time of day; day, month, and year.

April 12

What is Psychosynthesis? / Ann Russell

Single evening event, $5 general admission

You may have asked "what is psychosynthesis" and "how does it relate to my personal growth, and the growth and development of others around me." This evening will be an opportunity to explore psychosynthesis and the ways in which the psychosynthesis process may be relevant to your life.

Psychosynthesis concepts will be shared and a variety of techniques will be used to give participants a greater awareness of their own inner process.

Esalen, 1793 Union, San Francisco, 8-10:30 pm

April 24-25

Introduction to the Fisher-Hoffman Process
Bob Hoffman & Marion Pastor

Weekend workshop $50

The Fisher-Hoffman Process is an alternative to therapy which results in a level of emotional well-being that is essentially unknown to most of us. It is an intense and directed experience in uncovering, understanding, and growing beyond childhood programming, thus restoring our inherent human capacity to love ourselves and others. The process was psychically received by Bob Hoffman from the late Dr. Siegried Fischer, and he has successfully taught it to hundreds of people. This weekend will be an experiential introduction to this extraordinary process.

April 24-25

Releasing Body Energies: A Gestalt Approach
Sid Gershenson & Carol Robinette

Weekend workshop $50

We will be working on getting out of our heads and into our bodies this weekend. We will use exercises to reveal both how we hold our feelings in our bodies and how we take risks. Our focus will be on the way each of us takes responsibility for exploring ways of being open, caring and sharing in contact with others.

April 25

Knowing & Moving the Body
Frank Ottiwell & Giora Pinkas

One-day workshop $25

This workshop will draw on the work of F M Alexander and Moshe Feldenkrais in mobilizing and re-educating the body/self. Techniques to improve postural alignment and release blocked energy will be taught individually and applied to such everyday activities as sitting, standing, walking, and bending. Group exercises, performed within each individual's range of ease and enjoyment, will be used to increase kinesthetic awareness and to show the use of awareness and movement as self-teacher.

PSYCHOSYNTHESIS
in San Francisco

The following evening events are offered in cooperation with the Psychosynthesis Institute, 576 Everett Street, Palo Alto, California 94301. They are designed as an opportunity for participants to experience a variety of ways in which the principles and techniques of psychosynthesis are valuable for personal and transpersonal growth.

Monday, April 12
What Is Psychosynthesis?

April 29

Take A Walk on the Wild Side: A Journey Through Madness to the Center / William Pennell Rock

Evening workshop, 6-11 pm, $8 general admission

It is generally perceived that we are entering individually and collectively into an age of madness. Chaotic though it may seem our collective and individual selves must enter madness before the true center, the true self may be manifest. And this is what is happening.

The workshop is designed to show experientially the nature of this process. It is highly intensive and strenuous, designed to send you away with your head turned around and your heart in peace.

Participants are advised to have nothing to eat for two hours prior to starting time.

April 30-May 2

Childbirth: New and Ancient Approaches
Patty Westerbeke, coordinator and Alan Margolis M.D., Suzanne Arms, and Carol Hager

Residential weekend at the Westerbeke Ranch $120

This is a professional workshop on pregnancy and childbirth including a symposium and discussion. It is open to doctors, nurses, psychologists, midwifes and others interested in having the newly born welcomed into a nurturing environment. Alan Margolis M.D. OB GYN, University of California Medical School, Suzanne Arms, author of A Season to be Born & Immaculate Deception, Carol Hager, midwife and Patty Westerbeke, coordinator and massage instructor will make up the staff which will explore some new and ancient approaches to the birthing process.

April 30—May 2

Women and Wilderness / China Anne Galland

Women's residential weekend workshop $90

Women have been sorely lacking feminine models of the heroic. This weekend will be an exploration of the heroic in a feminist context; a combination of high-stress outdoors activities with a focus on risk-taking as a means of getting in touch with the heroic in each of us. Outdoor activities may include a night hike, rock-climbing, a rappel, and an aerial obstacle course. The weekend will take place in the Bay area. No previous wilderness experience is neccesary, though a good physical condition is required.

May 1

Developing Chutzpah: Assertiveness Training
Zoe Snyder, Lorie Kranzler Kennedy & Roz Parenti

One-day workshop $30

Assertiveness is the ability to get what you want and make room for yourself in the world. Chutzpah, to us, means taking a risk with flair. We often limit ourselves by holding back from risks and remaining unaware of our potential. This workshop will focus on exploring and developing our strengths and finding the style of expression uniquely suited to each of us. Gestalt, psychodrama, and movement will be used to facilitate more direct communication with others, leading to better contact.

May 1

The Innerspaces of Running: A New Approach to Running
Mike Spino

One-day workshop $25

Focusing on the running experience, this workshop will introduce a holistic method of mind/body development. Each participant will be taught various running gaits and tempos, muscle/skeletal exercises, breathing techniques, and philosophy and lore related to optimum physical fitness. There will be special emphasis on guided fantasy, inner space development, and creativity in quest for extraordinary experiences. Each person will receive an individual consultation and have the opportunity to continue towards personal goals on an ongoing basis.

May 1-2

Synchronicity and Intuition: Images From the I Ching
Dominie Cappadonna

Weekend workshop $50

We will question and observe how to use the I Ching: Book of Changes as an instrument in attuning our intuition. We will learn to see more clearly the archetypal patterns inherent in living with change. Working with the imagery of the I Ching we will explore taking responsibility for our own right action in an active manner. We will seek ways of manifesting the deep intuitive knowing into daily life.

Two showings:
May 7 & May 14

Monster Masque
A Multi Media Presentation

from 8-10 pm

This is an experience in images and ideas, created and presented by Theodore Roszak. Theodore Roszak describes Monster Masque as a "pop myth and mad science show, freely recycled from the ample remnants of Mary Shelley's Frankenstein."

The production features an hour long sound tape of readings, music and effects accompanied by several hundred slides in double screen presentation. The result is a dramatic and visually powerful exploration of the Frankenstein myth which Theodore Roszak has called "the central myth of medern Western culture." His interpretation of the Promethean scientist and the patricidal monster ranges from horror films to high metaphysics, from science fiction to social ethics.

The presentation will be followed by an open dialogue with the author.

Monster Masque will be held at University of San Francisco, Mclaren Complex, Room 250, 2130 Fulton Street, San Francisco. Tickets are available in advance at Esalen Institute, 1793 Union Street, San Francisco, CA 94123, or at the door as space permits. $3.50

Liberation for Men and Women: A Feminist Perspective
Mari Krieger

One-day workshop $25

This will be a workshop dealing with sexism and oppression for both men and women. We will examine ourselves as part of a powerful system and through the use of fantasy, gestalt, and encounter we will learn some techniques to facilitate personal change. Our goal is not to create oppressors out of victims, nor victims out of oppressors, but to illuminate and lift society's barriers so that we may truly be ourselves.

May 4 & 6

Running on the Marina Green / Mike Spino

Tuesday and Thursday evening from 5:30-8:30 $20

This two-part workshop will present the running gaits and tempos and the physical conditioning methods that Mike Spino has developed from the work of Australiam Percy Wells Cerutty, and Hungarian Mihaley Igoli, who between them are responsible for over 40 world records in track and field. The focus will be on striding, muscle/skeletal development, breathing, visualization, and meditation.

Sessions will be held at the Marina Green, and adjacent trails along the San Francisco Bay. Follow up individual running programs will be given to participants. Information on sport medicine, nutrition, creativity and conditioning principles will be stressed. A no-host dinner will follow each class. Participants must sign up for both sessions.

May 7-9

The Environment of Birth: A Workshop for Pregnant Couples / Leni Schwartz

Residential weekend workshop $150 per couple

Childbirth is a process, starting at conception and continuing well beyond delivery, involving mother, father and child in profound psychological and spiritual ways. This weekend will focus experientially on the complex emotions that emerge during pregnancy. For both mother and father it is a stressful time filled with feelings of love and joy as well as anxiety and tension. This important rite of passage offers couples an opportunity during a particularly self-aware and vulnerable time to explore their communication with each other and with the new person they are bringing to life. Designed to provide a creative experience in which the mother and father can be supportive to each other in an interdependent time.

May 8-9

Growth Through Risk-Taking
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

Weekend workshop $50

This workshop provides the opportunity for the group members to come to terms with the definitions by which they live. Through a series of structured risk-taking situations, the use of gestalt, role playing, fantasy, and encounter techniques, the participants can accept or transcend the boundaries from which they approach the world. Emphasis will be placed on the expression of anger, affection, sexuality, and the transcending of roles. This workshop is especially useful for people who have had previous encounter experience.

May 8-9

Gestalt and Personal Journal / George Lane

Weekend workshop $50

During the past few years, I have developed a method for using a specially constructed personal journal as a tool for autonomous growth work and as an adjunct to more conventional gestalt work. In this workshop, I will introduce several effective methods for developing a personal journal, with particular emphasis on making it more than a "mirror" diary. We will also explore ways in which material from the journals can be used as a direct complement to gestalt therapy.

Indian Folk Dance Mask: The Swan

May 9

A Loving, Energy Experience / Patricia Sun

One-day workshop $25

This workshop will give you the opportunity to experience your own energy. Patricia Cassin Sun is a psychic/spiritual teacher who uses her own psychic abilities as a catalyst to facilitate others in actualizing their capabilities. She will deal with sound, movement, breathing, meditation and ways of unblocking our energy. Through validation and psychic processes as well as self-love, self-integration, gentleness and the recognition of our beauty we will create space for another level of experience.

May 10

You Don't Have to Suffer to Feel Good
Harry Sloan

Single evening event $5 general admission

Frequently participants come to workshops believing the only way to get in touch with themselves is through pain, anguish and earth-shaking breakthroughs. Growing becomes humorless and heavy and so does life. Using the framework of psychosynthesis, this evening will tap into the absurdity of conflicts and problems, offering the participants an opportunity to laugh at themselves and the seemingly tragic fates they have chosen.

May 14-16
Bioenergetics Couples Workshop / Sylvia Schmidt & Bernie Liebowitz

Weekend workshop $100 per couple

Couples make contact and sustain it in stylistic, patterned ways that can impede the formative process of each partner and the growth of the relationship. These patterns are written in one's body and in the energy flow within and between. In this workshop couples can explore the biodrama of their shared ways of being in the world: how each reaches out and responds to being reached for, initiates and reacts to the other's initiation, stands one's ground and yields. The workshop is for couples who would like to expand the energetic flow that defines how they make contact with each other.

May 15-16
Introduction to Polarity / Ray Castellino

Weekend workshop $50

Dr. Randolph Stone's system of polarity balance is a science of balancing the life energy of the body. We will explore each aspect of polarity, i.e., exercise, manipulation, food and "good thinking." Emphasis will be on self-care and ways to share polarity with family and friends. Each participant is asked to bring vegetables as a contribution to a large salad we will share for lunch. Herb tea will be provided.

May 20
Reflections on Dreams / Morton Schatzman

Single evening event $5 general admission

Dreams can be used to solve problems and to create songs, poems, dances, or stories. Dreams also can be clairvoyant, telepathic, and precognitive. I shall discuss these subjects and some of their implications. Examples will be drawn from situations both inside and outside psychotherapy.

Spirit Dance / Adele Chu Drummond

ESALEN DANCE SERIES
The Many Faces of Dance

Throughout the ages dance has served many purposes. It is a divine force that can conjure and heal, a cosmic link-up with our dreams and demons. It is also a story teller and a creator of rituals. It is the ultimate celebration of the body, combining grace, stamina, excitement and creativity. And finally, dance is the visualization of both our personality and the collective unconscious.

$5 general admission
$20 series ticket for five dance events

All dance events will be held at First Unitarian Church, Geary and Franklin Streets, San Francisco except Spirit Dance, which will be held at the ocean with exact location to be announced.

May 21-23
Journeying: A Brief Expedition for Fledgling Heroes and Heroines / Sam Keen & Joseph Campbell

Residential weekend workshop $120

Metamorphosis, transformation, psycho-alchemy and the realization of the fullest human potential have all been classically symbolized by the story of the heroes' journey. This playshop will explore stages in the journey, differences between heroes and heroines, and maps for guiding the modern adventurer on the journey to the depths of the soul and beyond.

Provisions: Joseph Campbell, Hero with a Thousand Faces; Sam Keen, Beginnings Without End; Paul Zweig, The Adventurer.

May 22 & 23
Sounding the Inner Depths / Jananne Lovett & Gail Harnett Lane

Weekend workshop $50

A workshop to develop our inner sonar: the sending out of signals in order to get back a reflection which will tell us something about the unknown territory beneath the surface.

*sounding out your body rhythm
*sounding out your body secrets *sounding out your body center
*sounding out your body image *sounding out your body dance

We will experiment with tone, touching, breathing, music, movement and visual imagery in exploring our own personal sonar.

May 22
Woman Power: A Workshop By and For Women
Phyllis Berman, Ricky Jacobs and Mari Krieger

We will work with expressing our personal and collective power as women by defining our own non-oppressive models. We will work on expanding our capacities for feeling and understanding, directing these vital energies within a feminist process. Using gestalt, encounter and fantasy, and body awareness we will identify and respond to our multi-dimensional needs.

May 23
Centering to Energy Awareness to Meditation
Robert Nadeau

One-day workshop $25

Awareness begins with the self. Centering is the doorway to the energy activity of the universe. Energy is the common denominator of the universe and energy awareness is the basis for meditation. This will be a day-long session emphasizing a natural practice pattern for awareness.

PROGRAMS IN SAN FRANCISCO

May 28

The Dream and the Hypnotic Dance / Nitza Broide Miller with Emmett Miller—drums and Fred Sharpe—piano

Single evening event $5 general admission

We will start with loosening and freeing exercises for mind and body and explore means of sharing and expressing emotions through our body's movement. We will experience hypnotic quality of dance and through it enter dreams, memories, moods and let the feedback of Living Music guide us through them. Finally, we will reach deeper, awaken and allow fantasy to emerge and fuse with reality.

First Unitarian Church, Geary and Franklin Streets, San Francisco 8-10:30 pm

May 28-31

Interpersonal Extensions of Meditation Claudio Naranjo

Three day Memorial Day Residential Weekend at the Westerbeke Ranch $175

Interest in psychology has shifted from content to process and state, thus coinciding with traditional ways of meditation aiming at a mastery of mental states. In adapting traditional insights to our predicament, it seems important to translate them into our particular social context and to supplement them with interpersonal practices that can help us to learn to cultivate consciousness in daily life. This workshop will involve the demonstration and practice of some of the traditional forms of meditation and their adaptations to the "I-Thou" situation.

June 4

The Trance Dance / Anna Halprin & The Dancers Workshop

Single evening event $5 general admission

The "Trance Dance" will focus on developing techniques that enable us to experience the journey from the self to the many and back to the self again. We will try to flow with the collective energies and discover where "it" will take us . . . not knowing before it happens. This Trance Dance allows each of us to experience a deep centering and integration of the inner world of experience with the outer world of our universal environment.

First Unitarian Church, Geary and Franklin Streets, San Francisco 8-10:30 pm

June 4-6

Inner & Outer Journeys / Dick Galland

Residential weekend $90

This weekend is an adventure in doing, an exploration of our physical and emotional boundaries and an opportunity to extend our personal limits. We will camp among the redwoods of Marin County for two nights, preparing our own meals and sleeping beneath the stars. During the day we will scale cliffs, swing through trees on ropes, cross imaginary rivers, and perform other feats of daring. At night we may make music, dance, and play. This experience is appropriate to anyone, 18 or older. You needn't be in top physical condition. All equipment is provided. The workshop begins on Friday evening in Marin County. A clothing list and other necessary information will be sent to you upon registration. The workshop is limited to 12 participants.

June 5-6

Woman as Healer / Chellis Glendinning

Weekend workshop $50

Woman was the original healer, the first seeress and dream interpreter, and the creator of ritual and magical incantation. In this workshop we will explore the idea of woman as healer by reaching back to the mythological evidence of matriarchal times. We will attempt to reclaim our own healing potential through body/energy awareness, breath work, use of our hands to release and exchange energy, through dream/mythology creation and expression and through the ritual creation of a healing environment.

The Miracle of Perception: A Weekend of Practice with Charlotte Selver

Weekend workshop $60

June 7

Organic Mind Gardening / Mark Horowitz

Single evening event $5 general admission

The mind is like a garden. Not only can we learn to plant the seeds that we want to grow, but we can also learn to inhibit the growth of weeds. In this evening presentation we will explore mental imagery as an organic method for working on our "mind garden."

1793 Union Street, San Francisco, 8-10:30 pm

June 8 & 10

Running on the Marina Green / Mike Spino

Tuesday and Thursday evening from 5:30-8:30 $20

This two-part workshop will present the running gaits and tempos and the physical conditioning methods that Mike Spino has developed from the work of Australian Percy Wells Cerutty, and Hungarian Mihaley Igoli, who between them are responsible for over 40 world records in track and field. The focus will be on striding, muscle/skeletal development, breathing, visualization, and meditation.

Sessions will be held at the Marina Green, and adjacent trails along the San Francisco Bay. Follow up individual running programs will be given to the participants. Information on sport medicine, nutrition, creativity, and conditioning principles will be stressed. A no-host dinner will follow each class. Participants must sign up for both sessions.

June 11-13

Inner Visions and Explorations with Hypnosis / Lee Pulos

Weekend workshop $50

The theme of this workshop will be both educational and exploratory. Participants will be taught a variety of hypnotic and self-hypnosis techniques that can be used on an ongoing basis after the workshop is over. Each person will esperience hypnosis and the opportunity to hypnotically induce dreams, program for habit changes, and to get in touch with subconscious motivation through automatic writing and ideo-motor questioning. The exploratory aspects will deal with extending our consciousness into paranormal and psychic dimensions.

June 12-13

Tarot, A Mirror of the Self / Hilary Anderson

Weekend workshop $50

This workshop will present the Tarot cards as mirrors of the self. We will review the meanings of the cards and engage several key card layouts to illustrate the variety and beauty of this map of consciousness. Through the use of penetrating questions from the group, the divinations will reveal how Tarot is used as a profound instrument for self integration.

June 18

Black Dance / Xavier Nash

Single evening event $5 general admission

This evening will be a high energy movement experience presenting the latest disco, rock and jazz dances. Everyone is invited.

First Unitarian Church, Geary and Franklin Streets, San Francisco 8-10:30 pm

June 19-20

Stretching Your Limits Through Perceptual Integration Raymond Gottlieb

Weekend workshop $50

Imagine, if you can, what you would be if you could see twice as fast and remember twice as much with half as much effort. We experience life through our patterns of perceiving. Those habits can keep us locked into present perspectives and frozen dreams. Perception is a learned and developing process. It was designed to evolve. The emphasis in the weekend will be to teach concepts, awarenesses, and exercises which can be easily incorporated into daily consciousness. Each participant will have the opportunity to use perceptual integration for his/her own personal programming for habit changing, limit stretching, and for exploring self-potential through visual awareness enhancement and sensory integration. The Bates system of "Perfect Eyesight Without Glasses," "Pepper-Stress Training," modern optometic visual therapy and visualization techniques will be combined according to Dr. Gottlieb's awareness of the art.

The Co-Evolution Quarterly

A Review by Michael Murphy
Janet Lederman and Julian Silverman

I am constantly amazed at this magazine. At first I thought it was an anti-climax to the Whole Earth Catalogue, but each issue has worn my prejudice away until the thing has become one of my chief resources. Howard Odum's analysis of the world energy crisis, Schumacher's Buddhist economics and Gerald O'Neill's space colonies were items it taught me about and now they are important parts of my thinking. Stray lines, odd bits of information and advice, unsettling observations from it keep popping up all over the place, and I have finally concluded that Stewart Brand and his colleagues hold an essential intuition about the way the world is. Stewart has always had one of the finest noses in the world for the trek into terra incognita, and The Co-Evolution Quarterly goes on proving it. Having bought ten subscriptions for family and friends this Christmas, I want to share my enthusiam with you.

The excerpts that follow are from the Fall, 1975 issue. The first is a conversation Stewart had with Gregory Bateson and California's Governor Jerry Brown. The second is an introduction to O'Neill's proposal for a space colony which could be built in fifteen years. (If that sounds crazy, I recommend your reading O'Neill's proposal as it appears in the Quarterly.)

Trail Running & the Archetypes of Sport
Mike Murphy & Mike Spino

One-day workshop $25

Participants will experience some of the most beautiful and dramatic running trails in the Mount Tamalpais area of Marin County and will be introduced to some of the lore of trail running for enjoyment and physical conditioning. This workshop is open to the movice as well as the experienced jogger or runner. There will also be discussions of the psychological, mystical, and archetypal aspects of the sport. Bring picnic lunches—and wear good running shoes!

BROWN–BATESON INTERVIEW

Brown: We're in for some rude awakening, I would say.

Brand: "Rude awakening" means what?

Brown: Well, I think the whole concept of America has been one of expansion, and space and lack of limits, and so now we have to learn to live with limits that are being imposed at a time when everyone is geared up for no limits. So that contradiction expresses itself in a lot of pain and suffering for our whole society.

Brand: For how long, do you think, before the people catch on?

Brown: I don't know. I'm not a prophet, I'm a politician.

Brand: I've heard you say disaster looms.

Brown: I don't really know. The reality that is pressing in seems to be different from the one that people perceive generally, if you look at the expectation of escalated incomes, escalated consumption. Equality, stability, are not close right now. Yet everybody has the sense they are. Oil costs more. If the land has to be regulated in a greater degree, then that's a change. The institutions such as schools, government—and now all these other variations, poverty programs, environmental programs—they are meant to cure whatever the problem is, and they're not making it. So as people lose more confidence in those things, then what? That "then what" is what seems to me to be what's coming around the corner. Maybe clear language allows people to have more confidence, but in addition to clear language you need a vision. You have to have some way to explain the ways of God to man. You have to explain history to those who are living it.

Brand: Is that part of your job?

Brown: I think it's part of it.

Bateson: It's the job of a leader and of an educational system, I presume.

Brown: That's what education is supposed to do. Education's supposed to equip you to survive, isn't that right? But who knows how to fix a furnace, or to make your refrigerator work, or make your car work. A lot of people don't know that, so we're more and more dependent on the specialists. I think that dependency on specialization is certainly a disruptive influence. Even though it provides the affluence that everyone's enjoying, it also makes people less reliant on their own immediate power.

FREE SPACE

Twenty-five pages of this issue are devoted to design details of Space Colony development as worked out by physicist Gerald O'Neill and colleagues. So far no one has successfully challenged the scale, the engineering, the budget, or the schedule of the scheme.

One speculation I would make is to anticipate something like what happened in Europe when America was being colonized. Intellectual ferment. New lands meant new possibilities; new possibilities meant new ideas. If you can try things, you think up things to try.

O'Neill notes that the ends of the enormous rotating cylinders could be mountain ranges, with the interesting property that as you climb higher your weight decreases. Near the top, at .1 g (1/10 of Earth gravity) you can don wings and take flight. Or you may want to take a long slow plunge into a swimming pool. Or watch someone else's slow-motion splash. At the foot of the mountains you might have a round river, allowing you to canoe downstream several miles past the other two "valleys" and back to your home.

In all this there are some important distinctions from the experience of colonizing North America. One is the absence of natives—no conquering, no exploitation, no guilt this time. Warfare in general may be obsolete in Space. There is too vastly much free energy, materials, parking Space, and access—thousands of times what is on Earth—to be worth fighting over any part of it.

The next steps now are mostly political. As Space Colonies becomes a generic subject—something that everyone knows about and has an opinion on, like Civil Rights, Women's Lib, Inflation—then it becomes part of political campaigns. Once a President or a Congress get into office with Space Colonies in their platform, or get the fever while they're in office, only then does the 15-year construction begin.

My own conviction is that both the idea and reality of Space Colonies serve the realization of cultural/biological balance on Earth—exactly as the photographs of Earth from Space served the Ecology Movement. Space is part of the wildness in which lies "the preservation of the world."

*In the process of becoming educated, we learn that it is more important to be involved with outside objects of the world than with our Selves. We become Ego-involved—involved with manipulating things, with experiencing our com-*petence in relation to others; we lose touch with the potence of our Selves.

The rapidly growing interest of the western world in spiritual disciplines of the east and in the so-called "human potential movement" is the result of a yearning for dis-covering the Self. The task for western men and women is to integrate this dis-covering into the center of our technological work-oriented civilization.

So accomplished are we today in a high powered, technologically oriented approach to living that we have literally spaced out. We have moved so far away from our Selves that we are on the verge of meeting our Selves on the other side of the moon.

Instrumentation of Parapsychological Research
James L. Hickman

One-day workshop $25

As research in paranormal aspects of human behavior has become more widespread in institutions throughout the world, technological developments have begun to play an increasingly important role in the investigation of this human potential. In this workshop we will explore a brief history of instrumentation adapted for these investigations, take a look at the machinery currently being used in laboratories around the world, and explore some of the theories being developed which are leading to the design of new circuitry for monitoring possible energetic correlates of paranormal functioning. In addition, some of the devices which allegedly respond to "psychic" energy will be described. Movie films and slides will accompany the lecture. A sampling of new instruments will be available for demonstration and experience by the participants.

June 25

Spirit Dance / Adele Chu Drummond

Single evening event $5 general admission

The dance will conjure and commune with spirits from the earth, the forest and the sea. The setting will be by the sea with drums and other percussion instruments. Bring a candle to light your way. Please register in advance.

Pacific Ocean (location to be announced), 8-10:30 pm

June 26-27

The Samadhi of the Heart: A Workshop for People Who Put Themselves Down / William Pennell Rock

Weekend workshop $50

The negativity of the world is a projection of our own incapacity to affirm ourselves—to accede to the fundamental "yes" that is the universe. The workshop is intended to clear the awareness by which self-affirmation is possible and to inspire the moment of grace by which the negative world is transformed.

June 26-27

Weekend in Shiatsu / June Abe & Jane Walter

Weekend workshop $50

This will be an introductory workshop in shiatsu massage in which the hands and thumbs will be used to apply pressure to acupressure points over the entire body. This process releases tense areas of blocked energy allowing relaxation and renewal.

Future Workshop Announcements

July 5-16

Esalen Sports Center Summer Institute
Program Coordinators: Bob Kriegel & Dick Galland plus special guests

Twelve-day workshop (six days at Dominican College and six days at a secluded base camp in the Sierras)

We have all had an experience sometime in our lives when whatever we were doing became effortless, natural, and perfect. At times like this we let go and yet have no sense of being out of control. This feeling is often refered to as "centering."

Centering enables us to act with total freedom and spontaneity merged with a sense of complete control. The emphasis of this workshop will be on the process of contacting that calm place within, which reflects balance and harmony, and from which we seem to know how to do everything perfectly.

Most instances concerning people being "centered" seem to happen by accident. "It" happened. "It" may have been getting "hot" in a basketball game, skiing the perfect run, or getting that burst of insight when all became clear. Afterwards you spent the rest of the day trying to get "it" back again.

In order to learn centering as an intentional act, we will use exercises from aikido, t'ai chi, energy awareness, yoga, Feldenkrais, sensory awareness and movement, rhythm and balance games, and several visualization and meditation forms.

During the first week, which will be held at Dominican College, we will play traditional sports and games and invent new ones in order to practice centering in action oriented situations.

The second week will be spent at a secluded base camp in the Sierras experimenting with the centering process in a natural environment and participating in stress and risk taking activities. We will backpack, climb rocks, rappell, belay, play incentive games, do a "solo" (time spent alone in the wilderness) and learn to use the energy from fear in a positive way.

One of the main emphases in this workshop will be on transferring the insights gained and lessons learned into our outside lives, both personally and professionally.

If the first week is non-residential total fee is $330.00. If the first week is residential (Dominican College) total fee is $400.00.

For more complete information write or phone the Esalen Sports Center, 1793 Union Street, San Francisco, CA 94123. Telephone: (415) 771-1710.

Inservice credit will be available through Dominican College.

Westerbeke Ranch Workshops

Again this summer, Esalen Institute will present programs at the Westerbeke Ranch in Sonoma County. They will begin on the 11th of July and continue through Labor Day. The intimate setting of the ranch includes rustic cabins, home cooked meals, sauna and Japanese tub, swimming pool and beautiful scenery. Five day and weekend workshops will be offered, limited to 25 participants at a time.

August 7-14, 1976

Encountering in the High Sierra
Maurica Anderson & Barry McWaters

Eight days $215

During this eight-day workshop we will hike into a campsite by a clear mountain lake in the High Sierra (mules will do most of the work carrying the food and camping equipment). We will camp by the lake for six days, eating outrageously good food and working with meditation, psychodrama, gestalt, psychosynthesis and encounter, laughing a lot and getting to know the high country, one another, and ourselves.

Center for Energetic Studies

for the Study of the Life of the Body

The Center for Energetic Studies, under the direction of Stanley Keleman, is a program of teaching, workshops and seminars concerning body process as the basis for how individuals form both themselves and their worlds.

The Center seeks to understand the life of the body. We are evolving ways to help persons gain experience and re-education in basic biological learning. This learning enhances emotional and psychological perception and expression. Individual identity as well as the very power of living lies in the continual forming and reforming of our bodies, and therefore ourselves.

April 10-11

Open Bioenergetic Workshop / Paul Aikin

Weekend workshop in Davis, California $50

Through working individually and in a group with procedures developed at the Center, this workshop will deal with the way we live in our bodies and express our emotions.

April 17

Movement/Dance / Tamara Greenberg

One-day workshop $25

Movement will be used to intensify the experience of ourselves. Through expressive movement we will attempt to follow our process of self-formation—how we are present in the world and how we approach and withdraw from contact.

May 1-2

Couples' Workshop / Paul Aikin & Nancy Jungerman

Weekend workshop in Davis, California $100 per couple

Participants will explore the energetic, bodily experience of the intimate, man-woman relationship. Emphasis will be on process—how we form ourselves and are formed by the relationship.

May 6, 13, 20, 27

Opening/Movement—Dance / Tamara Greenberg

Four Tuesday evenings $30

We will encourage a fuller range of expressive movements—to experience and develop quietness, imagination, emotions, playfullness and excitment. 7:30-10 pm

May 16

The Social Body / Ian Grand

One-day workshop $25

As we involve ourselves in the social world, each of us forms individual ways of making, maintaining and refusing contact and involvement with others. This workshop will focus on the characteristic stances, movements, gestures and feelings we allow and express in the presence of others.

May 22

Music & Movement / Tamara Greenburg & Dorothy Lyons

One-day workshop $25

Using movement together with Orff Instrumentarian, the group will develop new paths of self-expression. We will play with sounds from street games, poetry, the blues and chants to explore improvisation and musical experimentation. These experiences will be related personally and also for use professionally.

Special Summer Institute with Stanley Keleman

July 10-18 in Berkeley, California $400, not including room and board.

This nine-day program will focus on biological learning. Further details are available by writing to the Center.

DEFINITIONS

Of Some Approaches to Human Growth Used in this Catalog

PSYCHOSYNTHESIS

Psychosynthesis is a psychological and educational approach for recognizing and harmonizing the many, often conflicting, elements of our inner lives. It is a developmental process based on a positive conception of man/woman within an evolving universe. Starting with each person's existential situation as he or she perceives it, personal growth is organized into a process aiming at the integration of personality and the emergence of an effective unifying center of being and awareness, the Self. The practical work of psychosynthesis chooses in each situation the appropriate progressive activities among many techniques and methods available. Some of these are: guided imagery, movement, self-identification, creativity, gestalt, meditation, training of the will, symbolic art work, journal keeping, ideal models, and development of intuition. The emphasis is on fostering an ongoing process of growth that can gain momentum and bring about a more joyful, balanced actualization of one's life.

MASSAGE

Massage is a healing art. It is practiced to help the body relax, to release tensions, to balance the energy flow, and to soothe the being with gentle caring. Massages are given individually; workshops, classes, and private lessons are available.

T'AI CHI CHUAN

T'ai Chi Chuan is an ancient Chinese exercise discipline practiced for health, meditation, energy flow, and self-defense. The slow, flowing movements of this "shadow boxing" comprise the oldest and "softest" of the Asian martial arts. Developed from the Chinese practice of nei kung, or inner exercise, it is part of the system of Taoist yoga. The term t'ai chi can be translated as "grand ultimate" and is expressed by the familiar symbol of yang and yin. It is thus rooted in the Chinese philosophy of change as expressed in the I Ching.

SHIATSU MASSAGE

Shiatsu massage is the oriental healing art in which the hands are used to apply pressure to acupuncture points over the entire body, allowing the springs of life to flow.

BIOENERGETIC ANALYSIS

Bioenergetic analysis attempts to understand the life of the body through its expression of vitality, gesture, emotion, feeling, and relationship. The body is viewed as an energetic process that participates as the world in the world of instinctual, social, imaginative, and creative realms. Bioenergetics seeks to develop an individual's range of expression by working through this process.

ENCOUNTER

The ground rules of encounter are that participants be open and honest in a group setting, that they avoid mere theorizing and instead talk about their feelings and perceptions. There is often an emphasis on eliciting emotions which lead to positive or negative confrontations rather than away from them. The focus of encounter is to explore interpersonal relations. Over the past years encounter, as practiced at Esalen, has evolved into a broad approach incorporating several related disciplines to achieve its aims. Techniques and insights gained from gestalt, sensory awareness, bioenergetics, massage, movement, and structural integration are all part of Esalen's encounter groups today.

GESTALT

Gestalt Awareness Training is a theory and approach to personality integration first developed by Fritz and Laura Perls, though new styles and methods are being developed by other leaders. The goal of the training is to assist the participants to utilize excitement and awareness and to develop responsibility. Excitement—to have life energy freely available and flowing, not blocked. Awareness—to be conscious of my energy as and where it flows; to have action accessible to consciousness, not happening mechanically. Responsibility—to know and act on the principle that I am the one who acts, thinks, and feels whatever it may be that I act, think, or feel. No one else or no event influences me except with my consent. At times, everyone in the workshop may work simultaneously with some awareness exercise, or in interaction with each other. More traditionally, a fair amount of time will be spent with participants working individually with the leader. The starting point for such individual work is whatever is here and now of most involving concern for the organism; a fantasy or dream, an interaction with another person, a memory, or a physical posture. "Problems" are welcome as starting points, if they are truly present and not merely verbally presented. In keeping with the gestalt emphasis on personal responsibility, the leader usually leaves the initiative for such work with the participants. The assumption is made that participants are not "patients" but are persons responsible for their own life decisions.

STRUCTURAL INTEGRATION (ROLFING)

Structural Integration or Rolfing is a method of deep manipulation of the musculo-skeletal system that aims at balancing the major segments of the body. We have learned that connective tissue (fascia, tendons, ligaments) can be lengthened by palpation and direct manipulation; this makes it possible to reorganize the basic body lines. A properly organized body will be subject to less stress and will move in a more economical way. Structural Integration has a second principle: posture is behavior. Humans are psychophysical organisms; one cannot divorce their physical from their psychological functions. When you change the structure, you change the function.

PROGRAMS IN BIG SUR

Siberian Shaman Costume

Week of April 4-9

Renascence / Michael Butler

Within each of us is an untapped seed of emotional and spiritual energy that we can learn to discover and nourish. The goal of this workshop is to teach the ability to tune into and develop that seed center of self.

The daily meetings will be an integration of emotional, spiritual, and body work. The interpersonal will be explored through a new kind of positive encounter. Individual work will be gestalt oriented. Emotional work will be grounded in quieting and meditation practices at the Esalen baths. Emphasis throughout will be on means of translating Esalen growth practices into everyday life. $270

Opening the Feelings: A Neo-Reichian Radix Workshop Charles & Erica Kelley & Mark Dunlap

For workshop description see page 30. $300

Exploration & Integration / Arthur & Janica Fox

Come and experience a combination of encounter, gestalt, sensory awareness, and massage surrounded by the richness of Big Sur and the Esalen grounds. Use these experiences to explore more of your awareness and your capacity for openness. We will also explore ways of retaining and integrating our experiences so that we have access to them not just at Esalen, but also when we return home. $270

Weekend of April 9-11

Changing Courses in Midstream / Jack Gaines

The change from what you are doing to what you want to do is not easy for most people—at any age. Many of us talk of changing life styles, getting out of the rat race, no longer willing to look for our identity in an endless string of shiny new possessions. Some of us do. Few among those who do are prepared for the impact of change and / or idleness. This is an exploratory seminar for people who are interested in the development of new attitudes preparatory to changing career and family responsibilities. $110

Exploring Self-Acceptance / David Schiffman

The focus of this workshop is the creation of a more positive and open-ended self concept. Through the use of structured risk-taking situations, gestalt, role-playing, fantasy, and encounter techniques, participants can accept or transcend the self-imposed boundaries from which they approach the world. Emphasis is on searching out unique personality strengths, individual capacities, and latent powers as a means of achieving productive, creative functioning. $110

Weekend of April 9-11 (Continued)

We Are All Dancers / Betty Fuller

A work/play shop for the dancer in every body—even those who hate to move! This synthesis of gestalt awareness training with feldenkrais effortless exercise works on the body/mind to dissolve tensions, holdings, blocks, and barriers to mobilization of energy and full self-expression. Everyone can experience increased energy, vitality and flexibility, improved posture (physical and mental), expanded consciousness, and enhanced self-image. We will explore—experientially—the relatedness of gestalt, rolfing, psychosynthesis, feldenkrais, and est and use before and after photographs. $110

Centering, Self-Awareness, & the Spirit of Play
Bob Kriegel

This workshop will teach centering: the process of finding that calm place within ourselves that is in balance and harmony. Active games of all types—including energy games, street and playground games, theater games, new games, and new approaches to traditional sports —will be used for experiencing "center" and for exploring self-awareness. We will explore how game behavior magnifies our reaction patterns, giving us a clearer, more vivid picture of ourselves. We will also use gestalt, role playing, guided fantasy, and psychosynthesis techniques to bring our new awareness to a more conscious level. $110

Interpersonal Sensing / Simone Surpin

Within each of us is a place where we can receive and give caring and love. The focus of this weekend is to explore how we can reopen our channels to this way of being: how we can nourish and stay alive to our own experiences and feelings, and share them with others. Toward this end our group process will include the practice of listening to the vibrational statements, exchanges, and energy flows in which we are constantly partaking. We will also make use of body work, massage, gentle bioenergetics, and various forms of energy awareness practices. (Limited to 12 participants.) $110

Getting in Touch—Open Gestalt / Frank Rubenfeld

Hot-seat work, massage, and group exercises will serve to facilitate participants in experiencing and expressing the alive parts of themselves. Suitable for those in the helping professions. $270

Group Mind—Bodyfield Energy Ring / Michaeleen Kimmey

We center each body-field in the configuration of a perfect circle. The linking up of each person in this ring provides heat and light sensations. The energy ring provides us with a form to share and express an experience in a nonverbal and noncognitive manner, allowing us to explore and understand our intuitive faculties. This workshop is designed to help those of us in human services to learn more about the vibrational sharing of ourselves in community. $270

We Are All Dancers / Betty Fuller

Gestalt Practice / Richard & Christine Price

Perfect like Great Space
the Way has nothing lacking, nothing in excess.
Truly because of our accepting and rejecting
We have not the suchness of things.
—Sengtsan (3rd Zen Patriarch)

What is, is.
—Fritz Perls

Gestalt practice is a form—nonanalytic, noncoercive, nonjudgmental —evolving out of the work of Fritz Perls, relating that work to ways of personal clearing and development both ancient and modern. To the extent that awareness is made primary relative to action, gestalt practice has a strong relationship to some forms of meditation and visualization. In that emotional and energetic release and rebalancing are allowed and encouraged, the relation to some Reichian work is close.

The emphasis is *intra*personal rather than *inter*personal. Those who primarily wish interpersonal work are advised to attend an encounter rather than a gestalt group.

Participants are explicitly not "patients" but persons consenting actively to work (or play) in awareness. The "leader" functions to reflect, clarify, and flow with whatever emerges in this process. The aim is unfoldment, wholeness, growth rather than "adjustment," "cure," or "accomplishment."

Cooking as a Sensory Feast / Myrtle Ratcliffe

Food preparation can be a special time for the senses when we include music, meditation, movement, and an awareness of our own rituals in cooking. In the Esalen kitchen we will prepare at least one meal together, combining high energy cooking with plenty of time to relax, experience massage, and enjoy the feast. $110

You & Universal Motion / Robert Nadeau

The physical conscious system operates in direct relationship to a larger energy activity or universal motion. It is important to recognize this activity as a "friend" and learn to work in harmony with it. We will explore energy and our "marriage" with it through meditation, centering, and body movement. $110

Introduction to Gestalt Practice / Joan Fiore

After introducing the "language" of gestalt and various gestalt experiments in breath, body, and feeling awareness, this workshop concentrates on providing the opportunity for intensive individual gestalt work in a supportive group setting. Suitable for novices as well as veterans. $110

Week of April 18-23

Massage Intensive / The Esalen Massage Crew

The Esalen massage crew, with its unique variety of approaches and styles, will teach basic techniques for giving and receiving massage, both for immediate relaxation of tension and as a way of caring. Emphasis here is on deepening the quality of touch-communication and heightening awareness of the energy flow between the body in motion and the body at rest.

The group will meet daily at the mineral baths. Limited to 16. $240

Contact and Intimacy / Barbara Clemans & Ken Schrage

In this workshop we will combine our individual dynamics; Barbara emphasizing somatic process; Ken, psychological process in one environment. The focus on the body will be one of ease, using feldenkrais movement, sensing, massage and energy awareness to melt and dissolve impasses within us and between us.

Greater physical spontaneity will heighten our exploration of the interpersonal and intrapersonal psychological process: capacity for contact, withdrawal, receptivity, connectedness, responsiveness and our willingness to feel and express emotions. We will work with both individual and group process. Through this format we will be able to experience the integration of ongoing awareness as a continuum. $270

For workshop description see April 11-16. $270

A Week with Will Schutz / Will Schutz

$300

Opening the Feelings: A Neo Reichian Workshop
Laura Dillon

The aim of this workshop is to help participants free up their capacity to experience and express deep feelings. Emotions are held in the body through muscular tensions which Wilhelm Reich called muscular armoring. Through the use of Radix emotional release techniques developed by Charles Kelley and other body oriented approaches we will work to soften these tensions and release the feelings held there. The group will provide a supportive nurturing atmosphere to enhance the process of emotional release. $270

April 18–25

Rites of Passage: A Seven Day Pilgrimage Through the Big Sur Wilderness
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

The workshop is intended to create an experience which will support and intensify the simplification and cleansing necessary for a greater sense of personal clarity and grace.

We will pay attention to and take care of ourselves through a variety of disciplines and forms, including meditation, gestalt, intuitional sensing, as well as the more traditional wilderness skills. The emphasis will be on creating a richer, more harmonious balance between the mental, physical, and spiritual realms of existence.

Registration for the workshop should be at least two weeks in advance so that proper advance preparations and information can be sent regarding equipment and exercise. $210

A Choice Workshop: The Act of Willing / Lenore Lefer

Many of us tend to make our life choices without full awareness. We sometimes wait, decide impulsively, reactively, hastily, or without purpose. The more conscious we are of the act of choosing, the more we open ourselves to the experience of joy and freedom. Using the framework of psychosynthesis, we will explore how we can choose using our will. The aim is towards learning the process of making conscious choices, thereby taking responsibility for our life's purpose and direction. $110

Embrace Tiger, Retrun to Mountain: The Watercourse Way T'ai Chi
Al Chung-liang Huang

An introduction to t'ai chi and creative Taoist philosophy as explained and exemplified in the book, Tao: The Watercourse Way by the late Alan Watts and Al Chung-liang Huang, and in Huang's book, Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain. The meeting of East and West will be explored in terms of everyday living, of transforming intellectual understanding of the East into action, and of making useful applications to the way of life in the West.

". . . here it will become apparent to many who used to look down upon body as a hindrance or an encumbrance of the spirit, that the body in its very movements can be a deeper revelation of the essence of our being than all our religious and philosophical assumptions. What Al Huang demonstrates and teaches is that the inspired body is a manifestation of universal forces which flow through us, unless we block them by our arbitrary judgments and short-sighted aims and intentions. He teaches us to flow with the Tao and to restore the lost harmony of our lives."

Psychosynthesis: Choosing to Change / Harry Sloan

At the core of the process of change is discovering that something new is trying to emerge and choosing to integrate this new energy into our daily lives. Frequently, in the process there are parts of us that do not nourish change. They are resistant, retarding movement towards what is emerging. This program will combine individual work and discussion of principles and concepts inherent in nourishing the process of change. Personal work will stress learning to allow change by exploring the implications of our choices and how they catalyze or retard the expression of our emerging self. $270

Food for Thought

The following is a review of an article, recently submitted for publication to a scientific journal, entitled "Schizophrenics for Whom Phenothiazines Are Contraindicated or Unnecessary." The article summarizes some of the results of a three year research program with dis-eased psychiatric patients. Designed by Drs Julian Silverman and Maurice Rappaport, the project was carried out on a specially created experimental ward of Agnews State Hospital in San Jose, California.
by: M. Rappaporte, K. Hopkins, K. Hall, T. Belleza, J. Silverman

One hundred twenty-seven young male schizophrenics were examined after the onset of an acute psychotic episode and also for up to three years after discharge from the hospital study. (Female patients were not included in the study; changes in females' sensory functioning are known to occur in different phases of the menstrual cycle. This fact was presumed to make it impossible to differentiate between sensory-physiological changes due to the acute schizophrenic episode and those due to menstrual cycle changes. The results of the neurophysiological research will not be summarized in this review.) Follow-up information was obtained on 108 patients for up to thirty-six months after discharge from the project. Of this number, 55% had been assigned to placebos (unmedicated pills) while in the hospital and 45% to chlorpromazine (thorazine), a popular anti-psychotic medication. Personal interviews were conducted with 80 patients and information on 28 others was obtained either through the mail, telephone, or contact with relatives. The analyses reported here are based on the 80 patients on whom full information is available.

Patients accepted for the project met the following criteria: between 16 and 40 years of age; referred from the community mental health program with a diagnosis of schizophrenia; diagnosed as having an acute schizophrenic reaction at hospital admission on the basis of evaluation with a battery of psychiatric rating scales; having no gross adverse reaction to chlorpromazine; having had no electroshock therapy within six months preceding admission; having no gross organic impairment; no history of epilepsy; no history of drug "abuse" prior to admission; and no (or few) previous hospitalizations.

When a patient was admitted to the experimental ward he was assigned randomly to either of two treatment conditions—a chlorpromazine treatment group or a placebo treatment group. Ward personnel, psychiatric raters, and all but one of the research personnel were not told to which treatment condition patients were assigned. Periodically staff were asked to judge which patients were on chlorpromazine. Consistently, 40 to 50 percent of the time wrong judgments were tallied, indicating that staff personnel were ignorant as to patients' actual drug status.

On the first or second day after admission to the project, two trained research personnel interviewed each patient and completed a battery of psychiatric ratings including the Brief Psychiatric Rating Scale and the Global Assessment Rating Scale. Ratings on these scales were repeated at the time of each patient's discharge. Two principal measures were used. A Severity of Illness score was derived which was a composite of the above mentioned ratings. A Clinical Change Index was derived; it represented the direction of change (improvement or worsening of symptoms) from hospitalization to discharge and from discharge to follow-up. A third measure, Overall Functional Disturbance, also was utilized.

All patients took nine tablets a day (three, three times a day). Those assigned to the chlorpromazine condition received a minimum of 300 milligrams a day. The physician could order up to 900 milligrams of chlorpromazine a day. However, he was never told by the research assistant in charge whether the patient actually received medication or placebos.

Follow-up ratings were obtained, wherever possible, at 1, 3, 6, 12, 18, 24, 30, and 36 months after discharge from the hospital project.

Nurses, attendants, and doctors on the experimental ward were specially selected. Of primary concern was their willingness to work closely and continually with even very dis-eased patients and to accept as much as possible (rather than avoid) their own fears and fantasies about madness. Ongoing intensive group-work sessions for staff focused on awareness of their own feelings and openness to the feelings of others.

Findings:

Clinical Change, Severity of Illness (SI), and Overall Functional Disturbance (OFD) scores were compared for the medicated and unmedicated groups; comparisons were made at admission, discharge, and at last follow-up.

Getting Out of Your Trap / Neil Lamper

"Gestalt is a way of life more than a form a therapy. Participants in this workshop can expect to experience their here-and-now and discuss their what-and-how. I am interested in people learning how to use their what—at work, play, in families, couples and as singles. At times our entire group will be active and at times one person will wrestle with the impasse. I cannot force, will not coerce and have no neat package of salvation. People maintain their own momentum, work in their own way. I invite people to this workshop who want to experience Esalen and themselves anew and who expect to express this in their lives." $270

Growth Through Risk-Taking / David Schiffman

This workshop provides the opportunity for the group members to come to terms with the definitions by which they live. Through a series of structured risk-taking situations, the use of gestalt, role playing, fantasy, and encounter techniques, the participants can accept or transcend the boundaries from which they approach the world. $110

Mind as Healer, Mind as Slayer / Kenneth Pelletier

This weekend explores the neurophysiology of stress and human consciousness; the interaction between states of mind and physical health or illness; psychological factors in cancer and hypertension; and applications of biofeedback and meditation in self healing. Participants will engage in meditative practices, visualization techniques, and use biofeedback instruments with emphasis on health maintenance. $110

The Body and the Energy Body / George Leonard & Wendy Palmer

Every human body has capabilities generally unknown in the present culture. Through simple body/mind/spirit exercises based on the concept of the human biofield or "energy body," participants will be introduced to some of these capabilities. They will practice centering, heightened awareness and blending (as in the Oriental art of aikido), and will thus learn alternative ways of dealing with everyday life situations—especially those involving tension and expectations. These experiences will be related to education, sports, healing and social transformation. $110

On the Clinical Change Index, significant differences, admission to discharge, were found between placebo and chlorpromazine-drugged patients. Chlorpromazine-drugged patients tended to show greater clinical changes than placebo patients while in the hospital. Thus medicated patients showed a faster and greater symptom reduction than unmedicated patients. On the Severity of Illness and Functional Disturbance scales, no significant differences were found between the medicated and unmedicated groups, at admission or at discharge. However, at follow-up, Severity of Illness scores were significantly less for placebo patients who continued off medication than for other patients. In other words, patients given placebos who stayed off medication outside of the hospital were less dis-eased at follow-up than patients given chlorpromazine while in the hospital, regardless of whether or not the hospital medicated patients continued using medication outside of the hospital. Further, greater Functional Disturbance at follow-up tended to be found among chlorpromazine-drugged patients; Functional Disturbance was less in the placebo patients than in the medicated patients. Finally, it was found that overall, significantly fewer patients were rehospitalized who had been assigned to placebos (Table 1). This was clearly apparent among patients on placebo during the project who had not used medication in the follow-up period (Table 2).

Table 1:

Number of Patients Rehospitalized in Terms of Their Initial Hospital Medication Condition *

		Rehospitalized	Not Rehospitalized
Random Drug Assignment While Hospitalized	Placebo	12	30
	Chlorpromazine	24	15

* Information for this analysis was available on 81 patients rather than 80.

Table 2:

Rehospitalizations in Relation to Hospital and Follow-up Medication Conditions

Medication Group In Hospital	Medication Group At Follow-up	Number of Patients	Percent Rehospitalized
Placebo	Off Medication	24	8%
Chlorpromazine	On Medication	22	73%
Placebo	On Medication	17	53%
Chlorpromazine	Off Medication	17	47%

Conclusions:

In most research with acutely dis-eased patients, the foremost criterion for evaluating them favorably is still the reduction of overt and agitated psychotic behavior. The study reviewed here suggests that this criterion may, at least in certain instances, be an erroneous and unfortunate one. A significant lessening of psychotic symptoms during hospitalization, associated with phenothiazine treatment, is not related to long-term positive re-organization. Indeed it is suggested that certain acute patients, evidencing bizarre and regressive behaviors, will get better and stay better if their dis-ease is not interrupted with anti-psychotic chemotherapy.

Perhaps part of the reason why a significant number of placebo patients showed long-term improvements was the ward milieu that was established during the three-year period and the staff who worked on through the project. It was already known from earlier research that patients with a positive, "integrating" attitude to their dis-ease had higher levels of post-hospital adjustment several years later than those with an "isolating" (rejecting) attitude toward it. In the Agnews project, this knowledge was translated into a staff attitude and a way-of-being-in-relationship which was different from many conventional hospital settings. In effect, a "space" was evolved (in a hospital setting) in which patients were given room to express their energies in relative safety; this increased the probability for these dis-eased people to rebalance themselves.

Program for the Study of Culture and Consciousness

May 2-28, 1976

SCHIZOPHRENIA & THE VISIONARY MIND

Coordinated by Stanislav Grof

A four week, interdisciplinary institute for professionals and graduate students in the fields of psychiatry, psychology, religion, philosophy, and anthropology. Under the direction of Stanislav Grof and Joan Halifax-Grof, Esalen Institute is gathering twenty-five faculty members at Big Sur to offer over 150 curriculum hours of didactic and experiential sessions exploring the relationship between schizophrenia and the visionary experience. The material presented during this institute will be divided into four major thematic groups.

Area 1: Biochemical, Psychological, and Cultural Variables in Schizophrenia

This thematic area will be introduced by a critical review of the existing biochemical hypotheses of schizophrenia. The implications of clinical research with LSD for understanding the schizophrenic process will be discussed with the participants; some of the early results of psychedelic therapy with psychotic patients will be described and illustrated by clinical examples. Investigators who have made original contributions to family research in schizophrenia and psychotherapy with psychotic individuals will share their findings and present views. Special attention will be paid to religious, mystical, and mythological themes occurring in the schizophrenic process and to crosscultural variables in psychosis. Art of psychotic individuals and selected film material will be used to facilitate the understanding of the world of the schizophrenic.

Area 2: Mystical Experience: Spontaneous and Induced

The emphasis in this area will be on visionary experiences occurring spontaneously under certain special circumstances and those induced by ingestion of psychedelic drugs or by nondrug technology. We will explore the therapeutic potential of mystical states and their lasting effect on personality structure, world view, and hierarchy of values of the experiencer. Special emphasis will be put on the experiential territory in which mysticism and schizophrenia seem to overlap and merge.

Area 3: Self-Exploration and Group Process

This area involves exploration of individual and group techniques through which the participants can reach experiential understanding of certain aspects of the psychotic process. The spectrum of experimental approaches will range from gestalt awareness and bioenergetic exercises to shamanic procedures, mandala work, and laboratory techniques for inducing altered states of consciousness. Nondrug technology, including sensory isolation tank, lotus cradle, stroboscopic light, sonic driver, and biofeedback equipment, will be available for supervised use by participants in pursuing their own self-exploration.

Weekend of May 7-9

The Coming of Age / Ken Dychtwald, Gay Luce & Wordon MacDonald

The possibilities of improved health, awareness, and heightened bodymind flexibility are not limited to people under fifty years of age. In fact, it is becoming clear that many of the so-called "older" generation are as responsive to new experiences and self-development as their children.

With the help of a variety of bodymind awareness exercises, relaxation training, shared discussions, and gestalt work we will work toward a state of increased bodymind vitality. We will focus on the later years as being a special time for growth, self-development, and spiritual blossoming.

This workshop is an extension of the SAGE PROJECT, a growth center for older adults in Berkeley. $110

Steps to an Ecology of Mind / Gregory Bateson

In the last twenty years, the theoretical advances in cybernetics and advances in the study of personal interaction have led to new ways of looking at the living world, including everything from biology to poetry and politics. The workshop will explore these ways of perceiving and thinking. $110

Centering to Energy Awareness to Meditation Robert Nadeau

Awareness begins with the self. Centering is the doorway to the energy activity of the universe. Energy is the common denominator of the universe and energy awareness is the basis for meditation. This workshop will emphasize a natural practice pattern for awareness. $110

Chinese Ways of Health & Growth / Gia-Fu Feng & Shih-chang Wang

This workshop will include an intensive teaching of Tai-chi-chuan as taught by the late Chen Man-ching. Included in the workshop will be an introduction to acupuncture, the practice of acupressure, I Ching, imagery, circulation of Chi (life energy), the Secret of the Golden Flower, and deep relaxation. $270

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

Coordinated by Janet Zuckerman

These workshops are designed for people who have not previously been to Esalen / Big Sur. The emphasis is on finding those approaches to self-awareness that work most effectively for the individual participant. Some of the following experiences are available at each Experiencing Esalen workshop: sensory awareness, gestalt awareness training, encounter, theatre games, guided fantasy, meditation, bioenergetics, massage. There is time to experience and explore the natural magnificence of the Big Sur coast.

Suggested reading: Gestalt Therapy Verbatim (Perls) and The New Education (Kelley).

On Dreams / Morton Schatzman

What if you slept, and what if in your sleep you dreamed, and what if in your dream you went to heaven and there plucked a strange and beautiful flower, and what if when you awoke you had the flower in your hand? Ah, what then?

—Samuel Taylor Coleridge

Many persons have awakened from dreams with the flower in their hands. The flowe has been a song, a poem, a solution to a problem, a new outlook or insight or some other dream gift.

In this group we will consider our dreams as chances to "wake up." We will discuss lucid dreams, how to direct dreams and how to use dreams creatively. $110

Inner Visions and Explorations with Hypnosis / Lee Pulos

The theme of this workshop will be both educational and exploratory. Participants will be taught a variety of hypnotic and self-hypnosis techniques that can be used on an ongoing basis after the workshop is over. Each person will experience hypnosis and the opportunity to hypnotically induce dreams, program for habit changes, and to get in touch with subconscious motivation through automatic writing and ideo-motor questioning. The exploratory aspects will deal with extending our consciousness into paranormal and psychic dimensions. An added emphasis will be to teach participants hypnotic-visualization techniques for self-management. $110

Initiations: The Psychology of Symbolic Forms Joseph Campbell

This will be a weekend of slide-illustrated lectures and discussions dealing with the relationship of the symbolic forms of myth, dream, and creative art to archetypal psychological structures. Illustrations will be drawn from Oriental and Occidental religious art, as well as from the fantasies of psychological patients and modern creative artists. $110

Yogi Boogie Re-Union (the union of music and health) Coordinated by Myrtle Ratcliffe

We will celebrate springtime with music making, dancing, massage, exercise, gardening, cooking and being in union with each other, the earth and the coastlands of Big Sur.

Various staff members and Big Sur residents with special talents will join together so that a variety of workshop sessions will be available, including belly dancing, jogging, astrology, feldenkrais, hatha yoga, drumming. All leaders fees will be donated to the Esalen Music Room Fund. $270

Dolphins and Humans: Your Beliefs About Each John & Antoniette Lilly

Currently, John Lilly and his wife, Toni, are involved in starting a new series of pursuits. Their Human/Dolphin Foundation is devoted to research leading to communication with dolphins/whales, encouraging research and education leading to establishing the individual rights of dolphins and whales under human law (national, international, and supra-national). The "freedom of the seas" is currently a legal concept only for human nations. Enslavement as human property of human individuals has been abolished. The intelligent non-human species of this planet should enjoy the same privileges.

In this workshop, we intend to present the known attributes of these species and present information which can lead to the expansion of conscious awareness and interest beyond man's narcissistic concerns with his own species. Because of man's destructive capabilities there soon may be no one else left to communicate with. Communication with dolphins may lead to whole new areas of human thought, activity, and feeling. $270

Re-Owning Your Power: Renewal and Personal Awakening Through the Physical Experience / Dyveke Spino

As cycles of change press upon us, we need tools to develop our inner power of endurance, flexibility, and sense of self-transcendence. This workshop will reawaken your natural physical spirit through five areas of conditioning of mind/body/spirit. Daily activities will be appropriate for people at all levels of fitness, blended with meditations and massage at the Esalen baths.

Each person will receive a personalized training consultation to allow continuing use of these techniques upon leaving. $110

Knock, Knock Who's There? / Betty Fuller

Who? What? Why? When? Where? Am I? How do I know? What's it all about? In this gestalt-encounter based weekend we'll shake out the kinks and explore these riddles in present time—here/now—using theater-games, psychosynthesis, feldenkrais and Trager mentastics, meditation, music and dance among other ways to be and let be as we recover, explore, and celebrate our selves. $110

The Care and Nurture of Body, Mind and Soul
Dorothy & Claude Nolte

The prime focus of this workshop will be the alignment of our physical, mental, emotional and vital bodies through direct contact with the self. The "power of pretend," will be used to open the inner levels of the self and movement patterns and exercise forms from structural awareness will be used to make it all work in our life field. The goal is to move into our everyday world as a lighter, brighter being. $270

Weekend of May 28-30

Unblocking through Body Energetics / Hector Prestera

This workshop is for working through body armor to our spiritual center using techniques from Neo-Reichian, gestalt, encounter, color therapy, and group energy transfer. $110

On Liberation: A Gestalt Way / Michael Tophoff

Liberation means cutting the chains with which we keep ourselves in prison. Awareness of how we let ourselves be repressed—in personal, social and political ways—is a first step of cutting the ties, and can lead to a clear view of ourselves within our day to day situation, as people who are willing to take a stand. In this intensive workshop we will integrate humanistic and eastern ways of growth and personal learning, where the path towards our inner selves blends with the road towards the reality outside us, releasing excitement, vitality, and action. $110

The Visual Revolution: Photography, Light and Other Mysteries / Lou Stoumen

This seminar will be an exploration in depth of modern visual media and their effects on the evolution of consciousness, including photography, motion pictures, television, the photographic book and their experience in counterpoint to words, sound effects and music. There will be screening and discussion of several of Lou Stoumen's films, and a reading and visual presentation of his new book Can't Argue With Sunrise / A Paper Movie. Participants are invited to bring along their own photographs, poetry, short films and photo book projects for open critique. $110

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 27. $100

Shamanic Healing / Michael Harner

This workshop is an experiential exploration of the spiritual methods used by shamans or medicine men in primitive cultures to heal the sick, the weak and the dispirited. Developed over many thousands of years, and almost destroyed by western "civilization," the ancient knowledge is surprisingly relevant to our own lives and sense of well-being.

Participants in this workshop will learn the basic approaches utilized by North and South American Indian men of knowledge, including techniques for the restoration of spiritual power and energy, and for the removal of harmful "non-ordinary" intrusions. $110

Week of May 30- June 4

Selective Awareness, Self-Hypnosis & Movement
Emmett & Nitza Miller

To us, therapy is a means for capturing the spirit and momentum of enjoyable experiences in the past and projecting them into the future. Further, it allows us to trace maladaptive patterns—symptoms, habits, emotions, and blocks—to their source, as far back as infancy or further, and extinguish them.

Participants will learn to enter and use the hypnotic state for relaxation, imagery, and age regression. Movement will be used to help intensify emotional experiences, to transmit desirable self-concepts to the body, and to develop means of truly enjoying the body. Of special interest will be multiple experiences of going from a desirable mental image in hypnosis directly into a full movement experience, without pausing at the "waking" level. $270

Change: The Dynamic of Being Who You Are
Gabrielle Roth

In everything is the seed of its apparent opposite. In stillness there is motion; in man there is woman. Balance comes when we experience, express and embrace our total BEING. From the center of our bodies we will develop our willingness to be present for ourselves and others in a way that is a spontaneous and free flowing expression of our uniqueness. Rooted in our own experience we will explore balance and change in our relationships. $270

Put Your Memories, Fantasies & Dreams to Work For You: A Reichian/Gestalt Approach to Energy Release
Joan Fiore

"To understand is to tremble. To recollect is to reenter and be riven."

—Harold Brodkey

This workshop focuses on releasing the energy locked in our memories, fantasies and dreams so that this energy can be made available for present relationships and life situations in a way that makes our existence in the present less encumbered by unfinished business of the past as well as self-programmed, self-fulfilling prophecies of doom for the future. First priority is on intensive intrapersonal work in a supportive group setting. There will also be opportunities to explore the nature of our interpersonal relating through group interactions. $270

For workshop description see April 18-23. $270

Weekend of June 4-6

Exploring Self-Acceptance / David Schiffman

For workshop description see April 9-11. $120

Self and Beyond / John Zeigler

This workshop is designed to help you shrink some of life's absurdities to a manageable size, get what you want in your relationships and work and become your kind of person—not the person others want you to be. It applies the discoveries of the personal growth approaches (gestalt, psychosynthesis, fantasy, bioenergetics and psychodrama) to problem solving, communication and contact, life planning and career changing. The leader will act primarily as a guide and reflector in an environment that is positive, warm and supportive. This workshop assumes that personal freedom begins with accepting responsibility for your own attitudes, feelings and actions; that you cannot control others but you can control the way you choose to deal with them. $120

Opening the Feelings: A Radix Neo-Reichian Workshop
Elaine Warburton, Renan Sercarz, Greg Barnum

For workshop description see box on this page. $120

Open Psychodrama Encounter / Walt & Maurica Anderson

This workshop is a flexible weekend's work and play using a variety of encounter, gestalt, and body-movement approaches, with emphasis on psychodrama—the enactment of improvised life scenes as a way of expressing feelings, gaining insight, working through interpersonal conflicts, developing more openness and spontaneity, and having fun. The degree of active involvement is up to the individual. $120

Week of June 6-11

Exploring Self-Acceptance / David Schiffman

Centering and Self-Expression / Betty Fuller & Milton Trager

This is a work/play shop for the dancer in every body—even those who hate to move! This synthesis of body movement methods, including psychophysical integration and mentastics (the innovation of Dr. Milton Trager) works on the body/mind to dissolve blocks that immobilize energy and full self-expression. Through feldenkrais "effortless exercise," gestalt awareness and Trager mentastics, participants may experience increased energy and flexibility, improved posture and alignment (physical and mental) and enhanced self image. Dr Trager will be available to work with individuals as well as with the group. $320

The Miracle of Perception
A Weekend of Practice with Charlotte Selver

We usually associate perception only with what we see. However, the organism is marvellously provided with organs of perception and the sensory nervous system which can come into play both in quiet and in action. Awakening these rich sources brings about a much wider spectrum upon which we can build our life and our connection with all that happens within and around us. $120

Opening the Feelings

RADIX NEO-REICHIAN WORKSHOPS
(formerly Interscience Workshops)

To grow in the capacity to experience and express deep feeling, to connect up with oneself, and to contact others is the aim of this series of workshops which employ neo-Reichian techniques of emotional release. The Radix Intensive, a period of individual work within a small group setting, is practiced by Charles and Erica Kelley and their staff at the Radix Work Shop. The Intensive, like other neo-Reichian techniques used in these workshops, grew from the discovery by Charles Kelley's teacher, Wilhelm Reich, of the way in which feeling is rooted in the flow of energy in the body, and is blocked by chronic muscular contractions which Reich called the muscular armor. Freeing the armor enables the student to open feeling that is buried and to soften and free feeling that is too strong and has been held in for fear of explosion.

In these workshops armor is softened by simultaneous work on the character and body, using techniques not only from Reich, but also from bioenergetics, sensory awareness, and other body-oriented approaches. Groups will be kept small—never more than eight per leader—so that significant individual attention can be given. Grief or pain, fear, and rage that have been held in since childhood emerge in these workshops. As the participant accepts and works through these negative feelings, he/she discovers a new capacity for pleasure, trust, and love. In time the sexual experience changes profoundly as tender and sexual feelings for the mate intensify and merge.

Leadership Training / Will Schutz

This workshop is for experienced group leaders. Each will get a chance to lead under supervision and to explore self in relation to leading. There will be demonstrations of several techniques and discussions of theory. $320

Touching Energy Bliss Awareness / Bernie Gunther

Feeling good is being unattached to feeling bad or good. Being identified with your center, with a disidentified perspective, you can listen to the messages of your world organism and choose the direction you want your thoughts/feelings/relationships to go. In this workshop we will explore joy/us ways to grow whole in freedom, love, understanding and control through play/full energy, flow, centering, awareness, touching, breathing, moving, color, sound, and visual meditation flow. Special emphasis will be placed on working with the seven etheric energy centers (chakras) and learning how they can constantly cleanse, balance, elate, relax and regulate your bliss being. $290

Yoga, Meditation, Movement, Massage
Deborah Sulochana Medow

Through the regular practice of healing asanas and integrative movement, hatha yoga seeks to develop and maintain awareness of self. Meditation, a vehicle for inwardly focusing this awareness, quiets the mind and allows the spirit to grow and flower. The outward expression of this self awareness is movement: how we move in this world reflects who we are and how we feel about ourselves. Free form movement becomes a way to explore and creatively expand our ways of being. Massage, a means by which aware individuals can share with each other, serves both to heal and help people more fully experience each other. In this workshop, we will use yoga, meditation, movement, and massage to explore and expand our ways of feeling and seeing, relating and being. This workshop is for people with some experience with hatha yoga. $290

Weekend of June 18-20

On Friendship / Ed Maupin & Bill Stuart

Based on the leaders' experience with friendship, this workshop will focus on all aspects of friendship including the fears and assumptions which do not allow deep friendship to develop, techniques for moving into total intimacy with a friend without resorting to sex, and methods for directing the friendship towards creativity rather than complications. $120

Energy and Wholearity / Bernard Gunther

Come and experience a weekend to be/with you/me/poetry/the sun/the sky/the sea/the baths/songs/chants touch the energy body/in playfull/joy/us/bliss/we/inner outer harmony. $120

Intimacy and Independence—A Workshop for Couples
Bob & Margaret Blood

The focus of the workshop will be on interaction between partners, facilitated by the support of the group. Each couple will choose those aspects of their relationship on which they wish to work.

Much of the weekend will be devoted to the development of communication skills to enable us to work through problems in our relationships—skills in self-expression, listening, negotiating, achieving consensus, etc. Non-verbal activities will include "sculpturing" the relationship, moving together expressively, and massage. Through these activities, each couple may acquire a deeper understanding of their relationship and of new potentials for enriching it. The workshop will be limited to eight couples. $120 per person

The physical conscious system operates in direct relationship to a larger energy activity or universal motion. It is important to recognize this activity as a "friend" and learn to work in harmony with it. We will explore energy and our "marriage" with it through meditation, centering, and body movement. $290

Gestalt Practice / Richard & Christine Price

For workshop description see April 11-16. $290

Weekend of June 25-27

Run-In / Mike Spino & Andrea Giacomini

We've designed this workshop to explore our inner process in relation to the physical potentials of running. Using guided fantasy and visualization, art work, zen walking, and training models based on various running gaits and tempos we will explore our psycho-physical capacities. Resource material will include the film of the Esalen/International Track Association conference in which professional track athletes experiment with Esalen techniques. This workshop is for people of all levels of health, fitness and awareness. $120

The Feldenkrais Method: A Psychophysical Education Through Body Movements
Judith Stransky

Dr Moshe Feldenkrais has originated and developed a method of re-educating the total being and tapping our unused potential through the means of body exercises and movements. This leads to an expansion of awareness, and to a greater range of experience. The exercises involve integration of the physical and the mental, release of fixed habits that restrict us, differentiation of parts of the body, relaxation and balance, improvement in alignment, and suppleness. The approach is through pleasure, not strain, combined with breathing techniques. $120

Ways of Being at Esalen

Inner Road to Health Workshop— Natural Healing & Self-Healing

A two month pilot program will commence on May 1, 1976 for 8 to 10 participants, giving apprenticeship training in some of the health and healing arts taught at Esalen. Training will be in gestalt practice, massage, deep tissue restructuring, acupuncture theory, herbal and homeopathic systems, and nutrition. There will also be a daily spiritual practice of devotional chanting and meditation. Tai chi, hatha yoga, and other physical practices may be given depending on interest. The program includes a 12 hour weekly work commitment. Faculty will include Al Drucker, Dick and Chris Price, Marcy Goldstein, Beverly Silverman, Michael Tierra. Total tuition cost is $800. Room and meals range from $350 to $550 per month, depending on type of accommodation desired (at South Coast Center). Attendance in the program is by application. A previous qualifying experience, such as the 4 or 5 week Inner Road to Health Workshop, is required. Please write to Chris Price, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

South Coast Center

The living center is slowly evolving into a participatory environment

vital
changing
designing, redesigning inner and outer space with residents responsible for their own evolution.

The South Coast Center, located a mile and a half north of Esalen, is a living center for people who would like to be in contact with Esalen and its facilities but who are not interested in an intensive workshop program. Studios (room, balcony, and bath) are available for $350 per month. A monthly meal ticket may be purchased at Esalen for $200 and residents may set up light cooking facilities in their rooms for preparing their own meals. As part of our program of integrating residents into the working community, South Coast residents are asked to contribute eight hours per week of work to the community. In addition, due to the large number of people who want to be at South Coast, we have put a term of three months on all South Coast residencies. South Coast studios may be reserved through the Esalen/Big Sur office.

Work-Study Program

A residential program within the working context of the Esalen Community.

The focus: Time, space and energy
Perception/Reception
Sense (and non-sense) awareness
The self as a sensory system
Relatedness (relativity)
Contact and communication
Exploring language

Group sessions with Janet Lederman, Christine Price, Richard Price, Beverly Silverman, Julian Silverman and Janet Zuckerman will be held using the working program as a launching pad to "un-cover your self."

Participants work 32 hours per week at such jobs as gardening, maintenance, office, kitchen duties, etc. Scheduling consideration is given to the community labor needs and work assignments are made according to these requirements.

Housing is at the South Coast Living Center, one and a half miles north of the Hot Springs property, with shared accommodations of up to three persons to a room. The program lasts 28 days beginning on a Sunday: four weeks and four weekends at a basic cost of $300. A new program begins every four weeks.

If interested, please apply as early as possible to Elaine Simon; only a limited number of applicants are accepted.

Professional services such as massage, Rolfing and acupuncture are available at staff rates. Arrangements can be made through the office.

For more information on the underlying philosophy of the Work-Study Program, see the statement by Janet Lederman and Julian Silverman on page 13.

Ongoing Residential Program

Offered from September through May, the Ongoing Residential Program is designed for those who would like to have time and space in the Esalen environment for an intensive workshop program over a long term. A minimum stay: 26 days (or four "weeks" and three weekends).

Participants may select any of the five-day workshops offered during their stay. Weekend workshops are available at special prices. Some programs are cancelled, so second choices are advised. Some special staff programs will also be open to residents. Cost: $960 per 26-day period.

Tuning In / Janet Zuckerman

Many of us are operating as tape recorders. We switch on in the morning at "high" or "low" speed and play our tapes in response to the buttons being pushed by people or events. We are vaguely aware that life seems repetitive, or dull, that time is often something to be gotten through instead of savored, but this awareness is lost in the "noise" and business of day to day living.

This weekend will be devoted to bringing our attention to what we are doing—how we are really acting and thinking. Once we are aware of our tapes, we can go off automatic and begin to enjoy our interactions with one another. We will be using gestalt process, encounter, sensory awareness, and other techniques to tune in to ourselves and each other. $120

Communication / Emmett & Nitza Miller

We begin with an introduction to self-hypnosis and Selective Awareness, use them for the deprogramming of unwanted images and habit patterns (limits), then move on to explore the experience of our body movement. Remaining centered, we will approach the interpersonal and group spaces along lines chosen by the group itself, emphasizing awareness of verbal and nonverbal communication and the continuum of stillness-movement. $120

Week of June 27- July 2

Take a Second Look at Yourself / Janet Zuckerman

We will focus on taking a good look at what is going on behind the masks we wear and what is underneath the expressions we put on our faces to confront the world. "Who are you?" and "Who do you pretend to be?" are the polarities we will be working with. Every one of us has a great deal of unused potential and I see the group experience as a safe place to begin to tap into this energy. This week will be entirely experiential using mirrors, gestalt, soft-encounter, and sensory awareness. $290

Gestalt Principles & Methods: A Workshop for Persons in the Healing Professions Seymour Carter & Sid Gershenson

This workshop is an opportunity for persons interested in gestalt to experience through practice and concept a number of the important principles and methods in the application of this approach. Focus will be on the awareness continuum, the impasse, contact boundaries, risk taking and sensory awareness. There will be time for working with others under supervision. $290

Contact & Intimacy / Barbara Clemans & Ken Schrage

For workshop description see April 18-23. $290

Selective Awareness & Gestalt Practice Emmett Miller & Richard Price

Selective Awareness provides a means for identifying and unlearning undesirable characteristics of body/mind and rapidly learning desirable patterns. This takes place in a state of mind related to those of meditation and hypnosis. Like gestalt practice, selective awareness aims at the development of internal guidance free of externally imposed conditioning.

For more information about gestalt practice, see April 11-16. $320

Weekend of July 2-4

The Gentle Art of Becoming—Together: A Workshop for Couples / David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

This workshop will focus on the reawakening and development of positive and mutual supports that are at the root of satisfying couple relationships. The emphasis will be on creating clear and truthful expressions of the essential sense of loving and personal integrity. We will look at the beliefs and habits used to celebrate or lose the state of grace and presence which allows growth and joy for our partners and ourselves through the use of intuitional sensing, risk-taking structures, and guided imagery as well as gestalt awareness techniques. $120 per person

The Tao of Movement: For all Dancers of Life Al Chung-liang Huang

Dance the "Watercourse Way," flow like the wind, like the water, effortlessly. To Identify with and explore the egoless spontaneity of the motion/stillness in nature. To be in harmony with the Universal dance in everyday living. To begin to meditate kinesthetically our "Beginners' Mindbody"—that is the way (TAO)!

—Fishes swim in the water, but do not think of it;
Birds fly in the wind, but are not aware of it.—

Vegetable Roots Musings by Kojisei (1575-1619)

For workshop description see May 30-June 4. $290

Week of July 4-9 (Continued)

Advanced Gestalt / Donald Barenfeld

It is possible to increase awareness and thereby discover how we block our excitement, nourishment, contact, and creativity. From this awareness might flow suggestions of new ways to experiment with being in the world, and hopefully an awakening of appreciation for how we are. This focus will allow participants to re-identify with their energy lost to disowned parts and should provide a nourishing context for their reclamation.

This workshop is open to those with prior gestalt experience.

Body Energy—A Path to Entrapment or Freedom
Hector Prestera

This workshop will focus on the use of insights gained from Reich, Rolf, gestalt, basic encounter, body exercises, self encounter, color therapy, and acupuncture to find a window to the inner real self. Body work and energy flow will be the central core of the week.
$290

July 11-16 & July 18-23
On Being Up—Right! / Betty Fuller

Physical and mental posture—our attitudes or ways we hold ourselves in the world—are matters of choice once we liberate our selves from the dead weight, blocks and barriers we have around in "shoulds," "oughts," and "have to's." In this workshop we'll complete some of the unfinished business of the past, get clear on what we want and handle the soap opera of the present with some good humored editing and re-writes! Among the tools to be used are gestalt, psychodrama, theater games, psychosynthesis and encounter. We'll also make friends with gravity and befriend our aching backs and joints with daily sessions of feldenkrais, movement, Trager mentastics, dance, music, meditation, and laughter. Participants may attend either or both July five-day workshops; the weekend in between is open for taking other workshops at the regular workshop fee. $290 per five-day period.

July 18-25
Rites of Passage: A Seven Day Pilgrimage Through the Big Sur Wilderness
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

For workshop description see April 18-25. $220

Future Workshop Announcements

Workshops of more than one week require special planning for participants. Whenever possible we will announce such workshops well in advance. More detailed descriptions—and any changes—will appear in the catalog covering the period in which the workshop is scheduled.

The Inner Road to Health / Coordinated by Al Drucker, Richard & Christine Price

A 5 week Inner Road to Health workshop will start September 12, 1976. This will be the fourth time this program has been given. Past programs have been oversubscribed so please apply early, writing to Chris Price, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920. More information on the program will appear in the next Esalen catalog.

Program for the Study of Culture and Consciousness

October 31—November 26
Realms of the Human Unconscious
Coordinated by Stanislav Grof

A four week residential workshop for 30 professionals and students in psychiatry and psychology

The resources within the group of participants will be combined with those of Esalen staff and selected guest faculty to explore the new cartography of the human mind emerging from the experiential techniques of psychotherapy and laboratory consciousness research. The program will include a comprehensive discussion of laboratory and clinical research with LSD and other psychedelic drugs. Gestalt practice, encounter, bioenergetics, primal approaches and hypnosis will be explored both theoretically and experientially. Non-drug technology for inducing altered states of consciousness (sensory isolation tank, clinical stroboscope, sonic driver and a lotus cradle) will be available for participants.

Audio Cassette Recordings

The following tape recordings in cassette form are available from the Joan & Stanislav Grof Culture and Consciousness Spring 1975 program. Each cassette is priced at $5 per hour of recording:

Will Schutz: Interpersonal Psychodynamics
Speaking to a newly formed group interested in mystical experience, Will Schutz gives an excellent presentation of his work at the lower chakra levels: three basic interpersonal needs (inclusion/control/affection) and three principles of encounter and life (truth/choice/awareness)—with extra thoughts on the great cosmic joke, the only human fear, the three kinds of medicine, the idea of total responsibility, and our human need to feel aliveness. 90 minutes $7.50

Gregory Bateson: Metaphors and Butterflies
Someone has said that when you ask Gregory a question, he will likely give you an answer that causes you to question all the assumptions behind that question. During this Grof workshop session, Alice in Wonderland's "bread-and-butterflies" provides one of the metaphors in a non-linear, analogic discussion of psychedelic experience, dreams, realities and other bits and pieces of the stuff of which we are made. 90 minutes $7.50

Please make check payable to: WORKSHOP CASSETTES, c/o Hot Springs Lodge, Big Sur, California 93920. Tapes from many other Esalen events can be developed if there is sufficient interest. Please indicate the specific areas of your interest for such recordings, and mail to the above address.

Books

Unfinished Animal
by Theodore Roszak
$10.00

In this first comprehensive survey of the new spirituality, cultural critic Theodore Roszak writes:

"We are in the midst of a religious renaissance, but it is religion by any other name and every other name that binds our attention. The spiritual impulse of the time steps beyond the boundaries of religious tradition all together to become psychotherapy, sensory awareness, parapsychology, consciousness research, psychedelic tripping, bioenergetics, occult science."

Roszak calls this strange brew of therapeutic and quasi-religious fascinations the "Aquarian frontier, the subtle landscape and open field of contemporary spiritual adventure." The exploration of that frontier, he believes, represents nothing less than a "transformation of the human personality which is of evolutionary proportions, a shift of consciousness fully as epoch-making as the appearance of speech or of the tool-making talents in our cultural repertory."

Symposium on Consciousness
Presented at the Annual Meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, February 1974 by Philip R. Lee, Robert E. Omstein, David Galin, Arthur Deikman and Charles Tart
$10.00

Five distinguished principals in the emerging psychology of consciousness and different "ways of knwoing" present here a synthesis of the perspective of esoteric traditions with the theory and technology of contemporary science. The implications of altered states of consciousness, the mystic experience, the "two-sided" activities of the human brain, the role of consciousness in perception, cognition, and personality theory—all are explored in the context of the possible meanings of the new science of consciousness for human health and social development.

The Tao of Physics
An Exploration of the Parallels Between Modern Physics and Eastern Mysticism by Fritjof Capra
$5.95 paper

Here for the first time is a clear presentation of the world view emerging from modern physics and the parallels between this world view and the fundamental ideas of Eastern mysticism. Dr. Capra, a brilliant research physicist, presents a clear picture of the world of the atom and the world of Eastern mysticism in this landmark work in scientific popularization.

Beyond Jogging: The Innerspaces of Running
by Michael Spino
$4.95 paper

"After Mike Spino, running will never be the same. . . Spino introduces his students to an imaginative variety of tempos, styles and visualization techniques that can make running a carnival of delights . . . "

—George Leonard, author of The Ultimate Athlete

Mike Spino brings physical technique together with spiritual concepts that make running a creative, self-actualizing experience. Using his methods, the runner's mind and body take on a new unity, movement and energy exist in a new perspective. Suggestions, ranging from meditation and body awareness to the methods of Olympic coaches, can be applied to individual training programs that will benefit beginners and skilled runners alike.

Is There an Answer to Death?
by Peter Koestenbaum
$2.95

Is There an Answer to Death? explains how a positive confrontation with death can be a personally liberating experience—how it can help us develop our individual identity and give us the security we need to live our lives courageously. Koestenbaum shows how to deal with the fear we each feel when contemplating death—our own and that of others—and reveals how an acceptance of death can bring greater meaning to life.

Lessons from Moshe Feldenkrais' Awareness Through Movement $60.00

Training Systems Division of Westinghouse Learning Corporation offers this package, which consists of ten recorded lessons (on five audiotape cassettes) conducted by Feldenkrais himself, and one illustrated study guide/manual, contained in a vinyl binder for your bookshelf.

A Sense of the Cosmos by Jacob Needleman $6.95

A Sense of the Cosmos deals with the awakening of modern science to the esoteric teachings of the East and West. The book presents startling new ways of looking at astronomy, medicine, biology, physics, psychiatry and the ancient idea of magic as well as clues for re-discovering the cosmic identity of humanity.

Hidden Meanings by Dr. Gerald Walker Smith $7.95

Dr. Gerald Smith, family therapist and Esalen group leader, shows how to interpret the real meanings of what people say. Now you can stop guessing what the other person—be it lover, spouse, parent, child, business associate—means and know what he means. A new way to relate better and more effectively with others.

Material for Thought $2.95

Material for Thought is a journal of the unknown. It seeks to communicate a special energy of the heart that can connect not only with what is sacred, but with what is necessary. The theme of this issue is the alchemical marriage, the transmutation of war into love. Under the umbrella of that theme, it presents material from the American Indian tradition, Sufism, Hinduism, African myth and an excerpt from the magnificent new translation of The Life of Milarepa, plus a ground breaking study never before published in English: Alchemy, The Cosmological Yoga of Medieval Christianity.

Special Information

THE ESALEN CATALOG is published quarterly. Subscription cost for one year is $2 for the United States, $4 for Canada and Mexico and $12 for all other countries. Those attending Esalen workshops and conferences are automatically added to the mailing list for one year. A single inspection copy of the current issue is available free upon request from the San Francisco office. Do not direct subscription inquiries to Big Sur.

CONTRIBUTIONS to Esalen Institute are tax deductible.

ACCREDITATION and the USE OF ESALEN'S NAME: Some individuals and groups have involved Esalen's name to imply that we have given some sort of accreditation to their activities. We have told everyone to stop using our name in such a manner. Of course people use insights and techniques they bring from our programs, but we confer no certificates, diplomas, or other symbols of formal status such as those conferred by professional associations and schools.

RECORDINGS OF ESALEN PROGRAMS: For a catalog of recordings of Esalen / San Francisco programs contact Big Sur Recordings, 2015 Bridgeway, Sausalito, California 94965. They also have Big Sur programs prior to 1973.

Commercial use of Esalen program tapes is prohibited; all rights are reserved.

Big Sur Information

For reservations and information, write or call:
Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.
Phone: (408) 667-2335, 10 to 4 every day;
10 to 8 Sunday & Friday.

In Los Angeles call:

for general information.

Esalen/Big Sur lies 300 miles north of Los Angeles and 175 miles south of San Francisco. It is directly over the shoreline of the Pacific with the Santa Lucia Range rising sharply behind. The property, which has natural hot baths, was once the home of a North American Indian tribe known as Esalen.

We are a 45-mile drive south from Monterey, 11 miles south of Nepenthe, on California Coast Route 1. From the south, we are 50 miles north of San Simeon. A lighted sign on the ocean side of the highway reads: Esalen Institute—By Reservation Only.

Deposit Information: Big Sur programs require an advance deposit of $20 for weekend groups, $70 for five-day groups, $200 for two-week groups, $300 for three-week groups, and $400 for month-long groups. Deposits are not refundable but, with five days' notice, may be transferred to other Esalen programs. Please mail Big Sur reservations to Esalen/Big Sur. Do not mail Big Sur reservations to Esalen/San Francisco. Balance of payment is due on arrival. Esalen accepts Master Charge and American Express. U S currency only, please.

Scholarship Information: If you need scholarship assistance for a long term Esalen/Big Sur program, write for a scholarship application form before making a reservation (allow at least 3 weeks for processing as we have many applications). If your application is approved, please make a reservation as soon as possible after receiving notice. No scholarship assistance is available for June 15–August 31 programs or for weekend programs.

General Information: Workshop fees cover tuition, food, and lodging. Rooms are shared by two or three workshop participants. Camping on the grounds is prohibited.

Weekend programs begin with dinner on Friday and end with lunch on Sunday. Five-day and longer programs begin with dinner on Sunday and end with lunch on Friday. Rooms become available at 5 pm; however, guests are welcome to arrive anytime after lunch.

Esalen/Big Sur has no child care facilities. Please do not plan to bring children. We also ask workshop participants not to have guests. Alas, no pets.

Esalen's flourishing organic garden provides the kitchen with many of its vegetables and herbs. Our breads and pastries are made by Esalen bakers.

Limousine Service: Those traveling by air or bus can obtain limousine service to Esalen/Big Sur by notifying the Big Sur office of time of arrival. Pickups are made at the Monterey Airport and the Greyhound terminal at 5–5:30 pm each Sunday and Friday. The cost is $10 per person one way, payable on arrival at Esalen.

Seminarians as Staff (Karma Yoga): Seminarians in residence for five days or longer at Esalen are asked to contribute several hours per week to work with the staff. Your help enables us to meet the pressures of peak working times and enables you to experience Esalen from the inside out. A staff member will appear at your first workshop meeting to schedule volunteer help.

San Francisco Information

For reservations, literature, tickets, and information, write or call:
Esalen Institute, 1793 Union Street, San Francisco, California 94123.
Phone: (415) 771-1710; 9:30–5:30 Monday through Saturday.

Reservations: Reservations close five days prior to the program, in order to facilitate planning and for the convenience of participants' time plans. A non-refundable deposit must accompany registration as follows: $10 per person for programs costing under $35; $20 for programs costing under $100; $50 for those over $100, unless otherwise noted. Mail reservation form with check to Esalen Institute, 1793 Union Street, San Francisco 94123. Balance is payable at the first session of the program. Do not send San Francisco reservations to Big Sur. Esalen accepts Master Charge and American Express. U S currency only, please.

Information literature and tickets for lectures may be obtained Monday through Saturday 9:30–5:00 pm at 1793 Union Street, San Francisco 94123. Tickets obtained by mail will indicate the exact location and time of events; when not sold out in advance, tickets may be purchased at the door.

Workshop schedules: One day workshops generally meet from 10 am to 6 pm. Saturday and Sunday weekend workshops meet from 10 am to 6 pm each day. Friday through Sunday weekend workshops meet approximately from 8 to 11 pm on Friday, from 10 am through the afternoon and/or evening on Saturday, and from 10 am to early afternoon on Sunday. Schedules are not rigid, however, and exact meeting times are discussed at the first session.

Accommodations: Most San Francisco programs are non-residential. Participants in these programs must reserve their own accommodations at local hotels or motels. Unless stated otherwise, meals are not provided at such workshops.

Location: Participants will be informed of workshop location prior to the workshop date. Esalen uses several facilities in the Bay Area for its programs, including its own building at 1793 Union Street, San Francisco. Call the San Francisco office for advance information on program location.

Recommended dress: Workshops are informal. Slacks and flat shoes are recommended for women, sport clothes for men.

Bookstore: Esalen's Bookshop provides a comprehensive selection of books ranging from general psychology, life sciences, and education to the Eastern philosophies, Jung, and the mystics. It is open Monday through Saturday, 9:30–5:30 pm, and Sundays when workshops are in process (On Sundays call before dropping in).

Esalen Institute is a center to explore those trends in education, religion, philosophy, and the physical and behavioral sciences which emphasize the potentialities and values of human existence. Our activities consist of seminars and workshops, residential programs, consulting, and research.

We exist to sponsor, encourage, synthesize, and attempt evaluation of work in these areas, both inside and outside our own organizational framework. Since we are a center for experimental education, we ask that persons come to our programs out of an educational interest. We ask that no one come whose interest is "cure." We point out here, as we have in workshops and seminars, that some persons, particularly those with a history of psychiatric problems, may find some programs difficult, trying, or potentially risky. We recommend that in case of any doubt, a physician or trusted counselor be consulted.

Food for Thought

What happens in an Esalen group? Below Beverly Silverman describes her experience of the first three days of a five day group. On pages 22-23 we present a partial transcription of a group session with Gabrielle Roth.

The group begins quietly. I move slowly. I want the people to feel safe. The first night we do some simple sensory exercises. Monday morning the tarot exercise, Monday afternoon massage and we meet again on Monday evening.

They are quiet people—scared, shy and not yet willing to take a chance. That's okay; I know it takes time for individual rhythms, paces, structures to emerge.

After a while of quiet, I ask them to make themselves comfortable and I guide them on a fantasy of "home." They imagine floating back through the years to a time when they were children. I tell them to "just settle down into that time and explore it." After a while they come back. I ask "what happened" and a few people share their experiences. Near the end of the evening Marian says that something disturbing had happened in her fantasy but she did not feel comfortable working on it in the group. I say, "Okay, I can appreciate where you are," and she leaves. I don't feel anything one way or another about it. If she says she doesn't feel like doing anything, then anything that we do after that will lead nowhere.

Tuesday morning another massage session, in the afternoon, we so some eye exercises and the camera walk. Tuesday evening, Dennis says he does not want to be in the group, but in the dance workshop where there is some excitement happening. I feel a few pangs of feeling responsible for his lack of excitement. He is a lovely guy who is trying very hard to do something good for himself. While he is doing his "thing," it occurs to me that the mind-body fantasy might give him a handle to work with, so we do that fantasy. Somewhere along in the evening Marian says that she has some things happening in relation to the mind-body exercise but is still not ready to do anything yet. She appears to be tense and troubled.

Wednesday morning there seems to be a little more energy in the group. Each time I wonder whether I really am responding to the process of the group or whether it's all in my head—after a minute or two I ask what's happening? Marian sits up and answers that something is happening with her and she wants to work with it but doesn't know how to go about starting. She starts—with the home fantasy. She goes back to a time when she is about eight years old and sitting in her classroom. At this point I tell her to close her eyes and go back to that place. She is eight years old and sitting at her desk. Her attention is on something that she has in her desk—it's a chocolate frog. She wants it but doesn't have the courage to reach for it—her total attention is on that frog—when all of a sudden she hears a voice asking, "What is the total rainfall in the lakes district in England?" At that point she feels a flush of fear, looks up and says, "I don't know." The teacher mimicks her, "I don't know, I don't know, Look here, we have an I don't know person." All this time Marian is in her fantasy re-experiencing this situation including the embarrassment and humiliation. She begins to cry deeply—she cries for quite a while and we just all sit quietly—then she goes on—she is put in another seat for "I don't know people" and the humiliation continues. When the class is over she walks out, sits on a bench, covers her face and curls up into the smallest ball that she can. At this point she begins to cry again. After a while she brings up her mind-body fantasy image of a tiger. When we did the mind-body fantasy, one of her images was of a tiger and now this tiger is back—and he is very large and frightening. She keeps saying, "I won't let anyone see my tiger. I won't let anyone see my tiger." She is experiencing a lot of fear and frustration. I ask her to look at the tiger. She doesn't want to look. He is there and she knows it and she is afraid. Again I suggest looking at the tiger—still afraid she looks and sees a gigantic tiger with large claws that are extended. He is in a cage moving around wanting to get out. She keeps saying how frightening he is—"tell him that," I say. She begins a dialogue with the tiger—she tells him how frightening he is and that he is her tiger and she doesn't want to show him to anyone—she doesn't want anyone to see him. He tells her, "You put me here." I tell her to keep looking at the tiger and she does. As she keeps looking she reports that he is getting less threatening; his claws are retracting and he is getting smaller—still in the cage. She doesn't want to open up the cage to let him out. So the tiger keeps getting smaller and smaller as though he were fading into the horizon. The cage is still there, now as a screen of bars between her and her freedom. She wants to get to the other side but doesn't know how to do this. She just keeps looking at the bars and feels her spirits going down again. The bars are too high to climb over and they have spiked tops besides. They are really big and in the way. She doesn't know what to do. After a few minutes I ask if she really wants to get to the other side and she says, "Yes," she really does. I say, "Okay, how far are you from the bars?" She says, "A few feet." I suggest that she move closer. She moves closer—I ask, "How far apart are the bars?" She says they are too close to slide through. I ask her to touch the bars; she feels them to be strong and impossible to push over. Another minute goes by and again I ask how close she is to the bars. She says she is still very close. I say to her, "Lean over and taste the bars." There is a pause. She leans over—another pause and then she breaks into hysterical laughter. She laughs and laughs and thru her laughter she says, "The bars have turned into a chocolate frog." After a few moments she opens her eyes. There is a calm about her now. We all share a comfortable silence together.

Dreams—The Royal Road to Higher Consciousness
Ann Faraday & John Wren-Lewis

Single evening event $5 general admission

This evening will cover how to understand our personal dreams symbolism, how to unmask and deal constructively with the "secret saboteurs" in nightmares and frustration dreams and how to ask dreams for help with personal problems or creative endeavors.

8-10:30 pm; 1793 Union Street, San Francisco

July 10

Where Do I Stand? A Workshop in Alexander Technique
Frank Ottiwell & Giora Pinkas

One-day workshop $30

Standing, sitting, walking—even lying—are activities most of us carry out in an habitually thoughtless and haphazard manner. This workshop will introduce the principles of the Alexander Technique and provide an opportunity for individual work on the body/self in everyday actions. It is our year-in, year-out daily habits which have the greatest accumulative effect on us. Our aim will be to bring a degree of conscious control to these actions and to every act of our lives.

July 10-11

Shiatsu & Body Awareness / Kathy Dickman

Weekend workshop $60

Shiatsu, Japanese pressure-point therapy, reaches deeper than surface massage to release tense areas of blocked energy. It becomes a refined form of body work when both participants focus their awareness on a single point, one applying pressure from the outside as the other lets go from the inside. Giving, we learn to "listen" with our hands; receiving, we learn to consciously release tense places at our own speed. Meditative breathing and movement exercises will be used to bring the power of concentrated attention into our hands and bodies.

July 11

You Can't Get Enough of What You Don't Really Want (Creating the Space to Lose Weight)
Barbara Clemans

One-day workshop $30

Most "fat" people have two orientations toward eating: "forbidden food" and "diet food," which puts us in an either/or position—feast/famine, stuff/starve. Diets don't work because we never practice a balanced orientation toward eating.

In this workshop we will take a look at our eating habits using guided memory experience and fantasy. We will taste with discrimination, discover how we use food and why, and learn alternate ways of fulfilling our needs. We will begin to recognize unconscious attitudes about our body, look at the source of these attitudes, and practice in a positive way. Bring your favorite food!

July 14

Exploring Theater Games / Lynne Kaufman

Single evening event $4 general admission

This evening will be an introduction to improvisational techniques to help release the many selves in all of us. We will use exercises in movement, mime, dialogue and fantasy to enhance the spontaneous, the imaginative and the creative.

8-10:30 pm; 1793 Union Street, San Francisco

July 5-16

Esalen Sports Center Summer Institute
Program Coordinators: Bob Kriegel & Dick Galland plus special guests

Twelve-day workshop (six days at Dominican College and six days at a secluded base camp in the Sierras)

We have all had an experience sometime in our lives when whatever we were doing became effortless, natural, and perfect. At times like this we let go and yet have no sense of being out of control. This feeling is often refered to as "centering."

Centering enables us to act with freedom and spontaneity merged with a sense of control. The emphasis of this workshop will be on the process of contacting that calm place within, which reflects balance and harmony, and from which we seem to know how to do everything perfectly

Most instances concerning people being "centered" seem to happen by accident. "It" happened. "It" may have been getting "hot" in a basketball game, skiing the perfect run, or getting that burst of insight when all became clear. Afterwards you spent the rest of the day trying to get "it" back again.

In order to learn centering as an intentional act, we will use exercises from aikido, t'ai chi, energy awareness, yoga, Feldenkrais, sensory awareness and movement, rhythm and balance forms.

During the first week, which will be held at Dominican College, we will play traditional sports and games and invent new ones in order to practice centering in action oriented situations.

The second week will be spent at a secluded base camp in the Sierras experimenting with the centering process in a natural environment and participating in stress and risk taking activities. We will backpack, climb rocks, rappell, belay, play incentive games, do a "solo" (time spent alone in the wilderness) and learn to use the energy from fear in a positive way.

One of the main emphases in this workshop will be on transferring the insights gained and lessons learned into our outside lives, both personally and professionally.

If the first week is non-residential total fee is $330.00. If the first week is residential (Dominican College) total fee is $400.00.

For more complete information write or phone the Esalen Sports Center, 1793 Union Street, San Francisco, CA 94123. Telephone: (415) 771-1710.

Inservice credit will be available through Dominican College.

July 17
Using Plants for Healing—An Herbal Workshop
Jeanne Rose

One-day workshop $30

We will concentrate on the herbs used for healing in our discussion and work together to create herbal massage oils for various purposes. Our workshop will also include a personalized demonstration of aromatherapy, which is the use of plant essences for mental and physical health. We will also explore various techniques used in herbal medicine. Please bring an apron and two cups of pure vegetable oil.

Recommended reading: Herbs & Things, Jeanne Rose.

July 18
Reflexology / Anna Kaye

One-day workshop $30

Reflexology or "zone therapy" is based on the theory that energy travels in the body in "zones" or patterns which connect reflexes in the feet to organs in the body. In this theoretical and experiential workshop Anna Kaye will demonstrate methods of stimulating these reflexes by specialized massage work on the feet.

July 17-18
Adding More to Your Relationship—A Couples Workshop
Gerald Smith & Betsy Hand

Weekend workshop $60

This workshop will deal with expressing emotions and achieving closeness. It will also focus on getting distance and fighting fairly. We will use non-verbal as well as gestalt and family therapy approaches. This workshop is not intended for couples in serious trouble, but rather for prevention and growth.

July 21
The Art of Self Direction / Lenore Lefer

Single evening event $5 general admission

This evening we will explore and examine the nature of self direction and the ways in which we can increase it in our lives. The degree to which we can discover, direct and regulate our energies affects how productive, creative and joyful we can be. Using the framework of psychosynthesis, we will learn and enhance the art of self direction.

8-10:30 pm; 1793 Union Street, San Francisco

July 24
Introduction to Aikido with Emphasis on Centering & Energy Awareness
Robert Nadeau

One-day workshop $20

Aikido is the Japanese art of self-defense with the emphasis placed on centering, harmony, and blending. It is presented as a physical manifestation of the energy and spiritual laws of the universe. We will start with the centering practices in the physical dimension, move to centering as mental awareness, and culminate in meditation with centering as a focus for spiritual unfolding. The workshop will emphasize the relationship between all three levels.

Saturday, 12:30-4:30 pm

July 24-25
Expression Through Movement / Anne Lief Barlin

Weekend workshop $60

This workshop will focus on the use of movement as a therapeutic tool for both the adult and the child. It is viewed to you, the teacher and facilitator, if you wish to experience and expand your own body awareness. New, unique and specific exercises and methods will be presented which will open doors for your own creativity.

July 24-25
Discovering the Voice / Kate Fitzmaurice

Weekend workshop $60

We will work on freeing the flow of breath and releasing the tension that inhibits resonance and expressiveness. We will also work towards integrating the voice with the whole personality.

July 30
Giving / Gabrielle Roth

Single evening event $5 general admission

The only way to keep from losing your Self is to give it.
Most of us move between hanging on and hanging out.
Both take effort.
Let's hang in and
be moved.

This experience is designed to move you into a deeper awareness of your Self as an expression of life in creative action.

8-10:30 pm; First Unitarian Church, Geary & Franklin Streets, San Francisco

July 30-August 1
Psychic Massage: The Spirit & The Body
Ray Stubbs & Billie Jean Hobart

Weekend workshop $60

During this weekend of physical and non-physical massage, we will explore relationships between touching and energy through meditation, breathing and other innerspace techniques. We'll also examine responsibility and the role of the healer. Bring bathing suits or loose clothing.

Suggested reading: Psychic Massage, Roberta DeLong Miller; Journeys Out of the Body, Robert Monroe; Seth Books.

July 31
Biofeedback & Altered States of Consciousness
Eleanor Criswell & Maryellen Haight

One-day workshop $30

This workshop will focus on biofeedback as it relates to self-exploration, self-development, and altering consciousness. An understanding of biofeedback, how to experience it and how to use your own body signals as feedback, will be included. Participants will experience several different kinds of biofeedback machines.

August 1
The Innerspaces of Running: A New Approach to Running
Mike Spino

One-day workshop $30

Focusing on the running experience, this workshop will introduce a holistic method of mind/body development. Each participant will be taught various running gaits and tempos, muscle/skeletal exercises, breathing techniques, and philosophy and lore related to optimum physical fitness. There will be special emphasis on guided fantasy, inner space development, and creativity in quest for extraordinary experiences. Each person will receive an individual consultation and have the opportunity to continue towards personal goals on an ongoing basis.

August 6-8

The Hero's Journey:
A Holistic Approach to Personal Transformations
Paul Rebillot

Weekend workshop $60

The hero's journey is a dynamic form that has been developed to help facilitate major life changes. The personal world is viewed through the lens of fantasy, dramatized, interpreted, and experienced in a rite of passage based on one of the most universal structures mankind has found to express this metamorphosis, the myth of the hero.

The working process utilizes various therapeutic and artistic techniques with the belief that no one is superior to any other. Bring musical instruments, costumes, or anything else you would like to help intensify the festive aspects of the workshop.

August 7-14

Encountering in the High Sierra
Maurica Anderson & Barry McWaters

Eight days $215

During this eight-day workshop we will hike into a campsite by a clear mountain lake in the High Sierra (mules will do most of the work carrying the food and camping equipment). We will camp by the lake for six days, eating outrageously good food and working with meditation, psychodrama, gestalt, psychosynthesis and encounter, laughing a lot and getting to know the high country, one another, and ourselves.

August 7-8

On Friendship / Edward Maupin & Bill Stewart

Weekend workshop $60

This workshop begins with the assumption that a relationship with a friend can be more intense and rewarding than with a lover. We frequently hold back from experiencing the full depth of friendship lest the energy we feel turn sexual. Conversely, we sometimes turn to sexual interplay when the actual nature of the attraction is more subtle, potentially more rewarding, and involves quite different body systems. During this weekend we will develop wider possibilities through systematic exploration of different body centers, body awareness techniques, examinations of beliefs and fears, and interpersonal experiments.

August 12

A Concert for the Inner Ear:
Sound & Visual Archetypes of Transformation
Steven Halpern

Single evening event $4 general admission

A special performance employing specific combinations of tone, frequency, and resonance to affect an effortless elevation of body, mind, and spirit. The featured composition will be Sound & Color Attunement Suite (from the album, Christening for Listening). A short discussion of "sound principles" will be included.

8-10:30 pm; 1793 Union Street, San Francisco

August 14

Polarity Balancing for Self, Family & Friends—
An Introduction / Ray Castellino

One-day workshop $30

We will spend the day applying polarity principles and techniques for our balance and relaxation. Dr. Randolph Stone's system of polarity balance is a science of balancing the life energy of the body with exercise, food, polarity manipulation and "good thinking." Each participant is asked to bring vegetables as a contribution to a large salad we will share for lunch.

August 15

A Flowmotion Workshop / Adele Chu Drummond

One-day workshop $30

This workshop will deal with the way we are connected and the flow of energy within and between us. We will create our own spontaneous dances using Indonesian, American, Indian and Afro-Caribbean as well as our own sounds. This workshop is particularly useful for those who teach or work with the creative process.

August 20-22

Inner Visions & Explorations with Hypnosis / Lee Pulos

Weekend workshop $60

The theme of this workshop will be both educational and exploratory. Participants will be taught a variety of hypnotic and self-hypnosis techniques that can be used on an ongoing basis after the workshop is over. Each person will experience hypnosis and the opportunity to hypnotically induce dreams, program for habit changes, and to get in touch with subconscious motivation through automatic writing and ideo-motor questioning. The exploratory aspects will deal with extending our consciousness into paranormal and psychic dimensions.

DR. MOSHE FELDENKRAIS

August 21

A Day with Moshe Feldenkrais

One-day workshop $30

Moshe Feldenkrais is the developer of Functional Integration and distinguished visiting professor at the Humanistic Psychology Institute. He is internationally respected for his extraordinary work in psychophysical rehabilitation. His books include Awareness Through Movement and Body and Mature Behavior.

August 21-22

Centering to Energy Awareness to Meditation
Robert Nadeau

Weekend workshop $60

Awareness begins with the self. Centering is the doorway to the energy activity of the universe. Energy is the common denominator of the universe and energy awareness is the basis for meditation. This will be a weekend session emphasizing a natural practice pattern for awareness.

August 27

The Poetry of Movement / Norma Leistiko

Single evening event $5 general admission

You are the poet and the dance lies within you. We will use the elements of space, time and energy to develop non-verbal relationships with ourselves and others. We will then share these "selves" expressions with each other and eventually make a visual group poem through movement and words.

8-10:30 pm; 1793 Union Street, San Francisco

August 28-29

Body Experience / Bill Glover

Weekend workshop $60

We are all bodies, yet live in relative ignorance of ourselves. In this workshop, we will seek to understand how we live as bodies and how we can enhance and deepen this living. Techniques from bioenergetics, sensory awareness, massage, and other body approaches will be used. The focus will be on learning from our body experience and developing a body consciousness to integrate into our lives.

August 28-29

Theater Games: A Workshop in Spontaneity
Lynne Kaufman

Weekend workshop $60

This workshop will be an opportunity to learn the tools of improvisational acting. We will work with how to develop a character, build an environment and create a scenario at the moment and out of hand. This weekend will be a chance to speak before thinking, to dare to be absurd, to intuit, expand and experiment in tapping the roots of our collective creativity.

September 7 & 9

Running on the Marina Green / Mike Spino

Tuesday and Thursday evening from 5:30-8:30 $25

This two-part workshop will present the running gaits and tempos and the physical conditioning methods that Mike Spino has developed from the work of Australian Percy Wells Cerutty, and Hungarian Mihaley Igoli, who between them are responsible for over 40 world records in track and field. The focus will be on striding, muscle/skeletal development, breathing, visualization, and meditation.

Sessions will be held at the Marina Green, and adjacent trails along the San Francisco Bay. Follow up individual running programs will be given to the participants. Information on sport medicine, nutrition, creativity, and conditioning principles will be stressed. A no-host dinner will follow each class. Participants must sign up for both sessions.

September 10-14

Backpacking / Dick Strong & Ann (Cricket) Mackinlay

Residential four day workshop $100

The group will redezvous at Kennedy Meadows on Friday night and backpack in relaxed stages to an isolated alpine cirque high in the Sierra Nevada. Here we will combine sensitivity, meditating, fishing, climbing and music making in a magical Zen-like setting of twisted trees and water in glacial-polished pools. We will re-enter the "real" world on Tuesday. Meals include Saturday breakfast through Tuesday lunch. Payment should be made in full five days prior to the workshop.

September 11

A Choice Workshop: The Act of Willing / Lenore Lefer

One-day workshop $30

Many of us tend to make our life choices without full awareness. We sometimes wait, decide impulsively, reactively, hastily, or without purpose. The more conscious we are of the act of choosing, the more we open ourselves to the experience of joy and freedom. Using the framework of psychosynthesis, we will explore how we can choose using our will. The aim is towards learning the process of making conscious choices, thereby taking responsibility for our life's purposes and direction.

September 11-12
Workshop for Writers / Freda Morris

Weekend workshop $60

Do you have a book in your head? A book half finished? A finished book or article but can't stand the rejection slip blues? Both professional and aspiring writers will find the hypnotic methods of writing consultation taught in this workshop helpful. Participants will be helped to set valid writing goals, develop optimal work habits and learn hypnotic methods for enhancing creativity and avoiding procrastination.

September 12
Rediscovering Your Vision / Raymond Gottlieb

One-day workshop $30

Dr Gottlieb will discuss the basic principles behind the Bates system of "Better Sight Without Glasses" and other approaches related to the improvement of vision. He will teach specific exercises within an integrated whole body approach to removing the stress that hinders vision. Limited to 25 people.

September 14
Self Assertion & the Sense of Self–
A Talk on Bioenergetics & Gestalt Therapy
Michael Conant

Single evening event $5 general admission

This will be an evening of lecture, sharing and discussion with one of the leading exponents of the synthesis of two very potent psychotherapies. We will focus on ways to revitalize our expression of ourselves in the world. Attention will also be given to the concept of grounding, from both bioenergetic and gestalt perspectives.

8-10:30 pm; 1793 Union Street, San Francisco

September 18-19
Return to the Dark Side
Jim Shere & Yanni Toussulis

Weekend workshop $60

The autumn equinox celebrates the entry into the dark half of the year. Following the pattern of the ancient "Dromenon," or mystery drama, this workshop will present a group enactment of the hero's journey:

the rite of separation the rite of transition and the rite of reincorporation.

The process used will be a uniquely structured guided fantasy employing gestalt, movement and group interaction.

September 18-19
Hypnosis & Gestalt / Irv Katz

Weekend workshop $60

We will employ these two powerful processes to release the natural life-giving energies within us that are blocked or diluted by past tapes, body armour and self-limiting belief systems. Through hypnotically induced dreams, drawings, age regressions and automatic writing, participants will have the opportunity to bring unresolved material from the "inner theater of the unconscious" to the surface. Gestalt methods will be used to integrate what emerges into conscious life and thereby complete "unfinished business."

September 19
The Tao of Physics / Fritjof Capra

One-day workshop $30

This workshop will explore the parallels between the fundamental concepts of modern physics and the basic ideas in the mystical traditions of the Far East. The participants will be taken on a journey to the realm of the infinitely small; to the world of atoms, nuclei and subatomic particles.

The picture of matter emerging from this journey will show the universe not as a machine made up of a multitude of objects, but as a harmonious "organic" whole whose parts are defined by their interrelations. The universe of the modern physicist, like that of the Eastern mystic, is engaged in a continuous cosmic dance; a system of inseparable, interacting, and ever moving components of which the observer is an integral part; it reflects a reality behind the world of ordinary sense-perception that involves spaces of higher dimensions that transcend ordinary language and logical reasoning.

September 20-October 2
Introduction to Massage / Jane Walters

Five sessions $85

This series is designed to offer a thorough introduction to the art of massage as a nurturing, holistic process. The basic style presented will be Esalen, incorporating shiatsu and breath awareness work. Evening classes will begin with meditation, followed by demonstration of technique and approach to different areas and carefully supervised practice. The final session will be an all day review with emphasis on flow, cohesiveness and response to those you touch.

This workshop will consist of four evening sessions on Monday and Wednesday nights from 7-10 pm and a one day workshop, Saturday, October 2.

September 23
Life is an Experience to be Lived,
Not a Problem to be Solved / Janica & Arthur Fox

Single evening event $4 general admission

We all spend time and energy mulling over the problems of the past and worrying about the problems of the future. This can so consume our energy that we forget how to focus and be aware of our moment to moment, ever fascinating experience of the present. Come and spend an evening relearning that precious ability.

8-10:30 pm; 1793 Union Street, San Francisco

September 25-26
Beyond Assertiveness
Zoe Snyder, Lorle Kranzler Kennedy & Roz Parenti

Weekend workshop $60

In what direction is your assertiveness taking you? What difficulties are you encountering as you express yourself more fully? How has your assertiveness promoted changes in life-style, work, and relationships? While assertiveness can enrich the choices in life, there are now other issues to cope with. After doing Assertiveness training and Chutzpah workshops for several years, we are now interested in exploring how a stronger position affects our friendships, relationships, and our work. We will use gestalt, movement, and psychodrama

September 25-26

The Gentle Art of Becoming—Together
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

Weekend workshop for couples $55

This workshop will focus on the reawakening and development of positive and mutual supports that are the root of satisfying couple relationships. The emphasis will be on creating clear and truthful expressions of the essential sense of loving and personal integrity. We will look at the beliefs and habits used to celebrate or lose the state of grace and presence which allows growth and joy for our partners and ourselves through the use of intuitional sensing, risk-taking structures, and guided imagery as well as gestalt techniques.

September 28

An Herbal Discussion / Jeanne Rose

Single evening event $4 general admission

This will be a discussion group concerning the use of plants for healing and for cosmetics. We will concentrate on herbal first aid and Aromatherapy, the use of essential oils for rejuvenation of the mind, body and skin cells.

8-10:30 pm; 1793 Union Street, San Francisco

September 30

Word Liberation / Toby Lurie

Single evening event $3.50 general admission

Words, like people, are in need of liberation. People play games with words, sending up verbal smoke screens to protect themselves from exposure. As a result, much of language is ambiguous and meaningless, and the organic quality of words has been shunted into oblivion. This evening we will rediscover language through the use of rhythm, dance, color, chants and group experiences.

8-10:30 pm; 1793 Union Street, San Francisco

Future Workshop Announcements

Future Program

Esalen Sports Center
Six Month Program in Mind / Body Development

An intensive 6 month training program, focused on running, flexibility exercises, energy (or ki work), visualization and meditation will begin in October.

Every participant will have two private sessions a month with Mike Spino, the program co-ordinator; in these sessions the training routines presented during the program will be individualized to suit the participants needs and present physical condition. Theoretical aspects of the program and various training methods will be presented in bi-monthly day long sessions (there will be 12 in all). There will also be two optional group sessions every week in which participants may work out together. The Institute of Health Research, which is a federally funded research program studying the long term blood chemical and hematological as well as physiological profiles of healthy people over a long period of time, is especially interested in following participants in this project. It will be recommended that individuals continue to update their profiles after completion of the six month program.

Program leaders will include:

1. Meditation and visualization—Michael Murphy and Mike Spino
2. Flexibility, stretching and body awareness—Barbara Hazilla
3. Energy awareness—Robert Nadeau
4. Theoretical aspects—George Leonard and Michael Murphy
5. Running gaits, tempos, visualization, aerobic, anaerobic and resistance running—Mike Spino

The program will include 30 hours of work each month of private consultations, workshops, and supervised training routines over the six month period. The cost of the entire program will be $500.00.

October

Ways of Deep Massage: Shiatsu & Related Techniques
Kathy Dickman & Ray Stubbs

An 8 week training with 2 one day workshops $200.00

Deep muscle massage has its own sensuality, and letting go of chronic tension areas becomes pleasure when the giver's hands communicate trust and sensitivity. This training will aim at developing that sensitivity to the tissues beneath the surface of the body, along with a knowledge of pressure points and some anatomy. A whole shiatsu massage will be taught, with compatible techniques from polarity massage, the Arican Ch'ua K'a and others.

October 16-23

October Extended Growth Program
Woman to Woman / Man to Man
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

"The woman that most needs liberating is the woman in every man, and the man that most needs liberating is the man in every woman."

Taking advantage of the natural affinity and support that people of the same sex can afford another, the men and women in this workshop will meet separately as well as together over a period of two weekends and four evenings. We will create an ambience of tenderness and support to provide opportunities to clarify the nature of who we are as men in the absence of women and who we are as women in the absence of men and what happens when we come together. The themes we will explore are our sexuality, our friendships, our body images, our coupling, our creativity, our relationship to power, our expectations of each other and ourselves. The workshop will be grounded in the techniques of gestalt, encounter, fantasy, massage, bioenergetics, journal work and psychosynthesis. It is especially suitable for people with previous group experience who are interested in the enduring aspects of personal growth.

This workshop will consist of two weekend workshops and four evening sessions: Monday—Thursday.

July 11-16

Human Consciousness & the New Physics
Jack Sarfatti, Saul-Paul Sirag & special guests:
Fritjof Capra, Peter Flessel, Nick Herbert, Dorothy Kelly, Julia Lynn, Michael Murphy, Fred Wolf & others

Residential five day workshop $290

"What is the nature of the world that it can be known?" This question posed by Emmanuel Kant, can be answered by saying: that which is knowable in the world has a structure that is the same as the structure of the mind. In this view physics is the investigation of the structure of the mind. That there are deep connections between the mind and the physical world is the guiding principle of the Physics Consciousness Research Group. We would like to share some of our explorations into these connections including: the big bang, blackholes, the nature of time, the quantum-connection, and DNA—the physics of life, evolution, and consciousness. As a special feature participants will experience a space-time fantasy trip. They will be enrolled as cadets in a scientifically accurate but imaginary star ship academy of the future. To provide a balance to this heady intellectual feast we will offer sensory relaxation, meditation, and yoga.

July 16-18

The Body & the Energy Body / George Leonard

Residential weekend workshop $120

Every human body has capabilities generally unknown in the present culture. Through simple body/mind/spirit exercises based on the concept of the human biofield or "energy body," participants will be introduced to some of these capabilities. They will practice centering, heightened awareness and blending (as in the Oriental art of aikido), and will thus learn alternative ways of dealing with everyday life situations—especially those involving tension and expectations. These experiences will be related to education, sports, healing and social transformation.

July 18-23

Gestalt Practice / Richard Price

Residential five day workshop $290

Perfect like Great Space
the Way has nothing lacking, nothing in excess.
Truly because of our accepting and rejecting
We have not the suchness of things.
—Sengtsan (3rd Zen Patriarch)

What is, is.
—Fritz Perls

Gestalt practice is a form—nonanalytic, noncoercive, nonjudgmental—evolving out of the work of Fritz Perls, relating that work to ways of personal clearing and development both ancient and modern. To the extent that awareness is made primary relative to action, gestalt practice has a strong relationship to some forms of meditation and visualization. In that emotional and energetic release and rebalancing are allowed and encouraged, the relation to some Reichian work is close.

The emphasis is *intra*personal rather than *inter*personal. Those who primarily wish interpersonal work are advised to attend an encounter rather than a gestalt group.

Participants are explicitly not "patients" but persons consenting actively to work (or play) in awareness. The "leader" functions to reflect, clarify, and flow with whatever emerges in this process. The aim is unfoldment, wholeness, growth rather than "adjustment," "cure," or "accomplishment."

Some sessions of the Sports and Consciousness: New Ideas and Training Routines workshop, led by Michael Murphy and Mike Spino will be open to participants of this workshop.

Suggested reading: Gestalt Therapy Verbatim (Perls); Tao Te Ching (Lao Tzu); Cutting Through Spiritual Materialsim (Chogyam Trungpa); The Power of Mindfulness (Nyanaponika Thera); Exploring the Crack in the Cosmic Egg (J C Pearce).

Sports & Consciousness: New Ideas & Training Routines
Michael Murphy & Mike Spino

Residential five day workshop $290

Focusing on running and meditation, this workshop will introduce methods of mind/body development being explored by Mike Spino and Michael Murphy. These methods will include various running gaits and tempos, muscle/skeletal exercises, breathing techniques, visualization and meditation exercises and some of the lore of mystical experience in sport. Ways in which these elements can be integrated into various training routines will be presented. There will also be discussions of altered states that occur in sport and conceptual frameworks with which to interpret them (including a senario of bodily transformations suggested by a study of the traditional Indian siddhis or yogic powers).

Some sessions of the Gestalt Practice workshop, led by Richard Price, will be open to participants of this workshop.

July 23-25

Experiencing the Magical Child /Joseph Chilton Pearce

Residential weekend workshop $120

In this weekend workshop, utilizing both discussion and experiential activities, Joseph Chilton Pearce will present his thesis that our mind-brain system is designed for functions radically different from the broader than current usage. An astonishing capacity for creative intelligence is built into our genes ready to unfold. Were this biological plan allowed to unfold, capacities of mind exemplified by Don Juan, the Yaqui Indian, Einstein or Jesus would be the norm rather than the exception. Joseph Pearce discusses this biological plan for development of the holistic person. Applications of the material for parents and teachers is also explored through group discussions and activities, as well as the opportunity to explore the Magical Child within us all. "Birth Without Violence" and other audiovisual materials are included in this workshop.

July 25-30

The Power of Dreams—An In-Depth Experience
Ann Faraday & John Wren-Lewis

Residential five day workshop $290

The early sessions of this workshop will be devoted to a general introduction and practical demonstration of dream work with the whole group. Participants will learn to understand their own unique dream symbolism and seek specific enlightenment from dream concerning personal problems, hidden life-scripts and creative endeavors. Special attention will be given to recognizing and integrating those split-off parts of the personality which sabotage our lives, and to the discovery of each person's own "transforming symbols" which release energy for regeneration. We shall also dicuss new insights about ESP in dreams, lucid dreams, high dreams and out-of-the-body experiences.

Participants will then practise the technique of dream-work in small groups, with the help of Ann and John. Experiences, problems and insights will be shared in the large group setting.

Leonard D Bearne and others will be available for massage by appointment for $12 per hour.

July 30-August 1

The Importance of Being: Up-Right / Betty Fuller

Residential weekend workshop $120

Our posture not only reflects our feelings, fixed attitudes and behaviors, it actually participates in their creation. Our postural stuckness also inhibits the expression of spontaneity. Awareness of posture—our relationship to the earth and the heavens and our function in the gravitational field—can lead to richer consciousness, enhanced self-image and a joyful assumption of responsibility for our lives and universe. A well-aligned, "free-floating" body helps us get off it! Functional Posture Training is Betty Fuller's synthesis of the work of a number of masters in body work with whom she has studied and trained: Will Schutz, Fritz Perls, Moshe Feldenkrais, Milton Trager, Lawrence LeShan, Dorothy Nolte, Jack Worsley, Jack Schwartz and Werner Erhard. The weekend includes sessions of this work as well as meditation, nutrition information, and such nitty-grittys as relieving aching joints, painful backs, and getting unstuck from the soap operas of our lives.

August 1-6

Stress & Cancer: One Team's Approach
O. Carl Simonton, MD, DABR, Stephanie Matthews, Jeanne Auchterberg, PhD

Training Sessions / Professional Workshop
Residential five day workshop $400

Professionals and paraprofessionals with interest in cancer, counselling or research in the area of the psychological aspects of cancer, or who deal with patients with life threatening diseases have been most responsive to this type presentation.

Topics covered in this training program will include:

1. The role of the mind in cancer therapy: an introduction by the staff and from a patient's perspective.
2. Dealing with the soma: the physical aspects of cancer.
3. The seeds of development: philosophical underpinnings and scientific foundations.
4. Demonstrations of current therapy techniques.
5. The image of disease and analysis.
6. Relaxation and imagery: experiential session.
7. The effect of therapy on therapists.
8. Time with a patient.
9. Do the ends justify the means? Our research.

August 6-8

Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain:
The Watercourse Way T'ai Chi
Al Chung-liang Huang

Residential weekend workshop $120

An introduction to t'ai chi and creative Taoist philosophy as explained and exemplified in the book, Tao: The Watercourse Way by the late Alan Watts and Al Chung-liang Huand, and in Huang's book, Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain. The meeting of East and West will be explored in terms of everyday living, of transforming intellectual understanding of the East into action, and of making useful applications to the way of life in the West.

". . . here it will become apparent to many who used to look down upon body as a hindrance or an encumbrance of the spirit, that the body in its very movements can be a deeper revelation of the essence of our being than all our religious and philosophical assumptions. What Al Huang demonstrates and teaches is that the inspired body is a manifestation of universal forces which flow through us, unless we block them by our arbitrary judgments and short-sighted aims and intentions. He teaches us to flow with the Tao and to restore the lost harmony of our lives."

Summer Programs At Westerbeke Ranch

August 13-15

Self-Acceptance / The Freedom to Be
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

Residential weekend workshop $120

Each of us has unique capacities to feel and express: tenderness and strength, anger and affection, autonomy and needfulness to allow the fullness and vibrance of each of these qualities determines how alive and satasfied we are.

In this workshop we will focus on how we diminish or affirm these essential qualities as they are expressed through our bodies, our sexuality, our creativity, our relationships to power, our friendships, and our expectations of ourselves and others. In an atmosphere of tenderness and support, we will clarify the nature of who we are and how we can best take care of ourselves, both here and on returning home. The workshop will be grounded in the techniques of gestalt, encounter, guided fantasy, massage, bioenergetics, and journal work.

August 15-20

Shamanic Healing & Power: An Experiential Workshop
Michael Harner in collaboration with Joan Halifax-Grof, Hidden Mountain, Barklie Henry, & Prem Das

Residential five day workshop $290

The writings of Carlos Castaneda will be the point of departure for an intensive exploration of ancient shamanic knowledge. Participants will be taught the basic techniques of shamanic power and healing used by North and South American Indian shamans as reinterpreted by the workshop leader for application within our own lives. The accumulation and utilization of shamanic power will be related to such subjects as altered states of consciousness and body awareness. Exercises will be conducted in the methods used by shamans to heal the sick, weak, and dispirited in primitive cultures.

August 20-27

Human Consciousness Institute
Arthur Hastings, Director

Intensive seven day workshop $385

This sixth annual summer institute on human consciousness features an intensive program on major topics in the study of consciousness, including:

- Biofeedback
- Hypnosis and healing
- Body energy fields
- Instrumentation for psi and "psychic" energy
- Transpersonal psychology
- Gestalt therapy
- Senoi dream work
- Parapsychology
- Theories of consciousness
- Trance states and paranormal healing

The format will be lectures, seminars and experiential work by expert researchers, practitioners and teachers, plus films on these topics. The program will include training in biofeedback, self-hypnosis and participation in ESP experiments.

Faculty will include: Frances Clark, Eleanor Criswell, Stanislav Grof, MD, Maryellen Haight, Arthur Hastings, Jim Hickman, Emmett Miller, MD, Brendan O'Regan, Lee Pulos, Russell Wills.

When applying please tell us about yourself and your interest in the program.

August 27-29

God, Sexual Energy & Your Body / Gabrielle Roth

Residential weekend workshop $120

Sexual energy is a key which opens the door between spirit and matter. This workshop is designed to penetrate the religious/sexual gap as it exists in our consciousness, attitudes and actions. We will use sound, movement, breathing, massage, and music to awaken our experience of the Self. To deepen the experience we want all participants to spend the weekend in celibacy. In order to move through the barriers we have about making deep and meaningful contact with ourSelves and others we need to develop the willingness to serve ourSelves and learn to be in relationship with the pressure of sexual performance.

August 29-September 3

Residential five day workshop $290

The ways we contact and communicate with ourselves and with ourselves and with others determine the kind of world that we live in. When we change these ways we can actually change our world. This is what the workshop is about.

Our emphasis is on the relationship between individual process and group process. Our concern is with developing a way of being in which one's senses are open and on's contacting of others is flexible. The learning which takes place occurs with a group of individuals who share and change in relation to each other. Emphasis is placed upon body in relation to mind.

September 3-6

Labor Day Weekend with Gregory Bateson & Werner Erhard

Residential workshop beginning Friday afternoon September 3 through Monday afternoon September 6. $225.

Center for Energetic Studies

for the Study of the Life of the Body

The Center for Energetic Studies, under the direction of Stanley Keleman, is a program of teaching, workshops, and seminars concerning body process as the basis for how individuals form both themselves and their worlds.

The Center seeks to understand the life of the body. We are evolving ways to help persons gain experience and re-education in basic biological learning. This learning enhances emotional and psychological perception and expression. Individual identity as well as the very power of living lies in the continual forming and reforming of our bodies, and therefore ourselves.

For information and registration concerning Center programs, contact:

July 10-18
Summer Institute with Stanley Keleman

Individuation is an emotional process, grounded in the biological life. This nine-day institute will focus on daily sessions in bioenergetic exercise that encourages one's excitement, feelings and image-making processes. From this place of heightened biological awareness, we can learn how the body speaks its mind through expression and self-forming. Journal keeping, in addition to the physical exercises, is an integral part of this exploration in self-education.

The workshop meets daily, Saturday, July 10 through Sunday, July 18, in Berkeley, California. Tuition is $400; room and meals (optional) is $124. Please include a short statement about your expectations for the program and a nonrefundable deposit of $150. (This summer institute is not training of any kind).

August 2-5
Body & Identity / Ian Grand

Four-evening workshop $50

This evening program focuses on the relationship between bodily attitudes and identity using approaches developed at the Center. We will work with the bodily identity we maintain in the world, and the feelings that emerge as we experience ourselves differently.

Evenings; August 2, 3, 4, 5, from 7-10 pm.

August 28
Movement/Dance / Tamara Greenberg

One-day workshop $25

Movement will be used to intensify the experience of ourselves. Through expressive movement we will attempt to follow our process of self-formation—how we are present in the world and how we approach and withdraw from contact.

September 18-19
Open Bioenergetic Workshop / Paul Aikin

Weekend workshop in Davis, California $50

Through working individually and in a group with procedures developed at the Center, this workshop will deal with the way we live in our bodies and express our emotions.

Growth Through Risk-Taking
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

This workshop provides the opportunity for the group members to come to terms with the definitions by which they live. Through a series of structured risk-taking situations, the use of gestalt, role playing, fantasy, and encounter techniques, the participants can accept or transcend the boundaries from which they approach the world. $290 + $2 video fee.

Change: The Dynamic of Being Who You Are
Gabrielle Roth

In everything is the seed of its apparent opposite. In stillness there is motion; in man there is woman. Balance comes when we experience, express and embrace our total BEING. From the center of our bodies we will develop our willingness to be present for ourselves and others in a way that is a spontaneous and free flowing expression of our uniqueness. Rooted in our own experience we will explore balance and change in our relationships. $290 + $2 video fee.

Advanced Gestalt / Donald Barenfeld

It is possible to increase awareness and thereby discover how we block our excitement, nourishment, contact, and creativity. From this awareness might flow suggestions of new ways to experiment with being in the world, and hopefully an awakening of appreciation for how we are. This focus will allow participants to re-identify with their energy lost to disowned parts and should provide a nourishing context for their reclamation.

This workshop is open to those with prior gestalt experience. $290 + $2 video fee.

July 4-11

Gestalt Practice / Richard & Christine Price

Perfect like Great Space
the Way has nothing lacking, nothing in excess.
Truly because of our accepting and rejecting
We have not the suchness of things.
—Sengtsan (3rd Zen Patriarch)

What is, is.
—Fritz Perls

Gestalt practice is a form—nonanalytic, noncoercive, nonjudgmental—evolving out of the work of Fritz Perls, relating that work to ways of personal clearing and development both ancient and modern. To the extent that awareness is made primary relative to action, gestalt practice has a strong relationship to some forms of meditation and visualization. In that emotional and energetic release and rebalancing are allowed and encouraged, the relation to some Reichian work is close.

The emphasis is *intra*personal rather than *inter*personal. Those who primarily wish interpersonal work are advised to attend an encounter rather than a gestalt group.

Participants are explicitly not "patients" but persons consenting actively to work (or play) in awareness. The "leader" functions to reflect, clarify, and flow with whatever emerges in this process. The aim is unfoldment, wholeness, growth rather than "adjustment," "cure," or "accomplishment."

Suggested reading: Gestalt Therapy Verbatim (Perls); Tao Te Ching (Lao Tzu); Cutting Through Spiritual Materialism (Chogyam Trungpa); The Power of Mindfulness (Nyanaponika Thera); Exploring the Crack in the Cosmic Egg (J C Pearce). $370

Massage Intensive / The Esalen Massage Crew

The Esalen massage crew, with its unique variety of approaches and styles, will teach basic techniques for giving and receiving massage, both for immediate relaxation of tension and as a way of caring. Emphasis here is on deepening the quality of touch-communication and heightening awareness of the energy flow between the body in motion and the body at rest.

The group will meet daily at the mineral baths. Limited to 16. $120

Body Energy—A Path to Entrapment or Freedom Hector Prestera

This workshop will focus on the use of insights gained from Reich, Rolf, gestalt, basic encounter, body exercises, self encounter, color therapy, and acupuncture to find a window to the inner real self. Body work and energy flow will be the central core of the week. $290

July 11-16 & July 18-23

On Being Up—Right! / Betty Fuller

Physical and mental posture—our attitudes or ways we hold ourselves in the world—are matters of choice once we liberate our selves from the dead weight, blocks and barriers we have around in "shoulds," "oughts," and "have to's." In this workshop we'll complete some of the unfinished business of the past, get clear on what we want and handle the soap opera of the present with some good humored editing and re-writes! Among the tools to be used are gestalt, psychodrama, theater games, psychosynthesis and encounter. We'll also make friends with gravity and befriend our aching backs and joints with daily sessions of feldenkrais, movement, Trager mentastics, dance, music, meditation, and laughter. Participants may attend either or both July five-day workshops; the weekend in between is open for taking other workshops at the regular workshop fee. $290 per five-day period.

Weekend of July 16-18

Re-Owning Your Power: Renewal & Personal Awakening Through the Physical Experience / Dyveke Spino

As cycles of change press upon us, we need tools to develop our inner power of endurance, flexibility, and sense of self-transcendence. This workshop will reawaken your natural physical spirit through five areas of conditioning of mind/body/spirit. Daily activities will be appropriate for people at all levels of fitness, blended with meditations and massage at the Esalen baths.

Each person will receive a personalized training consultation to allow continuing use of these techniques upon leaving. $120

Exploring the Mind / Chris Feldmann O'Reilly

This workshop will explore the uses and limitations of the mind for greater consciousness. One approach will be working towards discrimination between different types of non-conceptual mental experience. Such discrimination can give you clear information on whether your mind is working for you or against you. The mind can be an ally. Group participants will be given feedback on their mind states and processes through the leader's direct perceptions. $120 + $2 video fee.

God, Sexual Energy & Your Body / Gabrielle Roth

Sexual energy is the key which opens the door for us between spirit and matter. This workshop is designed to penetrate the religious / sexual gap as it exists in our consciousness, attitudes and actions. We will use sound, movement, breathing, massage, and music as meditation tools to awaken our experience of the self. We will be working on a very deep level—please be prepared to spend the weekend in celibacy. In order to move through the barriers we have about making deep and meaningful contact with our selves and others we need to have the security of exploring our selves without the pressure of sexual performance. This work is rooted in shamanism and springs from a psychic source through Gabrielle. $120 + $2 video fee.

Re-mythologizing Religion & Psychology A Workshop in Archetypal Psychology John Raphael Staude

Drawing on recent developments in Jungian and transpersonal psychology as well as comparative mythology, I will present a way of using classical mythology (western and eastern) to find meaning in our life experience and culture.

Recommended reading before the workshop: Edith Hamilton, Mythology or James Hillman, Revisioning Psychology (Harper & Row, 1975) $120 + $2 video fee.

Week of July 18-23

Basic Training in Gestalt / George & Judith Brown

Basic gestalt skills are essential for a productive growth relationship and can be highly useful for any interpersonal relationship. These skills include awareness, contact functions, stating the obvious, contact-withdrawal, polarities and, to some degree, making the implicit explicit. All people-helping professionals (social workers, doctors, nurses, teachers, as well as psychotherapists) along with lawyers, businessmen, etc. can make use of these skills. There will be both demonstrations and opportunity to work in the trainer role under supervision. $290

Personal Style & Personal Gestalt / Jack Downing

Each of us has our own individual life style, our personal gestalt characterizing each phase of our life. We can be aware of the way movement relates to interpersonal relationship, of how body chemistry determines our life goals. Drawing our own major life portrait will be the object of this workshop, using techniques newly invented for this purpose, as well as traditional methods such as behavioral feedback, group interaction, and gestalt uncovering and integrating methods. In order that the group can develop as fast as possible, please come only if you have had previous group experience. $320

The Hero's Journey: A Holistic Approach to Personal Transformation / Paul Rebillot

The hero's journey is a dynamic form that has been developed to help facilitate people through major life changes. Your personal world is viewed through the lens of fantasy, dramatized, interpreted, and experienced in a rite of passage based on one of the most universal structures mankind has found to express this metamorphosis: the myth of the hero.

Your hero is structured from the absolute yes, and your demon from the absolute no of your personality, externalizing your inner conflict. The two confront each other on the hero's journey; a dramatic struggle ensues until a synthesis of the previously opposing forces is reached.

Bring musical instruments, costumes, or anything else you would like to help intensify the festive aspects of the workshop. $290

July 18-25

Rites of Passage: A Seven Day Pilgrimage Through the Big Sur Wilderness David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

The workshop is intended to create an experience which will support and intensify the simplification and cleansing necessary for a greater sense of personal clarity and grace.

We will pay attention to and take care of ourselves through a variety of disciplines and forms, including meditation, gestalt, intuitional sensing, as well as the more traditional wilderness skills. The emphasis will be on creating a richer, more harmonious balance between the mental, physical, and spiritual realms of existence.

Registration for the workshop should be at least two weeks in advance so that proper advance preparations and information can be sent regarding equipment and exercise. $220

Food for Thought

What happens in an Esalen group? Below we present a partial transcription of a group session with Gabrielle Roth. On page three Beverly Silverman describes her experience of the first three days of a five day group.

Let's begin with just taking a look at some of the basic attitudes that I am dealing with and from there we can move into new spaces. If we look at ourselves as a circle, a unity, a necklace . . . , we see that's simply what we are. If we look around, we'll see that everybody has a body. Just notice that you are the same, that you are "like" everybody else. Just look around and see that. You have the same type of apparatus; the same type of physical instrument. So, we're all alike. We all have hair, eyes, hands . . . we all have bodies. We have that in common. The structure is basically the same: two arms, two legs . . . there are some very clear similarities. We really are alike. We're not strangers in a strange land.

Now then, shift your awareness and look around and see how different everybody is from you; how totally different each person here is. Look at that. Each person here is very, very different. Each person here has a form which is totally unique. We all have a form and each form is totally unique. Notice that. Have you ever seen one just like you anywhere? I would surmise that each one of us is completely unique. It's not a thing that we're achieving or moving toward, it's something that we're starting with. We're starting from a point of being completely the same and totally different.

As we begin to accept these differences then we begin to accept life. Life is a moving and changing experience and we're never going to KNOW anybody. The ultimate is that we can expect to know ourselves. So, primarily what we're dealing with is allowing the acceptance of that uniqueness and that sameness to move into experience: into our experience of ourselves, into our experience of each other and into our experience of our surroundings. We'll allow our uniqueness and our sameness to move through our experience. When it's doing that, then we're coming from a place of relative security. We are secure in the realization that we will be constantly changing and secure in the realization that everything around us will be constantly changing. That is the only security that we will find. So a lot of what we're doing in this room is familiarizing ourselves with change and our attitudes and resistance towards change. Change and life are almost synonymous.

Here I am. This is my body. I am not my body. I can look at my body as the glove that fits over my consciousness. This body is simply a physical manifestation of all my thoughts, attitudes and expectations about life. That's all this body is. It is the form of me. It is the form of my substance. It is my mind in living form. It would be ridiculous to talk about the mind or the body separately, because it's simply a unit. This is my mind in form. I have, in this body, just now created an attitude. I can close my attitude. I can open my attitude. I can tense my attitude. I can relax my attitude. You will see it. Whatever I do, you will see it if you choose to see it. If you listen, you will hear it. We cannot lie about who we are because who we are is constantly going on. We can pretend that we can lie about who we are, but no-body has ever successfully done that to you, have they? You always know when someone is lying to you because the truth is evident always. So we see, there is no reason to do that. It is unsuccessful and it does not work. We may as well constantly start from a position of truth. You see, it's OK to be screwed up. Everybody is. These are the little problems and barriers we create so that we can keep expanding and moving our consciousness toward more life. If we start off from a position of "I'm afraid" or "I'm shy", . . . if we start off allowing that, then it changes. If we don't ever allow space for ourselves, to be who we are, then we just get stuck. Pretending doesn't work. If I'm shy and I pretend that I'm aggressive, then that aggressive pretense is going to take me into another pretense and another pretense. My shyness is going to keep getting pushed back in the corner and pretty soon I'll find myself doing something I NEVER wanted to do, all because of that beginning point. If I had just become my shyness then I could move to a new position. A lot of the space we're going to create is just an opportunity for you to experience who you are.

The fascinating thing that I would like to bring up at this moment is that it does not take 15 years to change. It does not take a system. There is no one who has a form that will work faster than your willingness to let go of all that goddamn bullshit that you're holding on to. If it's really worth being the victim, then stay the victim. If you're really attached to the position that life is doing it to you; that you are in fact the victim of circumstance, your mother, your father, your own judgmental system, etc., etc., etc., then that's your choice. Or we can move through all that stuff. See, I know who you are. I know that you're not the victim, so there would be no sense in even presenting that one to me. I, absolutely, with all certainty, know that that is not who you are. I also know that you can change with the snap of a finger. I am absolutely living proof of it. It's like this whole thing about dance and form. I swear to God that when I realized that I really wanted to dance and I made that choice about who was going to dance, me or you, I decided that you were and that I was going to be here to change the records. I chose to do that rather than take 8 or 9 hours of dance classes a day which is one of my favorite loves. I see now that I have enough life experience to review myself. It's amazing that we're inside out. I made the choice to move towards substance as opposed to form and I dance more freely in life than I ever would have even if I'd had a million lessons and a billion teachers and total dedication to working on it every day. I didn't know that when I invested my energy in this way. It's just the way it turned out. You can do tai chi without ever taking a tai chi class. You can be a mime just by being who you are. You can be a mover just by moving as you are. We are all these things. Form is simply a stepping stone to substance. My method is to go directly to substance. None of the forms work any better than any other. If you want to, you can go to the source of who you are instantaneously. That's the name of the game that we'll play and we will call it movement.

A Choice Workshop: The Act of Willing / Lenore Lefer

Many of us tend to make our life choices without full awareness. We sometimes wait, decide impulsively, reactively, hastily, or without purpose. The more conscious we are of the act of choosing, the more we open ourselves to the experience of joy and freedom. Using the framework of psychosynthesis, we will explore how we can choose using our will. The aim is towards learning the process of making conscious choices, thereby taking responsibility for our life's purpose and direction. $120

Centering, Self-Awareness, & the Spirit of Play
Bob Kriegel

This workshop will teach centering: the process of finding that calm place within ourselves that is in balance and harmony. Active games of all types—including energy games, street and playground games, theater games, new games, and new approaches to traditional sports—will be used for experiencing "center" and for exploring self-awareness. We will explore how game behavior magnifies our reaction patterns, giving us a clearer, more vivid picture of ourselves. We will also use gestalt, role playing, guided fantasy, and psychosynthesis techniques to bring our new awareness to a more conscious level. $120

Opening the Feelings: A Neo-Reichian Radix Workshop

Emmett & Nitza Miller

For workshop description see August 27-29. $120 + $2 video fee.

Week of July 25-30

A Stone-Carving Gestalt Workshop
Frank Rubenfeld & Elaine Rapp

Stone is the most "here & now" art medium since it cannot be programmed. Shuttling from your process to the stones' reality and back, your own myths and metaphors emerge before you. Gestalting your becoming and finished creations, you gain the opportunity to expand your consciousness, and increase your response-ability. No talent or previous art experience is necessary to participate in this workshop.

Stone and tools will be provided. Bring comfortable work clothing. $290 + $10 materials fee.

You & Universal Motion / Robert Nadeau

The physical conscious system operates in direct relationship to a larger energy activity or universal motion. It is important to recognize this activity as a "friend" and learn to work in harmony with it. We will explore energy and our "marriage" with it through meditation, centering, and body movement. $290

Open Psychodrama Encounter / Walt & Maurica Anderson

This workshop is a flexible weekend's work and play using a variety of encounter, gestalt, and body-movement approaches, with emphasis on psychodrama—the enactment of improvised life scenes as a way of expressing feelings, gaining insight, working through interpersonal conflicts, developing more openness and spontaneity, and having fun. The degree of active involvement is up to the individual. $120

To Be Alive is a Very Moving Experience / Poldi Orlando

No matter how still you are, there is movement and pulsation within and around you. The aim of this workshop is to explore the rhythm and vibration of aliveness. The vehicle is movement—motion and emotion expressed through the body, through art media, and the word. It is not necessary to be an artist to express oneself through art. Gestalt will be utilized to process what emerges. $120

Woman to Woman / Man to Man
Dee Mundschenk David Schiffman

"The woman that most needs liberating is the woman in every man, and the man that most needs liberating is the man in every woman."
—Rev. William Sloan Coffin

Taking advantage of the natural affinity and support that people of the same sex can afford one another, the men and women in this workshop will meet separately as well as together. We will create an ambience of tenderness and support to provide opportunities to clarify the nature of who we are as men in the absence of women and who we are as women in the absence of men and what happens when we come together. The themes we will explore are our sexuality, our friendships, our body images, our coupling, our creativity, our relationship to power, our expectations of each other. The workshop will be grounded in the techniques of gestalt, encounter, fantasy, massage, and bioenergetics. $290 + $2 video fee.

Gestalt Practice / Richard & Christine Price

For workshop description see July 4-11. $290

Music & the Healing Arts / Charles Lloyd, Georgia Kelly & other guest leaders / Co-ordinated by Myrtle Ratcliffe

Several musicians whose similarity lies in the use of their music in healing will present their approaches to health through music, toning, tuning as well as meditation, diet, exercise, astrology and massage. The week will also include performances from the artists and will appeal to teachers and musicians as well as those who appreciate the processes of creativity and healing. $290

Group Process for Professionals / John & Ann Heider

This workshop will explore the role of the group leader. Experiential work will be followed by discussion of what the leader has done and how he has done it. Emphasis will be placed on

- formation of the group field
- how to follow individual process
- how to cope with catharsis
- how to ground the group
- maintenance of leader's sanity

The format will be experiential and will include encounter, gestalt, body work and meditation. $290

Weekend of August 6-8

Growth Through Risk-Taking
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

This workshop provides the opportunity for the group members to come to terms with the definitions by which they live. Through a series of structured risk-taking situations, the use of gestalt, role playing, fantasy, and encounter techniques, the participants can accept or transcend the boundaries from which they approach the world. $120

Turning In / Poonam Lowe

The emphasis in this weekend will be on opening up our bodies and getting in touch with the reality of who we are. We shall be using the meditation methods of Bhagwan Rajneesh which are designed to penetrate into the unconscious. We shall also spend time integrating, talking and where necessary, working individually to help participants go deeper into the meditations. In Bhagwan's work we are not interested in miracles, instant highs or trips. We are interested in deep and basic growth, in that change of perspective which opens up your vast potential. If you are ready to take the jump, to risk, that is what this weekend will mean to you. $120

Body Awareness, Moving, Relaxation & Vitality
Barbara Clemans

Fixed patterns of movement create tension in the body and rigidity in the mind. We will experience new ways to move which are functional with constant focus on breath and directed awareness of body sensation. Massage with directed energy will heighten our sensation of ourselves and others, allowing for dissolution of stress and increased vitality. We will use feldenkrais movement, sensing, meridian awareness, touch and visualization with music. $120

Men in a Changing World / Janet Lederman

Through new and perhaps unfamiliar behaviors and responses we may experience greater flexibility and harmony in being with ourselves and in relating to a changing world. $120

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

Coordinated by Janet Zuckerman

These workshops are designed for people who have not previously been to Esalen/Big Sur. The emphasis is on finding those approaches to self-awareness that work most effectively for the individual participant. Some of the following experiences are available at each Experiencing Esalen workshop: sensory awareness, gestalt awareness training, encounter, theater games, guided fantasy, meditation, bioenergetics, massage. There is time to experience and explore the natural magnificence of the Big Sur coast.

Contact, Communication & Relationship: A Workshop for Professionals
Julian & Beverly Silverman

Our emphasis is on the relationship between individual process and group process. Our concern is with developing a way of being in which one's senses are open and one's contacting of others flexible. The learning which takes place occurs with a group of individuals who share and change in relation to each other. Emphasis is placed upon body in relationship to mind. $290

Psychomotor Workshop / Albert & Diane Pesso

Psychomotor is an action-oriented form of emotional re-education that is based on the theory that a major route to the unconscious is through the body. Feelings, emotions and states of mind affect the way we move, act and hold ourselves. The Pessos have found it possible, using PSP (Pesso System Psychomotor) techniques, to enter deeply into the memory and facilitate the re-experiencing of essential past events. Positive accommodators as ideal good parents offer new emotional experiences which permit new behaviors. One can then transcend one's past without denying or forgetting it.

Participants will be familiarized with the theoretical and experiential levels of Psychomotor therapy as well as with Psychomotor exercises. $290

Living Centered / Roberta DeLong Miller

Most of us have experienced our center at one time or another: the feeling of joy, fullness, peace, knowledge, power, and authenticity. But we lose it in the context of our daily lives, and most noticeably, in relationships. This workshop will teach how to hold your center in any given situation with people. It will outline patterns of healthy and unhealthy energy flow. It will show how the environment mirrors your own ego choices, reflecting qualities you believe have substance but which, in fact, do not. It will, most importantly, help you develop a love force within your body that dissolves the ego and enables you to find a new kind of truth and freedom.

Methods are body oriented. Each session begins with guided meditation, based on the vibrations of group members. Normally that is followed by pair exercises, moving and still, which teach alternatives for the use of body energy. There will be both group and individual work, with some psychic help from the leader. $290

An Integrative Approach to Self Actualization
Ilana Rubenfeld

The sea always has waves . . . waves are the sea . . . sea and waves are one. To speak of waves apart from the dea is a delusion—so mind and body are one!

The focus in this workshop will be on experiencing one's own body and emotions as a total organism. Emotions and memories are often stored in our bodies, resulting in tension and imbalance. A unique blend of gestalt, Alexander technique, and feldenkrais exercises will be used as a gateway to contacting, expressing, and working through deep feelings. Massage staff will be on hand to assist the workshop.

We have the choice to contact ourselves and each other with joy, sadness, compassion, humor, ideas, and with the body—the whole person. $290

The Innerspaces of Running / Mike Spino

Focusing on the running experience, this workshop will introduce a holistic method of mind/body development. Each participant will be taught various running gaits and tempos, muscle/skeletal exercises, breathing techniques, and the philosophy and lore related to optimum physical fitness. There will be special emphasis on guided fantasy, inner space development, and creativity in quest for extraordinary experiences. Each person will receive an individual consultation and have the opportunity to continue towards personal goals on an ongoing basis. $120

Opening to Your Inner Self Through Body-Energetics
Hector Prestera

Using techniques from Reich, gestalt, direct core encounter, acupuncture and energy release systems, such as vital center mantras the individual will be helped to open to himself and others. $120

Ways of Being / George Leonard

Rarely, in a society dedicated to doing, are we offered instruction in ways of being. Yet, our inner state (centering, breathing, energy awareness) has profound influence on the outcome of all our action. In this workshop, participants will experience alternative ways of being. Through simple mental and physical exercises derived from the art of aikido, they will practice centering, relaxation and heightened awareness, and will be introduced to useful ways of dealing with everyday life situations—especially those involving tension and expectation. There will also be discussion of these experiences as they relate to education, sports and social tranformation. $120

Expansion of Being Through Yoga
Jinendra Jain & Katherine Da Silva Jain

We need to use all our inner resources to live more satisfying lives. Yoga both enhances our existing powers and unfolds our latent potentials. This workshop is designed to cover a holistic program in yoga. It will impart a philosophy as well as a technique to discover and utilize resilience of body, quietness of mind, joy of heart, refinement of intelligence and creativity of soul. $120

Energy: Meditation Self Regulation Synthesis
Bernard Gunther

We are all almost unlimited sources of joyous energy; we squander many of these resources. Blocked by fear, habit, and limitation, we dam ourselves in destructive energy expression: various forms of mental-physical-emotional symptoms and illness. In this workshop we will learn to release, redirect, and reintegrate behavior patterns through the use of breathing, guided fantasies, chakra meditation, awareness, and hypnosis. The experience will be a synthesis of gestalt, yoga, psychosynthesis, and movement with emphasis on an individual program of these methods that can be used in daily life. $290

Ways of Being at Esalen

Work-Study Program

A residential program within the working context of the Esalen Community.

The focus:
- Time, space and energy
- Perception/Reception
- Sense (and non-sense) awareness
- The self as a sensory system
- Relatedness (relativity)
- Contact and communication
- Exploring language

Group sessions with Janet Lederman, Christine Price, Richard Price, Beverly Silverman, Julian Silverman and Janet Zuckerman will be held using the working program as a launching pad to "un-cover your self."

Participants work 32 hours per week at such jobs as gardening, maintenance, office, kitchen duties, etc. Scheduling consideration is given to the community labor needs and work assignments are made according to these requirements.

Housing is at the South Coast Living Center, one and a half miles north of the Hot Springs property, with shared accommodations of up to three persons to a room. The program lasts 28 days beginning on a Sunday: four weeks and four weekends at a basic cost of $300. A new program begins every four weeks.

If interested, please apply as early as possible to Elaine Simon; only a limited number of applicants are accepted.

Professional services such as massage, Rolfing and acupuncture are available at staff rates. Arrangements can be made through the office.

Ongoing Residential Program

Offered from September through May, the Ongoing Residential Program is designed for those who would like to have time and space in the Esalen environment for an intensive workshop program over a long term. A minimum stay: 26 days (or four "weeks" and three weekends).

Participants may select any of the five-day workshops offered during their stay. Weekend workshops are available at special prices. Some programs are cancelled, so second choices are advised. Some special staff programs will also be open to residents. Cost: $960 per 26-day period.

South Coast Center

The living center is slowly evolving into a participatory environment

- vital
- changing
- designing, redesigning inner and outer space with residents responsible for their own evolution.

The South Coast Center, located a mile and a half north of Esalen, is a living center for people who would like to be in contact with Esalen and its facilities but who are not interested in an intensive workshop program. Studios (room, balcony, and bath) are available for $350 per month. A monthly meal ticket may be purchased at Esalen for $200 and residents may set up light cooking facilities in their rooms for preparing their own meals. As part of our program of integrating residents into the working community, South Coast residents are asked to contribute eight hours per week of work to the community. In addition, due to the large number of people who want to be at South Coast, we have put a limit of three months on all South Coast residencies. South Coast studios may be reserved through the Esalen/Big Sur office.

Sleeping Bag Group Weekends

The sleeping bag group is another way of being at Esalen—it has a life of it's own.

Experience the place—with it's hidden moments of beauty and surprise, the baths, the people, YOU. Members of the staff will accompany and share with you some of what they have learned living here at Esalen.

These weekends are offered from September through May. The charge is $60 per person for 10-14 people. You will be living together in one room. Bring your sleeping bags. Meals are provided starting Friday dinner through Sunday lunch. Send inquiries to: Janet Zuckerman, Sleeping Bag Groups, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

Energy Release & Integration Through Bioenergetics
Alan Schwartz

Read the description of the weeklong workshop (see August 22-27). This weekend will concentrate on releasing blocked energy and integrating resulting awareness on the emotional and mental levels against the gestalt foreground. The weekend should be thought of as an introduction to the concept of energy flow and its relation to a stronger sense of self. $120

Opening the Feelings

RADIX NEO-REICHIAN WORKSHOPS
(formerly Interscience Workshops)

To grow in the capacity to experience and express deep feeling, to connect up with oneself, and to contact others is the aim of this series of workshops which employ neo-Reichian techniques of emotional release. The Radix Intensive, a period of individual work within a small group setting, is practiced by Charles and Erica Kelley and their staff at the Radix Work Shop. The Intensive, like other neo-Reichian techniques used in these workshops, grew from the discovery by Charles Kelley's teacher, Wilhelm Reich, of the way in which feeling is rooted in the flow of energy in the body, and is blocked by chronic muscular contractions which Reich called the muscular armor. Freeing the armor enables the student to open feeling that is buried and to soften and free feeling that is too strong and has been held in for fear of explosion.

In these workshops armor is softened by simultaneous work on the character and body, using techniques not only from Reich, but also from bioenergetics, sensory awareness, and other body-oriented approaches. Groups will be kept small—never more than eight per leader—so that significant individual attention can be given. Grief or pain, fear, and rage that have been held in since childhood emerge in these workshops. As the participant accepts and works through these negative feelings, he/she discovers a new capacity for pleasure, trust, and love. In time the sexual experience changes profoundly as tender and sexual feelings for the mate intensify and merge.

SCHEDULE:

July 23–25	Siri Mishler, David Sherman, & Jay Mikesell
Aug 29–Sept 3	Charles Kelley, Lara Amber, & Ed Parkinson
Oct 24–29	Elaine Warburton, Bob Meyers, & Renan Sercerz

The Feldenkrais Method:
A Psychophysical Education Through Body Movements
Judith Stransky

Dr Moshe Feldenkrais has originated and developed an impressive method of re-educating the total being and tapping our unused potential through the means of body exercises and movement that lead to an expansion of awareness, and to a body-mind oriented to, and capable of, a greater range of experience. The exercises also involve integration of the physical and the mental, release of fixed habits that restrict us, differentiation of parts of the body, relaxation and balance, improvement in alignment, and lead to a suppleness beyond what one would believe is possible. The approach is through pleasure, not strain, combined with breathing techniques. $120

The Energetic Foreground:
A Synthesis of Bioenergetics & Gestalt
Alan Schwartz

The energetic foreground synthesizes the philosophies of bioenergetic and gestalt therapies. Energy is movement. When movement is blocked, the organism cannot fuction to nourish the person towards a mature sense of self. This workshop will move in the direction of awareness by attempting to work through energy blocks. This release will provide a person with the opportunity to integrate body-feelings-mind into a total sense of what he / she is as an organism. Recommended for teachers, those in mental health professions, and all who are committed to growing. $290 + $2 video fee.

A Workshop with John & Toni Lilly

$290

Trance & Dance:
Selective Awareness, Movement & Self Hypnosis
Emmett & Nitza Miller

An experiential workshop for professionals and for non professionals who have already begun their excursions into the world of imagery and movement, this workshop will include further explorations of inner and outer spaces. We will focus on the resolution of personal blocks and the development of means to increase sensitivity, heighten awareness and produce desirable states of consciousness. We will also work with dyads and explore ways of applying the techniques of hypnosis and movement in everyday life. $290 + $2 video fee.

August 22-29
Open Gestalt Week / Frank Rubenfeld

Guided fantasies, "hot-seat" work, and structured exercises will all be part of this week-long gestalt experience. Participants will also learn massage as another way of "keeping in touch" with themselves and others. $410

Weekend of August 27-29

One Body: Massage for Couples
Jaime Morton & Myrtle Ratcliffe

We will explore the concept of one body: the creative/receptive, the male/female, the giving/receiving polarities all becoming one in the energy exchange during massage. We will work with the energy body using deep relaxation, breath awareness and integrated massage techniques. $120 per person.

Centering / Robert Nadeau

Being centered is working in harmony with yourself. It is applicable in everything—movement, sports, working, teaching, meditation—all aspects of living. We'll learn to recognize and function from center in the midst of daily activities and pressures. $120

Self-Hypnosis, Selective Awareness & Movement
Emmett & Nitza Miller

Movement requires the use of muscular activity in varying degrees of intensity. So, too, thought processes and interpersonal communication proceed through stages of higher and lower energy. Most of our personal and social difficulties (symptoms, unwanted emotions, maladaptive habit patterns) can be eased when we learn to react in accordance with and in response to our internal and external environment.

In this workshop we will learn and apply the principles of self-hypnosis and selective awareness, as well as those of dance and movement therapy, to expand our self-awareness and the ability to adjust our minds and bodies to changing experiences. $120 + $2 video fee.

Psychosynthesis: Choosing to Change / Harry Sloan

At the core of the process of change is discovering that something new is trying to emerge and choosing to integrate this new energy into our daily lives. Frequently, in the process there are parts of us that do not nourish change. They are resistant, retarding movement towards what is emerging. This program will combine individual work within the group setting and discussion of principles and concepts inherent in nourishing the process of change. Personal work will stress learning to allow change by exploring the implications of our choices and how they catalyze or retard the expression of our emerging self. $290

Tuning In / Janet Zuckerman

Many of us are operating as tape recorders. We switch on in the morning at "high" or "low" speed and play our tapes in response to the buttons being pushed by people or events. We are vaguely aware that life seems repetitive, or dull, that time is often something to be gotten through instead of savored, but this awareness is lost in the "noise" and business of day to day living.

This weekend will be devoted to bringing our attention to what we are doing—how we are really acting and thinking. Once we are aware of our tapes, we can go off automatic and begin to enjoy our interactions with one another. We will be using gestalt process, encounter, sensory awareness, and other techniques to tune in to ourselves and each other. $120

Quantum
Psychology Workshop

Psychology and models for consciousness have been largely formulated in terms of metaphors originating in the seventeenth century mechanics of Newton and the nineteenth century electro-magnetic field theory of Maxwell. The time is long overdue for the integration of the expanded world view of post-Einsteinian quantum physics into the everyday world of people exploring the nature of consciousness.

We shall present the basic ideas of quantum and relativity physics in imaginative and entertaining ways. Relativity is based on a particular way of communicating. Quantum mechanics arises out of fundamental limitations placed on our control of the world. The second law of thermodynamics places a price in free energy on every bit of knowledge we acquire. A new kind of non-Boolean "quantum logic" applies to the actions of atoms and, perhaps, to the actions of human beings. Why does time appear to flow from past to future? What is the physics of life? How does form arise out of chaos? Are there deep archetypal structures acting as generative principles common both to physics and to psychologies of consciousness? These are the kinds of questions to be discussed and experienced in the workshop.

The workshop is recommended for physicists, psychologists, ministers, and teachers (high school and above) and all laymen with a serious interst in an intellectual understanding of the seminal problems at the "epistemic edge" between mind and matter.

Leaders:

Dr. Nick Herbert	CORE, Boulder Creek, CA
Dr. John King	Professor of Physics, San Diego State University
Dr. Jack Sarfatti	Director, Physics/Consciousness Research Group, San Francisco
Saul-Paul Sirag	Institute for Study of Consciousness, Berkeley

Exploring Self-Acceptance
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

The focus of this workshop is the creation of a more positive and open-ended self concept. Through the use of structured risk-taking situations, gestalt, role-playing, fantasy, and encounter techniques, participants can accept or transcend the self-imposed boundaries from which they approach the world. Emphasis is on searching out unique personality strengths, individual capacities, and latent powers as a means of achieving productive, creative functioning.

Contact & Intimacy / Barbara Clemans & Ken Schrage

In this workshop we will combine our individual dynamics; Barbara emphasizing somatic process; Ken, psychological process in one environment. The focus on the body will be one of ease, using feldenkrais movement, sensing, massage and energy awareness to melt and dissolve impasses within us and between us.

Greater physical spontaneity will heighten our exploration of the interpersonal and intrapersonal psychological process: capacity for contact, withdrawal, receptivity, connectedness, responsiveness and our willingness to feel and express emotions. We will work with both individual and group process. Through this format we will be able to experience the integration of ongoing awareness as a continuum. This workshop is suitable for professionals and non-professionals alike. $270

Unfolding the Inner Self / Michael Butler

Within each of us is an untapped seed of emotional and spiritual energy which can be the source of great creativity, peace and joy in our life. All of us have moments in touch with it, and those are times when we are especially aware of our own unique beauty and strength. Sometimes this seed is called the "inner self."

There are methods, some age-old, some new, that can directly tap into the inner self and help a person live in touch with it in everyday life. We will use tools which are designed to be gentle, yet go deep—music and chanting to open the heart, meditation practices, a form of dance which strengthens the emotional center, theoretical sessions on unity consciousness, gentle physical exercises—and other techniques for unfolding.

The workshop is limited to 14 participants and is appropriate for beginners as well as those with previous group experience. $270

On Being UP (Right!): A Celebration / Betty Fuller

This workshop will include time by the sea to discover; communicate and experience fixed and rigid attitudes, beliefs, and postures—physical, mental and spiritual—that keep us bogged down and stuck in self-limiting and self-defeating behaviors that turn our lives into soap operas. As we complete the past's unfinished business and let go of tomorrow's fantasies that "Maybe . . . someday . . . ," we'll create space to be here now and author our life scripts by choice instead of custom. Based on cooperation, support, good will and plenty of laughter, this gestalt/encounter group also includes daily meditation, alone time, body work (feldenkrais, Trager mentastics and massage) and participation in the work and play of Esalen's community. $270

Adding More to Your Relationship—Couples Workshop
Gerald Smith & Betsy Hand

The goal of this workshop is to develop more skill in expressing what you feel—in being close—in getting distance—in fighting fairly. It is not for couples in serious trouble, but instead for prevention and growth. Non-verbal as well as gestalt and family therapy approaches will be used. $110 + $2 video fee.

Opening the Feelings: A Neo-Reichian Workshop
Laura Dillon

The aim of this workshop is to help participants free up their capacity to experience and express deep feelings. Emotions are held in the body through muscular tensions which Wilhelm Reich called muscular armoring. Through the use of Radix emotional release techniques developed by Charles Kelley and other body oriented approaches we will work to soften these tensions and release the feelings held there. The group will provide a supportive nurturing atmosphere to enhance the process of emotional release. $110

The Inner Road to Health
Approaches to Natural Healing & Self-Healing
Coordinated by Al Drucker & Richard Price

This is a workshop for staying well and helping others to stay well. The subjects covered will be an introduction and synthesis of many of the health and healing approaches taught at Esalen. The basic premise is that as we immerse ourselves in a nourishing environment, as we clear out the load of excess baggage and attachments that we carry around in our lives, as we engage in a daily spiritual and physical practice, and as we learn to live in a state of love and grace, our body-mind comes into harmony and order. Then we find ourselves on an inner spiritual journey of expanding consciousness. It is on this path, within the deepest wellsprings of our being, that we experience the healing current that permits us to heal ourselves and to guide others to health.

The workshop will be held in the Big House and many of the participants will be housed there. This is a beautiful mansion located on cypress-covered cliffs overlooking the rocky coastline of Big Sur, across the Hot Springs Creek from the main Esalen grounds.

This present program is the fourth time this experience has been offered. The previous programs filled quickly, so interested individuals are encouraged to enroll early.

Some partial scholarships will be available and awarded on the basis of need; for this a weekly work committment is required. Apply for scholarships by writing to Chris Price at the address given below.

Because of the intensity of the previously given 4 week workshops we have gone to a 5 week format, permitting a final week of integration and synthesis of the material presented. Principal subjects covered and guest leaders have changed somewhat from program to program, reflecting the group's and individual's interest. In the past the topics have included:

- Rolfing and Deep Tissue Work
- Acupuncture and Acupressure
- Herbal Systems of Healing
- Gestalt Process and Training
- Interpersonal Process Work
- Esalen Massage and Self Massage
- Shiatsu and Polarity Massage
- Bioenergetics and Body Release
- Anatomy and Physiology Subjects
- Nutrition and Diet
- Homeopathic Healing Systems
- Energy and Color Healing Systems
- Dance and Movement, Sufi Dancing, Folk Dancing
- Spiritual Practice, including meditation, chanting
- Physical Practice, including yoga, Tai Chi, feldenkrais, Arica gym
- Gardening and Work Projects

Your Personal Resurrection / Paul Rebillot

"To suffer one's death and be reborn is not easy."
—Fritz Perls

The Time: Harvest Time
The Place: Big Sur
The Theme: Death and dying; life and living
The Cast: You and me
The Script: Confronted with the immanence of your own death, you have the chance to delve deeply into how you feel about yourself, your past, your present, your future, your life and death. The process allows you to take care of any unfinished business that you feel is important.

Once you have said good-bye to all your attachments and faced your death, you awaken the next morning to a new beginning . . . a beginning that allows you to create your own life, since you now have the possibility of choice.

Bring anything you might want to help intensify the experience. (Clothing, objects, etc.) $270

Skills Workshop for Group Leaders

Self-Acceptance—The Freedom To Be
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

Each of has unique capacities to feel and express: tenderness and strength, anger and affection, autonomy and needfulness as well as compassion, humor, and wisdom. The willingness to allow the fullness and vibrance of each of these qualities determines how alive and gratified we are.

In this workshop we will focus on how we diminish or affirm these essential qualities as they are expressed through our bodies, our sexuality, our creativity, our relationships to power, our friendships, and our expectations of ourselves and others. In an atmosphere of tenderness and support, we will clarify the nature of who we are and how we can best take care of ourselves, both here and on returning home. The workshop will be grounded in the techniques of gestalt, encounter, guided fantasy, massage, bioenergetics, and journal work. $270 + $2 video fee.

Take a Second Look at Yourself / Janet Zuckerman

We will focus on taking a good look at what is going on behind the masks we wear and what is underneath the expressions we put on our faces to confront the world. "Who are you?" and "Who do you pretend to be?" are the polarities we will be working with. Every one of us has a great deal of unused potential and I see the group experience as a safe place to begin to tap into this energy. This week will be entirely experiential using mirrors, gestalt, soft-encounter, and sensory awareness. $270 + $2 video fee.

Energy / Bernard Gunther

We are all fields of energy living in an energy field. Our potential is limitless, yet we frequently find ourselves operating in fatigue and limitation. This damming of the Self is caused by excessive tension, shallow breathing, toxic relationships, and nonfocused thought, which rob the organism of vitality and pleasure. How to tap this infinite supply of energy, how to rechannel and raise sexual energy, and how to apply this knowledge in everyday activity will be the task of this seminar. In this work we will explore aspects of hypnosis, yoga, gestalt, psychosynthesis, and color sound chakra meditation to experience more fully our flow of vital and psychic energy. $270

Often we have sex when what we are really seeking is an open closeness, caring, energy sharing to quiet an intense underlying sense of tension, anxiety, and emptiness. Intimate relationships are most rewarding when they are not only pleasurable but uplifting, continually new and renewing. In this workshop for couples we will explore the physical mundane to a higher plane of consciousness, intimacy, and awareness. In this experience we will explore transmutation, polar therapy, and nonverbal communication; moving from intensity toward ecstatic bliss. $110 per person.

Yoga, Meditation, Movement, Massage Deborah Sulochana Medow

Through the regular practice of healing asanas and integrative movement, hatha yoga seeks to develop and maintain awareness of self. Meditation, a vehicle for inwardly focusing this awareness, quiets the mind and allows the spirit to grow and flower. The outward expression of this self awareness is movement: how we move in this world reflects who we are and how we feel about ourselves. Free form movement becomes a way to explore and creatively expand our ways of being. Massage, a means by which aware individuals can share with each other, serves both to heal and help people more fully experience each other. In this workshop, we will use yoga, meditation, movement, and massage to explore and expand our ways of feeling and seeing, relating and being. $270

Program for the Study of Culture and Consciousness

October 31—November 26, 1976

Realms of the Human Unconscious: Toward an Integration of Approaches
Coordinated by Stanislav Grof

Under the direction of Stanislav Grof, Esalen is gathering some twenty-five faculty members to offer 150 hours of practical and theoretical sessions for mental health professionals and students in various experiential techniques. The main objective of this workshop is to develop effective eclectic approaches to self-expression and work with clients acknowledging and utilizing psychodynamic experiences, as well as the process of psychological death and rebirth, and transpersonal phenomena. An experiential learning form will be used combining cognitive and experiential elements; intrapsychic, interpersonal and group techniques; film and slide material; and non-drug technology for consciousness exploration.

The approaches examined in this program will include gestalt practice, psychosynthesis, Jungian psychotherapy, Kalff's diagnostic and therapeutic sand play, neo-Reichian techniques, encounter, hatha yoga, meditation, Esalen massage, rolfing, Feldenkrais, acupuncture, and therapeutic use of music. Practitioners of these approaches will give a theoretical introduction and conduct individual and group work with participants. Mythological, anthropological and objective perspectives will be explored in regard to their relevance to comprehensive psychotherapy.

The program will include a systematic course on clinical work with psychedelic drugs and its implications for psychiatric theory and this practice of psychotherapy, including crisis intervention in situations related to unsupervised use of psychedelics.

Paths of Transformation
Coordinated by Joan Halifax-Grof
Led by Paul Rebillot & Jean Lanier

"When you see, there are no longer familiar features in the world. Everything is new. Everything has never happened before. The world is incredible!"

—Don Juan, through Carlos Castaneda

"Make it new."

—Confucius, through Ezra Pound

This is an experiential and intellectual celebration of the light that emerges in the midst of our darkest Winter Solstice. In the process of this four week program, we will engage what Jung has termed "our own mythology" and the 2,000,000 year old human being residing within us all. This we will do through story, magic, image, word, deed, and dance.

In the first week of the program, the eminent mythologist, Joseph Campbell, will share with us the mythological cartographies of archaic and preliterate peoples in order to show us the universal and particular aspects of materials of all visionary experience, and arrive at some notion of how we may discover in the contexts of our own activated imaginations creative sources for the enrichment of our lives.

In the second week, we will explore these archaic maps through enactment with Paul Rebillot, Jean Lanier, and Joan Halifax-Grof. The hero's perilous journey, the spirit's quest for light, the grail, the mysteries of death and rebirth, these inspired human processes, universal in nature, will become a means of personal and transpersonal investigation of our own deepest selves.

The third week will be an exploration of the human unconscious, the shamanic world, and rites of transformation. Stanislav Grof will present his extended cartography of the human mind emerging from psychedelic research. Julian Silverman will share his unique research in the areas of shamanism and the shizophrenic process; Prem Das will guide us through the visionary world of the Huichol Indians; and Joan Halifax-Grof will summarize the week with a seminar on rites of passage. The conclusion of this third week with Gabrielle Roth will give us the opportunity to experience the mysteries of our own temple, the body as we work with imaginative, inspirational, and intuitive levels of our physical consciousness.

The final week of the program, the week of the birth of Christ, will be a time of metamorphosis. The music of Charles Loyd and others will be the energy field for the experience of Christmas. Paul Rebillot, Jean Lanier, Joan Halifax-Grof, and the Esalen staff will join us for this time of precious transformation.

Throughout the entire program, we will be doing individual as well as group work. The spectrum of experiential techniques will include: gestalt practice, body work, meditation, self-exploration with mandalas, shamanic proceedures, and laboratory equipment for inducing unusual states of consciousness. Nondrug technology, including the isolation tank, lotus cradle, and photic driver, will be available for use by participants.

This program is limited to 28 participants. The tuition is $1200. If you wish to apply, send a letter containing biographical information and a current photograph to Joan Halifax-Grof, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

DEFINITIONS

Of Some Approaches to Human Growth Used in this Catalog

PSYCHOSYNTHESIS

Psychosynthesis is a psychological and educational approach for recognizing and harmonizing the many, often conflicting, elements of our inner lives. It is a developmental process based on a positive conception of man/woman within an evolving universe. Starting with each person's existential situation as he or she perceives it, personal growth is organized into a process aiming at the integration of personality and the emergence of an effective unifying center of being and awareness, the Self. The practical work of psychosynthesis chooses in each situation the appropriate progressive activities among many techniques and methods available. Some of these are: guided imagery, movement, self-identification, creativity, gestalt, meditation, training of the will, symbolic art work, journal keeping, ideal models, and development of intuition. The emphasis is on fostering an ongoing process of growth that can gain momentum and bring about a more joyful, balanced actualization of one's life.

MASSAGE

Massage is a healing art. It is practiced to help the body relax, to release tensions, to balance the energy flow, and to soothe the being with gentle caring. Massages are given individually; workshops, classes, and private lessons are available.

T'AI CHI CHUAN

T'ai Chi Chuan is an ancient Chinese exercise discipline practiced for health, meditation, energy flow, and self-defense. The slow, flowing movements of this "shadow boxing" comprise the oldest and "softest" of the Asian martial arts. Developed from the Chinese practice of nei kung, or inner exercise, it is part of the system of Taoist yoga. The term t'ai chi can be translated as "grand ultimate" and is expressed by the familiar symbol of yang and yin. It is thus rooted in the Chinese philosophy of change as expressed in the I Ching.

SHIATSU MASSAGE

Shiatsu massage is the oriental healing art in which the hands are used to apply pressure to acupuncture points over the entire body, allowing the springs of life to flow.

BIOENERGETIC ANALYSIS

Bioenergetic analysis attempts to understand the life of the body through its expression of vitality, gesture, emotion, feeling, and relationship. The body is viewed as an energetic process that participates as the world in the world of instinctual, social, imaginative, and creative realms. Bioenergetics seeks to develop an individual's range of expression by working through this process.

ENCOUNTER

The ground rules of encounter are that participants be open and honest in a group setting, that they avoid mere theorizing and instead talk about their feelings and perceptions. There is often an emphasis on eliciting emotions which lead to positive or negative confrontations rather than away from them. The focus of encounter is to explore interpersonal relations. Over the past years encounter, as practiced at Esalen, has evolved into a broad approach incorporating several related disciplines to achieve its aims. Techniques and insights gained from gestalt, sensory awareness, bioenergetics, massage, movement, and structural integration are all part of Esalen's encounter groups today.

GESTALT

Gestalt Awareness Training is a theory and approach to personality integration first developed by Fritz and Laura Perls, though new styles and methods are being developed by other leaders. The goal of the training is to assist the participants to utilize excitement and awareness and to develop responsibility. Excitement—to have life energy freely available and flowing, not blocked. Awareness—to be conscious of my energy as and where it flows; to have action accessible to consciousness, not happening mechanically. Responsibility—to know and act on the principle that I am the one who acts, thinks, and feels whatever it may be that I act, think, or feel. No one else or no event influences me except with my consent. At times, everyone in the workshop may work simultaneously with some awareness exercise, or in interaction with each other. More traditionally, a fair amount of time will be spent with participants working individually with the leader. The starting point for such individual work is whatever is here and now of most involving concern for the organism; a fantasy or dream, an interaction with another person, a memory, or a physical posture. "Problems" are welcome as starting points, if they are truly present and not merely verbally presented. In keeping with the gestalt emphasis on personal responsibility, the leader usually leaves the initiative for such work with the participants. The assumption is made that participants are not "patients" but are persons responsible for their own life decisions.

STRUCTURAL INTEGRATION (ROLFING)

Structural Integration or Rolfing is a method of deep manipulation of the musculo-skeletal system that aims at balancing the major segments of the body. We have learned that connective tissue (fascia, tendons, ligaments) can be lengthened by palpation and direct manipulation; this makes it possible to reorganize the basic body lines. A properly organized body will be subject to less stress and will move in a more economical way. Structural Integration has a second principle: posture is behavior. Humans are psychophysical organisms; one cannot divorce their physical from their psychological functions. When you change the structure, you change the function.

JEANNE ACHTERBERG received her training as an experimental psychologist with her major interest in physiology. She is primarily responsible for the administration of the training and for coordination of research design and data analysis at the Cancer Counseling and Research Center. Her most recent research has been in the area of correlation between psychological parameters and immunological response and examining the psychological characteristics of those patients who significantly outlive their life expectancy. (p 13)

PAUL AIKIN is a clinical psychologist in private practice in Davis. He has spent the past eight years in training and practice in gestalt, bioenergetics, and psychophysical approaches. He has taught at Michigan State University and the University of California, Davis, where he was a senior staff member and training consultant at the Counseling Clinic. (p 15)

LARA AMBER, staff trainee, leads classes and workshops and gives individual instruction in neo-Reichian emotional release at the Radix Institute. She is developing a practice in Denver, CO, and has co-led workshops at Esalen Institute and for the AHP Conferences. Before joining the Radix Institute in 1974, Lara instructed classes at the Denver Free University and the Denver Learning Center, and for three years worked with emotionally disturbed children. Audio Cassette Recordings

The following tape recordings in cassette form are available from the Joan & Stanislav Grof Culture and Consciousness Spring 1975 program. Each cassette is priced at $5 per hour of recording:

Will Schutz: Interpersonal Psychodynamics
Speaking to a newly formed group interested in mystical experience, Will Schutz gives an excellent presentation of his work at the lower chakra levels: three basic interpersonal needs (inclusion/control/affection) and three principles of encounter and life (truth/choice/awareness)—with extra thoughts on the great cosmic joke, the only human fear, the three kinds of medicine, the idea of total responsibility, and our human need to feel aliveness. 90 minutes $7.50

Gregory Bateson: Metaphors and Butterflies
Someone has said that when you ask Gregory a question, he will likely give you an answer that causes you to question all the assumptions behind that question. During this Grof workshop session, Alice in Wonderland's "bread-and-butterflies" provides one of the metaphors in a non-linear, analogic discussion of psychedelic experience, dreams, realities and other bits and pieces of the stuff of which we are made. 90 minutes $7.50

Please make check payable to: WORKSHOP CASSETTES, c/o Hot Springs Lodge, Big Sur, California 93920. Tapes from many other Esalen events can be developed if there is sufficient interest. Please indicate the specific areas of your interest for such recordings, and mail to the above address.

A Photographic Essay of Esalen Institute by Tony & Connie Fletcher $8.00

"Where land meets water body meets mind
mind meets soul."

In one volume of 180 pictures, this book captures the color, the character, and the uniqueness of Esalen/Big Sur. For those who have been to Esalen and who want to remember and share the experience or for those who have never been and who want to see what it is like, this book provides a full color pictorial essay showing the people who make Esalen happen and the setting in which it happens.

Special Information

THE ESALEN CATALOG is published quarterly. Subscription cost for one year is $2 for the United States, $4 for Canada and Mexico and $12 for all other countries. Those attending Esalen workshops and conferences are automatically added to the mailing list for one year. A single inspection copy of the current issue is available free upon request from the San Francisco office. Do not direct subscription inquiries to Big Sur.

CONTRIBUTIONS to Esalen Institute are tax deductible.

ACCREDITATION and the USE OF ESALEN'S NAME: Some individuals and groups have involved Esalen's name to imply that we have given some sort of accreditation to their activities. We have told everyone to stop using our name in such a manner. Of course people use insights and techniques they bring from our programs, but we confer no certificates, diplomas, or other symbols of formal status such as those conferred by professional associations and schools.

RECORDINGS OF ESALEN PROGRAMS: For a catalog of recordings of Esalen / San Francisco programs contact Big Sur Recordings, 2015 Bridgeway, Sausalito, California 94965. They also have Big Sur programs prior to 1973.

Commercial use of Esalen program tapes is prohibited; all rights are reserved.

FILMS of the work of Fritz Perls, Carl Rogers, Abraham Maslow, Rollo May, Virginia Satir, Alexander Lowen, and others are available from Psychological Films, 205 West 20th Street, Santa Ana, California 92706. For color film documentaries with Alan Watts, Huston Smith, Lama Govinda, Joseph Campbell, Edgar Mitchell, and Margaret Mead, write: Hartley Productions, Cat Rock Road, Cos Cob, Connecticut 06807. For a list of other humanistic film sources write to Association for Humanistic Psychology, 325 Ninth Street San Francisco, CA 94103.

for general information.

Esalen/Big Sur lies 300 miles north of Los Angeles and 175 miles south of San Francisco. It is directly over the shoreline of the Pacific with the Santa Lucia Range rising sharply behind. The property, which has natural hot baths, was once the home of a North American Indian tribe known as Esalen.

We are a 45-mile drive south from Monterey, 11 miles south of Nepenthe, on California Coast Route 1. From the south, we are 50 miles north of San Simeon. A lighted sign on the ocean side of the highway reads: Esalen Institute—By Reservation Only.

Deposit Information: Big Sur programs require an advance deposit of $20 for weekend groups, $70 for five-day groups, $200 for two-week groups, $300 for three-week groups, and $400 for month-long groups. Deposits are not refundable but, with five days' notice, may be transferred to other Esalen programs. Please mail Big Sur reservations to Esalen/Big Sur. Do not mail Big Sur reservations to Esalen/San Francisco. Balance of payment is due on arrival. Esalen accepts Master Charge and American Express. U S currency only, please.

Scholarship Information: If you need scholarship assistance for a long term Esalen/Big Sur program, write for a scholarship application form before making a reservation (allow at least 3 weeks for processing as we have many applications). If your application is approved, please make a reservation as soon as possible after receiving notice. No scholarship assistance is available for June 15–August 31 programs or for weekend programs.

General Information: Workshop fees cover tuition, food, and lodging. Rooms are shared by two or three workshop participants. Camping on the grounds is prohibited.

Weekend programs begin with dinner on Friday and end with lunch on Sunday. Five-day and longer programs begin with dinner on Sunday and end with lunch on Friday. Rooms become available at 5 pm; however, guests are welcome to arrive anytime after lunch.

Esalen/Big Sur has no child care facilities. Please do not plan to bring children. We also ask workshop participants not to have guests. Alas, no pets.

Esalen's flourishing organic garden provides the kitchen with many of its vegetables and herbs. Our breads and pastries are made by Esalen bakers.

Limousine Service: Those traveling by air or bus can obtain limousine service to Esalen/Big Sur by notifying the Big Sur office of time of arrival. Pickups are made at the Monterey Airport and the Greyhound terminal at 5–5:30 pm each Sunday and Friday. The cost is $10 per person one way, payable on arrival at Esalen.

Seminarians as Staff (Karma Yoga): Seminarians in residence for five days or longer at Esalen are asked to contribute several hours per week to work with the staff. Your help enables us to meet the pressures of peak working times and enables you to experience Esalen from the inside out. A staff member will appear at your first workshop meeting to schedule volunteer help.

San Francisco Information

For reservations, literature, tickets, and information, write or call:
Esalen Institute, 1793 Union Street, San Francisco, California 94123.
Phone: (415) 771-1710; 9:30–5:30 Monday through Saturday.

Reservations: Reservations close five days prior to the program, in order to facilitate planning and for the convenience of participants' time plans. A non-refundable deposit must accompany registration as follows: $10 per person for programs costing under $35; $20 for programs costing under $100; $50 for those over $100, unless otherwise noted. Mail reservation form with check to Esalen Institute, 1793 Union Street, San Francisco 94123. Balance is payable at the first session of the program. Do not send San Francisco reservations to Big Sur. Esalen accepts Master Charge and American Express. U S currency only, please.

Information literature and tickets for lectures may be obtained Monday through Saturday 9:30–5:00 pm at 1793 Union Street, San Francisco 94123. Tickets obtained by mail will indicate the exact location and time of events; when not sold out in advance, tickets may be purchased at the door.

Workshop schedules: One day workshops generally meet from 10 am to 6 pm. Saturday and Sunday weekend workshops meet from 10 am to 6 pm each day. Friday through Sunday weekend workshops meet approximately from 8 to 11 pm on Friday, from 10 am through the afternoon and/or evening on Saturday, and from 10 am to early afternoon on Sunday. Schedules are not rigid, however, and exact meeting times are discussed at the first session.

Accommodations: Most San Francisco programs are non-residential. Participants in these programs must reserve their own accommodations at local hotels or motels. Unless stated otherwise, meals are not provided at such workshops.

Location: Participants will be informed of workshop location prior to the workshop date. Esalen uses several facilities in the Bay Area for its programs, including its own building at 1793 Union Street, San Francisco. Call the San Francisco office for advance information on program location.

Recommended dress: Workshops are informal. Slacks and flat shoes are recommended for women, sport clothes for men.

Bookstore: Esalen's Bookshop provides a comprehensive selection of books ranging from general psychology, life sciences, and education to the Eastern philosophies, Jung, and the mystics. It is open Monday through Saturday, 9:30–5:30 pm, and Sundays when workshops are in process (On Sundays call before dropping in).

Esalen Institute is a center to explore those trends in education, religion, philosophy, and the physical and behavioral sciences which emphasize the potentialities and values of human existence. Our activities consist of seminars and workshops, residential programs, consulting, and research.

We exist to sponsor, encourage, synthesize, and attempt evaluation of work in these areas, both inside and outside our own organizational framework. Since we are a center for experimental education, we ask that persons come to our programs out of an educational interest. We ask that no one come whose interest is "cure." We point out here, as we have in workshops and seminars, that some persons, particularly those with a history of psychiatric problems, may find some programs difficult, trying, or potentially risky. We recommend that in case of any doubt, a physician or trusted counselor be consulted.

Who's Responsible at Esalen?

We have long regarded Esalen Institute as an educational laboratory. Our evolving philosophical and operational positions reflect this regard. Underlying it all is a baseline ethic of "self-awareness and self-responsibility." However re-presented and operationalized in the past, by us or by others, this ethic continues to be the basis for our world view, and following from this, our educational approach. The self-awareness/self-responsibility ethic has grown and stabilized out of at least two generations of weighty dis-illusioning social and political events—all connected by a common reminder:

> Give away your personal faculties of discernment, of evaluation, of self-reference, and you lose your integrity (your wholeness). "Take responsibility for your every thought, your every feeling, your every action," said our beloved friend and teacher, Fritz Perls.

We view the implications of this position as being social as well as personal. They concern the ways we relate to ourselves and others.

In our position as educators, we invite people to take responsibility for their whole life situation while at Esalen. This includes taking responsibility for who they select as their teachers, their leaders, their gurus, their authority figures . . . and so on—and to be aware, whenever possible, what effect this has on them. We, of necessity, are setting up a situation for our seminarians to learn the practice of self-responsibility from the time they consider selecting a workshop, not just during the workshop. In effect, we are asking that this self-responsibility attitude be present in the initial contact with Esalen. Ideally, the same attitude will pervade after a workshop when our seminarians go back to the community and seek out others—physicians, teachers, counselors, mental health professionals, etc.

As we have become more thoughtful and self-critical about the overall direction of Esalen we have begun to concentrate on enhancing our basic commodity—the Esalen environment and life style. Our primary emphasis is not on teaching particular truths or personal and interpersonal techniques for daily life; rather our primary concern is with a particular consciousness and developing an environment to support the evolution of that consciousness—the consciousness of self-awareness/self-responsibility.

Programs in San Francisco

October 2–3

Massage–A Step Deeper / Judy McKinnon

Weekend workshop $50

This workshop is designed for people who have already had basic massage. Our goal will be to develop various approaches that expand massage and make it more satisfying, spontaneous and individual. We will explore ways of using energy, visualization and gentle breath work to release blocked areas. The receiver will sometimes be encouraged to take an active part in the process. Body reading will be incorporated to expediate our work.

October 3

Centering Through Creative Expression / Sidra Tankersley

One-day workshop $30

The inspiration for creating often comes at the peak of accumulated tension. If the tension is not released, a static and sometimes painful state occurs. For some, the act of creating serves a two-fold purpose: to express the center in oneself, and to release the built-up tension. Today, we will use body work, breathing and meditation to get in touch with the energy, and then channel its release into creative expression.

October 4–13

The Philosophy of Choice, Truth & Joy
Will Schutz

Two Monday & Wednesday evenings, 6–11 pm $75

This workshop will be a broad look at the sweep of the human potential movement which includes interpersonal, intrapsychic, body, energy, and mystical trends, and an integration of these approaches into a simple framework. The principles of this framework will be described along with the implications and applications to today's society. We will find time for some demonstrations, a bit of experiencing and some in-depth explorations. Humor is allowed.

1793 Union Street, San Francisco

October 8

Take a Walk on the Wild Side: A Journey Through Madness to the Center / William Pennell Rock

Evening workshop, 6–11 pm, $8 general admission

It is generally perceived that we are entering individually and collectively into an age of madness. Chaotic though it may seem our collective and individual selves must enter madness before the true center, the true self may be manifest. And this is what is happening.

The workshop is designed to show experientially the nature of this process. It is highly intensive and strenuous, designed to send you away with your head turned around and your heart in peace.

Participants are advised to have nothing to eat for two hours prior to starting time.

1793 Union Street, San Francisco

October 9
Biofeedback & Altered States of Consciousness
Eleanor Criswell & Maryellen Haight

One-day workshop $30

This workshop will focus on biofeedback as it relates to self-exploration, self-development, and altering consciousness. An understanding of biofeedback, how to experience it and how to use your own body signals as feedback, will be included. Participants will experience several different kinds of biofeedback machines.

October 9–10
You & Universal Motion / Robert Nedeau

Weekend workshop $60

The physical conscious system operates in direct relationship to a larger energy activity or universal motion. It is important to recognize this activity as a "friend" and learn to work in harmony with it. We will explore energy and our "marriage" with it through meditation, centering, and body movement.

October 10
Reflexology / Anna Kaye

One-day workshop $30

Reflexology is based on the theory that energy travels in the body in "zones" or patterns which connect reflexes in the feet to organs in the body. In this theoretical and experiential workshop Anna Kaye will demonstrate methods of stimulating these reflexes by specialized massage work on the feet.

October 13
Iasos in Concert / A Multi-Sensory Experience for Inter-Dimensional Music & Visuals

Single evening event, 8–10:30 pm $3 general admission

Iasos is a musical messenger, bringing forth inter-dimensional music designed to purify, sensitize, and uplift the listener to the higher frequencies of the incoming Golden-Age earth reality. This evening will be a multi-sensory experience, combining live music with pre-recorded music and a glorious visual presentation, including the Crystal-Vision.

International Student Center, 70 Oak Street, San Francisco

October 14–November 18
Body Experience / William Glover

Six Thursday evenings, 7:30–9:30 pm $60

Through experiencing and owning our bodily existence we can learn to live more fully. In this series we will work with ourselves through group exercises, homework, journal keeping, sharing and discussion. Physical techniques will be drawn from bioenergetics, sensory awareness, movement, and related body approaches.

1793 Union Street, San Francisco

The Transformative Sound of Music: Concerts for the New Age

A five part musical series, 8–10:30 pm $3 general admission

October 13	Iasos in Concert–A Multi-Sensory Experience For Interdimensional Music & Visuals
October 20	Balinese Shadow Play / Larry Reed Kristina Melcher & John Badanes
October 27	The Cosmic Beam Experience Francisco Lupica
November 3	Astro & Chroma Environments Willard Van De Bogart
November 10	Tibetan Bells– The Sound of the Void Henry Wolff, Nancy Hennings, Drew Gladstone, & Sandy Sawyer

International Student Center, 70 Oak Street, San Francisco. This series is presented in cooperation with Artist's Embassy.

October 16

Hellos & Goodbyes / Janica Fox

One-day workshop $30

We all share a basic need to have people in our lives: friends, acquaintances, lovers, and mates. We share the need to be liked and loved. This workshop will explore through gestalt, encounter, and fantasy the obstacles we put in the way of initiating, establishing, and deepening relationships. We will also explore our obstacles in saying goodbye and our ability to cope with ending our relationships.

The sorceress, the nurse or alchemist pouring forth in work done for love, not money or personal gain.

October 16–23

October Extended Growth Program
Woman to Woman / Man to Man
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

$150

"The woman that most needs liberating is the woman in every man, and the man that most needs liberating is the man in every woman."

Taking advantage of the natural affinity and support that people of the same sex can afford another, the men and women in this workshop will meet separately as well as together over a period of two weekends and four evenings. We will create an ambience of tenderness and support to provide opportunities to clarify the nature of who we are as men in the absence of women and who we are as women in the absence of men and what happens when we come together. The themes we will explore are our sexuality, our friendships, our body images, our coupling, our creativity, our relationship to power, our expectations of each other and ourselves. The workshop will be grounded in the techniques of gestalt, encounter, fantasy, massage, bioenergetics, journal work and psychosynthesis. It is especially suitable for people with previous group experience who are interested in the enduring aspects of personal growth.

The workshop will consist of two weekend workshops and four evening sessions: Monday—Thursday.

October 16–17

That the People May Live / Bebes Medicine-Eagle

Weekend workshop $60

This workshop will be a brief, modern quest for vision to guide us personally, and through us to influence the direction of our society and world. Indian people seeking guidance and vision generally end their prayer with the title phrase—"not only for myself do I ask, but that I may help others to live well and happily." By immersing ourselves in American Indian Form, through stillness, quiet talking, myth, dance, joyful prayerfulness, contact with the earth and possible fasting, we will explore the psychic ecology underlying physical ecology so that we may close the widening rupture between our hearts and minds, ourselves and others.

October 17

Sex Dreams & the Spiritual Quest
Ann Faraday & John Wren-Lewis

One-day workshop $30

This workshop will be a unique opportunity to share and explore with Ann and John some exciting new discoveries, arising from their work with dreams, concerning the use of sexual energy in personal integration and spiritual growth. Shortly after this workshop they will disappear to write their new book on this subject. We shall discuss and demonstrate the various levels of meaning to be found in sexual dreams and contributions from participants will be welcomed. Dreamers concerned about the intensity or even apparent perversity of sexuality in their dreams may be surprised to discover they have deep religious significance when their symbolism is understood. The function of sexual energy in lucid dreams and out-of-body experiences will also be discussed.

October 18—December 11

Ways of Deep Massage: Shiatsu & Related Techniques
Kathy Dickman & Ray Stubbs

An 8 Evening training with 2 one day workshops $200.00

Deep muscle massage has its own sensuality, and letting go of chronic tension areas becomes pleasure when the giver's hands communicate trust and sensitivity. This training will aim at developing that sensitivity to the tissues beneath the surface of the body, along with a knowledge of pressure points and some anatomy. A whole shiatsu massage will be taught, with compatible techniques from polarity massage, the Arican Ch'ua K'a and others.

8 Monday evenings, 7–11 pm and all day, 10–6 pm November 20 and December 11, 1793 Union Street, San Francisco.

October 20

Balinese Shadow Play
Larry Reed, Kristina Melcher & John Badanes

Single evening event $3 general admission

This evening will be an introduction to the shadow play, a form of theater filled with myth, romance, and satire. A world in itself, the shadow play expresses, through storytelling, the central themes and philosophies of Balinese culture. Still strongly tied to its ritual beginnings, it has also attained the stage of a sophisticated theater art. Enhancing this evening's mood, accompanying music will be played on bronze keyed xylophone-like instruments called gender wayang. The shimmering sounds of the genders and the intricate songs of its repertoire follow the story closely, playing varied compositions for scenes of tenderness, battle, sorrow, and clowning.

International Student Center, 70 Oak Street, San Francisco

October 22–24

Inner Visions & Explorations with Hypnosis / Lee Pulos

Weekend workshop $60

The theme of this workshop will be both educational and exploratory. Participants will be taught a variety of hypnotic and self-hypnosis techniques that can be used on an ongoing basis after the workshop is over. Each person will experience hypnosis and the opportunity to hypnotically induce dreams, program for habit changes, and to get in touch with subconscious motivation through automatic writing and ideo-motor questioning. The exploratory aspects will deal with extending our consciousness into paranormal and psychic dimensions.

October 23

Healing for a New Age / Mark Kramer, MD

One day workshop $30

We can learn to heal ourselves of our body-mind dis-ease by coming home to who we really are and what we really want. Our symptoms tell us that all is not so good with our particular way of being in the world; they tell us we have lost touch with our physiological, emotional and spiritual essence. In this workshop we will explore the extraordinary healing power-of loving energy and the dis-ease producing effects of self-denial and negativity. We will learn to feel our imbalances and take responsibility for them before we get sick. And hopefully, we will experience the sense of well-being which comes as we surrender to our innermost vibrations.

October 24

Mantra & Chanting
Jinendra Jain & Katherine DaSilva Jain

One day workshop $30

Mantra and chanting have been used for centuries as powerful tools to reach pre-verbal and pre-thought levels where one grows and expands, where freedom and gladness are. In this workshop we will experience our voices vibrating with classical mantras and share mantra energy with the group. This practice will be combined with breathing, movement, dance, yoga postures, and relaxation. Our focus will be the incorporation of mantra into our work-a-day consciousness to transform moment to moment life into meditation.

October–May

Esalen Sports Center

Six Month Program in Mind/Body Development

An intensive 6 month training program focused on running, flexibility exercises, energy (or ki work), visualization and meditation will begin in October.

Every participant will have two private sessions a month with Mike Spino, the program co-ordinator; in these sessions the training routines presented during the program will be individualized to suit the participants needs and present physical condition. Theoretical aspects of the program and various training methods will be presented in bi-monthly day long sessions (there will be 12 in all). There will also be two optional group sessions every week in which participants may work out together. The Institute of Health Research, which is a federally funded research program studying the long term blood chemical and hematological as well as physiological profiles of healthy people over a long period of time, is especially interested in following participants in this project. It will be recommended that individuals continue to update their profiles after completion of the six month program.

Program deaders will include:

1. Meditation and visualization—Michael Murphy and Mike Spino
2. Flexibility, stretching and body awareness—Barbara Hazilla
3. Energy awareness—Robert Nadeau
4. Theoretical aspects—George Leonard and Michael Murphy
5. Running gaits, tempos, visualization, aerobic, anaerobic and resistance running—Mike Spino

The program will include 30 hours of work each month of private consultations, workshops, and supervised training routines over the six month period. The cost of the entire program will be $500.00.

The Innerspaces of Running: A New Approach to Running

Mike Spino

One day workshop $30

Focusing on the running experience, this workshop will introduce a holistic method of mind/body development. Each participants will be taught various running gaits and tempos, muscle/skeletal exercises, breathing techniques, and philosophy and lore related to optimum physical fitness. There will be special emphasis on guided fantasy, inner space development, and creativity in quest for extraordinary experiences. Each person will receive an individual consultation and have the opportunity to continue towards personal goals on an ongoing basis.

October 26

The Body's Biomechanics / Judy Aston & Will Schutz

Single evening event, 8–10:30 pm $5 general admission

This dialogue will cover vital areas of body awareness and various approaches to biomechanical organistic functioning. Definitions of and the ramifications for physical activities of such disciplines as feldenkrais exercises, rolfing (structural integration), encounter, bioenergetics, and structural patterning will be explored.

1793 Union Street, San Francisco

October 27

Cosmic Beam Experience / Francisco Lupica

Single evening event, 8–10:30 pm $3 general admission

This evening will be a cosmic voyage for all of us who have ever dreamed of space travel.

"If you are one of the people who establishes far out states of being and domains of consciousness through listening to music, then Francisco's music is the best prescription I know."

—John Lilly

October 29–31

The Vision Quest—A Healing Journey / Tom Pinkson

Residential weekend workshop $70

This weekend will be an experiential journey blending humanistic-transpersonal psychology with rituals and belief systems of Native American Indian culture. We will spend the workshop on the Mother Earth in a natural, secluded setting in Marin learning how to "See" as natural beings in a natural world. We will each find our power spot and spend one night and part of the following day within that sacred spot, fasting and in solitude, as we experience the vision quest. Sunday noon we will reassemble our "medicine wheel" to share and integrate our "visions." Information sheets sent out upon registration.

Recommended reading: A Quest for Vision (Pinkson), Rolling Thunder (Boyd), Lame Deer: Seeker of Visions (Lame Deer & Erdoes).

Consciousness Sport and Physical Fitness

October 29–30

Consciousness, Sport & Physical Fitness

A conference sponsored by the Esalen Sports Center and Foothill College in Los Altos Hills.

The theme of this conference is the joining of psychological and spiritual disciplines with sport and physical education. In recent years there has been an increasing appreciation by athletes, coaches, and sports participants of the ways in which mental and emotional attitudes affect physical performance, enjoyment, and health. Many athletes practice hypnosis and meditation; clinics are held on the inner game of tennis; tai chi and yoga appear in physical education courses; the martial arts are enjoying a world-wide renascence.

The Esalen Sports Center is working to develop an integral mind-body approach to sport and physical education and will present some of its work in this conference. This will include innovative physical fitness regimens, various kinds of energy or "ki" work, explorations into the extraordinary powers that emerge both in sport and the practice of yoga, an approach to the "inner game" of tennis, body therapies in relation to sport, the "inner spaces of running" and others.

Guest leaders will include:

George Leonard
Will Schutz
Michael Murphy
Tim Gallwey
Jim Fadiman
Mike Spino
Andrea Giacomini-Rossia
Judith Aston
David Meggyesey

Consciousness, Sport and Physical Fitness will be held at Foothill College in Los Altos. The conference will be held Friday evening and all day Saturday. For further information feel free to contact us at Esalen Institute, 1793 Union Street, San Francisco, California 94123. Reservations, however, should be sent to:

Consciousness, Sport and Physical Fitness
Foothill College Box Office
Los Altos Hills, California 94022

Please include your name, address, and telephone number along with your check. The cost for the conference is $25.

October 30

Music & Your Mind / Michael Lindemann

One day workshop $30

This workshop is based on the acclaimed guided imagery and music process of Helen Bonny. This process combines carefully programmed taped music with verbally induced altered states of consciousness, which promotes heightened awareness of our inner and outer circumstances through vivid imagery and other sersory experience. We will also draw from other methods, including psychosynthesis, est, and meditation. This workshop will include two guided music excursions plus background information and group sharing.

October 30–31

The Battle for a New Human Race / Eva Reich, MD

Weekend workshop $60

Focusing on prevention, this workshop will draw on the practical experience of participants in analyzing how we can protect the children of humanity from injury to their full growth potential and how to maintain a free bioenergetic flow from birth. The experiential method of "emotional first aid" will be demonstrated. We shall revue the historical discoveries of Wilhelm Reich and build an orgone energy accumulator. Audio-visual material will include the film, Birth Without Violence.

October 31

A Loving, Energy Experience / Patricia Sun

One day workshop $30

This workshop will give you the opportunity to experience your own energy. Patricia Sun is a psychic/spiritual teacher who uses her own psychic abilities as a catalyst to facilitate others in actualizing their capabilities. She will deal with sound, movement, breathing, meditation and ways of unblocking our energy. Through validation and psychic processes as well as self-love, self-integration, gentleness and the recognition of our beuty we will create space for another level of experience.

November 3

Astro & Chroma Environments
Willard Van De Bogart

Single evening event $3 general admission

When sound and light are blended and interwoven in proper harmonic proportions, they effect in the human body certain vibratory patterns which induce health and extra-dimensional states of consciousness. This evening we will work with various techniques to achieve these states including sound synthesizers for astrosonic vibrations and colored lights in various hues. Astrosonics is the science of producing sounds that are mathematically proportional to planetary positions within a person's zodiac. We will also use bio-feedback machines to demonstrate how body responses can be converted into sound and light and then interfaced with an audio synthesizer for a bio-music experience. The goal of this evening's presentation is to generate an awareness of consciousness and how it can be enhanced by changing light and sound environments.

November 4

Spiritual Creativity in Tibetan Mandala Symbolism
Detlef I Lauf

Single evening event $4 general admission

The Tibetan mandalas are one of the most profound creations of Buddhist art. The deep impression that we can get from meditation on these mandalas is based on the great importance of archetypal structures from which the mandalas have been created. As tantric patterns of powerful symbols of religion, philosophy, psychology, cosmology, and ethics, mandalas can serve as a path to our own experience of reality and consciousness. This evening's lecture will include slides.

1793 Union Street, San Francisco

November 4

The Innerworld of Sports & Games
Tim Gallwey & Michael Murphy

Single evening event, 8–10:30 pm $5 general admission

This exchange will explore states of consciousness that appear during athletic and physical activities and the relationship among mysticism, peak functioning, and the utilization of siddhi's or extraordinary powers. Conversations as to ways of viewing sport as a western yoga, and a methodology for inner harmony in the game of tennis will be included.

First Unitarian Church, Geary & Franklin Streets, San Francisco

November 5

The Innergame of Tennis: A Lecture/Demonstration
Tim Gallwey

November 5, 10–4 at the Golden Gateway Tennis Club, 370 Drumm Street, San Francisco. $20

This lecture/demonstration will focus on the principles of the innergame, the consciousness of the player. Topics include the art of relaxed concentration, competition, and the will to win, the mental causes of errors in tennis and other sports, and playing the inner game off the court. The instinct to learn and grow is the "standard equipment" of all organisms. Human beings have a unique way of interferring with and limiting this natural process. The Inner Game Workshop introduces and demonstrates methods for overcoming some of our habitual ways. We tend to interfere with both our innate capacity to learn and our ability to excel on the tennis court. For many people there is a useful carryover of these methods for their lives off the tennis court.

"Any sport can be a medium for exploring the human potential at all levels—physical, mental, and spiritual. The real game is played in the consciousness of the player, where the real prize sought is true freedom."

November 6–7

Shiva & Shakti: A Jungian-Gestalt Approach to Self-Integration / Ed Elkin & Kim McKell

Weekend workshop $60

Shiva represents masculine, receptive consciousness. Shakti represents feminine, active energy. In this workshop, gestalt and Jungian approaches to self integration are blended through a tantric weaving of the opposing forces in the psychi. We will bring unconscious energy into consciousness and integrate through color, guided fantasy, male/female personality dynamic and intensive dream work.

November 6–7

Towards a More Sensitive Relating
Charlotte Selver & Charles Brooks

Weekend workshop $60

In an increasingly alienated world where mechanical ease often makes communication less substantial, many of us are eager to find more meaningful contact both with ourselves and with others. We would like really to get in touch. But the conventional approaches we have learned, our social and intellectual conditioning, lie like callouses over our living nerve ends and, though occasionally useful, act as effective barriers between the perceiver and the perceived. The reality both of ourselves and of those we meet can only be discovered and explored when we begin to sense and discard the techniques and defenses we have come to rely on—when we become again consciously living organisms, open, as we were in childhood, to the unedited messages of our senses.

In this workshop, which will be devoted to practice rather than theory, a beginning will be made toward exploring anew our natural capacities for clearly perceiving and relating to those around us and to the life within us, and to the many tasks which life presents.

November 7

Trail Running & the Archetypes of Sport
Mike Murphy & Mike Spino

One day workshop $30

Participants will experience some of the most beautiful and dramatic running trails in the Mount Tamalpais area of Marin County and will be introduced to some of the lore of trail running for enjoyment and physical conditioning. This workshop is open to the novice as well as the experienced jogger or runner. There will also be discussions of the psychological, mystical, and archetypal aspects of the sport. Bring picnic lunches—and wear good running shoes.

November 8–29

Breath Workshop / Gail Williams

Four Monday evenings, 7:30–9 pm $30

These evenings will focus on the breath and offer some beginning experiments in becoming acquainted with our individual patterns of inner rhythm and movement and how this may relate to our way of being in the world.

1793 Union Street, San Francisco

Single Evening Events

All programs will be held at Esalen, 1793 Union Street, San Francisco, unless otherwise noted. Tickets are available at the door as space permits.

November 10

Tibetan Bells—The Sound of the Void
Henry Wolff, Nancy Hennings, Drew Gladstone, & Sandy Sawyer

Single evening event, 8–10:30 pm $3 general admission

The bells of Tibet were unknown to the outside world before the 1950's. Composed of subtle alloys of Himalayan metals, the secret of which has been lost, they produce tones of the utmost purity, touching frequencies at the furthest limits of hearing, traversing psychic spaces which have hitherto been beyond the reach of music as commonly experienced.

The Tibetan bells used in this evening's performance are probably the largest collection ever assembled in the Western world.

International Student Center, 70 Oak Street, San Francisco

November 12

Mountain Consciousness & the Fate of Adventure
Michael Tobias

Single evening event, 8–10:30 pm $4

This evening slide-seminar will treat, as a model, one man's search for a harmonious life-style in and out of wilderness. Slides from the Sierra, Rockies, Alps, and transHimalaya (Tibet, Nepal, Sikkim, and Bhutan) of adventure in the 20th century. We will treat the impulse for balancing civilization with private wilderness in the light of a radical activism and attempt to develop a useful way of being courageous.

November 13

Gestalt & Other Self Development Approaches
Muriel Schiffman

One day workshop $30

When something hits us in our vulnerable areas we react in inappropriate, self-defeating ways: seeking love we invite rejection, craving approval we elicit disapproval, trying to bolster self-esteem we goof. These are situations where we have been unable to feel our true emotions. The false feelings (defenses) mislead us. This workshop teaches practical means for everyday living. Here are concrete tools for experiencing the genuine feelings hidden under the pseudo-emotions so that we can then see reality and change self-defeating behavior patterns. This is not an encounter group but simply an opportunity to experience and/or observe some of Muriel Schiffman's approaches. Self Therapy and Gestalt Self Therapy are required reading. This group is limited to twelve participants. Bring a lunch.

The EMPRESS is Earth Mother, Faery Queen, full moon, the first myth. Hers is the way of women, of nature. To know the Empress is to know the flow, harmony and cycles of nature.

November 13–14

Smoothing Your Path to Higher Consciousness with Self-Hypnosis / Freda Morris

Weekend workshop $60

This workshop will focus on opening creative channels. Methods that will be used include the ecology of psychic energy, hypnosis, and self-hypnosis to enrich the fertility of the mind, and reprogramming the triggers to negative emotions. Each person will learn self-hypnosis, will pinpoint areas of emotional vulnerability and develop skills in rapid re-programming. These procedures are based on the idea that psychic energy, not wasted on negative emotions, is available for growth into higher consciousness.

November 14

A Day with Will Schutz & John Heider

One day workshop $30

November 16

Inside Running / Joe Henderson & Mike Spino

Single evening event, 8–10:30 pm $5 general admission

There is an enormous amount of information about running which does not reach the ears of a large majority of people who use running as a significant form of physical expression. This dialogue will focus on ways to go beyond customary jogging into physiological variations, spiritual possibilities, and practical research.

1793 Union Street, San Francisco

November 19–21
Wilderness Encounter / Dick & China Galland

Residential weekend workshop $65

This weekend is an adventure in doing: an exploration of our physical and emotional boundaries, and an opportunity to extend personal limits. We will camp among the redwoods of Marin for two nights, preparing our own meals and sleeping beneath the stars. During the days we will climb rock faces, practice ropework in the trees, cross imaginary rivers and other feats of daring. At night we may tell tales, play and make music. No experience is required. All equipment will be provided. A clothing list and other pertinent information will be mailed to you upon registration.

November 20–21
Applied Parapsychology /James L Hickman & Jeffrey Mishlove

Weekend workshop $60

Psychic skills have demonstrated usefulness in business administration, crime detection, archaeology, medical diagnosis, healing, gambling, behavior modification, personal development, education, and scientific exploration. Applications are promising in international relations. Research indicates that the potential for the practical application of psychic ability is within every person. Psychic abilities can be developed through systems of self-awareness, concentration, and meditation, relaxation, mind-body coordination, social reinforcement, and ecological attunement. Most important is actual practice and feedback with parapsychological experimentation. This workshop will inform you of the scientific research in parapsychology and allow you to experience the dimensions of holistic psychic development in a practical and verifiable fashion.

November 20
Developing Chutzpah: Assertiveness Training
Zoe Snyder, Lorle Kranzler Kennedy & Roz Parenti

One day workshop $30

Assertiveness is the ability to get what you want and make room for yourself in the world. Chutzpah, to us, means taking a risk with flair. We often limit ourselves by holding back from risks and remaining unaware of our potential. This workshop will focus on exploring and developing our strengths and finding the style of expression uniquely suited to each of us. Gestalt, psychodrama, and movement will be used to facilitate more direct communication with others, leading to better contact.

November 21
Where Do I Stand? A Workshop in Alexander Technique
Frank Ottiwell & Gioa Pinkas

One day workshop $30

Standing, sitting, walking—even lying—are activities most of us carry our in an habitually thoughtless and haphazard manner. This workshop will introduce the principles of the Alexander Technique and provide an opportunity for individual work on the body/self in everyday actions. It is our year-in, year-out daily habits which have the greatest accumulative effect on us. Our aim will be to bring a degree of conscious control to these actions and to every act of our lives.

November 27–28
Improving Eyesight Through Conscious Vision
Raymond Gottlieb & Mier Schneider

Weekend workshop $60

Vision is not only eyeball, just as posture is not bones and muscle, nor thinking just brain. Vision is a collection of interrelated, functional, and changing processes which are learned on the basis of individual adaption to life experience. The inherent flexibility necessary for adaption can be inhibited by emotional, unconscious attitudes. Often this is the basis for poor vision, posture, and thinking-learning behavior. When vision becomes conscious, it becomes integrated and flexible and can flow creatively with the demands of the environment. This weekend will be devoted to work with the Bate's system and a special system of body work to help participants feel and use their bodies and eyes in new ways.

November 27–28
Energy Transmutation & Massage / Robin Merrifield

Weekend workshop $60

This weekend we will be working with states of being beyond the bounds of our everyday consciousness. Our focus will be the transmutation of energy from the physical to the transphysical dimensions. We will expand our awareness through the gentle art of massage, music, diatic meditation, contemporary alchemy, and Arica body techniques.

November 30—December 21
The Future of the Human Potential / Michael Murphy

Four evening seminars, 8–10:30 pm $40

These evening seminars will examine the past, present and future of "the human potential movement" in relation to the larger cultural transformation we are experiencing, including possibilities for further explorations of consciousness and transformations of the human mind and body.

1793 Union Street, San Francisco

JUDGMENT, REBIRTH of life and love. The Lady returned, nature's rhythm restored. Karma cleared. The Phoenix reborn in balance. All the tribes dance the Rites of Spring. Joy to the World!

December 2

The Natural Skier / Bob Kriegel

Single evening event, 8–10:30 pm $4 general admission

The purpose of this workshop is to help skiers find the natural skier within them. Through the use of centering, balance, awareness, movement, visualization, and relaxation exercises, we will discover a natural, effortless, and joyful way of skiing. We will learn the basics of a carved turn, a natural position on skis and pole planting. We will also discuss ways of transcending fear, of overlearning and how each of us prevents ourselves from experiencing our own natural skier. Many of this evening's techniques were developed in a three month training program for ski instructors of the Sun Valley Ski School under the direction of Bob Kriegel.

1793 Union Street, San Francisco

December 3–5

Psychic Massage: The Spirit & The Body
Ray Stubbs & Billie Jean Hobart

Weekend workshop $60

During this weekend of physical and non-physical massage, we will explore relationships between touching and energy through meditation, breathing, and other innerspace techniques. We'll also examine responsibility and the role of the healer. Bring bathing suits or loose clothing.

Suggested reading: Psychic Massage, Roberta DeLong Miller; Journeys Out of the Body, Robert Monroe; Seth Books.

December 3–5

Initiations: The Psychology of Symbolic Forms
Joseph Campbell

Residential weekend workshop $120

This will be a weekend of slide-illustrated lectures and discussions dealing with the relationship of the symbolic forms of myth, dream, and creative art to archetypal psychological structures. Illustrations will be drawn from Oriental and Occidental religious art, as well as from the fantasies of psychological patients and modern creative artists.

December 4–5

Interacting: A Body Work Experience / Judith Binder

Weekend workshop $50

This weekend will be devoted to work in body alignment, centering, breathing, sensory awareness, and control of energy. We will meet in a beautiful studio and private garden to explore our group process as we act out our dreams, personal journals, and poetry.

December 8

Experiencing Color Nutrition / Franziska Gehrig

Single evening event, 8–10:30 pm $3.50 general admission

This evening we will experience color as an energy force in the world and in ourselves. This deep experience of color triggers soul images which are the prerequisite for thoughts and imagination. We will learn to sense this trigger and to use color as an energizing power.

1793 Union Street, San Francisco

December 10

I Move & Extraordinary Powers
Films by Michael Wiese

Single evening event, 8–10 pm $4 general admission

I Move is a new 58 minute film exploring the transformation of the body in the martial arts, dance, Western sports and body disciplines. Extraordinary Powers is a short film of the fastest runners in the world which probes belief systems, limitations and performance. Discussion with the filmmaker will follow.

1793 Union Street, San Francisco

December 11

Centering in Action / Bob Kriegel

One day workshop $30

The purpose of this workshop is to show that there need be nothing mysterious, mystical, or devotional about centering—the process of tuning into that place of inner strength and wisdom from which we experience more of our possibilities and potential.

To experience centering we will play active games of all types, invent new ones, and practice exercises from yoga, aikido, t'ai chi, and sensory awareness.

We will use gestalt awareness, visualization, and psychosynthesis techniques to bring the insights gained in these activities to a more conscious level and to transfer them into our daily lives.

December 11–12

Growth Through Risk-Taking
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

Weekend workshop $60

This workshop provides the opportunity for the group members to come to terms with the definitions by which they live. Through a series of structured risk-taking situations, the use of gestalt, role playing, fantasy, and encounter techniques, the participants can accept or transcend the boundaries from which they approach the world. Emphasis will be placed on the expression of anger, affection, sexuality, and the transcending of roles. This workshop is especially useful for people who have had previous encounter experience.

December 12

Discovering the Voice / Kate Fitzmaurice

One day workshop $30

We will work on freeing the flow of breath and releasing the tension that inhibits resonance and expressiveness. We will use relaxation methods from yoga and bioenergetics and explore how the voice expresses personality.

December 12

The Innerspaces of Running: A New Approach to Running
Mike Spino

One day workshop $30

Focusing on the running experience, this workshop will introduce a holistic method of mind/body development. Each participant will be taught various running gaits and tempos, muscle/skeletal exercises, breathing techniques, and philosophy and lore related to optimum physical fitness. There will be special emphasis on guided fantasy, inner space development, and creativity in quest for extraordinary experiences. Each person will receive an individual consultation and have the opportunity to continue towards personal goals on an ongoing basis.

December 18–19

Giving & Receiving & Blessing: A Christmas Celebration
Betty Fuller

Weekend workshop $60

Experiences in sharing and accepting, of letting go and letting be. A time to acknowledge what works and what doesn't; to affirm what works and make life-positive choices. We'll celebrate changes and angels in bread, wine, song, and dance and Saturday evening communion with a pot-luck picnic supper. Come and give of yourself—receive of others in sweet, sweet surrender.

"It is your own heart and the level of your consciousness that determines all."

Human Life Styling / John Coston McCamy, MD

Weekend workshop $60

Human Life Styling is a simple, workable system whereby we can learn to take total charge of our lives. Combining movement, personal ecology, nutrition, stress reduction and relaxation techniques, we will design a health care system and a personal life style based on a new ethic. This workshop is designed for all those interested in wholistic health and is particularly useful for those in the healing professions.

Exploring Pathways to High Level Wellness
Coordinated by John Travis, MD
& the Esalen Staff

The idea of measuring wellness and assisting people to attain high levels of wellness is relatively new. Most of us have thought in terms of illness and assumed that the absence of illness indicates wellness. We are becoming increasingly aware of a broad continuum of potentiality where "not ill" still leaves a vast field for developing ourselves within and without.

During this four month course we will take a good look at where we are on the wellness continuum, determine the areas we could develop further and explore together many techniques in a balanced program of "well medicine." Recognizing stress reduction, nutrition, self responsibility, and physical awareness as components of "well medicine," we will be covering such areas as meditation/visualizations; massage; body work, including—aikido, feldenkrais, patterning, etc.; Chinese and Tibetan medicine; biofeedback and group process work.

Each participant will receive a wellness evaluation which includes the following: health hazard appraisal, wellness inventory, nutritional survey, eating habits survey, tension measurements, life change index, purpose in life survey, and a creativity sample (does not include physical exam or lab work).

Guest leaders will include:

Ken Pelletier	Ellen Guenther, MD
Hector Prestera	Bill Gray, MD
Mike Spino	Patricia Sun
Jeanne Rose	Anna Kaye
Jerry Green	Ray Castellino
Robert Nadeau

The course will consist of an introductory weekend Feb. 5 & 6, 15 Wednesday evenings, 3 Saturdays, and will conclude with a three day residential weekend at Westerbeke Ranch in Sonoma (Memorial Day Weekend).

Tuition: $475.00 Non-refundable deposit: $100.00

Center for Energetic Studies

The Center for Energetic Studies, under the direction of Stanley Keleman, is a program of teaching, workshops and seminars concerning body process as the basis for how individuals form both themselves and their worlds.

The Center seeks to understand the life of the body. We are evolving ways to help persons gain experience and re-education in basic biological learning. This learning enhances emotional and psychological perception and expression. Individual identity as well as the very power of living lies in the continual forming and reforming of our bodies, and therefore ourselves.

For information and registration concerning Center programs contact:
Center for Energetic Studies
1645 Virginia Street, Berkeley, CA 94703

October—December
A Program of Supervised Studies
Stanley Keleman & Peter Koestenbaum

Most persons adopt, without much examination, a philosophy of life rather than developing one out of personal experience. In this advanced study group, persons will become better acquainted with the philosophical assumptions governing their work and life and then explore the relationship of these assumptions to their biological process. The program will offer skills to better formulate a personal philosophy of life and a deepened understanding of the clinical uses of existential philosophy and phenomenology.

These seminars, limited to 12 persons, consist of readings, lectures, discussions, experiences, and work with the body. The program meets for six all-day sessions, on the following Fridays: October 8, 15, 29, November 12, 19, December 10, 9:30 am to 5:00 pm, in Berkeley. Tuition is $220. Apply by letter to the Center, including educational or experiential background and a brief statement about yourself.

October 5—28
Excitation & Its Expression / Ian Grand

Tuesday and Thursday evenings, 7:30—10 pm $100

Twice weekly work with the body, emphasizing each person's unique process of generating, containing, and forming excitation and feeling.

October 5, 7, 12, 14, 19, 21, 26, 28.

October 13—December 1
Theories of "Psychotherapy" / Joseph Lyons

Wednesday evenings, 7:30—10:30 pm $100
No meeting on November 24

"Psychotherapy" is a way of talking about the way we talk about ourselves, a way of feeling directly the way we feel at odds with ourselves. One way or another, it has marked most of us as professionals who may now be ready to consider some of the issues that it raises. We will begin to learn how we learn by considering some problems of human subjectivity that are posed by these theories—problems concerning power between people, and the parapsychology of consciousness, and knowing what is true and real about ourselves, and the life of the body in its relation to persistence and character and change. A seminar format, limited to 15 persons.

October 23
Tutorial with Stanley Keleman

One day workshop, 10 am—5 pm $40

This one day program looks at the role of the body in feeling and thinking. Enrollment is limited; register early.

October 30—31
Couples' Workshop / Paul Aikin & Nancy Jungerman

Weekend workshop in Davis, California $100

Participants will explore the energetic, bodily experience of the intimate, man-woman relationship. Emphasis will be on process—how we form ourselves and are formed by the relationship.

November 4, 11, 18, December 2
Opening / Movement—Dance / Tamara Greenberg

Four Thursday evenings, 7:30—10 pm $30

We will encourage a fuller range of expressive movements—to experience and develop quietness, imagination, emotions, playfullness and excitement.

November 13 & 14
Music & Movement / Tamara Greenberg & Dorothy Lyons

Weekend workshop $50

Using movement together with Orff Instrumentarian, the group will develop new paths of self-expression. We will play with sounds from street games, poetry, the blues, and chants to explore improvisation and musical experimentation. These experiences will be related personally and also for use professionally.

December 4—5
Open Bioenergetic Workshop / Paul Aikin

Weekend workshop in Davis, California $50

Through working individually and in a group with procedures developed at the Center, this workshop will deal with the way we live in our bodies and express our emotions.

December 6—10
Concepts & Images of the Body
Stanley Keleman & Joseph Campbell

Five day residential seminar $240

With examples from art, symbol, myth, literature, this seminar will look at changing concepts of the human form and its idealized types through history and from culture to culture, East and West. A limited number of nonresidential participants can be accepted (tuition, $140). To be held at a conference center near Santa Cruz. Advance deposit of $50

Food for Thought

The New Medicine & Holistic Healing

The following excerpt is taken from an article in NEW WEST magazine, May 10, 1976. Persons interested in the entire article are referred there.

The nation's health is not improving due to our extravagant investment in the present medical system. Life expectancy for American adults has improved little or none since the 1920s and in many ways we are becoming more sickly than ever. Something simply doesn't make sense.

In his often-quoted book, The Structure of Scientific Revolutions, Thomas Kuhn argues that every dominant science eventually oversteps itself. Its very successes take it out to extreme positions and practices that hasten its fall, its replacement by another approach. In its final stages, according to Kuhn, the old science enters a period of crisis and anomaly. In other words, things don't work and things don't make sense. Could it be that our present medical science—the provenance of miracle drugs and heart transplants, the habitat of Marcus Welby, M D—has entered just such a period? And if so, what is the New Medicine that will take its place?

Conventional modern medicine, the Old Medicine, must be given its due. The miracles are real, the triumphs truly dramatic. For what it's good at, the Old Medicine is superb. If you are hit by a truck or contract a severe bacterial infection or have an attack of appendicitis, you are fortunate indeed to be in the hands of a Marcus Welby. But the Old Medicine has little to offer in the way of promising good health. And its practices are now causing a great deal of sickness and suffering—more, according to some critics, than they are curing.

Doctor-prescribed drugs, for example, have become one of the nation's major causes of death. Adverse drug reactions probably total at least 3 million a year. Estimates of hospital deaths due to drugs range up to 140,000 a year. Taking the rather conservative figure of 29,000 deaths from the Boston Collaborative Drug Study, you will have adverse drug reactions as the eleventh most deadly killer in the United States, just behind bronchitis, emphysema, and asthma. Combine these drug reactions in hospitals with the estimated 300,000 people admitted to hospitals every year because of doctor-prescribed drugs,* and you have an added hospital care cost of $4.5 billion annually.

The Old Medicine has created its own Frankenstein's monster. Potent drugs, futuristic technology, and heroic procedures now exist, and thus, in the name of "saving" even the hopelessly ill, must be used. The cost is staggering; the results are questionable. Dr. Alexander Leaf of Harvard Medical School has cited one study group of 40 patients with ruptured aortic aneurysms. The combined hospital bills of these people came to more than a million dollars, an average of better than $25,000 each. Only one of the 40 left the hospital alive. Such expensive exercises in futility are naturally reflected in our health insurance bills.

More of the same—more drugs, more hospitals, more technology, more spectacular operations—is obviously not the answer. Under present conditions, medical science has probably gone about as far as it can go. This once-radical point of view is now reverberating in academic and professional circles. "No one is saying that medicine is good for nothing," observed Professor Aaron Wildavsky of the Graduate School of Public Policy at Berkeley, "only that it is not good for everything."

As the Old Medicine grinds painfully toward the end of the era of "modern medical miracles," a New Medicine is in the process of being born. This New Medicine, sometimes known as "holistic health," is the creation of a large and colorful cast of characters, ranging from established medical professionals to psychic healers and Indian shamans. Like most experimental movements, it is centered on the West Coast, though its practitioners are scattered around the nation. Its growth is spectacular (a symposium on healing at the University of California, Santa Cruz, last spring drew an unexpected overflow crowd of 1,500), and its results are already promising enough to attract substantial academic, foundation and government support. Though New Medicine practitioners are a diverse lot, most of them share common assumptions:

1 Positive wellness, not just the absence of disease, is the goal. The conventional physician considers a person well if he has no symptoms and falls within the normal range in a series of diagnostic tests. Yet, this "well" person might smoke heavily, take no exercise, eat a bland, sweet, starchy diet, and impress all who meet him as glum, antisocial, and emotionally repressed. To a New Medicine practitioner, such a person is quite sick, the carrier of what biologist Rene Dubos calls "submerged potential illness." In the New Medicine, the absence of overt disease is only the starting point, beyond which a whole world of good health beckons.

See Agnews study in Esalen Catalog Spring 1976 for strong evidence of destructive use of "tranquilizing" drugs in mental hospitals.*

2 The causes of most illness are to be found in environment, life-style, and emotional/sensory balance. This assumption of the New Medicine is only partly new. The environmental origin of many diseases has long been known, but the true dimensions of the problem are only now coming to light. Recent studies suggest that 80 to 90 percent of all cancers may be triggered by environmental factors, especially the pesticides, plastics, food additives, and other pollutants that have flooded our environment since World War II. One distinguished biochemist, who asked that his name not be used, fears that we may be in for a veritable plague of cancer, during which up to one out of four adults in the United States would be stricken. Such a plague would be particularly insidious, since the lead-time for environmentally caused cancer is ten to twenty years.

Life-style, as a crucial factor in sickness and health—a cornerstone of New Medicine belief and practice—is also gaining impressive validation. Some of the venerable truisms of good, clean living, in fact, are now popping up in large-scale health surveys. Dr Lester Breslow, Dean of UCLA's School of Public Health, compared the actual health of 7,000 California adults with seven old-fashioned "health habits":

No smoking
Moderate drinking
Seven or eight hours sleep per night
Regular meals with no snacks in between Breakfast every day
Normal weight
Moderate, regular exercise

The survey showed, with amazing consistency, that the health of people with seven of the habits was better than the health of those with six, those with six better than those with five, and so on down the line. A study of 2,000 long-lived people conducted by Dr Robert Samp of the University of Wisconsin came up with similar results, and with additional findings that related good health with personaltiy traits such as moderation, serenity, optimism, interest in others, and interest in the future.

The connection between disease and personality is a bit more controversial. There's no question about the emotional factors involved in such ailments as ulcers and spastic colon. But New Medicine practitioners go much further, arguing that all disease is related to personality, with the way you handle your emotions. Environmental causes may trigger cancer, they feel, but the person with a fluid, well-balanced personality is far more likely to ward it off. A number of researchers, in fact, have independently arrived at what might be called a "cancer personality," observing that cancer patients tend to be rather rigid, self-sacrificing people, who repress their feelings and hold onto resentments. More conventional researchers reject this thesis. They may agree with the environmental genesis of cancer, but tend to believe, with curious disregard for scientific causation, that pure chance, the roll of the dice, determines who actually develops the disease. In any case, the link between personality type and a variety of serious ills is becoming increasingly well-defined. The driven, aggressive, goal-oriented personality, for example, is rather clearly associated with increased risk of heart attack.

3 Prevention of illness, according to the New Medicine, lies less in the annual physical than in the transformation of your life. "Subjecting people with no medical complaints to a complete battery of screening procedures every twelve months is probably ridiculous," Dr Stuart O Schweitzer was quoted as saying in a recent interview in Family Practice News. Dr Schweitzer, who is doing a federally funded study on the cost-effectiveness of routine medical tests, points out that the chances of finding something wrong during an annual checkup on a person without symptoms is very, very low—and extremely costly.

The most effective and least expensive preventive measures have little or nothing to do with medical science as we have known it. "Health care in the future will be based on a far broader base," Dr Phillip R Lee said. "Changes in lifestyle, for example, can make truly fantastic improvements in the nation's health." Dr Lee, Professor of Social Medicine and one of the nation's most distinguished health-care experts, suggested a thought experiment to dramatize the possible effects of social and personal transformation. "If all abuse of tobacco, alcohol, and automobiles could be magically erased with the snap of a finger," he said, "at least half of all hospital beds in this country would suddenly be empty."

The New Medicine concerns itself not just with the abuse of tobacco, alcohol, and cars, but with all the tragic and ingenious ways we have learned to abuse the gift of life.

4 Healing of many chronic diseases, which are only ameliorated by the Old Medicine, may be possible after all. We rarely stop to consider how many of our common ills are beyond the power of our present medicine to heal. Potentially dangerous drugs are often used just to mask symptoms and provide temporary relief. Television commercials offer us aspirin and stomach remedies and backache salves, but don't promise that the headache or indigestion or backache won't be back tomorrow or next month or next year. In the same way, certain prescription remedies may arrest or slow the course of arthritis, diabetes, emphysema, and the like, but lack the power to improve the situation. New Medicine practitioners believe, to a greater or lesser degree, that long-term healing may take place in the case of some otherwise hopeless chronic ailments, without the use of powerful drugs.

5 Illness is not necessarily bad. According to New Medicine practitioners, every outbreak of illness is an expression of some imbalance in your life. Thus, it provides important information that can be used for creative growth. Rather than attacking every disease with all the force that can be mustered, the New Medicine practitioner is prepared, in noncritical cases, to let the malady run its course, allowing the body, mind, and spirit (the three aren't seen as separate) to achieve balance, perhaps at a higher level than before the illness.

6 Responsibility for your health lies not with your physician, but with yourself. The New Medicine holds that you are not a mere physical object, vulnerable to random attacks by germs and viruses and other mysterious agents of disease. You are a capable, self-aware being with considerable command of all your interactions in this world. Doctors and medical technicians may assist you in your quest for good health, but the buck stops with you.

This simple, radical shift of responsibility, and power, underlies every aspect of the New Medicine. It also points the way toward a solution to the current crisis in the Old Medicine. The precise role of traditional medicine in the emerging field is yet to be defined. In the words of Dr Leonard Duhl of the Health and Medical Sciences Program at Berkeley: "Doctors haven't been trained for health, but somehow have been held responsible for it. That's not right. Health is the responsibility of the society. Doctors should be connected to holistic health, but shouldn't control it."

The New Medicine will draw its share of charlatans. Trivial, faddist practices will masquerade under the name "holistic." But the energy behind this movement comes from a need—perhaps a historical necessity—that will outlast any fad. It is simply that we have given too much of our time and money to sickness. At best, the New Medicine turns us toward something we may have almost forgotten: the tingling feeling of being totally alive and aware and at home in the world.

—George Leonard

Medical Nemesis

The following quote is taken from the book Medical Nemesis by Ivan Illich published and copyrighted by Pantheon Books, a division of Random House.

The level of public health corresponds to the degree to which the means and responsibility for coping with illness are distributed among the total population. This ability to cope can be enhanced but never replaced by medical intervention or by the hygienic characteristics of the environment. That society which can reduce professional intervention to the minimum will provide the best conditions for health. The greater the potential for autonomous adaptation to self, to others, and to the environment, the less management of adaptation will be needed or tolerated.

A world of optimal and widespread health is obvioulsy a world of minimal and only occasional medical intervention. Healthy people are those who live in healthy homes on a healthy diet in an environment equally fit for birth, growth, work, healing, and dying; they are sustained by a culture that enhances the conscious acceptance of limits to population, of aging, of incomplete recovery and ever-imminent death. Healthy people need minimal bureacratic interference to mate, give birth, share the human condition, and die.

Man's consciously lived fragility, individuality, and relatedness make the experience of pain, of sickness, and of death an integral part of his life. The ability to cope with this trio autonomously is fundamental to his health. As he becomes dependent on the management of his instinct, he renounces his autonomy and his health must decline. The true miracle of modern medicine is diabolical. It consists in making not only individuals but whole populations survive on inhumanly low levels of personal health. Medical nemesis is the negative feedback of a social organization that set out to improve and equalize the opportunity for each man to cope in autonomy and ended by destroying it.

Self-Acceptance—The Freedom To Be
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

Each of has unique capacities to feel and express: tenderness and strength, anger and affection, autonomy and needfulness as well as compassion, humor, and wisdom. The willingness to allow the fullness and vibrance of each of these qualities determines how alive and gratified we are.

In this workshop we will focus on how we diminish or affirm these essential qualities as they are expressed through our bodies, our sexuality, our creativity, our relationships to power, our friendships, and our expectations of ourselves and others. In an atmosphere of tenderness and support, we will clarify the nature of who we are and how we can best take care of ourselves, both here and on returning home. The workshop will be grounded in the techniques of gestalt, encounter, guided fantasy, massage, bioenergetics, and journal work. $270 + $2 video fee.

Truth About Self: One's Dyad, One's Body, One's Beliefs
John & Toni Lilly with Helen Costa, Bernice Danylchuck, & Lika Yandall

Self truth is one's own. Scientific truth is social. Dyad truth is in a couple. Body truth is to be learned. One's beliefs about these are to be experienced/experimented upon in this workshop. The narcissistic preoccupation of all humans with humans generates man's/woman's "interspecies deprivation." With the help of Bernice Danylchuck, Helen Costa, and Lika Yandall we see body truth. With Toni we see dyad truth. With dolphins we see interspecies truth. $270

Weekend of October 8-10

Massage Intensive / The Esalen Massage Crew

The Esalen massage crew, with its unique variety of approaches and styles, will teach basic techniques for giving and receiving massage, both for immediate relaxation of tension and as a way of caring. Emphasis here is on deepening the quality of touch-communication and heightening awareness of the energy flow between the body in motion and the body at rest.

The group will meet daily at the mineral baths. Limited to 16. $110

Opening the Feelings: A Neo-Reichian Workshop
Laura Dillon

The aim of this workshop is to help participants free up their capacity to experience and express deep feelings. Emotions are held in the body through muscular tensions which Wilhelm Reich called muscular armoring. Through the use of Radix emotional release techniques developed by Charles Kelley and other body oriented approaches we will work to soften these tensions and release the feelings held there. The group will provide a supportive nurturing atmosphere to enhance the process of emotional release. $110

October 8-10

Quantum Psychology Workshop

Psychology and models for consciousness have been largely formulated in terms of metaphors originating in the seventeenth century mechanics of Newton and the nineteenth century electro-magnetic field theory of Maxwell. The time is long overdue for the integration of the expanded world view of post-Einsteinian quantum physics into the everyday world of people exploring the nature of consciousness.

We shall present the basic ideas of quantum and relativity physics in imaginative and entertaining ways. Relativity is based on a particular way of communicating. Quantum mechanics arises out of fundamental limitations placed on our control of the world. The second law of thermodynamics places a price in free energy on every bit of knowledge we acquire. A new kind of non-Boolean "quantum logic" applies to the actions of atoms and, perhaps, to the actions of human beings. Why does time appear to flow from past to future? What is the physics of life? How does form arise out of chaos? Are there deep archetypal structures acting as generative principles common both to physics and to psychologies of consciousness? These are the kinds of questions to be discussed and experienced in the workshop.

The workshop is recommended for physicists, psychologists, ministers, and teachers (high school and above) and all laymen with a serious interest in an intellectual understanding of the seminal problems at the "epistemic edge" between mind and matter.

Leaders:

Dr Nick Herbert	CORE, Boulder Creek, CA
Dr John King	Professor of Physics, San Diego State University
Dr Jack Sarfatti	Director, Physics/Consciousness Research Group, San Francisco
Saul-Paul Sirag	Institute for Study of Consciousness, Berkeley
Dr Peter Flessel	Professor of Molecular Biology, University of San Francisco
Dr Fred Wolf	Professor of Physics, San Diego State University

Scorpio, Queen of Cups, love, desure, awakened emotion. Mab, Morgana, lady of the enchanted wood, moon-mist, rainbow's end. A happy, alluring, teasing woman, mysterious to many, following her desires oriented towards life . . . and death.

Week of October 10-15

Energy / Bernard Gunther

We are all fields of energy living in an energy field. Our potential is limitless, yet we frequently find ourselves operating in fatigue and limitation. This damming of the Self is caused by excessive tension, shallow breathing, toxic relationships, and nonfocused thought, which rob the organism of vitality and pleasure. How to tap this infinite supply of energy, how to rechannel and raise sexual energy, and how to apply this knowledge in everyday activity will be the task of this seminar. In this work we will explore aspects of hypnosis, yoga, gestalt, psychosynthesis, and color sound chakra meditation to experience more fully our flow of vital and psychic energy. $270

God, Sexual Energy & Your Body / Gabrielle Roth

Sexual energy is the key which opens the door for us between spirit and matter. This workshop is designed to penetrate the religious / sexual gap as it exists in our consciousness, attitudes, and actions. We will use sound, movement, breathing, massage, and music as meditation tools to awaken our experience of the self. We will be working on a very deep level—please be prepared to spend the week in celibacy. In order to move through the barriers we have about making deep and meaningful contact with our selves and others we need to have the security of exploring our selves without the pressure of sexual performance. This work is rooted in shamanism and springs from a psychic source through Gabrielle. $270 + $2 video fee.

Massage Intensive / The Esalen Massage Crew

Everyone has felt the magic of a caring touch, but most of us know how to rub our pets better than we do our friends and lovers. For five days the members of the massage crew, each with their own unique style, will give instruction and help the group to practice basic techniques of massage upon one another: sensory awareness, deep muscular massage, joint articulation, polarity. As we learn to feel with our hands how the body and the life-force within it works, we learn to release tensions in others and to be more fully aware of our own spiritual machinery.

The group meets daily in the mineral baths. $270

Take a Second Look at Yourself / Janet Zuckerman

We will focus on taking a good look at what is going on behind the masks we wear and what is underneath the expressions we put on our faces to confront the world. "Who are you?" and "Who do you pretend to be?" are the polarities we will be working with. Every one of us has a great deal of unused potential and I see the group experience as a safe place to begin to tap into this energy. This week will be entirely experiential using mirrors, gestalt, soft-encounter, and sensory awareness. $270 + $4 video fee.

Weekend of October 15-17

Medicine for the Nonmedical (or even the Medical)
Don Lindsay

In this workshop the conventional scientific medical model is presented. We will discuss its philosophy, its strengths, weaknesses, mystiques, fears, and snobbery, together with what the public fears and expects of it. We will share and experience our feelings, beliefs, and knowledge. Persons militantly antimedical are especially invited.

Suggested reading: Panic in the Pantry. $110

Meltingintwone / Bernard Gunther

Often we have sex when what we are really seeking is an open closeness, caring, energy sharing to quiet an intense underlying sense of tension, anxiety, and emptyness. Intimate relationships are most rewarding when they are not only pleasurable but uplifting, continually new and renewing. In this workshop for couples we will explore the physical mundane to a higher plane of consciousness, intimacy, and awareness. In this experience we will explore transmutation, polarity therapy, and nonverbal communication; moving from intensity toward ecstatic bliss. $110 per person.

Centering in Action / Bob Kriegel

The purpose of this workshop is to show that there is nothing mysterious, mystical, or devotional about centering—the process of tuning into that place of inner strength and wisdom from which we experience more of our possibilities and potential.

To experience centering we will play active games of all types, invent new ones, and practice exercises from yoga, aikido, t'ai chi, and sensory awareness.

We will use gestalt awareness, visualization, and psychosynthesis techniques to bring the insights gained in these activities to a more conscious level and to transfer them into our daily lives. $110

Week of October 17-22

Unfolding the Inner Self / Michael Butler

Within each of us is an untapped seed of emotional and spiritual energy which can be the source of great creativity, peace, and joy in our life. All of us have moments in touch with it, and those are times when we are especially aware of our own unique beauty and strength. Sometimes this seed is called the "inner self."

There are methods, some age old, some new, that can directly tap into the inner self and help a person live in touch with it in everyday life. We will use tools which are designed to be gentle, yet go deep—music and chanting to open the heart, meditation practices, a form of dance which strengthens the emotional center, theoretical sessions on unity consciousness, gentle physical exercises—and other techniques for unfolding.

The workshop is limited to 14 participants and is appropriate for beginners as well as those with previous group experience. $270

Bio-Energy & the Gestalt Adventure
Leland Johnson & Mary Ann Merksamer

Bio-Energy: Your body released through bioenergetics, chakra sound, meditation, and t'ai chi ch'uan . . .

The Gestalt Adventure: The discovery of your now self and allowing what is obvious in you to emerge. Through dialogue you allow integration and feeling whole . . . getting to know all of your selves.

This workshop will focus on clarity, expression, and movement. Many of the experiences you will take home with you are contained in Bioenergetics—Body Contact Work and a forthcoming book, The Gestalt Adventure, by Leland and Mary Ann. $270

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

Coordinated by
Janet Zuckerman

These workshops are designed for people who have not previously been to Esalen/Big Sur. The emphasis is on finding those approaches to self-awareness that work most effectively for the individual participant. Some of the following experiences are available at each Experiencing Esalen workshop: sensory awareness, gestalt awareness training, encounter, theater games, guided fantasy, meditation, bioenergetics, massage. There is time to experience and explore the natural magnificence of the Big Sur coast.

Suggested reading: Gestalt Therapy Verbatim (Perls) and The New Education (Kelley).

Yoga, Meditation, Movement, Massage
Deborah Sulochana Medow

Through the regular practice of healing asanas and integrative movement, hatha yoga seeks to develop and maintain awareness of self. Meditation, a vehicle for inwardly focusing this awareness, quiets the mind and allows the spirit to grow and flower. The outward expression of this self awareness is movement: how we move in this world reflects who we are and how we feel about ourselves. Free form movement becomes a way to explore and creatively expand our ways of being. Massage is a means by which aware individuals can share with each other and more fully experience each other. In this workshop, we will use yoga, meditation, movement, and massage to explore and expand our ways of feeling and seeing, relating, and being. $270

Growth Through Risk-Taking
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

This workshop provides the opportunity for the group members to come to terms with the definitions by which they live. Through a series of structured risk-taking situations, the use of gestalt, role playing, fantasy, and encounter techniques, the participants can accept or transcend the boundaries from which they approach the world. $110

Psychic Aspects of Muscular Tension / Lillemor Johnson

In this workshop we will explore the synthesis of the mind-body work of Wilhelm Reich and of Nic Waal which has been developed by Lillemor Johnson. Her theory and method, developed in 1953, first obtains a complete body picture demonstrating areas of tension and hypotonia as related to respiration. Her experience shows that spontaneous activity is not promoted by concentrating on the treatment of tense muscles, which are seen as the patient's defense. Hypotonic muscle groups are seen representing repression with affects held in check.

The approach is gentle, involving the light touch of hypotonic muscle groups while the person lies quietly. Against the background of the total pattern of tonus, respiration, and posture, it will be possible to mobilize the repressed expressions and thereby reintegrate the total muscular pattern. The respiratory and emotional components will be released at the same time.

Theoretical and practical demonstration of the method will be provided. Individual private sessions will be available during the following week upon request. $110

Awareness Through Movement: The Feldenkrais Method / Ruth Alon

This workshop is for people who are willing to introduce awareness through expanded patterns of movement for improving their functioning in life.

Exploring processes of movement, we are gradually led to experience a wide variety of unused potential, while guided to meditate on the subtle qualities of our inner dynamics. Our vocabulary of possibilities widens together with our self image.

We relearn natural coordination and fluency, reviewing the primal evolution of the developing baby.

The style of pleasant effortless movement in the game of observed experiments, opens us to a nurturing attitude towards ourselves and our growth.

The new kinesthetic freedom creates space for transformed states of mind. $110

Sex Dreams & the Spiritual Quest
Ann Faraday & John Wren-Lewis

This workshop provides a unique opportunity to share and explore with Ann and John some exciting new discoveries, arising from their work with dreams, concerning the use of sexual energy in personal integration, spiritual growth, and mind/body transformation. Shortly after this workshop they will disappear to write their new book on this subject. In the workshop we shall discuss and demonstrate the various levels of meaning to be found in sexual dreams, and contributions of dreams from participants will be welcomed. Dreamers who are concerned about the intensity or even apparent perversity of sexuality in their dreams may find that they have deep religious significance when their symbolism is understood. The function of sexual energy in lucid dreams and out-of-the-body experiences will also be discussed.

To make the most of this workshop, participants should read Ann Faraday's Dream Power (Berkeley Medallion Books) and The Dream Game (Harper Perennial Library) beforehand. $110

Put Your Memories, Fantasies & Dreams to Work For You: A Reichian / Gestalt Approach to Energy Release
Joan Fiore

"To understand is to tremble. To recollect is to reenter and be riven."
—Harold Brodkey

This workshop focuses on releasing the energy locked in our memories, fantasies, and dreams so that this energy can be made available for present relationships and life situations in a way that makes our existence in the present less encumbered by unfinished business of the past as well as self-programmed, self-fulfilling prophecies of doom for the future. First priority is on intensive intrapersonal work in a supportive group setting. There will also be opportunities to explore the nature of our interpersonal relating through group interactions. $270

The Gentle Way to Wholeness: Feldenkrais & T'ai Chi Ch'uan
Ruth Alon & Kenneth Cohen

Through t'ai chi and the movement patterns developed by Dr Feldenkrais, we will explore gentle ways to reach quality and efficiency of movement. We will look for the "neutral," that openness and readiness of body-mind which allows movement in any direction without rehearsal.

We will work alone and with partners. Differentiating the various processes involved in simple, everyday movements, we become aware of blockages and learn to be centered in ourselves. Through the playful aspects of t'ai chi—"push hands" and self-defense—we learn to share this centeredness with another and to explore together a sense of free-flowing, creative energy.

There will be time for the sharing of words, silence, and ceremonial tea. $270

Program for the Study of Culture and Consciousness

October 31—November 26, 1976

Realms of the Human Unconscious
Coordinated by Stanislav Grof, MD

A four-week, interdisciplinary residential program for professionals and students in the fields of psychiatry, psychology, and psychotherapy.

Under the direction of Stanislav Grof, Esalen is gathering 34 faculty members to offer over 150 curriculum hours of didactic and experiential sessions of training in new approaches to psychotherapy and self-exploration. The resources within the group of participants will be combined with those of Esalen staff and guest faculty to explore the new cartography of the human mind emerging from experiential techniques of psychotherapy and laboratory consciousness research. The main objective of this workshop is to develop an effective eclectic approach to self-exploration and work with clients acknowledging and utilizing autobiographical material, as well as the dynamics of the death-rebirth process and transpersonal phenomena. The material presented during this workshop will fall into four major thematic groups:

I. New Techniques of Psychological and Psychosomatic Self-Exploration and Psychotherapy.

The approaches examined in this program will include gestalt practice, psychosynthesis, Jungian psychotherapy, encounter, neo-Reichian techniques, music and dance therapy, mandala work, feldenkrais, rolfing, and acupuncture. Practitioners of these methods will give a theoretical introduction and conduct individual and group sessions with participants. Special sessions will be dedicated to the problems of psychotherapeutic help in pregnancy, childhood, and incurable disease.

II. A Systematic Course on Psychedelic Drugs and Altered States of Consciousness.

Individual sessions of this program will cover the historical and cross-cultural aspects of altered states of consciousness; recent laboratory research in this area; principles of LSD psychotherapy with psychiatric patients and dying individuals; birth trauma and its significance for the understanding of mental disorders, suicide and ecstasy; phenomenology and dynamics of transpersonal states; outline of psychedelic cosmology and ontology; and convergence of mysticism and science. The emphasis will be on the implications of LSD research for the theory and practice of non-drug psychotherapy and for interventions in crises related to psychedelic drug use.

III. Exploration of Ancient and Aboriginal Healing Techniques and Their Relation to Modern Psychotherapy.

Parallels between archaic and modern therapeutic techniques will be discussed by visionary anthropologists and experimental psychiatrists. There will be demonstrations and experiential sessions in which participants will explore various shamanic practices. In addition, guided sessions in hatha yoga, tai chi, and chanting meditation will be available on a regular basis. Illustrated lectures will be presented to examine the symbolic and mythological basis of healing practices.

IV. Laboratory Approaches to Self-Exploration.

Non-drug technology for altering consciousness, including a sensory isolation tank, clinical stroboscope, sonic driver, and lotus cradle will be available for participants.

This workshop will take place in the Esalen Study Center, an old Big Sur mansion located on cypress-covered cliffs overlooking the Pacific Ocean. The learning format will combine didactic seminars, illustrated lectures, experiential sessions, group process, individual help in self-exploration, and selected film material.

The program is limited to twenty-eight participants selected from applicants. The fee is $1,150 including room and board. Some working scholarships are available to students on the basis of need. Scholarship forms can be obtained from Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.

If you wish to enroll in the program, send a letter containing biographical information and current photograph to Hidden Mountain, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.

Jungian Psychology / John Perry
Jungian psychology is analytic and synthetic. It follows the natural moves of the psyche in the whole context of its emotional involvements, with no set expectations or program. The archetypal psyche is encountered in this emotional field, activated only in periods of stress when new values and meanings are replacing former ones. At these times, various dimensions of the transpersonal psyche may be brought into play. The objective is a strong, open ego that is heedful to the directives of the archetypal Self. $110

Introduction to Selective Awareness & Self-Hypnosis
Emmett Miller
The present-day student of health is confronting the possibility that the vast majority of physical disease patterns and essentially all psychological problems are the result of faulty programming of the "Human Biocomputer." Yet seldom can either physician or patient make use of this theory. The reason for the paradox is simple: you must know the language in order to talk to a computer (garbage in; garbage out). Selective awareness is self-applied, using your conscious mind—in a state of deep relaxation and concentration—to systematically explore and experience your world of experience and memory within. We will investigate selective consciousness through auto-suggestion; the elimination of unwanted symtoms, habits, and emotional response patterns; effective learning, listening, and communication; and body awareness. $110

Time: Warps & Woofs / Seymour Carter & Sam Keen
An authentic life is a weaving together of a rich awareness of the present moment with tattered elements of the past to create an informed hope. Sensation is always being intermeshed with the mythical warps we bring to experience.

This playshop will use sensory awareness, gestalt, and explorations in personal mythology to probe the ways we combine the opposites. Its aim is to increase the ability to surrender to the flow of the present moment and the ability to forge that meaningful coherence between past-present and future (memory-awareness-anticipation) that is the mark of an integrated personal life.

Bring photographs from childhood and the present. This workshop is limited to 20 participants.

Suggested homework: Neurosis & Human Growth, Karen Horney; Telling Your Story, Keen & Fox. $300

Selective Awareness, Self-Hypnosis & Movement
Emmett & Nitza Miller
To us, therapy is a means for capturing the spirit and momentum of enjoyable experiences in the past and projecting them into the future. Further, it allows us to trace maladaptive patterns—symptoms, habits, emotions, and blocks—to their source, as far back as infancy or further, and extinguish them.

Participants will learn to enter and use the hypnotic state for relaxation, imagery, and age regression. Movement will be used to help intensify emotional experiences, to transmit desirable self-concepts to the body, and to develop means of truly enjoying the body. Of special interest will be multiple experiences of going from a desirable mental image in hypnosis directly into a full movement experience, without pausing at the "waking" level. $270 + $4 video fee.

Opening the Feelings

RADIX NEO-REICHIAN WORKSHOPS
(formerly Interscience Workshops)

To grow in the capacity to experience and express deep feeling, to connect up with oneself, and to contact others is the aim of this series of workshops which employ neo-Reichian techniques of emotional release. The Radix Intensive, a period of individual work within a small group setting, is practiced by Charles and Erica Kelley and their staff at the Radix Work Shop. The Intensive, like other neo-Reichian techniques used in these workshops, grew from the discovery by Charles Kelley's teacher, Wilhelm Reich, of the way in which feeling is rooted in the flow of energy in the body, and is blocked by chronic muscular contractions which Reich called the muscular armor. Freeing the armor enables the student to open feeling that is buried and to soften and free feeling that is too strong and has been held in for fear of explosion.

In these workshops armor is softened by simultaneous work on the character and body, using techniques not only from Reich, but also from bioenergetics, sensory awareness, and other body-oriented approaches. Groups will be kept small—never more than eight per leader—so that significant individual attention can be given. Grief or pain, fear, and rage that have been held in since childhood emerge in these workshops. As the participant accepts and works through these negative feelings, he/she discovers a new capacity for pleasure, trust, and love. In time the sexual experience changes profoundly as tender and sexual feelings for the mate intensify and merge.

SCHEDULE:

Oct 24–29	Laura Dillon, Bob Meyers, & Renan Sercarz
Dec 12–17	Gregor Barnum, Connie Cossette, Anne MacKenzie

Steps to an Ecology of Mind / Gregory Bateson

In the last twenty years, the theoretical advances in cybernetics and advances in the study of personal interaction have led to new ways of looking at the living world, including everything from biology to poetry and politics. The workshop will explore these ways of perceiving and thinking. $110

Lighten Up: Body / Mind / Spirit / Betty Fuller

Many of us carry around enormous burdens of yesterday's regrets, resentments, and other unfinished business through which we screen our experience of today's here-now daily life. Frequently we made decisions "back then" which determine today's posture—physical, mental-emotional, and spiritual—and the choices we made about tomorrow's possibilities.

In this body-mind-spirit workshop we lighten the load using gestalt, encounter, psychosynthesis combined with feldenkrais and Trager body work, massage, meditation, song, dance, and laughter. As we experience greater flexibility, increased energy, expanded consciousness, and enhanced self image we can choose NOW to live now—viewing the soap opera of our life simply as the story of what happened along the way. $110

Week of November 14-19

Unfolding the Inner Self / Michael Butler

For workshop description see October 17—22. $270

Pleasure, Intimacy, & Grace / Stella Resnick

This workshop will focus on making friends with self and other selves through gestalt, meditating, touching, breathing, moving, and music. $270

Psychophysical Integration & Mentastics: A Training Workshop / Milton Trager

Psychophysical Integration and Mentastics, the innovative body work of Dr Milton Trager, was introduced here last year when he trained members of the Esalen staff and other professionals in body work. Dr Trager's work influences deep-seated patterns in the body/mind which inhibit, block and distort free-flowing movement and full self-expression. Since these blocks are released at the source, participants can experience long-lasting release of fixed patterns resulting in greater flexibility, increased energy and vigor and a more joyful, vibrant, complete sense of self. The body/mind becomes a well-tuned instrument capable of full self expression. Participants will all experience Dr Trager's work personally and will work on each other under his supervision. For professionals in body work only. $270

Weekend of November 19-21

A Weekend of Energy Release & Integration with Bioenergetics & Gestalt / Alan Schwartz

Read the description of the weeklong workshop (see November 21—26). This weekend should be thought of as an opportunity to become aware of blocks to the free flow of human energy in the body's musculature. The synthesis of bioenergetic analysis and gestalt therapy which is the energetic dimension provides the environment. Release and integration via grounding concepts will be the focus. $110

Week of November 21-26

Contact, Communication & Relationship: A Workshop for Professionals / Julian & Beverly Silverman

Our emphasis is on the relationship between individual process and group process. Our concern is with developing a way of being in which one's senses are open and one's contacting of others flexible. The learning which takes place occurs with a group of individuals who share and change in relation to each other. Emphasis is placed upon body in relationship to mind. $270

Communication Sesshin / Mark Ederer & Staff

Using inquiry as a tool through questions such as: Who am I?; What am I?; What is life?; What is another?; we will attempt to experience our true nature. This process has its roots in Rinzai Zen Buddhism; however, the workshop will utilize the western relating technique of "conscious relationship," the method of exploring oneself with the conscious presence of a partner. Participants will be asked to refrain from shaving, wearing makeup, smoking, gossiping, sex, and over-indulgence in food. We ask that you bring with you a willingness to commit yourself to the task of directly experiencing who you are. Bring a sleeping bag, flashlight, and comfortable clothing. Participants will be working on the question 18 waking hours per day, including walking contemplation and use of the baths. Sleeping and eating will be done in the meeting room.

Suggested reading: The Three Pillars of Zen, Phillip Kapleau. $220

The Energetic Foreground: A Bioenergetic-Gestalt Synthesis Alan Schwartz

Working with the energetic foreground synthesizes the philosophies of bioenergetic analysis and gestalt. The central dynamic of the organism is the energy that makes up the whole person. Energy flow is body flow, emotional flow, and mental flow. Energy is movement. When such movement is blocked on any of the above levels, the organism cannot function to nourish the person towards a mature sense of self. This workshop will move in the direction of such awareness by providing participants an opportunity to work and play through energy blocks, concentrating on those which restrict the expression of the body. This release will provide the insight necessary for participants to glimpse a more total sense of self. $270 + $2 video fee.

STRENGTH, an essential fusion of physical power, perception from the center and radiant mental energy. Serene in the midst of chaos, infinity is her womb.

Weekend of November 26-28

Arthurian Romance, Courtly Love, & the Grail
Joseph Campbell

A weekend of talks and discussions, illustrated with slides, dealing with the basic themes of medieval romance and their possible relevance to the refreshment of life today. The "Waste Land" theme of T.S. Eliot, traced to its source in the twelfth and early thirteenth century grail legends; the influence of oriental themes on medieval poetry; the mystical lore of the Courts of Love; spirituality as an individual adventure; woman as a vehicle of grace; love and loyalty as forces more powerful than death; these and the like will be our topics. Legends of the Celtic fairy hills, of Arabian and Sufi lore, and of medieval crusade will be our texts. $110

The Tao of Movement: For all Dancers of Life
Al Chung-liang Huang

Dance the "Watercourse Way," flow like the wind, like the water, effortlessly. To identify with and explore the egoless spontaneity of the motion/stillness in nature. To be in harmony with the Universal dance in everyday living. To begin to meditate kinesthetically our "Beginners' Mindbody"—that is the way (TAO)!

—Fishes swim in the water, but do not think of it;
Birds fly in the wind, but are not aware of it.—

On Dreams / Morton Schatzman

What if you slept, and what if in your sleep you dreamed, and what if in your dream you went to heaven and there plucked a strange and beautiful flower, and what if when you awoke you had the flower in your hand? Ah, what then?

—Samuel Taylor Coleridge

Many persons have awakened from dreams with the flower in their hands. The flower has been a song, a poem, a solution to a problem, a new outlook or insight or some other dream gift.

In this group we will consider our dreams as chances to "wake up." We will discuss lucid dreams, how to direct dreams and how to use dreams creatively. $110

Program for the Study of Culture and Consciousness

November 28—December 26, 1976
Paths of Transformation
Coordinated by Joan Halifax
Led by Paul Rebillot & Jean Lanier

"When you see, there are no longer familiar features in the world. Everything is new. Everything has never happened before. The world is incredible!"

—Don Juan, through Carlos Castaneda

"Make it new."

—Confucius, through Ezra Pound

This is an experiential and intellectual celebration of the light that emerges in the midst of our darkest Winter Solstice. In the process of this four week program, we will engage what Jung has termed "our own mythology" and the 2,000,000 year old human being residing within us all. This we will do through story, magic, image, word, deed, and dance.

In the first week of the program, the eminent mythologist, Joseph Campbell, will share with us the mythological cartographies of archaic and preliterate peoples in order to show us the universal and particular aspects of materials of all visionary experience, and arrive at some notion of how we may discover in the contexts of our own activated imaginations creative sources for the enrichment of our lives.

In the second week, we will explore these archaic maps through enactment with Paul Rebillot, Jean Lanier, and Joan Halifax. The hero's perilous journey, the spirit's quest for light, the grail, the mysteries of death and rebirth, these inspired human processes, universal in nature, will become a means of personal and transpersonal investigation of our own deepest selves.

The third week will be an exploration of the human unconscious, the shamanic world, and rites of transformation. Stanislav Grof will present his extended cartography of the human mind emerging from psychedelic research. Julian Silverman will share his unique research in the areas of shamanism and the shizophrenic process; Prem Das will guide us through the visionary world of the Huichol Indians; and Joan Halifax will summarize the week with a seminar on rites of passage. The conclusion of this third week with Gabrielle Roth will give us the opportunity to experience the mysteries of our own temple, the body, as we work with imaginative, inspirational, and intuitive levels of our physical consciousness.

The final week of the program, the week of the birth of Christ, will be a time of metamorphosis. The music of Charles Lloyd and others will be the energy field for the experience of Christmas. Paul Rebillot, Jean Lanier, Joan Halifax, and the Esalen staff will join us for this time of transformation.

Tuition is $1,200 for this 28 day program. Send a letter containing biographical information and a current photograph to Joan Halifax, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

Gestalt Practice / Richard & Christine Price

Perfect like Great Space
the Way has nothing lacking, nothing in excess.
Truly because of our accepting and rejecting
We have not the suchness of things.
—Sengtsan (3rd Zen Patriarch)

What is, is.
—Fritz Perls

Gestalt practice is a form—nonanalytic, noncoercive, nonjudgmental—evolving out of the work of Fritz Perls, relating that work to ways of personal clearing and development both ancient and modern. To the extent that awareness is made primary relative to action, gestalt practice has a strong relationship to some forms of meditation and visualization. In that emotional and energetic release and rebalancing are allowed and encouraged, the relation to some Reichian work is close.

The emphasis is *intra*personal rather than *inter*personal. Those who primarily wish interpersonal work are advised to attend an encounter rather than a gestalt group.

Participants are explicitly not "patients" but persons consenting actively to work (or play) in awareness. The "leader" functions to reflect, clarify, and flow with whatever emerges in this process. The aim is unfoldment, wholeness, growth rather than "adjustment," "cure," or "accomplishment."

Suggested reading: Gestalt Therapy Verbatim (Perls); Tao Te Ching (Lao Tzu); Cutting Through Spiritual Materialism (Chogyam Trungpa); The Power of Mindfulness (Nyanaponika Thera); Exploring the Crack in the Cosmic Egg (J C Pearce); Education in Feeling and Purpose (Kelley). $270

Weekend of December 3- 5

Tuning In / Janet Zuckerman

Many of us are operating as tape recorders. We switch on in the morning at "high" or "low" speed and play our tapes in response to the buttons being pushed by people or events. We are vaguely aware that life seems repetitive, or dull, that time is often something to be gotten through instead of savored, but this awareness is lost in the "noise" and business of day to day living.

This weekend will be devoted to bringing our attention to what we are doing—how we are really acting and thinking. Once we are aware of our tapes, we can go off automatic and begin to enjoy our interactions with one another. We will be using gestalt process, encounter, sensory awareness, and other techniques to tune in to ourselves and each other. $110

Exploring Self-Acceptance
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

The focus of this workshop is the creation of a more positive and open-ended self concept. Through the use of structured risk-taking situations, gestalt, role-playing, fantasy, and encounter techniques, participants can accept or transcend the self-imposed boundaries from which they approach the world. Emphasis is on searching out unique personality strengths, individual capacities, and latent powers as a means of achieving productive, creative functioning.

$110

The Miracle of Perception
Charlotte Selver & Charles Brooks

We usually associate perception only with what we see. However, the organism is marvellously provided with organs of perception and the sensory nervous system which can come into play both in quiet and in action. Awakening these rich sources brings about a much wider spectrum upon which we can build our life and our connection with all that happens within and around us.

Self Acceptance—The Freedom to Be
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

For workshop description see October 3—8. $270 + $2 video fee.

Massage Intensive / The Esalen Massage Crew

For workshop description see October 10—15. $270

You & Universal Motion / Robert Nadeau

The physical conscious system operates in direct relationship to a larger energy activity or universal motion. It is important to recognize this activity as a "friend" and learn to work in harmony with it. We will explore energy and our "marriage" with it through meditation, centering, and body movement. $270

South Coast Center

The living center is slowly evolving into a participatory environment
vital
changing
designing, redesigning inner and outer space with residents responsible for their own evolution.

The South Coast Center, located a mile and a half north of Esalen, is a living center for people who would like to be in contact with Esalen and its facilities but who are not interested in an intensive workshop program. Studios (room, balcony, and bath) are available for $350 per month. A monthly meal ticket may be purchased at Esalen for $200 and residents may set up light cooking facilities in their rooms for preparing their own meals. As part of our program of integrating residents into the working community, South Coast residents are asked to contribute eight hours per week of work to the community. In addition, due to the large number of people who want to be at South Coast, we have put a limit of three months on all South Coast residencies. South Coast studios may be reserved through the Esalen/Big Sur office.

Ways of Being at Esalen

Statement of Purpose & Objectives of Esalen as an Educational Institution

Esalen Institute is a nonprofit organization. Our primary purpose, in the broadest sense, is an educational one.

In order to support the unique educational form which we are continually developing, we require well functioning support systems (administrative, financial, legal, lodging, food preparation, etc.), which maintain and enhance the basic thrust of the Esalen educational program.

Our main contribution is in areas of knowledge and experience which ordinarily are not considered in traditional educational settings. "Confluent education," "affective education," "energy awareness," and various other types of experiential programs are a major concern at Esalen. At the same time we collaborate with established universities on educational programs. We believe that the natural environment at Esalen/Big Sur is a primary educational aspect of our programs. At Esalen, each student-seminarian finds and defines his own path to learning, taking his education from the total environment available—psychic, geographical, emotional, spiritual, and intellectual. The place and the people are the background and foreground of the ever-changing gestalt.

Our philosophy of education is simple; it is derived from the Latin meaning of the word educere—to lead out that which is within. We are not primarily interested in indoctrination or in instruction. We believe in the natural unfolding of a "student's" creative abilities in a supportive, natural environment.

We view the Esalen staff as developing into a faculty which is unique to educational institutions. We believe in the evolution of an educational form in which teaching and support functions are indistinguishable—where basic aspects of growth are taught by those who take care of the Esalen environment.

We see ourselves as working at being an "open educational system" responsive to changing conditions in society which are intrinsically related to changes in personal and social experience.

Ongoing Residential Program

Offered from September through May, the Ongoing Residential Program is designed for those who would like to have time and space in the Esalen environment for an intensive workshop program over a long term. A minimum stay: 26 days (or four "weeks" and three weekends).

Participants may select any of the five-day workshops offered during their stay. Weekend workshops are available at special prices. Some programs are cancelled, so second choices are advised. Some special staff programs will also be open to residents. Cost: $960 per 26-day period.

Work-Study Program

In the process of becoming educated, we are taught that it is more important to be involved with the outside world than with our Selves. We are taught to become Ego-involved—involved with manipulating things and people. We are taught to experience our potence (our com-petence) primarily in relation to others; we lose touch with the potence of our Selves—with our essence.

The growing interest of the western world in eastern spiritual disciplines and in the now-called "human potential movement" implies a yearning for dis-covering the SELF. The task for we western men and women is to integrate this dis-covering of SELF into the center of our technological, work-oriented civilization. It is with this task in view that we present the Work-Study program.

The Work-Study program is a residential program within the working context of the Esalen community.

The Focus: Learning/dis-covering the use of your own energy in work . . .
For your SELF.
Living together (close to others) operatively and cooperatively in a unique, high intensity environment.
Contact/communication with the people of Esalen via group work and in day-to-day Esalen happenings.
An opportunity for:
SELF-regulation
SELF-examination
SELF-contemplation
and if you choose
SELF-reevaluation
Facilitated by removal from your ordinary living context.

Group sessions with Esalen staff leaders are one kind of background for the program. Staff leaders include Janet Lederman, Christine Price, Richard Price, Beverly Silverman, Julian Silverman, and Janet Zuckerman.

Participants make a commitment to work 32 hours per week at such jobs as gardening, maintenance, office, kitchen duties, etc. Scheduling consideration is given to the community labor needs and work assignments are made according to these requirements. (Flexibility is one of the watchwords of life at Esalen). The Work-Study program is for those who are interested in immersion in the total environment of Esalen/Big Sur. It is a work-oriented program (emotionally and physically) and only rarely is it restful.

Housing is at the South Coast Living Center, one and a half miles north of the Hot Springs property, with shared accommodations of up to three persons to a room. The program lasts 28 days beginning on a Sunday: four weeks and four weekends at a basic cost of $300. A new program begins every four weeks.

If interested, please apply as early as possible to Work-Study Program, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920. Only a limited number of applicants are accepted. Professional services such as massage and rolfing are available at staff rates. Arrangements are made through the office.

Body Awareness, Moving, Relaxation & Vitality
Barbara Clemans

Fixed patterns of movement create tension in the body and rigidity in the mind. We will experience new ways to move which are functional with constant focus on breath and directed awareness of body sensation. Massage with directed energy will heighten our sensation of ourselves and others, allowing for dissolution of stress and increased vitality. We will use feldenkrais movement, sensing, meridian awareness, touch, and visualization with music. $110

December 19–26
The Birth of the Sun
Georgia Kelly, Charles Lloyd, Gabrielle Roth, & Myrtle Ratcliffe

The winter solstice is a time for restful introspection as the earth's outer darkness allows the inner sun of the soul to regenerate and find expression. Traditional cultures the world over have rested, fasted, and feasted during this time of the year in celebration of the turning point, the cyclic return.

We will join with artists, musicians, and for several sessions with members of the group, "Paths of Transformation," to create our own ritual and pageant for the staff and guests of Esalen during this holiday week. Using a variety of techniques such as toning, tuning, massage, movement, gestalt awareness, and meditation, we will integrate our personal rituals into a group presentation.

Participants may come for the entire seven days or may join the group for the weekend. $370

Weekend of December 24-26

The Birth of the Sun
(See December 19–24). This weekend group will join with the others, who, during the previous five days will develop a holiday ritual and celebration involving music, movement, and other forms of creative expression. Early arrival is encouraged with the first meeting at 3 pm Friday afternoon. $110

Week of December 26-31

A Week of Training in the Energetic Dimension For Therapists, Counselors, Educators / Alan Schwartz
This introductory week is designed for those seeking to expand their knowledge of human energy systems and add such knowledge to their work. Elements of characterology, grounding, and basic techniques of synthesizing bioenergetic analysis with gestalt will be explored. Participants should have had some exposure to bioenergetic and gestalt work and should have read some of the literature of Lowen, Perls, and Reich. $270 + $2 video fee.

I'm Entitled! / George & Judith Brown
This workshop teaches the process of owning what each of us has available in both our inner world and in our outer world, and appreciating the ways we interrupt our own natural growth and personal and interpersonal development. Then we can recognize what is and what isn't and what could (not "should") be and relish the choices, challenges, adventures, and peace to which we are all entitled. Suitable for couples or individuals. Limited to 20. $270

Lighten Up: Body / Mind / Spirit / Betty Fuller
For workshop description see November 12–14. $270

An Integrative Approach to Self Actualization Ilana Rubenfeld
The sea always has waves . . . waves are the sea . . . sea and waves are one. To speak of waves apart from the sea is a delusion—so mind and body are one!

The focus in this workshop will be on experiencing one's own body and emotions as a total organism. Emotions and memories are often stored in our bodies, resulting in tension and imbalance. A unique blend of gestalt, Alexander technique, and feldenkrais exercises will be used as a gateway to contacting, expressing, and working through deep feelings. Massage staff will be on hand to assist the workshop.

We have the choice to contact ourselves and each other with joy, sadness, compassion, humor, ideas, and with the body—the whole person. $270

Weekend of December 31- January 2

An Introductory Workshop in Confluent Education
Stephen Marcus

We'll celebrate your gestalt poet (and put your gestalt censor on hold). We'll also utilize right hemisphere, intuitive, metaphoric thinking skills to develop body-knowing and emotional literacy. We'll undermine intellectual fastidiousness and erect an eclectic foundation for "being smart." Participants will be encouraged to make direct applications to their specific work and life settings. Bring a journal with unlined pages.

Credit in Education is available for this workshop through the Extension Division of the University of California, Santa Barbara. All arrangements will be made during the workshop. $270

Feldenkrais & Massage / Barbara Clemans

Moshe Feldenkrais is the originator of a simple yet powerful new body technique. The exercises are pleasant and relaxed, each fifty minute segment being a different lesson. The work allows for the experience of integration, relaxation, and balance, improvement in fluidity, and ease in movement.

Carrying the awareness gained from the exercises to our experience with each other in massage, we will heighten our awareness of self-image and experience the relationship of body, mind, and psyche. $270

The Gentle Art of Becoming—Together: A Workshop for Couples / David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

This workshop will focus on the reawakening and development of positive and mutual supports that are at the root of satisfying couple relationships. The emphasis will be on creating clear and truthful expressions of the essential sense of loving and personal integrity. We will look at the beliefs and habits used to celebrate or lose the state of grace and presence which allows growth and joy for our partners and ourselves through the use of intuitional sensing, risk-taking structures, and guided imagery as well as gestalt awareness techniques. $110 per person

Inner Road to Health Practicum: Natural Healing & Self-Healing
Al Drucker & Staff

A month-long training workshop for 8 to 10 participants, covering some of the health arts taught at Esalen. The last workshop of this type given in May 1976 had ten class sessions per week and included training in massage, deep tissue restructuring, acupuncture theory, herbal and homeopathic systems, gestalt practice, and energy healing work. We also had a daily spiritual practice of devotional chanting and meditation, as well as tai chi, feldenkrais, yoga, and other physical practices. We expect that this present workshop will follow the same general format although the actual material covered will depend on group interest and availability of outside leaders. The program includes an eight-hour weekly work commitment in the garden, kitchen, or on the grounds. There will be time to attend regular brochure weekend programs for the catalog price minus $50. Classes will be held in Fritz's house, high on the hill overlooking the baths and the Big Sur coastline.

The fee of $800 covers tuition, shared accomodations at South Coast Center, two to a room, and meals for the month. A previous qualifying experience, such as the 4 or 5 week Inner Road to Health workshop is required for attendance. To register send a $200 deposit, your name, address, phone number, and a note giving the previous workshop experience. Mail to Esalen Institute, Reservations, Big Sur, California 93920. Acceptance is on a first come basis.

Selective Awareness & Gestalt Practice
Emmett Miller & Richard Price

Selective Awareness provides a means for identifying and unlearning undesirable characteristics of body/mind and rapidly learning desirable patterns. This takes place in a state of mind related to those of meditation and hypnosis. Like gestalt practice, selective awareness aims at the development of internal guidance free of externally imposed conditioning.

Woman to Woman / Man to Man
Dee Mundschenk David Schiffman

"The woman that most needs liberating is the woman in every man, and the man that most needs liberating is the man in every woman."
—Rev. William Sloan Coffin

Taking advantage of the natural affinity and support that people of the same sex can afford one another, the men and women in this workshop will meet separately as well as together. We will create an ambience of tenderness and support to provide opportunities to clarify the nature of who we are as men in the absence of women and who we are as women in the absence of men and what happens when we come together. The themes we will explore are our sexuality, our friendships, our body images, our coupling, our creativity, our relationship to power, our expectations of each other. The workshop will be grounded in the techniques of gestalt, encounter, fantasy, massage, and bioenergetics. $270 + $2 video fee.

A Weekend of Psychosynthesis / Lenore Lefer

Psychosynthesis is a practical approach to personal growth which helps us develop, balance, and integrate the physical, emotional, mental, and spiritual aspects of our experience. The purpose of this weekend will be to facilitate the awareness and understanding necessary to begin to consciously cooperate with the natural tendency towards harmony in each of us. Some of the themes to be explored will include choice, responsibility, and freedom of the personal and transpersonal will, inner dialogue, and wisdom, meditation, and exploring parts of ourselves as they relate to and express the whole of who we truly are. Guided imagery will be a major focus for this exploration. In addition we will look at some of the theoretical constructs as they relate to themes we will be experiencing. $110

The Joy of Sadness / Gabrielle Roth
The purpose of this workshop is to dissolve the wall between you and your divinity—the barrier between your mind/body and your heart. These five days of deep personal processing will include breathing, movement, music, sound, and massage meditations. Gabrielle will support us in going deeply within ourselves to rediscover the magnitude of our own heart energy, thus infusing our life experience with dimension, depth, meaning and purpose. We will come together to dance, to sing, to worship, to cry—to celebrate our vulnerability and our strength, our heights and our depths. $270 + $2 video fee.

Shamanism & the Mystic Quest
Coordinated by Joan Halifax
Since the dawn of history, humankind has experienced itself as visionary and dreamer. It has learned that certain states of being create a psychic opening where vision is cleansed and the mirror-mind opens itself to the infinite possibilities of itself. This program is designed to explore those techniques of transformation and illumination emerging from ancient shamanic knowledge. Participants will be experientially introduced to basic methods of shamanic power and healing used by North and South American Indian shamans as reinterpreted for application within our own lives. The accumulation and utilization of shamanic power will be related to the processual nature of consciousness.

The faculty includes four anthropologists (Halifax, Harner, Munn, Myerhoff) who have had extensive experience with the visionary aspects of shamanism and/or shamanic cultures themselves, including Huichol, Mazatec, Jivaro, and Shipibo. Joseph Campbell will provide us with the historical, mythological, psychological and conceptual basis of shamanism and mysticism. Prem Das, having completed the five year training period necessary to become a shaman in the Huichol world, will work daily with the group in the areas of cosmology, shamanic worldview, function and method of ritual and ceremony, healing practices, techniques of purification and transformation of consciousness, and use of dreams and visions. With him will be Matsua, an 86 year old Huichol shaman from the Western Sierra Madre of Nayarit, Mexico. Matsua is the principle shaman of his village and the surrounding area and is renowned for his knowledge of Huichol mythology, ceremony, healing, and chanting. Ruturi, another Huichol shaman, is a visionary yarn painter who will also be conducting ceremonies with us as well as teaching the techniques of his art.

Music is another dimension occuring in shamanic training. Kathleen Mullin, an ethnomusicologist, with Charles Lloyd and Barklie Henry, will explore with us the channel of music as a means transforming consciousness. The relationship between the body, movement, sound, and consciousness will be brought into focus by Gabrielle Roth.

Other areas to be covered will be: biochemistry and consciousness (Shulgin) and shamanism and schizophrenia (Silverman).

Tuition is $1,150 for this 26 day program.

The tarot cards which appear on the cover and as illustrations elsewhere throughout this issue are taken from the New Tarot Deck designed by Jack Hurley, Rae Hurley, & John Horler.

The tarot card depicted on the front cover represents ACE OF CIRCLES. Money, ideas, magic and spirituality. The magic portal in the enchanted garden through which we step outside our earthly limits of time and space into other dimensions. The card depicted on the back cover represents THE WORLD of the New Age in the circle of Brotherhood beyond the bests of Ezekiel, beyond the battle of the sexes. Yin and Yang united in the ultimate perfection of the androgyne.

This new Tarot Deck is available through the Bookshop.

CATALOG DESIGN is by Red Dog Pieface.

Special Information

THE ESALEN CATALOG is published quarterly. Subscription cost for one year is $2 for the United States, $4 for Canada and Mexico and $12 for all other countries. Those attending Esalen workshops and conferences are automatically added to the mailing list for one year. A single inspection copy of the current issue is available free upon request from the San Francisco office. Do not direct subscription inquiries to Big Sur.

CONTRIBUTIONS to Esalen Institute are tax deductible.

ACCREDITATION and the USE OF ESALEN'S NAME: At present, we do not offer accreditation in the form of certificates or diplomas, such as those conferred by traditional schools. Many formal educational institutions do recognize the time spent at Esalen as being worthy of credit in their own curriculum. Check with your university or college for further information. We would be glad to supply information to your school regarding any of our programs or series of programs.

RECORDINGS OF ESALEN PROGRAMS: For a catalog of recordings of Esalen / San Francisco programs contact Big Sur Recordings, 2015 Bridgeway, Sausalito, California 94965. They also have Big Sur programs prior to 1973.

Commercial use of Esalen program tapes is prohibited; all rights are reserved.

Big Sur Information

For reservations and information, write or call:
Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.
Phone: (408) 667-2335, 10 to 4 every day;
10 to 8 Sunday & Friday.

In Los Angeles call:
Nancy Lunney
(213) 820-5511
for general information.

Esalen/Big Sur lies 300 miles north of Los Angeles and 175 miles south of San Francisco. It is directly over the shoreline of the Pacific with the Santa Lucia Range rising sharply behind. The property, which has natural hot baths, was once the home of a North American Indian tribe known as Esalen.

We are a 45-mile drive south from Monterey, 11 miles south of Nepenthe, on California Coast Route 1. From the south, we are 50 miles north of San Simeon. A lighted sign on the ocean side of the highway reads: Esalen Institute—By Reservation Only.

Deposit Information: Big Sur programs require an advance deposit of $20 for weekend groups, $70 for five-day groups, $200 for two-week groups, $300 for three-week groups, and $400 for month-long groups. Deposits are not refundable but, with five days' notice, may be transferred to other Esalen programs. Please mail Big Sur reservations to Esalen/Big Sur. Do not mail Big Sur reservations to Esalen/San Francisco. Balance of payment is due on arrival. Esalen accepts Master Charge and American Express. U S currency only, please.

Scholarship Information: If you need scholarship assistance for a long term Esalen/Big Sur program, write for a scholarship application form before making a reservation (allow at least 3 weeks for processing as we have many applications). If your application is approved, please make a reservation as soon as possible after receiving notice. No scholarship assistance is available for June 15–August 31 programs or for weekend programs.

General Information: Workshop fees cover tuition, food, and lodging. Rooms are shared by two or three workshop participants. Camping on the grounds is prohibited.

Weekend programs begin with dinner on Friday and end with lunch on Sunday. Five-day and longer programs begin with dinner on Sunday and end with lunch on Friday. Rooms become available at 5 pm; however, guests are welcome to arrive anytime after lunch.

Esalen/Big Sur has no child care facilities. Please do not plan to bring children. We also ask workshop participants not to have guests. Alas, no pets.

Esalen's flourishing organic garden provides the kitchen with many of its vegetables and herbs. Our breads and pastries are made by Esalen bakers.

Limousine Service: Those traveling by air or bus can obtain limousine service to Esalen/Big Sur by notifying the Big Sur office of time of arrival. Pickups are made at the Monterey Airport and the Greyhound terminal at 5–5:30 pm each Sunday and Friday. The cost is $10 per person one way, payable on arrival at Esalen.

Seminarians as Staff (Karma Yoga): Seminarians in residence for five days or longer at Esalen are asked to contribute several hours per week to work with the staff. Your help enables us to meet the pressures of peak working times and enables you to experience Esalen from the inside out. A staff member will appear at your first workshop meeting to schedule volunteer help.

San Francisco Information

For reservations, literature, tickets, and information, write or call:
Esalen Institute, 1793 Union Street, San Francisco, California 94123.
Phone: (415) 771-1710; 9:30–5:30 Monday through Saturday.

Reservations: Reservations close five days prior to the program, in order to facilitate planning and for the convenience of participants' time plans. A non-refundable deposit must accompany registration as follows: $10 per person for programs costing under $35; $20 for programs costing under $100; $50 for those over $100, unless otherwise noted. Mail reservation form with check to Esalen Institute, 1793 Union Street, San Francisco 94123. Balance is payable at the first session of the program. Do not send San Francisco reservations to Big Sur. Esalen accepts Master Charge and American Express. U S currency only, please.

Information literature and tickets for lectures may be obtained Monday through Saturday 9:30–5:00 pm at 1793 Union Street, San Francisco 94123. Tickets obtained by mail will indicate the exact location and time of events; when not sold out in advance, tickets may be purchased at the door.

Workshop schedules: One day workshops generally meet from 10 am to 6 pm. Saturday and Sunday weekend workshops meet from 10 am to 6 pm each day. Friday through Sunday weekend workshops meet approximately from 8 to 11 pm on Friday, from 10 am through the afternoon and/or evening on Saturday, and from 10 am to early afternoon on Sunday. Schedules are not rigid, however, and exact meeting times are discussed at the first session.

Accommodations: Most San Francisco programs are non-residential. Participants in these programs must reserve their own accommodations at local hotels or motels. Unless stated otherwise, meals are not provided at such workshops.

Location: Participants will be informed of workshop location prior to the workshop date. Esalen uses several facilities in the Bay Area for its programs, including its own building at 1793 Union Street, San Francisco. Call the San Francisco office for advance information on program location.

Recommended dress: Workshops are informal. Slacks and flat shoes are recommended for women, sport clothes for men.

Bookstore: Esalen's Bookshop provides a comprehensive selection of books ranging from general psychology, life sciences, and education to the Eastern philosophies, Jung, and the mystics. It is open Monday through Saturday, 9:30–5:30 pm, and Sundays when workshops are in process (On Sundays call before dropping in).

Esalen Institute is a center to explore those trends in education, religion, philosophy, and the physical and behavioral sciences which emphasize the potentialities and values of human existence. Our activities consist of seminars and workshops, residential programs, consulting, and research.

We exist to sponsor, encourage, synthesize, and attempt evaluation of work in these areas, both inside and outside our own organizational framework. Since we are a center for experimental education, we ask that persons come to our programs out of an educational interest. We ask that no one come whose interest is "cure." We point out here, as we have in workshops and seminars, that some persons, particularly those with a history of psychiatric problems, may find some programs difficult, trying, or potentially risky. We recommend that in case of any doubt, a physician or trusted counselor be consulted.

Who's Responsible at Esalen?

We have long regarded Esalen Institute as an educational laboratory. Our evolving philosophical and operational positions reflect this regard. Underlying it all is a baseline ethic of "self-awareness and self-responsibility." However re-presented and operationalized in the past, by us or by others, this ethic continues to be the basis for our world view, and following from this, our educational approach. The self-awareness/self-responsibility ethic has grown and stabilized out of at least two generations of weighty dis-illusioning social and political events—all connected by a common reminder:

> Give away your personal faculties of discernment, of evaluation, of self-reference, and you lose your integrity (your wholeness). "Take responsibility for your every thought, your every feeling, your every action," said our beloved friend and teacher, Fritz Perls.

We view the implications of this position as being social as well as personal. They concern the ways we relate to ourselves and others.

In our position as educators, we invite people to take responsibility for their whole life situation while at Esalen. This includes taking responsibility for who they select as their teachers, their leaders, their gurus, their authority figures . . . and so on—and to be aware, whenever possible, what effect this has on them. We, of necessity, are setting up a situation for our seminarians to learn the practice of self-responsibility from the time they consider selecting a workshop, not just during the workshop. In effect, we are asking that this self-responsibility attitude be present in the initial contact with Esalen. Ideally, the same attitude will pervade after a workshop when our seminarians go back to the community and seek out others—physicians, teachers, counselors, mental health professionals, etc.

As we have become more thoughtful and self-critical about the overall direction of Esalen we have begun to concentrate on enhancing our basic commodity—the Esalen environment and life style. Our primary emphasis is not on teaching particular truths or personal and interpersonal techniques for daily life; rather our primary concern is with a particular consciousness and developing an environment to support the evolution of that consciousness—the consciousness of self-awareness/self-responsibility.

PROGRAMS IN THE BAY AREA

In January Esalen's office in the Bay Area is being moved from San Francisco to Mill Valley. With this change in location we are simplifying our programming. We will focus on those programs which are unique to Esalen rather than duplicating the programs offered by other centers. Summer workshops at the Westerbeke Ranch will continue as before; there will be continuing development of our Sports Center; various symposia, colloquia, and seminars will be held to explore salient issues in our areas of interest.

February 19

Introduction to Aikido with Emphasis on Centering & Energy Awareness Robert Nadeau

One day workshop $20

Aikido is the Japanese art of self-defense with the emphasis placed on centering, harmony, and blending. It is presented as a physical manifestation of the energy and spiritual laws of the universe. We will start with the centering practices in the physical dimension, move to centering as mental awareness, and culminate in meditation with centering as a focus for spiritual unfolding. The workshop will emphasize the relationship between all three levels.

Saturday, 12:30-4:30 pm

February 20

The Innerspaces of Running: A New Approach to Running Mike Spino

One day workshop $30

Focusing on the running experience, this workshop will introduce a holistic method of mind/body development. Each participant will be taught various running gaits and tempos, muscle/skeletal exercises, breathing techniques, and philosophy and lore related to optimum physical fitness. There will be special emphasis on guided fantasy, inner space development, and creativity in quest for extraordinary experiences. Each person will receive an individual consultation and have the opportunity to continue towards personal goals on an ongoing basis.

March 18–20

Castaneda, Power & Healing: An Experiential Workshop Michael Harner

Residential weekend at the Westerbeke Ranch $125

The writings of Carlos Castaneda will be the point of departure for an intensive exploration of ancient shamanic knowledge. Participants will be taught the basic techniques of shamanic power used by North and South American Indian shamans as reinterpreted by the workshop leader for application within our own lives. The accumulation and utilization of shamanic power will be related to such subjects as altered states of consciousness and the natural environment Exercises will be conducted in classic visionary methods used by shamans to heal the sick, weak, and dispirited in primitive cultures.

March 19–20

Sports & Consciousness: New Ideas & Training Routines Mike Spino

Weekend workshop $60

Focusing on running and meditation, this workshop will introduce methods of mind/body development being explored by Mike Spino. These methods will include various running gaits and tempos, muscle/skeletal exercises, breathing techniques, visualization and meditation exercises and some of the lore of mystical experience in sport. Ways in which these elements can be integrated into various training routines will be presented. There will also be discussions of altered states that occur in sport and conceptual frameworks with which to interpret them.

Exploring Pathways to High Level Wellness Coordinated by John Travis, MD & the Esalen Staff

The idea of measuring wellness and assisting people to attain high levels of wellness is relatively new. Most of us have thought in terms of illness and assumed that the absence of illness indicates wellness. We are becoming increasingly aware of a broad continuum of potentiality where "not ill" still leaves a vast field for developing ourselves within and without.

During this four month course we will take a good look at where we are on the wellness continuum, determine the areas we could develop further and explore together many techniques in a balanced program of "well medicine." Recognizing stress reduction, nutrition, self responsibility, and physical awareness as components of "well medicine," we will be covering such areas as meditation/visualizations; massage; body work, including—aikido, feldenkrais, patterning, etc.; Chinese and Tibetan medicine; biofeedback and group process work.

Each participant will receive a wellness evaluation which includes the following: health hazard appraisal, wellness inventory, nutritional survey, eating habits survey, tension measurements, life change index, purpose in life survey, and a creativity sample (does not include physical exam or lab work).

Guest leaders will include:

Ken Pelletier	Ellen Guenther, MD
Hector Prestera	Bill Gray, MD
Mike Spino	Patricia Sun
Jeanne Rose	Anna Kaye
Jerry Green	Ray Castellino
Robert Nadeau

The course will consist of an introductory weekend Feb. 5 & 6, 15 Wednesday evenings, 3 Saturdays, and will conclude with a three day residential weekend at Westerbeke Ranch in Sonoma (Memorial Day Weekend).

Tuition: $475.00 Non-refundable deposit: $100.00

Food for Thought

Marcel Engel, a university graduate student from Belgium, was a participant in the Esalen/Big Sur work-study program. He and his wife, Lieve, of two years stayed at Esalen for three consecutive months. He wrote these personal impressions at the end of his stay.

After a period of uncertainty, searching and questioning, Esalen became a real focus point for me, a point of concentration. Before coming to Esalen I felt I was ready for something. I didn't know if I was ready for Esalen, although what I had read about it interested me.

It is hard for me to define the exact time I decided to accept the uncertainties in my life. One thing I realized later, is that I wanted other people to come along with me and share my experiences. This was, for me, a way to prevent relationships from happening spontaneously; it served to control and limit me . . .

I have to go through life on my own—the responsibilities, the risks, the pain are mine alone. Much about this responsibility became clear in my relationship to my wife while staying at Esalen. Everything that put me out of balance served to bring me back to my own world of experiences. There is nothing I can blame others for; it is all my "adventure." I have a hard time dealing with that.

I got in touch with Esalen as a child would, more than as a grownup. I was amazed by so many new things, the beauty of it . . . , not knowing where to look first, excited and restless to be part of it, and then all of a sudden scared by crazy and overloading impressions. Everything impressed me deeply and I felt it.

Luckily I could work in the garden. The work put me back into my body and brought me back to a form of communication that I seemed to have forgotten. I started to communicate on a non-verbal level. Consciously I avoided people and went into the garden.

The garden was my safe place and in a way a familiar place. But there too something happened: I started to interact with nature. The work in the garden taught me about my own energy, my sensitivity, how I related to my environment. When I felt lousy, I weeded; when I was angry, excited, or aggressive, I did some digging, or worked the soil with the pick; when I felt calm and full of love, I transplanted or harvested vegetables or flowers.

One morning I decided to go to the meditation class before going to the garden. On my way to the class, I passed the garden. I stopped and began watering the plants, here and there I pulled a weed . . . and I completely forgot the meditation class. All of a sudden I saw myself walking through the garden and for a second I felt very alone. I looked up and was struck by an incredibly beautiful play of colors and light and I heard pieces of symphony music. There was no sense of time, no up or down, only a flowing feeling with a strong consciousness of "I am here and I am there." I was intensely happy with so much beauty. I felt the energy rise in my body. What I was experiencing was only feeling, movement, sound, light. I was nothing more than the plants, the trees, the sound . . .

The process I went through was my own changing process. Once I realized this clearly, it was easier for me to let go. I could see the changes that I brought about, once I really went my own way. I could see myself change—to let go was as if I stepped out of the communication system I had lived in before. I could easily see how the whole system formed a coherent unity—parents, family, friends, lovers, work, health problems; it was one coherent entity for me. And a change in one of these affects the others. Every change in my behavior that "went too far" immediately brought about control mechanisms, absorption, defense, or destruction.

It took me some time to see that my fighting this system and my trying to bring about changes (in others), was another game I played. I played "change the world" and it was only another way to blindfold myself.

Now I can see that my reference point is not out there; it is not with the others from whom I expected approval or disapproval. I no longer try to influence or change other people in their ways, because of myself.

I didn't feel the turning away from my old environment as a breaking or running away. It was a turning movement, that makes you stand—that places you behind the reality of your daily life. I felt the reality of that movement during a tai-chi class; when somebody pushes you in the back, you don't push back, but turn in the direction you are pushed, so that you end by standing behind the one who pushed.

The workshops didn't attract me too much during the first month of my stay, except for the massage workshop, where I could express myself with my body. I could communicate with somebody. Later somebody told me something that made me very happy: "What you say is not always clear, but you are always present." And that is how I felt. The moment I tried to relate my experiences in words, I lost contact with the other person. There was no need to talk or to explain. To be with people, to listen to them and see them was enough for me. It was my way of being with people; it is a feeling of together-ness. At that time I really started to trust my body.

The work in the garden not only brought me back into myself, but also brought me to others. The working with other people was a very intensive form of communicating for me. We didn't need many words to express ourselves or to explain something. When working in one place in the garden, I was present in the whole garden, and I felt the presence of the others. I would look up from my work and see the others, knowing that they were there, and at the same time one of them would look up and we saw each other. The next moment we were both working again.

In the past I had tried to be with people in an "acceptable" way. At Esalen I realized that I could be with myself and still be with the others: it is a feeling of being together at the same place. I don't have to be with people in any special way. But that is not the point. The point is that I feel calm now in myself, and from that space I see the world around me; from that space I contact the world—the people. ■

FANTASY &

by Fritz Perls

Awareness covers, so to speak, three layers or three zones: awareness of the self, awareness of the world, and awareness of what's between—the intermediate zone of fantasy that prevents a person from being in touch with either himself or the world. This is Freud's great discovery—that there is comething between you and the world. There are so many processes going on in one's fantasies. A complex is what he calls it, or a prejudice. If you have prejudices, then your relationship to the world is very much disturbed and destroyed. If you want to approach a person with a prejudice, you can't get to the person. You will contact only the prejudice, the fixed idea. So Freud's idea that the intermediate zone, the DMZ, this no-man's land between you and the world should be eliminated, emptied out, brainwashed or whatever you want to call it, was perfectly right. The only trouble is that Freud stayed in that zone and analyzed this intermediate thing. He didn't consider the self-awareness or world-awareness; he didn't consider what we can do to be in touch again.

This loss of contact with our authentic self, and loss of contact with the world, is due to this intermediate zone, the big area of maya that we carry with us. That is, there is a big area of fantasy activity that takes up so much of our excitement, of our energy, of our life force, that there is very little energy left to be in touch with reality. Now, if we want to make a person whole, we have first to understand what is merely fantasy and irrationality, and we have to discover where one is in touch, and with what. And very often if we work, and we empty out this middle zone of fantasy, this maya, then there is the experience of satori, of waking up. Suddenly the world is there. You wake up from a trance like you wake up from a dream. You're all there again. And the aim in therapy, the growth aim, is to lose more and more of your "mind" and come more to your senses. To be more and more in touch, to be in touch with yourself and in touch with the world, instead of only in touch with the fantasies, prejudices, apprehensions, and so on.

> The enemy of development is pain phobia: the unwillingness to do a tiny bit of suffering. Pain is a signal of nature.
> Fritz Perls

Fantasy can be creative, but it's creative only if you have the fantasy, whatever it is, in the now. In the now, you use what is available, and you are bound to be creative. Just watch children in their play. What's available is usable and then something happens, something comes out of the being in touch with what is here and now.

Now what's the technique we are using in Gestalt Therapy? The technique is to establish a continuum of awareness. This continuum of awareness is required so that the organism can work on the healthy gestalt principle: that the most important unfinished situation will always emerge and can be dealt with. If we prevent ourselves from achieving this gestalt formation, we function badly and we carry hundreds and thousands of unfinished situations with us, that always demand completion.

This continuum of awareness seems to be very simple, just to be aware from second to second what's going on. Unless we are asleep, we are always aware of something. However, as soon as this awareness becomes unpleasant, most people will interrupt it. Then suddenly they start intellectualizing, bullshitting, the flight into the past, the flight into expectations, good intentions, or schizophrenically using free associations, jumping like a grasshopper from experience to experience, and none of these experiences are ever experienced, but just a kind of a flash, which leaves all the available material unassimilated and unused.

Now how do we proceed in Gestalt Therapy? What is nowadays quite fashionable was very much pooh-poohed when I started this idea of everything is awareness. The purely verbal approach, the Freudian approach in which I was brought up, barks up the wrong tree. Freud's idea was that by a certain procedure called free-association, you can liberate the disowned part of the personality and put it at the disposal of the person and then the person will develop what he called a strong ego. What Freud called association, I call *dis*sociation, schizophrenic dissociation to avoid the experience. It's a computer game, an interpretation-computer game, which is exactly an avoidance of the experience of what is. You can talk 'til doomsday, but nothing will change. You can associate—or dissocaite—a hundred things to one event, but you can only experience one reality. ■

REALITY

by Chögyam Trungpa

If we are to plant the complete Buddhist teachings in American soil we must first understand the fundamental principles of Buddhism and work through its basic meditation practices. Many people respond to Buddhism as if it were a new cult which might save them, which might enable them to deal with the world in the manner of picking flowers in a beautiful garden. But if we wish to pick flowers from a tree, we must first cultivate the roots and trunk, which means that we must work with our fears, frustrations, disappointments and irritations, the painful aspects of life.

People complain that Buddhism is an extremely gloomy religion because it emphasizes suffering and misery. Usually religions speak of beauty, song, ecstasy, bliss. But according to Buddha, we must begin by seeing the experience of life as it is. We must see the truth of suffering, the reality of dissatisfaction. We cannot ignore it and attempt to examine only the glorious, pleasurable aspects of life. If one searches for a promised land, a Treasure Island, then the search only leads to more pain. We cannot reach such islands, we cannot attain enlightenment in such a manner. So all sects and schools of Buddhism agree that we must begin by facing the reality of our living situations. We cannot begin by dreaming. That would be only a temporary escape; real escape is impossible.

In Buddhism, we express our willingness to be realistic through the practice of meditation. Meditation is not a matter of trying to achieve ecstasy, spiritual bliss or tranquility, nor is it attempting to become a better person. It is simply the creation of a space in which we are able to expose and undo our neurotic games, our self-deceptions, our hidden fears and hopes. We provide space through the simple discipline of doing nothing. Actually, doing nothing is very difficult. At first we must begin by approximating doing nothing, and gradually our practice will develop. So meditation is a way of churning out the neuroses of mind and using them as part of our practice. Like manure, we do not throw our neuroses away, but we spread them on our garden; they become part of our richness.

In meditation practice, we neither hold the mind very tightly nor let it go completely. If we try to control the mind, then its energy will rebound back on us. If we let the mind go completely, then it will become very wild and chaotic. So we let the mind go, but at the same time there is some discipline involved. The techniques used in the Buddhist tradition are extremely simple. Awareness of bodily movement, breath and one's physical situation are techniques common to all traditions. The basic practice is to be present, right here. The goal is also the technique. Precisely being in this moment, neither suppressing nor wildly letting go, but being precisely aware of what you are. Breath, like bodily existence, is a neutral process which has no "spiritual" connotations. We simply become mindful of its natural functioning. This is called shamatha practice. With this practice we begin to tread the hinayana or narrow path. This is not to say that the hinayana approach is simplistic or narrow-minded. Rather, because the mind is so complicated, so exotic, craving all sorts of entertainment constantly, the only way to deal with it is to channel it into a disciplined path without sidetracks. The hinayana is a vehicle which does not speed, one which is tight on the point, a vehicle which does not get sidetracked. We have no opportunity to run away; we are right here and cannot step out. It is a vehicle without a reverse gear. And the simplicity of narrowness also brings an open attitude toward life situations, because we realize that there is no escape of any kind and give in to being right on the spot.

So we acknowledge what we are rather than try to hide from our problems and irritations. Meditation should not help you forget your commitment at the office. In fact, in the practice of sitting meditation you relate to your daily life all the time. Meditation practice brings our neuroses to the surface rather than hiding them at the bottom of our minds. It enables us to relate to our lives as something workable. I think people have the idea that, if only they could get away from the hustle and bustle of life, then they could really get into some sort of contemplative practice up in the mountains or at the seashore. But escaping the mundanity of our lives is to neglect the food, the actual nourishment which exists between two layers of bread. When you order a sandwich, you do not order two layers of bread. You have something in the middle which is chunky, eatable, delicious, and the bread comes along with it.

Then becoming more clearly aware of emotions and life situations and the space in which they occur might open

Radix and the "New Education"

Charles Kelley

I found it difficult to establish the identity of Radix Education. What is the true significance of Radix work? What are its proper objectives? How does it relate to Reichian therapy, from which it descends, and to other new education programs, such as bioenergetics, etc., which somewhat resemble it? The identity of Radix work was made especially hard to establish as a result of the serious errors made by Reich in establishing the identity of his own work, errors which I had to discover for myself. I learned about the problems of mystical expectations, in-group chauvanism, and the medical model of new education processes by difficult and painful experience in the Reichian movement. My problems were typical of certain new education programs—including some of the most powerful, and so worth recounting here.

Reich discovered his deep emotional release techniques in the mid-30's. They were a natural outgrowth of his character analytic work, which had led him to find the bodily basis of the subject's defenses in chronic muscular tension. Release of the chronic tension by simultaneous work on mind and body resulted in the eruption of involuntary emotion that came to typify Reichian work. Reich called his technique "vegetotherapy" because it resulted in spontaneous discharges of feeling governed by the vegetative (autonomic) nervous system. (The term "vegetotherapy" was coined when Reich was writing in German, and the German is less awkward.)

Reich separated from psychoanalysis and developed vegetotherapy in the years 1933-35. The deep emotional release techniques of Reich showed profound effects, both physical and psychological. Neurotic symptoms disappeared, the patient became more open and direct. Disease processes were altered, often dramatically, and individual appearance changed. The sexual experience changed, as the patient developed a capacity for complete surrender in the genital experience, i.e., "orgastic potency" in Reich's terminology. The result:

> . . . the whole being of the patient changed so rapidly and so basically that at first I could not understand it. It was difficult to see how the tenacious neurotic process could admit of such a sudden change . . . (The Function of the Orgasm, p 130)

Reich described the great changes that took place when patients were stripped of their armor, not as tendencies or directions, but as the natural and established result of successful Reichian therapy.

And what was the result of Reich's claims on the development of the Reichian movement? Patients flocked in to have their armor stripped from them so they could shed their neuroses and become "genital characters" in terms of Reich's description. In 1950 I arrived in New York to enter Reichian therapy and to study Reich's work. I found the Reichian movement to be structured hierarchically around Reich's "genital character" concept. At the pinnacle was Reich, viewed almost as a God. His close associates and the therapists trained by him served as angels, for they were surely genital characters, freed of armor and neurosis by Reich himself. Those who had completed therapy successfully also had angel status, but somehow we saw very few of these. However, there were therapists in training and advanced students, apprentice angels, and below them the mass of novitiates, patients like myself, the bottom of the hierarchy, although its financial base. We were surely a cut above the balance of armored humanity, because we had seen the light, and had taken the necessary steps to put ourselves on the path toward an unarmored genital character structure.

And this hierarchy based on the mystique of the genital character persists to this day in the orthodox Reichian movement, predominantly among those who call themselves "medical orgone therapists" and their patients. Only a few of Reich's therapists have had the courage to correct Reich's concept of the "genital character."

It is time that this be said in print. Reich's concept of the unarmored genital character is a fiction, based on an unwarranted extrapolation of trends and tendencies he saw in his patients. Reich was not an unarmored genital character, nor are the doctors he trained, nor are the patients concluding their Reichian therapy. There are no genital characters, not in the real world. The concept of the unarmored genital character has exactly the same kind of reality as the Scientology "clear," or Janov's "Post-Primal" who is completely devoid of defenses. It is time that such notions be recognized for what they are, mystical fictions.

Reich represented himself as unarmored in seminars that I attended. He was accepted as the prototype genital character within the Reichian movement. But Reich, the "number one" genital character, developed serious paranoid trends in his later years. These were, I believe, shy of psychosis, but were certainly also shy of good mental health. In 1957 Reich died of cardiovascular disease, a condition reflecting chronic tension, i.e., muscular armoring, in Reich's own terminology. Autopsy indicated a severe cardiac disease condition.

Reich's death ought to have been used by the leaders of orgonomy to put the myth of the genital character to bed, but that would have destroyed much of the mystical force of the movement. Instead, the myth was perpetuated by Reich's inheritors. The announcement mailed to us by the leading figure in medical orgonomy after Reich's death informed us that Reich had died of "oranur sickness." This mysterious pronouncement, for which no evidence was or has ever been published, had the function of reassuring the believers that Reich really wasn't armored after all.

And what of Reich's "angels," the "genital characters" trained by Reich (and later by a successor) to do his therapy? With the powerful techniques and the profound and germinal scientific concepts of Reich as a starting point, Reich's disciples have done not one thing to indicate that they have superior thought processes or character structures to ordinary "non-genital" characters. The Reichian movement has been characterized by unproductiveness, backbiting, jealousies and pettiness. Lawsuits and threats of lawsuits, crank letters containing attacks on each other's work and characters and motives, and other forms of factionalism have abounded. There have been only two books written by medical orgone therapists in the two decades since Reich died, authored by Reich's number one and number two disciples respectively.[1] Book number two consists entirely of an attack on book number one. The factions of medical orgonomy are in a desperate and silly contest to convince themselves and the world that they are the truly true disciples of the master, the only ones who really understand and are carrying out his work.[2]

Actually, Reich saw the smallness of his followers. In Listen Little Man he likens himself to an eagle condemned to hatching little chickens. The brave hopes for turning patients into genital characters that he had expressed in The Function of the Orgasm, he renounced. He quit practising therapy, saying:

> . . . Nothing can be done with grownups. I am rather experienced in psychiatry and biology, human biology. Nothing can be done. Once a tree didn't grow straight, but crooked, you can't straighten it out.[3]

Quite a change from the brave hopes offered the readers of Character Analysis and The Function of the Orgasm! Only Reich's excessive and unreal hope for his therapeutic technique brought this uncalled for disillusion. He became discouraged with a truly great achievement because it fell short of the miraculous.

However, Reich never abandoned his dream of the unarmored genital character; he merely decided that it had to be reached by raising children free of armor rather than by therapy with adults. In 1949 he launched a research project on the rearing of armor-free healthy children, at a meeting attended by forty professionals. When Reich died in 1957 he left his estate "The Wilhelm Reich Infant Trust Fund," to this and related aims.

To my knowledge, no one in orgonomy has yet succeeded in raising his child as an armor-free "genital character." I have met dozens of children raised according to Reichian principles by Reichian therapists and other parents who have had extensive Reichian therapy. When intelligently applied by healthy and living parents, I judge the Reichian techniques to have been of real value, and the children to have benefited greatly. But every child has had his problems and hang-ups, and every child past the age of four or five has his defenses, his armor.

The unarmored child is as much a myth as the unarmored, defense-free adult.

What is the problem here? Reich's techniques of deep emotional release are enormously powerful. When used in a directed way, they can and do bring about profound changes in personality and the body, in character and physique. Reich's statement that the "whole being changes" is not an exaggeration: it happens,—not always, but often. I have seen it again and again. The voice drops, the body structure changes, the person becomes more open and expressive emotionally. What does not happen is that he becomes unarmored, free of his defenses, "cured." He does not change into some new and different kind of human being that is "real" and "well" or a "genital character" instead of "unreal" and "neurotic" or armored. To allege that he does only establishes an unreal hope for the newcomer that must bring eventual disillusionment or worse, self-deception. Pity most those unfortunates who wear the mantle of a title such as "genital character" or "post primal" or "clear," and are thus forced to pretend, over the years of their lives, to a non-existent state of being, superior to that of ordinary humans.

genuinely sick. The super-well state of the "genital character" have been invented to fit the medical model, to make it appear that a "cure" is really accomplished. The "cured" individual, the genital character is nothing more than the fictional outcome of the process of "therapy" applied to people who are not genuinely sick in the first place.

Of course certain people coming in to Reichian or other forms of work are genuinely sick, and in need of treatment for their disease—real disease—for which real cure is possible. These are a distinct minority, however; most people come because they are unahppy, distressed, dissatisfied with themselves and their lives, or else simply searching for a path for growth. They may be aware that blocks to feeling, necessary to their survival as a child, have remained to restrict their potential as an adult. They may be curious, and accept the label of illness in order to undergo an experience which they hope will change them, make them freer, more effective, happier. And in many cases it can, not by a mythical cure of a metaphorical disease, but by techniques that provide a significant new avenue for change. Reichian "therapy" is, in fact, a powerful form of education. Often useful as

> The word "neurosis" is very bad. I use it too, but actually it should be called growth disorder. So in other words, the whole neurosis question shifts more and more from the medical to the educational field.
> Fritz Perls

A major part of the problem is the use of a medical model to describe a non-medical problem. Reich, like Freud and most of Freud's successors, have employed medical concepts to describe their work. They have thus spoken of curing the sick, of diagnosis and treatment, disease and therapy. These terms have been applied whether or not those they dealt with had a real disease to give therapy to. In point of fact, the great majority of those going to Reich and Janov (and to Freud's present day exponents) are not sick; they have no real disease of which to be cured. Neurosis is only a metaphorical sickness. The disease has been manufactured in order to apply the therapy.

This is not to say that patients in Reichian therapy are not sometimes troubled, nor that they should not be going to their "therapists,"—in most cases they should. What they stand to gain is not "cure" of "neurosis." Instead, they stand to undergo a significant growth experience, a change in themselves that can sometimes be as needed, as rewarding and important as cure of a disease can be to a sick man. However, the kind of change they go through is not of disease and its cure.

Because of the medical model they have adopted, psychiatrists and psychologists have been forced to think in terms of unreal diseases and unreal cures. Thus we have the paradox of doctors who are not "well" by their own criteria endeavoring to "cure" "patients" who are not an adjunct to therapy, it is not, properly speaking, therapy in itself. The advantage of using an educational rather than a medical model is that the process of change can be viewed in the context of human development and growth, rather than the context of disability and disease.

The medical model also takes advantage of the transference phenomenon. In this society man is systematically rendered weak and dependent by family structure, social institutions and government. The longing for a strong parental figure is therefore present in most people. This role is easily assumed by the "doctor" or "therapist" who, like a loving parent, understands the "patient's" hurt and tribulation, and is going to "make it better."

The transference emphasizes the elitist nature of the medical model. Dependence on daddy is replaced by dependence on the doctor. The "special elite group of the cured" is associated with the doctor, the adult, the parent, and the "sick" masses of mankind are associated with the patient, the child. Those who identify with the elite claim a status that sets them above and apart from ordinary men.

But in this area of life, where man is struggling for knowledge, there is no "elite" who have discovered "the way," only cultists who pretend, who kid themselves that they have. The medical model, bolstered by the transference, institutionalizes this pretense. And one tragic result is that the techniques of Reich, which form one of the major educational breakthroughs of our time, can become misunderstood, distorted, misapplied, mystified, and eventually discredited because they are not viewed in perspective from the start.

The deep emotional release techniques discovered by Reich are at least as exciting when viewed as an educational breakthrough as when viewed as "therapy." Viewed as education, they provide a new method for change, for realizing a potentiality, rather than for treating disease. They belong in the forefront of the new education, where ways of growth are the objective, and new approaches and techniques are much sought after.

The medical model was created and given its power by pioneers of new education techniques operating within the medical-professional framework, men such as Wilhelm Reich, MD, Fritz Perls, MD, PhD, and the grandfather of them all, Sigmund Freud, MD. These men would probably not have become known had they not attained professional status, and it is natural that they lived and worked within the confines of the model upon which their profession was based. But the professional who wishes to identify with and truly advance the new education in the future must first be willing to climb down from his professional pedestal, to be a human being with the rest, to throw away his government licenses, certifications, and special privilege, and to function solely on the basis of the knowledge, skill, and leadership he can offer.

It is the power of new education programs that creates extreme loyalties among devotees. This power makes it possible to hold out the concept that a program provides the exclusive road to a super-state of mental health or consciousness. Programs that open the deepest feelings readily generate powerful mystical expectations among followers. Devotion to the program easily becomes excessive. The problem of identity of the program is then made much more difficult. Jealousies and antagonisms toward other programs abound. Students have great difficulty in maintaining perspective towards other groups when a revered leader has not achieved such perspective himself. Frequently the leaders expect exclusive devotion to their program from their students. For a follower of a Reich, Janov, or L Ron Hubbard, to have one of his clients become involved in another program constitutes a heresy, liable to result in excommunication if discovered. The tendency exists to a lesser extent in many, perhaps most new education programs.

One unfortunate effect of this narrowness of attitude is an inability of those within to consider and make use of what is discovered outside of the group. Orthodox members of a program are unable to see their group as part of the larger whole which is the new education. Instead, in each case, the in-group is believed to be the exclusive agency possessing special new knowledge and skills that will transform mankind. With this conviction often goes a demand for orthodoxy in belief and behavior, and (most objectionable of all) a surrender of autonomy to a practitioner, who may decide for his student questions not only of what other new education programs, if any, he may enter, but also such personal decisions as marriage, separation, abortion, political and economic decisions and beliefs, etc., based on the practitioner's interpretation of the collective values governing the program.

Of course, many students want a strong figure to take over responsibility for them. New educators are often pressured by their students to assume a parental role in their lives. Few realize the degree of helplessness that prevails among people in deep emotional questions. Greatest respect is due the new educator who requires each student to assume responsibility himself for decisions on which his life depends.

The student may find he has to fight to preserve his self-autonomy in a new education program that is in major respects just what he needs. The new education is not education to many, but instead religion, philosophy, or therapy or some kind of mixture that requires a surrender of autonomy.

Mystical and chauvinistic attitudes are widespread within new education programs because they are based on mass psychological factors that are widespread in the population. It is the same deep self-doubt and longing to be taken care of on the part of the masses of people that brings about religious cults and government-fostered professional establishments. The wise "new educator" will require his students to take care of themselves. ■ us to a still more panoramic awareness. A compassionate attitude of fundamental acceptance of oneself while still retaining critical intelligence. We appreciate the joyful aspect of life along with the painful aspect. Relating to emotions ceases to be a big deal. Emotions are as they are, neither suppressed nor indulged but simply acknowledged. So the precise awareness of details leads into an openness to the complex totality of situations. Like a great river that runs down toward the ocean, the narrowness of discipline leads into the openness of panoramic awareness. Meditation is not purely sitting alone in a particular posture attending to simple processes, but is also an openness to the environment in which these processes take place. The environment becomes a reminder to us, continually giving us messages, teaching, insights.

Fantasy and Reality by Chogyam Trungpa

So before we indulge in any exotic techniques, playing with energies, playing with sense perceptions, playing with visions in terms of religious symbolism, we must sort out our minds fundamentally. We must begin our practice by walking the narrow path of simplicity, the hinayana path, before we can walk upon the open highway of compassionate action, the mahayana path. And only after our highway journey is well on its way need we concern ourselves about how to dance in the fields—the vajayana or tantric teachings. The simplicity of the hinayana is the foundation for appreciating the splendor of the mahayana and the tremendous color of tantra. So before we relate with heaven we must relate to earth and work on our basic neuroses. The whole approach of Buddhism is to develop transcendental common sense, seeing things as they are, without magnifying what is or dreaming about what we would like to be. ■

Week of January 2-7

Take a Second Look at Yourself / Janet Zuckerman

We will focus on taking a good look at what is going on behind the masks we wear and what is underneath the expressions we put on our faces to confront the world. "Who are you?" and "Who do you pretend to be?" are the polarities we will be working with. Every one of us has a great deal of unused potential and I see the group experience as a safe place to begin to tap into this energy. This week will be entirely experiential using mirrors, gestalt, soft-encounter, and sensory awareness. $270+ $4 video fee.

An Introductory Workshop in Confluent Education Stephen Marcus

We'll celebrate your gestalt poet (and put your gestalt censor on hold). We'll also utilize right hemisphere, intuitive, metaphoric thinking skills to develop body-knowing and emotional literacy. We'll undermine intellectual fastidiousness and erect an eclectic foundation for "being smart." Participants will be encouraged to make direct applications to their specific work and life settings. Bring a journal with unlined pages.

Credit in Education is available for this workshop through the Extension Division of the University of California, Santa Barbara. All arrangements will be made during the workshop. $270

Feldenkrais & Massage / Barbara Clemans

Moshe Feldenkrais is the originator of a simple yet powerful new body technique. The exercises are pleasant and relaxed, each fifty minute segment being a different lesson. The work allows for the experience of integration, relaxation, and balance, improvement in fluidity, and ease in movement.

Carrying the awareness gained from the exercises to our experience with each other in massage, we will heighten our awareness of self-image and experience the relationship of body, mind, and psyche. $270

Week of January 2-7 continued

Gestalt Practice / Richard & Christine Price

Perfect like Great Space
the Way has nothing lacking, nothing in excess.
Truly because of our accepting and rejecting
We have not the suchness of things.
—Sengtsan (3rd Zen Patriarch)

What is, is.
—Fritz Perls

Gestalt practice is a form—nonanalytic, noncoercive, nonjudgmental—evolving out of the work of Fritz Perls, relating that work to ways of personal clearing and development both ancient and modern. To the extent that awareness is made primary relative to action, gestalt practice has a strong relationship to some forms of meditation and visualization. In that emotional and energetic release and rebalancing are allowed and encouraged, the relation to some Reichian work is close.

The emphasis is *intra*personal rather than *inter*personal. Those who primarily wish interpersonal work are advised to attend an encounter rather than a gestalt group.

Participants are explicitly not "patients" but persons consenting actively to work (or play) in awareness. The "leader" functions to reflect, clarify, and flow with whatever emerges in this process. The aim is unfoldment, wholeness, growth rather than "adjustment," "cure," or "accomplishment."

Suggested reading: Gestalt Therapy Verbatim (Perls); Tao Te Ching (Lao Tzu); Cutting Through Spiritual Materialism (Chogyam Trungpa); The Power of Mindfulness (Nyanaponika Thera); Exploring the Crack in the Cosmic Egg (J C Pearce); Education in Feeling and Purpose (Kelley). $270

January 2—28

Inner Road to Health Practicum
Al Drucker & Staff

A month-long training workshop for 8 to 10 participants, covering some of the health arts taught at Esalen. The last workshop of this type given in May 1976 had ten class sessions per week and included training in massage, deep tissue restructuring, acupuncture theory, herbal and homeopathic systems, gestalt practice, and energy healing work. We also had a daily spiritual practice of devotional chanting and meditation, as well as tai chi, feldenkrais, yoga, and other physical practices. We expect that this present workshop will follow the same general format although the actual material covered will depend on group interest and availability of outside leaders. The program includes an eight-hour weekly work commitment in the garden, kitchen, or on the grounds. There will be time to attend regular brochure weekend programs for the catalog price minus $50. Classes will be held in Fritz's house, high on the hill overlooking the baths and the Big Sur coastline.

The fee of $800 covers tuition, shared accommodations at South Coast Center, two to a room, and meals for the month. A previous qualifying experience, such as the 4 or 5 week Inner Road to Health workshop is required for attendance. To register send a $200 deposit, your name, address, phone number, and a note giving the previous workshop experience. Mail to Esalen Institute, Reservations, Big Sur, California 93920. Acceptance is on a first come basis.

Weekend of January 7-9

The Gentle Art of Becoming—Together: A Workshop for Couples / David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

This workshop will focus on the reawakening and development of positive and mutual supports that are at the root of satisfying couple relationships. The emphasis will be on creating clear and truthful expressions of the essential sense of loving and personal integrity. We will look at the beliefs and habits used to celebrate or lose the state of grace and presence which allows growth and joy for our partners and ourselves through the use of intuitional sensing, risk-taking structures, and guided imagery as well as gestalt awareness techniques.
$110 per person

The Tao of Movement: For All Dancers of Life
Al Chung-liang Huang

Dance the "Watercourse Way," flow like the wind, like the water, effortlessly. To identify with and explore the egoless spontaneity of the motion/stillness in nature. To be in harmony with the Universal dance in everyday living. To begin to meditate kinesthetically our "Beginners' Mindbody"—that is the way (TAO)!

—Fishes swim in the water, but do not think of it;
Birds fly in the wind, but are not aware of it.—

Vegetable Roots
Musings by Kojisei
(1575—1619)

$110

Selective Awareness, Self-Hypnosis & Movement
Emmett & Nitza Miller

To us, this practice is a means for capturing the spirit and momentum of enjoyable experiences in the past and projecting them into the future. Further, it allows us to trace maladaptive patterns—symptoms, habits, emotions, and blocks—to their source, as far back as infancy or further, and extinguish them.

Participants will learn to enter and use the hypnotic state for relaxation, imagery, and age regression. Movement will be used to help intensify emotional experiences, to transmit desirable self-concepts to the body, and to develop means of truly enjoying the body. Of special interest will be multiple experiences of going from a desirable mental image in hypnosis directly into a full movement experience, without pausing at the "waking" level. $110 + $4 video fee

Selective Awareness & Gestalt Practice
Emmett Miller & Richard Price

Selective Awareness provides a means for identifying and unlearning undesirable characteristics for body/mind and rapidly learning desirable patterns. This takes place in a state of mind related to those of meditation and hypnosis. Like gestalt practice, selective awareness aims at the development of internal guidance free of externally imposed conditioning.

For more information about gestalt practice, see January 2—7. $300

Woman to Woman / Man to Man
Dee Mundschenk David Schiffman

"The woman that most needs liberating is the woman in every man, and the man that most needs liberating is the man in every woman."
—Rev. William Sloan Coffin

Taking advantage of the natural affinity and support that people of the same sex can afford one another, the men and women in this workshop will meet separately as well as together. We will create an ambience of tenderness and support to provide opportunities to clarify the nature of who we are as men in the absence of women and who we are as women in the absence of men and what happens when we come together. The themes we will explore are our sexuality, our friendships, our body images, our coupling, our creativity, our relationship to power, our expectations of each other. The workshop will be grounded in the techniques of gestalt, encounter, fantasy, massage, and bioenergetics. $270 + $2 video fee

Weekend of January 14-16

A Weekend of Psychosynthesis / Lenore Lefer

Psychosynthesis is a practical approach to personal growth which helps us develop, balance, and integrate the physical, emotional, mental, and spiritual aspects of our experience. The purpose of this weekend will be to facilitate the awareness and understanding necessary to begin to consciously cooperate with the natural tendency towards harmony in each of us. Some of the themes to be explored will include choice, responsibility, and freedom of the personal and transpersonal will, inner dialogue, and wisdom, meditation, and exploring parts of ourselves as they relate to and express the whole of who we truly are. Guided imagery will be a major focus for this exploration. In addition we will look at some of the theoretical constructs as they relate to themes we will be experiencing. $110

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 25. $100

You & Universal Motion / Robert Nadeau

The physical conscious system operates in direct relationship to a larger energy activity or universal motion. It is important to recognize this activity as a "friend" and learn to work in harmony with it. We will explore energy and our "marriage" with it through meditation, centering, and body movement. $110

PHYSICS AND CONSCIOUSNESS

January 16—February 11

Second Annual Physics Consciousness Month

Esalen Institute and the Physics Consciousness Research Group of San Francisco are joining to present the second annual month-long seminar in Big Sur in January and February. The seminar will continue exploration of the conceptual gaps and breakthrough possibilities found in theoretical physics and the other sciences for consciousness exploration and transformation.

Invited participants will also be asked to engage in experiences intended to continue the development, validation and revision of metaphors and experiences which will reliably communicate the counter-intuitive concepts of the new science to the public. Leading theoreticians and practitioners from the scientific community, the consciousness movement, business and government will share in these experiences, which have the potential for radically altering our views of consciousness and the universe.

To apply for participation in this program, contact Dr Jack Sarfatti, PCRG, 1155 Jones, Suite 506, San Francisco, CA 94109, telephone (415) 441-8720. The cost of this 26 day program is $1150.

Two weekend workshops featuring scientists from the month-long seminar have been included in the Big Sur programming for January 21—23 and February 11—13. Reservations for the weekend programs may be made through the Esalen/Big Sur office.

The New Natural Philosophy: Science & Consciousness

"Quantum theory asserts that the world acts as a single indivisible unit, in which the very nature of each part depends on its relationship to the whole."

—David Bohm

Psychology and models for consciousness have been largely formulated in terms of metaphors originating in the seventeenth century mechanics of Newton and the nineteenth century electro-magnetic field theory of Maxwell. The time is long overdue for the integration of the expanded world view of post-Einsteinian quantum physics into the everyday world of people exploring the dimensions of consciousness, including communication, control, and the cost of information.

Relativity is based on a particular way of communicating. Quantum mechanics arises out of fundamental limitations placed on our control of the world. The second law of thermodynamics places a price in free energy on every bit of knowledge we acquire. A new kind of non-Boolean "quantum logic" applies to the actions of atoms and, perhaps, to the actions of human beings. Why does time appear to flow from past to future? What is the physics of life? How does form arise out of chaos? Are there deep archetypal structures acting as generative principles common both to physics and to psychologies of consciousness?

Participants in the weekend workshops will experience both a presentation of these basic questions and an overview of the material under study at the Physics Consciousness month long seminar. $110

Week of January 16-21

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 25. $240

Contact, Communication & Relationship: A Workshop for Professionals
Julian & Beverly Silverman

We will work with the relationship between individual process and group process. Our concern is with developing a way of being in which one's senses are open and one's contacting of others flexible. The learning which takes place occurs with a group of individuals who share and change in relation to each other. Emphasis is placed upon body in relationship to mind. $270

The Joy of Sadness / Gabrielle Roth

The purpose of this workshop is to dissolve the wall between you and your divinity—the barrier between your mind/body and your heart. These five days of deep personal processing will include breathing, movement, music, sound, and massage meditations. Gabrielle will support us in going deeply within ourselves to rediscover the magnitude of our own heart energy, thus infusing our life experience with dimension, depth, meaning and purpose. We will come together to dance, to sing, to worship, to cry—to celebrate our vulnerability and our strength, our heights and our depths. $270 + $2 video fee

Weekend of January 28-30

Massage Weekend for Beginners / The Esalen Massage Crew

In our two days together we will establish a basic road map for a full-body massage: where to start, what to work towards as an end, and some ideas about what to do in between. Part of our emphasis is upon specific instruction in sensory awareness and body manipulation, and another larger part is upon practice with one another, experiencing the structure and energy of our bodies, using the map only as a back-pocket guide for our own much more interesting explorations.

The group meets daily in the baths. $110

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 25. $100

The Physics of Wilhelm Reich / Eva Reich

This workshop will focus on the scientific discoveries of Wilhelm Reich including a review of his published work from 1940 to 1957, correlations and discrepancies with present day physics theory, and implications of the discovery of the life energy for the future of mankind. Medical and technical applications will be included. $110

Unfolding the Inner Self / Michael Butler

Within each of us is an untapped seed of emotional and spiritual energy which can be the source of great creativity, peace, and joy in our life. All of us have moments in touch with it, and those are times when we are especially aware of our own unique beauty and strength. Sometimes this seed is called the "inner self."

There are methods, some age old, some new, that can directly tap into the inner self and help a person live in touch with it in everyday life. We will use tools which are designed to be gentle, yet go deep—music and chanting to open the heart, meditation practices, a form of movement which strengthens the emotional center, theoretical sessions on unity consciousness, gentle physical exercises—and other techniques for unfolding.

The workshop is limited to 14 participants and is appropriate for beginners as well as those with previous group experience. $110

Feldenkrais Functional Integration: An Experiential Learning Method

John Dewey wrote: "No matter how ignorant any person is, there is one thing that he knows better than anybody else; and that is where the shoes pinch on his own feet . . ." The teaching of Moshe Feldenkrais—and of Ida Rolf and Fritz Perls as well—resonates to this statement. Feldenkrais is adamant that the individual must discover for himself/herself what is so for him/her and experience freedom to explore and experiment with new ways to facilitate this self discovery. His method of teaching creates that kind of space. Truly it is educating—leading out.

The body work created and developed by Dr Feldenkrais is grounded in movement as the main means for individuals to educate themselves, improve their function as whole human beings, enhance and expand their self image, and more fully realize their potential. The feldenkrais method is meditative movement—physical and mental. In each lesson, sequences of movement are executed slowly, gently and pleasurably with sharply increased awareness here/now of the step-by-step developmental process.

The individual learns to correct inefficient and faulty movement by attending to his/her own feedback—physical and mental. By this means, one experiences the essential unity of the body/mind aspects of the central nervous system. Frequently a lesson is experienced on one side of the body by means of physical movement and on the other side in the mind only—the student creating the sequence mentally "as if" it were happening. Invariably, when the student actually moves, the side "exercised" only in the mind surpasses the other in function.

Feldenkrais lessons gradually eliminate from one's mode of action most parasitic or superfluous movement and behavior which blocks or interferes with movement. Participants experience their bodies operating with the reduced friction, increased tonus and optimum function of an organism correctly aligned in the gravitational field. The feldenkrais method further results in increased sensitivity, heightened awareness, and expanded real sense of self. Unlike many exercise methods which promote unconsciousness by rapid, repeated, strenuous effort, feldenkrais lessons require full consciousness every moment, resulting in individuals who are able fully to experience their experiences and take responsibility for them. Gains achieved in feldenkrais lessons are retained. No "warm-up" is necessary. When repeating any given lesson, participants begin at or beyond where they left off the previous time.

The feldenkrais lessons begin with participants lying on the floor, scanning their bodies until they become aware of where and how they contact the floor. By directing their attention in response to instructions, they become aware that whole areas of their bodies are unfamiliar and unknown to them. Gradually these "blanks" in the self-concept are filled in and one's experience of one's self is expanded.

—Betty Fuller

January 30—February 18

Lighten Up: Body / Mind / Spirit / Betty Fuller

Many of us carry around enormous burdens of yesterday's regrets, resentments, and other unfinished business through which we screen our experience of today's here-now daily life. Frequently we made decisions "back then" which determine today's posture—physical, mental-emotional, and spiritual—and the choices we made about tomorrow's possibilities.

In this body-mind-spirit workshop we lighten the load using gestalt, encounter, psychosynthesis combined with feldenkrais, and Trager body work, massage, meditation, song, dance, and laughter. As we experience greater flexibility, increased energy, expanded consciousness, and enhanced self image we can choose NOW to live now—viewing the soap opera of our life simply as the story of what happened along the way.

For participation in this program, completion of the basic est training is recommended but not required. $890

January 30—February 18

Western Roundup / Margaret Conway

This is the third annual happening of what started out as the Montana Group in conjunction with Montana Learning Unlimited, a growth center in Helena, Montana. This year we invite people from other states to join us in this opportunity to explore the developing human awareness disciplines, to joyfully discover your best self, and enhance your relationships with others. In past years group members have returned with new skills and inspiration that has benefited both themselves and their communities.

Our three weeks in residence will include two sessions daily with Esalen leaders in gestalt, bioenergetics, psychosynthesis, massage, meditation, and movement. Evening meetings with Margaret Conway will stress open communication and integration of the whole experience. We will also make some music around the fire.

Esalen leaders will include Richard Price, Bernard Gunther, Laurie Phelan, Dee Mundschenk, David Schiffman, Nowell Delevett, Janet Zuckerman, and others not confirmed at catalog time. The group may also choose to have workshops with any leaders who may be at Esalen during this period. Weekends are free to explore San Francisco, roam the magnificent Big Sur Coast (or just soak up sun while your friends at home enjoy the long winter!). You may also attend weekend workshops at a reduced rate.

Some small partial work scholarships are available. Please address inquires and registration to Margaret Conway c/o Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920. $800

Week of January 30- February -4

Health Whole Holy / Bernard Gunther

We are all almost unlimited sources of joyous energy; we squander many of these resources. Blocked by fear, habit, and limitation, we dam ourselves in destructive energy expression: various forms of mental-physical-emotional imbalance. In this workshop we will explore our behavior patterns through the use of breathing, guided fantasies, awareness, and hypnosis. Special emphasis will be placed on the energy centers (chakras) as a system for self regulation, wholeness, and health. The experience will be a synthesis of gestalt, yoga, psychosynthesis, and movement with emphasis on a practical individual program of these methods that can be used in daily life. $270

Antagonist Psychology / Nicolas Sokoloff

This workshop will focus on antagonist psychology inspired by the work of physician and philosopher Stephan Lupasco. In antagonist psychology, the Cartesian logic of identity and non-contradiction is related to the other two logics of energy—the biological and psychological—both of which follow different laws. Comprehension of what Lupasco calls "the antagonist game of the three matters" can lead one on the path to Samadhi. The workshop will include oriental practices such as tantric meditations and exercises. $270

Weekend of February 4-6

Meltingintwone / Bernard Gunther

Often we have sex when what we are really seeking is an open closeness, caring, energy sharing to quiet an intense underlying sense of tension, anxiety, emptyness, and separation. Intimate relationships are most rewarding when they allow for appropriate times of individuality and unity, that are not only pleasurable but continually new and renewing. In this workshop for couples we will move from the physical mundane to a higher plane of consciousness, intimacy, and awareness. In this experience we will explore transmutation, mutual meditation, tantric yoga, polar therapy, and nonverbal communication, moving from separation and intensity toward union and ecstatic bliss. $110

Exploring Self-Acceptance
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

The focus of this workshop is the creation of a more positive and open-ended self concept. Through the use of structured risk-taking situations, gestalt, role-playing, fantasy, and encounter techniques, participants can accept or transcend the self-imposed boundaries from which they approach the world. Emphasis is on searching out unique personality strengths, individual capacities, and latent powers as a means of achieving productive, creative functioning. $110

Week of February 6-11

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

Self-Acceptance—The Freedom To Be
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

Each of us has unique capacities to feel and express: tenderness and strength, anger and affection, autonomy and needfulness as well as compassion, humor, and wisdom. The willingness to allow the fullness and vibrance of each of these qualities determines how alive and gratified we are.

In this workshop we will focus on how we diminish or affirm these essential qualities as they are expressed through our bodies, our sexuality, our creativity, our relationships to power, our friendships, and our expectations of ourselves and others. In an atmosphere of tenderness and support, we will clarify the nature of who we are and how we can best take care of ourselves, both here and on returning home. The workshop will be grounded in the techniques of gestalt, encounter, guided fantasy, massage, bioenergetics, and journal work. $270 + $2 video fee

A Dance Workshop / Anna & Daria Halprin

Ever since Fritz Perls introduced Anna and dance to Esalen programs she has been returning to do an annual workshop. In each workshop Anna evokes a joyful and dynamic spirit of movement and ritual drawing from the uniqueness of each group and the special natural environment at Big Sur. This year she will be co-leading with her daughter Daria who will bring her special expertise in leading women's groups, couples, and dream workshops integrating movement and gestalt. $110

Flowering—Learning How to Take It Home with You
Alexis Johnson

That first expansion into truly feeling alive is glorious. The trick is then to have both the experience and the conceptual framework to maintain the expansion and not be dismayed by the contradictions. We want to extend our area of personal responsibility to include both the rational and irrational, the positive and the nagative, the pleasureable and even the painful—we have it all! This workshop will use ourselves and the tools of bioenergetics, gestalt, and meditation to explore our emotional depths, our self-defeating attitudes and our unlimited possibilities. $110

Radix Feeling & Vision Improvement Workshop
Laura DeNuccio & Mark Dunlap

Most people with defective vision and many with "perfect" vision have serious blocks to feeling in the form of eye blocks, chronic patterns of muscular tension in or affecting the eyes. The Radix vision improvement program combines the deep emotional release work derived from Reich with some vision improvement drills of the ophthalmologist William H Bates in an original synthesis. The freeing of an eye block contributes significantly to the process of emotional release, and it can halt and often reverse the progressive effects of visual defects such as nearsightedness, farsightedness, astigmatism and squint. Bates techniques for vision improvement take advantage of the freeing of the eye block to improve visual function. Each participant will receive at least two Radix "intensives" along with group feeling work and vision drills. $270

Contact, Communication & Relationship
Julian & Beverly Silverman

We will work with the relationship between individual process and group process. Our concern is with developing a way of being in which one's senses are open and one's contacting of others flexible. The learning which takes place occurs with a group of individuals who share and change in relation to each other. Emphasis is placed upon body in relationship to mind. $270

Massage Intensive / The Esalen Massage Crew

Everyone has felt the magic of a caring touch, but most of know how to rub our pets better than we do our friends and lovers. For five days the members of the massage crew, each with their own unique style, will give instruction and help the group to practice basic techniques of massage upon one another: sensory awareness, deep muscular massage, joint articulation, polarity. As we learn to feel with our hands how the body and the life-force within it works, we learn to release tensions in others and to be more fully aware of our own spiritual capacity.

The group meets daily in the mineral baths. $270

Weekend of February 18-20

Introduction to Gestalt Practice / Joan Fiore

After introducing the "language" of gestalt and various gestalt experiments in breath, body, and feeling awareness, this workshop concentrates on providing the opportunity for intensive individual gestalt work in a supportive group setting. Suitable for novices as well as veterans. $110

The Miracle of Perception
Charlotte Selver & Charles Brooks

We usually associate perception only with what we see. However, the organism is marvellously provided with organs of perception and the sensory nervous system which can come into play both in quiet and in action. Awakening these rich sources brings about a much wider spectrum upon which we can build our life and our connection with all that happens within and around us. $110

Me-ssage (Total Body Self-Massage) & Body Sensing
Judy Unell

The body is a flexible and resilient organism and given the slightest encouragement and self-help will move toward natural and efficient functioning.

"Me-ssage" is a simple, very effective method of full body self-massage leading to release of muscular tensions, heightened awareness of the total self, and most satisfying, an appreciation of "I" being at all times available to "Me" instead of the usual helpless reliance on outside sources.

In this workshop we will learn "Me-ssage" and also become acquainted with how we live in our bodies and ways to change if we wish. $110

A Weekend with Ann Armstrong

We are all psychics but we usually don't recognize the subtle information we receive. You will be taught to trust your own psychic abilities and move into a heightened state of awareness. This will be done through a variety of exercises that are specifically tailored to the dynamics of the individual group. Anne will use her psychic abilities to give members of the group examples of the practical benefits that can be derived from this sensitivity. $110

Week of February 20-25

Esalen/Big Sur will be closed for this five day period.

Weekend of February 25-27

Friends of Esalen Weekend

This weekend is for people who want to BE at Esalen, people who have been at Esalen before or who have contributed to Esalen through the Friends of Esalen program. No formal groups will be scheduled. We will be here together; participants will live their own script with the Esalen grounds as their stage. $60

Week of February 27- March 4

Death as an Existential Problem / Leo Matos

This workshop will deal with the existence of death in one's lifetime and various problems developed by the concepts of death and dying. With a transpersonal gestalt approach and with certain techniques developed by Tibetan Buddhist psychology, the participants will have facilitated experiences with death and rebirth.

We will explore different aspects of death as, for example, fear of physical death, the presence of death in daily life, and the issue of psychological ego-death-rebirth (which is here facilitated by a non-drug technique developed by Leo Matos.) $270

You & Universal Motion / Robert Nadeau

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

Coordinated by Janet Zuckerman

These workshops are designed for people who have not previously been to Esalen/Big Sur. The emphasis is on finding those approaches to self-awareness that work most effectively for the individual participant. Some of the following experiences are available at each Experiencing Esalen workshop: sensory awareness, gestalt awareness training, encounter, theater games, guided fantasy, meditation, bioenergetics, massage. There is time to experience and explore the natural magnificence of the Big Sur coast.

Program for the Study of Culture and Consciousness

February 27–March 25, 1977

Shamanism & the Mystic Quest

Coordinated by Joan Halifax

Since the dawn of history, humankind has experienced itself as visionary and dreamer. It has learned that certain states of being create a psychic opening where vision is cleansed and the mirror-mind opens itself to the infinite possibilities of itself. This program is designed to explore those techniques of transformation and illumination emerging from ancient shamanic knowledge. Participants will be experientially introduced to basic methods of shamanic power and healing used by North and South American Indian shamans as reinterpreted for application within our own lives. The accumulation and utilization of shamanic power will be related to the processual nature of consciousness.

The faculty includes four anthropologists (Halifax, Harner, Munn, Myerhoff) who have had extensive experience with the visionary aspects of shamanism and/or shamanic cultures themselves, including Huichol, Mazatec, Jivaro, and Shipibo. Joseph Campbell and Joseph Chilton Pearce will provide us with the historical, mythological, psychological and conceptual basis of shamanism and mysticism. Prem Das, having completed the five year training period necessary to become a shaman in the Huichol world, will work daily with the group in the areas of cosmology, shamanic worldview, function and method of ritual and ceremony, healing practices, techniques of purification and transformation of consciousness, and use of dreams and visions. With him will be Matsua, an 86 year old Huichol shaman from the Western Sierra Madre of Nayarit, Mexico. Matsua is the principle shaman of his village and the surrounding area and is renowned for his knowledge of Huichol mythology, ceremony, healing, and chanting. Ruturi, another Huichol shaman, is a visionary yarn painter who will also be conducting ceremonies with us as well as teaching the techniques of his art.

Music is another dimension occuring in shamanic training. Kathleen Mullin, an ethnomusicologist, with Charles Lloyd and Barklie Henry, will explore with us the channel of music as a means transforming consciousness. The relationship between the body, movement, sound, and consciousness will be brought into focus by Gabrielle Roth.

Other areas to be covered will be: biochemistry and consciousness (Shulgin) and shamanism and schizophrenia (Silverman).

This workshop will take place in the Esalen Study Center, an old Big Sur mansion located on cypress-covered cliffs overlooking the Pacific Ocean. The learning format will combine didactic seminars, illustrated lectures, experiential sessions, group process, individual help in self-exploration, and selected film material.

The program is limited to twenty-eight participants selected from applicants. The fee is $1,150 including room and board. Some working scholarships are available to students on the basis of need. Scholarship forms can be obtained from Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.

If you wish to enroll in the program, send a letter containing biographical information and current photograph to Joan Halifax, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.

Weekend of March 4-6

Growth Through Risk-Taking
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

This workshop provides the opportunity for the group members to come to terms with the definitions by which they live. Through a series of structured risk-taking situations, the use of gestalt, role playing, fantasy, and encounter techniques, the participants can accept or transcend the boundaries from which they approach the world. Emphasis will be placed on the expression of anger, affection, sexuality, and the transcending of roles. This workshop is especially useful for people who have had previous encounter experience. $110

The Mid-Life Pilgrim—Dante & Ourselves: A Workshop on Dante's Divine Comedy
Claudio Naranjo & John Raphael Staude

Dante's mid-life journey provides us with a mode for our own spiritual quest. In this workshop each of us will have an opportunity to follow Dante the pilgrim in exploring our own personal hell, purgatory, paradise, and heaven. $110

Greek Mysteries of the Great Goddess / Joseph Campbell

A weekend of slide-illustrated lectures and discussions, on the Greek myths and rites of the Great Goddess of Many Names, who appeared as Artemis, Aphrodite, Hera, Athene, Demeter and Persephone, Hekate, the Graces, the Muses, and the Furies; Egyptian Isis and Babylonian Ishtar, to mention but a few of her known forms.

The talks will begin with discussions of her earliest documented appearances in the Neolithic and Early Bronze Ages, before the entry upon the scene of the patriarchal warrior races, dealing next with the meeting and conflict of the two religious systems—of the Goddess and of the God—and with the evidences in myths and legends of the resolutions achieved. The Iliad, the Odyssey, and the legend of Theseus and Minotaur will be reviewed in relation to this context. $110

Sexism & Sexuality: For Men & Women / Jacqueline Doyle

We will explore through experience and action the social and cultural influences shaping our choices in sexual attraction to others, and the blocks to our sense of joy in each other. We will focus on the capitalistic assumptions in our use of sexuality, on how we establish our power relationships to others, the effects of initiatory action, and the roles of competition and jealousy. We will address ourselves to the clarification and repair of the communication problem between the sexes. $270

Take a Second Look at Yourself / Janet Zuckerman

For workshop description see January 2—7. $270 + $4 video fee

Hypnosis & Movement / Emmett & Nitza Miller

To us our practice is a means for capturing the spirit and momentum of enjoyable experiences in the past and projecting them into the future. Further, it allows us to trace maladaptive patterns—symptoms, habits, emotions, and blocks—to their source, as far back as infancy or further, and extinguish them.

Participants will learn to enter and use the hypnotic state for relaxation, imagery, and age regression. Movement will be used to help intensify emotional experiences, to transmit desirable self-concepts to the body, and to develop means of truly enjoying the body. Of special interest will be multiple experiences of going from a desirable mental image in hypnosis directly into a full movement experience, without pausing at the "waking" level. $270

Body Awareness, Moving, Relaxation & Vitality
Barbara Clemans

Fixed patterns of movement create tension in the body and rigidity in the mind. We will experience new ways to move which are functional with constant focus on breath and directed awareness of body sensation. Massage with directed energy will heighten our sensation of ourselves and others, allowing for dissolution of stress and increased vitality. We will use feldenkrais movement, sensing, meridian awareness, touch, and visualization with music. $270

Opening the Feelings

RADIX NEO-REICHIAN WORKSHOPS
(formerly Interscience Workshops)

To grow in the capacity to experience and express deep feeling, to connect up with oneself, and to contact others is the aim of this series of workshops which employ neo-Reichian techniques of emotional release. The Radix Intensive, a period of individual work within a small group setting, is practiced by Charles and Erica Kelley and their staff at the Radix Work Shop. The Intensive, like other neo-Reichian techniques used in these workshops, grew from the discovery by Charles Kelley's teacher, Wilhelm Reich, of the way in which feeling is rooted in the flow of energy in the body, and is blocked by chronic muscular contractions which Reich called the muscular armor. Freeing the armor enables the student to open feeling that is buried and to soften and free feeling that is too strong and has been held in for fear of explosion.

In these workshops armor is softened by simultaneous work on the character and body, using techniques not only from Reich, but also from bioenergetics, sensory awareness, and other body-oriented approaches. Groups will be kept small—never more than eight per leader—so that significant individual attention can be given. Grief or pain, fear, and rage that have been held in since childhood emerge in these workshops. As the participant accepts and works through these negative feelings, he/she discovers a new capacity for pleasure, trust, and love. In time the sexual experience changes profoundly as tender and sexual feelings for the mate intensify and merge.

SCHEDULE:

January 16–21	Siri Mishler, Mark Dunlap, & Claire Killen
February 13–18	Laura DeNuccio & Mark Dunlap
March 11–13	Connie Cossette, David Grill, Merri Goldenson
April 10–15	Charles Kelley, Will David, Laura DeNuccio, Sharon Henry, & Ron Andes

Weekend of March 18-20

Music, Dance, Trance, & Celebration
Emmett & Nitza Miller

In cultures which are less dominated by technology and industry, music, dance, and celebration are not spectator sports. These activities, along with "trance" states such as meditation, deep relaxation, and hypnosis have been traditionally initiated cross-culturally for physical and emotional balance—release of tension, clearing of the mind, joy and ecstacy, and for interpersonal and transpersonal communication; and everyone participates!

This will be an experiential weekend where participants will be invited to share several deep relaxation ("trance") experiences to help intensify sound and movement and the natural body rhythms.

The lovely sounds of the harp, the stirring flute and the passion of drums will facilitate spontaneous movement to stimulate the evolution of your own body rhythms towards freedom, pleasure, and joy. $110

Unfinished Animal: An Exploration of the Evolutionary Image of Human Potentiality
Theodore Roszak & Joan Halifax

In his most recent book, Unfinished Animal, Theodore Roszak suggests that we are involved in a transformation of the human personality which is of evolutionary proportions, a shift of consciousness fully as epic-making as the appearance of speech and the tool-making talents of our cultural repertory. His argument is that the popular mythology of evolving consciousness, now so awkwardly overlaid with scientific and psychotherapeutic trappings echoes another, far older myth, a story of redemption and transcendence which carries us back to the dawn of religious awareness. With author, Roszak, and anthropologist, Halifax, this workshop will be an exploration of the mythic and psychic ground of transformation. $110

Life is a Sexual Experience / Gabrielle Roth

"When sex comes from the physical center, it is a necessity. When it comes from the mental center, it is a fantasy. When sex comes from the heart center, it is a deep, total, and profound experience of our own divinity. Sex is meaningless without the heart."

The purpose of this workshop is to heal the separation between our divinity and our sexuality as it exists in our consciousness, attitudes and actions. These five days will include breathing, movement, music, sound and massage meditation. We will come together to dance, to sing, to worship, to cry—to celebrate our vulnerability and our strength, our heights and our depths. Gabrielle will support us in going within ourselves to rediscover the magnitude of our own heart energy, thus infusing our sexuality, and our entire life experience with depth and purpose. $270 + $4 video fee

Statement of Purpose & Objectives of Esalen as an Educational Institution

Esalen Institute is a nonprofit organization. Our primary purpose, in the broadest sense, is an educational one.

In order to support the unique educational form which we are continually developing, we require well functioning support systems (administrative, financial, legal, lodging, food preparation, etc.): these support systems maintain and enhance the basic thrust of the Esalen educational program.

Our main contribution is in areas of knowledge and experience which ordinarily are not considered in traditional educational settings. "Confluent education," "affective education," "energy awareness," and various other types of experiential programs are a major concern at Esalen. At the same time we collaborate with established universities on educational programs. We believe that the natural environment at Esalen/Big Sur is a primary educational aspect of our programs. At Esalen, each student-seminarian finds and defines his own path to learning, taking his education from the total environment available—psychic, geographical, emotional, spiritual, and intellectual. The place and the people are the background and foreground of the ever-changing gestalt.

Our philosophy of education is simple; it is derived from the Latin meaning of the word educere—to lead out that which is within. We are not primarily interested in indoctrination or in instruction. We believe in the natural unfolding of a "student's" creative abilities in a supportive, natural environment.

We view the Esalen staff as developing into a faculty which is unique to educational institutions. We believe in the evolution of an educational form in which teaching and support functions are indistinguishable—where basic aspects of growth are taught by those who take care of the Esalen environment.

We see ourselves as working at being an "open educational system" responsive to changing conditions in society which are intrinsically related to changes in personal and social experience.

South Coast Center

The living center is slowly evolving into a participatory environment
vital
changing
designing, redesigning inner and outer space with residents responsible for their own evolution.

The South Coast Center, located a mile and a half north of Esalen, is a living center for people who would like to be in contact with Esalen and its facilities but who are not interested in an intensive workshop program. Studios (room, balcony, and bath) are available for $350 per month. A monthly meal ticket may be purchased at Esalen for $200 and residents may set up light cooking facilities in their rooms for preparing their own meals. As part of our program of integrating residents into the working community, South Coast residents are asked to contribute eight hours per week of work to the community. In addition, due to the large number of people who want to be at South Coast, we have put a limit of three months on all South Coast residencies. South Coast studios may be reserved through the Esalen/Big Sur office.

Ongoing Residence Program

Offered from September through May, the Ongoing Residential Program is designed for those who would like to have time and space in the Esalen environment for an intensive workshop program over a long term. A minimum stay: 26 days (or four "weeks" and three weekends).

Participants may select any of the five-day workshops offered during their stay. Weekend workshops are available at special prices. Some programs are cancelled, so second choices are advised. Some special staff programs will also be open to residents. The cost is $960 per 26-day period.

Ways of Being at Esalen

Sleeping Bag Group Weekends

The sleeping bag group is another way of being at Esalen—it has a life of its own.

Experience the place—with its hidden moments of beauty and surprise, the baths, the people, YOU. Members of the staff will accompany and share with you some of what they have learned living here at Esalen.

These weekends are offered from September through May. The charge is $60 per person for 10-14 people. You will be living together in one room. Bring your sleeping bags. Meals are provided starting Friday dinner through Sunday lunch. Send inquiries to Janet Zuckerman, Sleeping Bag Groups, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

The Esalen Work-Study Program

In the process of becoming educated, we are taught that it is more important to be involved with the outside world than with our Selves. We are taught to become Ego-involved—involved with manipulating things and people. We are taught to experience our potence (our com-petence) primarily in relation to others; we lose touch with the potence of our Selves—with our essence.

The growing interest of the western world in eastern spiritual disciplines and in the now-called "human potential movement" implies a yearning for dis-covering the SELF. The task for we western men and women is to integrate this dis-covering of SELF into the center of our technological, work-oriented civilization. It is with this task in view that we present the Work-Study program.

The Work-Study program is a residential program within the working context of the Esalen community.

The Focus: Learning/dis-covering the use of your own energy in work . . .
For your SELF.
Living together (close to others) operatively and co-operatively in a unique, high intensity environment.
Contact/communication with the people of Esalen via group work and in day-to-day Esalen happenings.
An opportunity for:
SELF-regulation
SELF-examination
SELF-contemplation
and if you choose
SELF-reevaluation
Facilitated by removal from your ordinary living context.

Group sessions with Esalen staff leaders are one kind of background for the program. Staff leaders include Janet Lederman, Christine Price, Richard Price, Beverly Silverman, Julian Silverman, and Janet Zuckerman.

Participants make a commitment to work 32 hours per week at such jobs as gardening, maintenance, office, kitchen duties, etc. Scheduling consideration is given to the community labor needs and work assignments are made according to these requirements. (Flexibility is one of the watchwords of life at Esalen). The Work-Study program is for those who are interested in immersion in the total environment of Esalen/Big Sur. It is a work-oriented program (emotionally and physically) and only rarely is it restful.

Housing is at the South Coast Living Center, one and a half miles north of the Hot Springs property, with shared accommodations of up to three persons to a room. The program lasts 28 days: four weeks and four weekends at a basic cost of $350 (this price is effective with the program beginning January 23; until then the price is $300). Depending on your work schedule, weekend workshops may be available for an additional fee. Professional services such as massage and rolfing are available at staff rates. Arrangements are made through the office.

Available dates: December 26—January 23; January 23—February 20; February 25—March 27; March 27—April 24; April 24—May 22; May 22—June 19.

If interested, please apply as early as possible to Work-Study Program, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920. Only a limited number of applicants are accepted.

A Weekend with Will Schutz
$110

From the Energy Dimension
Wendy Palmer & Richard K Heckler
Everyday, every moment, we are receiving messages from the energy dimension. Becoming familiar with this language enhances our creativity and ability to operate at maximum efficiency in the world.

Using the principles of aikido, energy awareness, centering, and gestalt we will learn to interpret pressure situations in terms of energy activity which can enrich rather than inhibit our life. $110

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff
For workshop description see page 25. $100

Lomi Work: An Exploration of the Body / Mind / Spirit Through Awareness
David Kessler & Bill Prang
Using the Lomi approach to gestalt, conscious movement, breath awareness, aikido energy techniques, hatha yoga, body work, polarity massage, and meditation, we will explore and enhance our body/mind/spirit process. The focus of this work is cultivation of awareness at all levels of existence. A session of Lomi body work will be available to each participant. Lomi body work is an integrative form of deep body manipulations whereby tensions in the body are brought to awareness and released. Basically this work speaks of a trust for the human organism and the higher forces that guide it. $110

Being PATIENT with Schizophrenia: A Different Way of Treatment
Julian Silverman & Bette Dingman
This workshop is concerned with a different way to "treat" acute-dis-ease in consciousness. It involves an approach of not interfering with a person's struggle. It involves being patient until the right moment—the moment when the struggle ceases and there is momentary ease. It involves the "therapist's" use of him/her SELF rather than therapeutic techniques. It involves an advance in the training of therapists. It involves a different way of understanding so-called schizophrenia dis-ease. $110

Week of March 27 - April 1

A Week with Will Schutz
$300

Opening to Your Inner Self Through Body-Energetics
Hector Prestera
Using techniques from Reich, gestalt, direct encounter, acupuncture and energy release systems, such as vital center mantras, the individual will grow toward opening to himself and others. $270

Lomi Work: An Exploration of the Body / Mind / Spirit Through Awareness
David Kessler & Bill Prang

Weekend of April 1 - 3

The Gentle Art of Becoming—Together: A Workshop for Couples / David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk
For workshop description see January 7–9. $110 per person

Mind as Healer, Mind as Slayer / Kenneth Pelletier
This weekend explores the neurophysiology of stress and human consciousness; the interaction between states of mind and physical health or illness; psychological factors in cancer and hypertension; and applications of biofeedback and meditation in self healing. Participants will engage in meditative practices, visualization techniques, and use biofeedback instruments with emphasis on health maintenance. $110

March 27—April 29

Inner Road to Health

Coordinated by Al Drucker

This is a workshop for staying well and helping others to stay well. The subjects covered include many of the health approaches taught at Esalen. Past programs have included:

- Gestalt Process and Training
- Interpersonal Process Work
- Acupuncture, Rolfing, & Deep Tissue Work
- Herbal & Homeopathic Systems
- Shiatsu, Polarity, & other Massage Methods
- Nutrition, Diet, & Organic Gardening
- Music, Dance, Movement, & Energy Awareness
- Yoga, Tai Chi, Arica, & Feldenkrais Exercises
- Meditation, Chanting, & other Spiritual Practices

The workshop staff of about 15 includes outside leaders as well as resident Esalen teachers. Underlying the many approaches is a central unifying theme—that the body-mind will naturally come into a state of harmony and order when we immerse ourselves in a nourishing environment, engage in a daily physical and spiritual practice, and clear out the mental emotional and physical clutter that clogs our lives.

Most of the sessions will be experiential. The first week will begin with a purification routine that consists of an organic juice fast and sessions concentrating on individual process work. Then we will explore ways of preparing herbs and food and using our hands, minds, and bodies to promote health.

Throughout the five-week program the main emphasis will be on discovering and awakening inner resources. In this connection, regular meditation, yoga, tai chi, massage, and other quieting practices will help still the mind and relax the body, permitting new awareness and sensitivity to emerge. Our eventual goal is to integrate and make whole all the diverse aspects of our being; physical, mental, social, emotional, energetic, and spiritual. This result may not come for many years, but the process leading towards wholeness can be well on the way by the end of this workshop.

The group will meet in the Big House and many of the participants will be housed there. The Big House is a beautiful old mansion located on cypress-covered cliffs overlooking the rocky coastline of Big Sur. The workshop is offered twice yearly. Enrollment is on a first-come basis, confirmed upon receipt of the deposit. Some partial scholarships will be available and awarded on the basis of need; for this a weekly work committment is required. Our available scholarship fund is frequently exhausted as the program draws near, so applicants are encouraged to apply early by writing to Chris Price, Esalen, Big Sur, CA 93920. Also please write to us before enrolling if you have a health problem. We will try to accomodate your needs or suggest alternative possibilities.

Tuition: $1280 Deposit: $400

Please note that an advanced month-long workshop entitled "Inner Road to Health Practicum" at reduced tuition cost but requiring a weekly work committment, is scheduled twice yearly. This is limited to 10 participants and requires a previous qualifying experiance. This workshop is further described under January 2—28.

Self-Acceptance—The Freedom to Be
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

For workshop description see February 6—11. $270 + $2 video fee

Varieties of Sexual Experiences & Behaviors (Observations from LSD Research) / Stanislav Grof

Using the extended cartography of the human unconscious based on observations from clinical LSD research, we will discuss the nature of sexual energy and the many specific forms it assumes. Special attention will be paid to new understanding of the psychodynamics of sexual variations, disorders, and deviations, and to transpersonal dimensions of sex (satanic, oceanic, and tantric). We will use a combination of discussion, group interaction, experiential exercises, mandala drawings, slide and film projection, and non-drug technology for altering consciousness. Participants will have the opportunity to confront their feelings about sexuality and gain deeper insight into the nature of their experiences in this area. $270

The Body & the Energy Body / George Leonard

Many ancient and modern disciplines of personal health, growth and change depend upon concepts of energy flows in and around the bodies of living things. Using techniques derived from the art of aikido, George Leonard will present his approach to the human biofield or "energy body." Through simple mental and physical exercises, participants will experience their energy bodies in interaction with nature and other people, and will practice centering and heightened awareness. They will be introduced to alternative ways of dealing with everyday life situations—especially those involving tension and expectation—and will explore ways of getting in touch with their own hidden powers. There will also be discussion of these experiences as they relate to education, sports, healing, and social transformation. $110

The Radix Experience: A Neo-Reichian Workshop
Charles Kelley with Will David, Laura DeNuccio, Sharon Henry, & Ron Andes

The Radix experience is a direct body approach to deep emotional release, rooted in the work of Wilhelm Reich and his students. By concentrating on breaking patterns of breathing and muscular tension, feeling which has been blocked by chronic unconscious patterns of muscular tension called "muscular armor," is freed. As the armor softens and the student allows emotions—fear, anger, pain—to emerge, he realizes a new capacity for trust, love, and joy.

Half of the workshop sessions will be in large group with Chuck Kelley who will present Radix group techniques. Chuck will also describe the concepts which underlie Radix and give an in-depth description of his unique training program. The other half of the sessions will be in small groups, and will include two individual Radix intensive sessions for each participant. $300

April 10–17

Rites of Passage: A Seven Day Pilgrimage Through the Big Sur Wilderness
David Schiffman & Dick Galland

The workshop is intended to create an experience which will support and intensify the simplification and cleansing necessary for a greater sense of personal clarity and grace.

We will pay attention to and take care of ourselves through a variety of disciplines and forms, including meditation, gestalt, intuitional sensing, as well as the more traditional wilderness skills. The emphasis will be on creating a richer, more harmonious balance between the mental, physical, and spiritual realms of existence.

Registration for the workshop should be at least two weeks in advance so that proper advance preparations and information can be sent regarding equipment and exercise. $220

Weekend of April 15-17

The Pragmatics of Change / Jack Gaines

This workshop is designed for those who are no longer willing to look for their identity in an endless string of shiny new possessions and who are experiencing or considering drastic changes in their lives.

We will work on getting in touch with our bodies so we can find out what our body is telling us. From there we can explore some of our conflicts between mind and body. We will examine the priorities that have been running us and refocus that energy so we are indeed the runners of our own lives. $110

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 25. $100

Celebration / Betty Fuller

This will be a weekend of movement, massage, and meditation featuring mentastics, the effortless exercise created by Dr Milton Trager. We'll experience practical, simple ways to lengthen and align our bodies, relieve our aching backs and joints and achieve greater flexibility, richer consciousness, and expanded self-image. There will be time in Big Sur simply to dance, laugh, live, love, and be. $110

Week of April 17-22

Getting in Touch—Open Gestalt / Frank Rubenfeld

Hot-seat work, massage, and group exercises will serve to facilitate participants in experiencing and expressing the alive parts of themselves. Suitable for those in the helping professions. $270

Lighten Up: Let Go—Let Be / Betty Fuller

Emmet Fox wrote: "It is your heart and the level of your consciousness that determines all." This week we'll get clear and release many of those attitudes, beliefs and postures—body, mind, spirit—which keep us stuck in self limiting and self defeating behaviors making soap operas of our lives. As we handle some of yesterday's unfinished business and tomorrow's fantasies, we'll make room today to live each moment, choosing our way as we go. In a supportive atmosphere of good will and good humor, this gestalt-psychosynthesis-encounter group also includes daily body work (feldenkrais, Trager, and massage), quiet time, music, dance, laughter, and participation in the work and play of Esalen's community. $270

Weekend of April 22-24

Gestalt Theater / John Argue

Definition: Gestalt theater is a dramatization of the processes of consciousness in now time, whereas psychodrama is a dramatization of crucial episodes in one's personal history.

We will use gestalt to generate improvisations for a theater of self-presentation that truly celebrates and educates in the art of being human.

Work will be based on each person's everyday process, dreams, fantasies, and relationships.

This group is for people who wish to learn theatrical uses of gestalt language and process as a means of dealing creatively with everyday life. It is open to anyone and I want especially to work with teachers, helpers, and healers. $110

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 25. $100

Sound & Movement / David Mancini & The Esalen Musicians

If all sound is composed primarily of movement, in the form of waves, then movement must possess sound and the qualities of sound vibration. We will use music, massage, dance, theater, sonic walks, deep relaxation, and disco to explore our own connections to sound vibration and body movement. In an attempt to deal with the fragmentation of modern life we will look into the tapestry of sound vibrations as they overlap and mingle, cross and merge, hopefully achieving a new vision of life as more connected, more unified, more related, and entwined. $110

Contact with Earth / The Esalen Garden Crew

This is a workshop of spiritual and body communion with plants and our EARTH through practical learning experience.

The days will be spent in our vegetable garden, where we will focus our energy on daily gardening activities integrated with meditation, body awareness and informative discussions on topics such as companion planting, composting methods, our soil, and herbs.

Evenings will be devoted to body movement, meditations, guided fantasy, and discussion. $110

In Celebration of the Consciousness of Ida Rolf on the 80th Year of Her Body's Life

Some people are, in their consciousness, possessed by an image, a form, which they must ex-press—a point of view with a "spirit" which they must demon-strate.
In such people, when they articulate in their ex-pression, they tend to be experienced as extra-ordinary.
In a few, their consciousnesses become "signposts" or "turning points" in the evolution of the collective consciousness of human beings.
The dominating central image in such individuals' consciousnesses become a fulcrum, in relation to which changes take place in collective consciousness.
Such was the case with Einstein, with Columbus with Galileo, with others.
When an individual's ex-pression in consciousness is concerned directly with people's well-being, then it becomes whole-ly work.
We believe all of this to be so in the case of Ida Rolf.
Her work is extra-ordinary, a turning point,
a whole-ly work.
It is concerned, fundamentally, with well-being in the consciousness of others.

From her view-point in consciousness, she saw evolve
a practice or method, an in-struction for reducing dis-comfort in the body and thus for reducing dis-comfort in consciousness for facilitating the building of ease in consciousness.
Her view-point and her work are a gift:
in her consciousness to her SELF and from her consciousness to US.

Put Your Memories, Fantasies & Dreams to Work For You: A Reichian / Gestalt Approach to Energy Release
Joan Fiore

"To understand is to tremble. To recollect is to reenter and be riven."
—Harold Brodkey

This workshop focuses on releasing the energy locked in our memories, fantasies, and dreams so that this energy can be made available for present relationships and life situations in a way that makes our existence in the present less encumbered by unfinished business of the past as well as self-programmed, self-fulfilling prophecies of doom for the future. First priority is on intensive intrapersonal work in a supportive group setting. There will also be opportunities to explore the nature of our interpersonal relating through group interactions. $270

You & Universal Motion / Robert Nadeau

For workshop description see January 14–16. $270

Advanced Massage Week / The Esalen Massage Crew

The soothing release of everyday tensions is really only the beginning of the sensations and revelations possible through massage. The release of chronic energy blocks can produce dramatic results in our physical and emotional well-being; awarenesses and memories may be triggered which begin a process that goes far beyond the massage itself. The crew would like to demonstrate and practice together some of our own explorations in massage and manipulation of the energy-bodys and to share our experiences of the sometimes surprising results of these techniques. $270

Getting Out of Your Trap / Neil Lamper

"Gestalt is a way of life. Participants in this workshop can expect to experience their here-and-now and discuss their what-and-how. I am interested in people learning how to use their what—at work, play, in families, couples, and as singles. At times our entire group will be active and at times one person will wrestle with the impasse. I cannot force, will not coerce and have no neat package of salvation. People maintain their own momentum, work in their own way. I invite people to this workshop who want to experience Esalen and themselves anew and who expect to express this in their lives." $270

Future Workshop Announcements

Workshops of more than one week require special plannning for participants. Whenever possible we will announce such workshops well in advance. More detailed descriptions—and any changes—will appear in the catalog covering the period in which the workshop is scheduled.

Inner Road to Health Practicum / Al Drucker

June 5–12
A Practicum in Preventive Medicine Coordinated by Joan Halifax, PhD Led by Kenneth Pelletier, PhD

This seven-day workshop is designed as an intensive practicum for physicians and other health care professionals. We will look at the nature of health and how to maintain optimum levels of well-being. The areas of focus are: acupuncture, stress, body work, biofeedback, yoga and meditative techniques, psycho-social factors of disease, preventive medicine, dietary considerations.

September 4–30
Permutations of the One Coordinated by Joan Halifax & Barbara Braunstein

The enduring essence of each individual comes forth in the seed of dreams and visions. The awakening of the seed in the ground of conscious awareness becomes the return from exile. From the beginning, the search for identity takes us many places until finally we turn the awkward glance within. The pathways are many—the sources, permutations of the One. In the Vedas, it is said: "Truth is one, the sages call it by many names." Through body, mind and spirit, we will endeavor to continue together these explorations of our common self. The entries chosen will be gentle.

JANET ZUCKERMAN has been leading groups for four years and sees this work as creating a "safe place" where participants allow themselves to experience change and receive support. (pp 17, 25 27, 30)

Audio Cassette Recordings

Esalen long-term and special workshops have recently produced unusual and informative audio recordings. These are recorded in stereo and are available on cassettes only:

The January 1976 Physics and Consciousness group brought together spokesmen of the new counter-culture physics, sharing viewpoints and findings in the interplay of mind with matter:

John King: Introductory Discussions of Quantum Theory	1½ hours	$7.50
Peter Flessel: Molecular Biology and Modern Physics	1 hour	6.00
Fritjof Capra: Quantum Paradoxes and Eastern Mysticism	1½ hours	7.50
David Finkelstein: A New Quantum Logic	1½ hours	7.50

The May 1976 Grof workshop on Schizophrenia & the Visionary Mind gathered early explorers of the mind and of psychotic and religious experience:

John Perry: Psychosis and Visionary States	1½ hours	7.50
Humphrey Osmond: Early Psychedelic History	1 hour	6.00
Julian Silverman: Shamanism & Schizophrenia	1½ hours	7.50
Gregory Bateson: Double Binds & Levels of Thinking	1 hour	6.00

And, in addition, there is now an introductory recording of Al Huang's workshops, and the most recent from John Lilly, added to previously listed tapes:

Al Chung-Liang Huang: The Watercourse Way T'ai Chi	1½ hours	7.50
John C Lilly: About Whales and Dolphins	1 hour	6.00
Will Schutz: Interpersonal Psychodynamics	1½ hours	7.50
Gregory Bateson: Metaphors and Butterflies	1½ hours	7.50

Please address your order and make check payable to: Workshop Cassettes c/o Hot Springs Lodge, Big Sur, CA 93920. Suggestions regarding future recordings will be appreciated.

DEFINITIONS

Of Some Approaches to Human Growth Used in this Catalog

PSYCHOSYNTHESIS

Psychosynthesis is a psychological and educational approach for recognizing and harmonizing the many, often conflicting, elements of our inner lives. It is a developmental process based on a positive conception of man/woman within an evolving universe. Starting with each person's existential situation as he or she perceives it, personal growth is organized into a process aiming at the integration of personality and the emergence of an effective unifying center of being and awareness, the Self. The practical work of psychosynthesis chooses in each situation the appropriate progressive activities among many techniques and methods available. Some of these are: guided imagery, movement, self-identification, creativity, gestalt, meditation, training of the will, symbolic art work, journal keeping, ideal models, and development of intuition. The emphasis is on fostering an ongoing process of growth that can gain momentum and bring about a more joyful, balanced actualization of one's life.

MASSAGE

Massage is a healing art. It is practiced to help the body relax, to release tensions, to balance the energy flow, and to soothe the being with gentle caring. Massages are given individually; workshops, classes, and private lessons are available.

T'AI CHI CHUAN

T'ai Chi Chuan is an ancient Chinese exercise discipline practiced for health, meditation, energy flow, and self-defense. The slow, flowing movements of this "shadow boxing" comprise the oldest and "softest" of the Asian martial arts. Developed from the Chinese practice of nei kung, or inner exercise, it is part of the system of Taoist yoga. The term t'ai chi can be translated as "grand ultimate" and is expressed by the familiar symbol of yang and yin. It is thus rooted in the Chinese philosophy of change as expressed in the I Ching.

SHIATSU MASSAGE

Shiatsu massage is the oriental healing art in which the hands are used to apply pressure to acupuncture points over the entire body, allowing the springs of life to flow.

BIOENERGETIC ANALYSIS

Bioenergetic analysis attempts to understand the life of the body through its expression of vitality, gesture, emotion, feeling, and relationship. The body is viewed as an energetic process that participates as the world in the world of instinctual, social, imaginative, and creative realms. Bioenergetics seeks to develop an individual's range of expression by working through this process.

ENCOUNTER

The ground rules of encounter are that participants be open and honest in a group setting, that they avoid mere theorizing and instead talk about their feelings and perceptions. There is often an emphasis on eliciting emotions which lead to positive or negative confrontations rather than away from them. The focus of encounter is to explore interpersonal relations. Over the past years encounter, as practiced at Esalen, has evolved into a broad approach incorporating several related disciplines to achieve its aims. Techniques and insights gained from gestalt, sensory awareness, bioenergetics, massage, movement, and structural integration are all part of Esalen's encounter groups today.

GESTALT

Gestalt Awareness Training is a theory and approach to personality integration first developed by Fritz and Laura Perls, though new styles and methods are being developed by other leaders. The goal of the training is to assist the participants to utilize excitement and awareness and to develop responsibility. Excitement—to have life energy freely available and flowing, not blocked. Awareness—to be conscious of my energy as and where it flows; to have action accessible to consciousness, not happening mechanically. Responsibility—to know and act on the principle that I am the one who acts, thinks, and feels whatever it may be that I act, think, or feel. No one else or no event influences me except with my consent. At times, everyone in the workshop may work simultaneously with some awareness exercise, or in interaction with each other. More traditionally, a fair amount of time will be spent with participants working individually with the leader. The starting point for such individual work is whatever is here and now of most involving concern for the organism; a fantasy or dream, an interaction with another person, a memory, or a physical posture. "Problems" are welcome as starting points, if they are truly present and not merely verbally presented. In keeping with the gestalt emphasis on personal responsibility, the leader usually leaves the initiative for such work with the participants. The assumption is made that participants are not "patients" but are persons responsible for their own life decisions.

STRUCTURAL INTEGRATION (ROLFING)

Structural Integration or Rolfing is a method of deep manipulation of the musculo-skeletal system that aims at balancing the major segments of the body. We have learned that connective tissue (fascia, tendons, ligaments) can be lengthened by palpation and direct manipulation; this makes it possible to reorganize the basic body lines. A properly organized body will be subject to less stress and will move in a more economical way. Structural Integration has a second principle: posture is behavior. Humans are psychophysical organisms; one cannot divorce their physical from their psychological functions. When you change the structure, you change the function.

for general information.

Esalen/Big Sur lies 300 miles north of Los Angeles and 175 miles south of San Francisco. It is directly over the shoreline of the Pacific with the Santa Lucia Range rising sharply behind. The property, which has natural hot baths, was once the home of a North American Indian tribe known as Esalen.

We are a 45-mile drive south from Monterey, 11 miles south of Nepenthe, on California Coast Route 1. From the south, we are 50 miles north of San Simeon. A lighted sign on the ocean side of the highway reads: Esalen Institute—By Reservation Only.

Deposit Information: Big Sur programs require an advance deposit of $20 for weekend groups, $70 for five-day groups, $200 for two-week groups, $300 for three-week groups, and $400 for month-long groups. Deposits are not refundable but, with five days' notice, may be transferred to other Esalen programs. Please mail Big Sur reservations to Esalen/Big Sur. Do not mail Big Sur reservations to Esalen/San Francisco. Balance of payment is due on arrival. Esalen accepts Master Charge and American Express. U S currency only, please.

Scholarship Information: If you need scholarship assistance for a long term Esalen/Big Sur program, write for a scholarship application form before making a reservation (allow at least 3 weeks for processing as we have many applications). If your application is approved, please make a reservation as soon as possible after receiving notice. No scholarship assistance is available for June 15–August 31 programs or for weekend programs.

General Information: Workshop fees cover tuition, food, and lodging. Rooms are shared by two or three workshop participants. Camping on the grounds is prohibited.

Weekend programs begin with dinner on Friday and end with lunch on Sunday. Five-day and longer programs begin with dinner on Sunday and end with lunch on Friday. Rooms become available at 5 pm; however, guests are welcome to arrive anytime after lunch.

Esalen/Big Sur has no child care facilities. Please do not plan to bring children. We also ask workshop participants not to have guests. Alas, no pets.

Esalen's flourishing organic garden provides the kitchen with many of its vegetables and herbs. Our breads and pastries are made by Esalen bakers.

Limousine Service: Those traveling by air or bus can obtain limousine service to Esalen/Big Sur by notifying the Big Sur office of time of arrival. Pickups are made at the Monterey Airport and the Greyhound terminal at 5–5:30 pm each Sunday and Friday. The cost is $10 per person one way, payable on arrival at Esalen.

Seminarians as Staff (Karma Yoga): Seminarians in residence for five days or longer at Esalen are asked to contribute several hours per week to work with the staff. Your help enables us to meet the pressures of peak working times and enables you to experience Esalen from the inside out. A staff member will appear at your first workshop meeting to schedule volunteer help.

Bay Area Information

For reservations, literature, tickets, and information, write or call: Esalen Institute, PO Box 23, Mill Valley, California 94941. Phone: (415) 383-8670; 9:30-5:30 Monday through Friday.

Reservations: Reservations close five days prior to the program, in order to facilitate planning and for the convenience of participants' time plans. A non-refundable deposit must accompany registration as follows: $10 per person for programs costing under $35; $20 for programs costing under $100; $50 for those over $100, unless otherwise noted. Mail reservation form with check to Esalen Institute, PO Box 23, Mill Valley, California 94941. Balance is payable at the first session of the program. Do not send Bay Area reservations to Big Sur. Esalen accepts Master Charge and American Express. US currency only, please.

Workshop schedules: One day workshops generally meet from 10 am to 6 pm. Saturday and Sunday weekend workshops meet from 10 am to 6 pm each day. Friday through Sunday weekend workshops meet approximately from 8 to 11 pm on Friday, from 10 am through the afternoon and/or evening on Saturday, and from 10 am to early afternoon on Sunday. Schedules are not rigid, however, and exact meeting times are discussed at the first session.

Accommodations: Most Bay Area programs are non-residential. Participants in these programs must reserve their own accommodations at local hotels or motels. Unless stated otherwise, meals are not provided at such workshops.

Location: Participants will be informed of workshop location prior to the workshop date. Esalen uses several facilities in the Bay Area for its programs. Call the Bay Area office for advance information on program location.

Recommended dress: Workshops are informal. Slacks and flat shoes are recommended for women, sport clothes for men.

Esalen Institute is a center to explore those trends in education, religion, philosophy, and the physical and behavioral sciences which emphasize the potentialities and values of human existence. Our activities consist of seminars and workshops, residential programs, consulting, and research.

We exist to sponsor, encourage, synthesize, and attempt evaluation of work in these areas, both inside and outside our own organizational framework. Since we are a center for experimental education, we ask that persons come to our programs out of an educational interest. We ask that no one come whose interest is "cure." We point out here, as we have in workshops and seminars, that some persons, particularly those with a history of psychiatric problems, may find some programs difficult, trying, or potentially risky. We recommend that in case of any doubt, a physician or trusted counselor be consulted.

Today

It is Saturday
It is April
It is a day
Of a different life.
A dramatic change.
I revel in ecstasy
And grind in agony
I have experienced
A better place.
No things have changed
Performances continue
I have gathered closer
My senses.
So the focus is clearer
The feelings more alive
Reality more insistent
My movement exults me.
Where I live, despairs me.
In my exquisite happiness
And in my pain
I see quite well
It's no big deal
It's all OK.

A couple of years ago in the spring, Ed Dreessen, a bay area business man, attended a five day Contact & Communication workshop. He wrote this poem shortly afterward.

Who's Responsible at Esalen?

Owl is guardian spirit of the Great Sequoias.

We have long regarded Esalen Institute as an educational laboratory. Our evolving philosophical and operational positions reflect this regard. Underlying it all is a baseline ethic of "self-awareness and self-responsibility." However re-presented and operationalized in the past, by us or by others, this ethic continues to be the basis for our world view, and following from this, our educational approach. The self-awareness/self-responsibility ethic has grown and stabilized out of at least two generations of weighty dis-illusioning social and political events—all connected by a common reminder:

> Give away your personal faculties of discernment, of evaluation, of self-reference, and you lose your integrity (your wholeness). "Take responsibility for your every thought, your every feeling, your every action," said our beloved friend and teacher, Fritz Perls.

We view the implications of this position as being social as well as personal. They concern the ways we relate to ourselves and others.

In our position as educators, we invite people to take responsibility for their whole life situation while at Esalen. This includes taking responsibility for who they select as their teachers, their leaders, their gurus, their authority figures . . . and so on—and to be aware, whenever possible, what effect this has on them. We, of necessity, are setting up a situation for our seminarians to learn the practice of self-responsibility from the time they consider selecting a workshop, not just during the workshop. In effect, we are asking that this self-responsibility attitude be present in the initial contact with Esalen. Ideally, the same attitude will pervade after a workshop when our seminarians go back to the community and seek out others—physicians, teachers, counselors, mental health professionals, etc.

As we have become more thoughtful and self-critical about the overall direction of Esalen we have begun to concentrate on enhancing our basic offering—the Esalen environment and life style. Our primary emphasis is not on teaching particular truths or personal and interpersonal techniques for daily life; rather our primary concern is with a particular consciousness and developing an environment to support the evolution of that consciousness—the consciousness of self-awareness/self-responsibility.

The Esalen SPORT CENTER

The Esalen Sport Center was established in 1972 as a center within Esalen Institute. Its primary purpose is the development of new approaches to physical education, health, sports, and recreation and their application to programs in schools, industry, professional and amateur athletics, medicine, and other fields. To date we have held five major conferences on experiencing the human potential through physical activity, three summer institutes, a number of seminars and workshops and a six-month program which combines running, meditation, yoga, and other disciplines. Our work emphasizes the integration of mind, emotion, body, and spirit in athletic activity rather than competition and achievement per se. We regard health not simply as relief from malady and disease but as a positive state which can be cultivated through a wise balance of mental and physical disciplines.

We are now offering a six month mind/body development program in the San Francisco Bay Area. It emphasizes the integration of running, flexibility systems, meditation, visualization, guided imagery, and centering. Mike Spino, the Esalen Sport Center Director, is the program co-ordinator. He and Barbara Hazilla are the teaching team for the ongoing program sessions. This program meets twice a week for physical workouts and has twelve one day workshops in which new approaches, such as energy awareness with Robert Nadeau, meditation and Eastern thought with Michael Murphy, and theoretical perspectives with George Leonard are introduced and hopefully combined with individual training regimens. Smaller segments of the group meet each week for individual consultations. A similar program will be offered during May and June in the Bay area.

In a description of their project on bodily transformation, Michael Murphy and James Hickman state, "It is our thesis that evolutionary transformation of the human body can be effected by appropriate psycho-physical discipline. The purpose of this project is to gather evidence in support of this thesis, identify ways in which such transformations already occur and develop disciplines to support and reinforce them."

On the drawing board is a year-long program to train recreation teachers. It is our hope that these teachers will make our approaches available to more people than we can reach directly. There is considerable excitement about the use of expanded awareness in the training of amateur and professional athletes. Information recently released from East Germany outlines Olympic preparations which resemble work familiar at Esalen. Similar reports suggest that the Soviet Union has been using these types of approaches (including meditation, visualization, hypnosis, autogenic training, etc.) for over ten years in an effort to improve athletic performance. We are developing a plan to work with American athletes in their preparation for the 1980 Moscow Olympic Games. Training routines that emphasize consciousness and the integration of spirit and body might improve these athletes' performances, we feel, while helping them enhance the quality of their lives.

May 1—June 25

The Esalen Sport Center
Mind/Development Program

This two month program will include two group sessions each week, four one day workshops, and one weekly small group during which time Mike Spino, the program co-ordinator, and Barbara Hazilla will be available for individual consultations.

The program leaders specialties include:
Cardio-respiratory techniques with Mike Spino —various gaits and tempos for running —specific styles of movement —various breathing and visualization practices
—individualized training routines

A systematic approach to body awareness through flexibility techniques with Barbara Hazilla.
—Extending the range of flexibility and skeletal suppleness
—hatha yoga, free form stretches, and breathing
—learning to respond to sensory feedback

Throughout the program, we will integrate with the areas listed above, the following approaches.
—meditation—the process of observing one's thoughts and connecting with a quiet place within.
—visualization and guided imagery—creating and utilizing images which increase awareness and enhance physical experiences.
—centering—the process of tuning into a place of inner balance and harmony.

Other areas of interest and leaders will include: Michael Murphy—meditation, Eastern thought, George Leonard—theoretical overview and energy awareness, Robert Nadeau—centering and energy awareness, Judith Aston—structural patterning and body locomotion, Will Schutz—interpersonal and psychodynamics.

The cost of the program is $200. Deposit $50. This is a non-residential program in San Francisco.

The following pages provide a perspective for viewing our changing organization structure, some of our accomplishments and some aspirations for the future.

A Perspective on a Direction for Esalen

"The growing interest of the western world in eastern spiritual disciplines and in the now-called "human potential movement" implies a yearning for dis-covering the self. The task for we western men and women is to integrate this dis-covering of self into the center of our technological, work-oriented civilization."

(From the Esalen Catalog, October, 1976)

During the past several years Esalen's unique contribution to the outside world has been principally as a retreat or out-of-the-way place with an emphasis on experiential workshops—"individual and group process work" and "body work"—and didactic seminars on various "human potential" issues. Our format has been adopted by many "growth" centers; it has become an increasingly familiar part of contemporary life in America and in Europe.

Meanwhile, we have gone on working—refining our workshop techniques, enhancing the quality of our facilities and maintaining our natural environment with its extra-ordinary beauty, and building an innovative and dynamic business-community organization.

In addition to doing our regular workshops, we now see the need for Esalen to move in an outward direction. This direction is based upon two essential concerns:

1. Where are the areas of greatest influence in society today; and
2. What areas are more likely to financially support the continuation and growth of the Institute?

Using these two questions as baseline criteria, it seems to us that the areas to move into that meet both of these criteria are those different from ones which have been given major consideration by Esalen in the past. Although work already has been done for industry and government and for various professional associations, we see now as the time to initiate a major involvement with these organizations, with the end in mind of Esalen providing them with unique services:

a. Providing a retreat setting wherein an institution or organization comes to Esalen and uses the facilities but provides their own instruction or other means of professional development.
b. Using Esalen as a retreat setting where the visiting groups provide their own instruction and Esalen also contributes its expertise.
c. Providing packages of specific content: organizational development and/or personal growth-oriented; educational and/or communication facilitation; designed and co-ordinated by Esalen under contract with the visiting group or organization.

Esalen as an Environment

The mountains, the ocean, the clean air,
the baths, the grounds, the lodge,
the wholesome food;
The people;
A facility for groups of 75 to 80 people
(sometimes more);
You can be affected in this kind of environment,
experience yourself . . .

The people who live and work here are allowing of each other, less concerned about how others are supposed to be, concerned with developing their own self-consciousness and self-directedness—in their work, in their love, in their re-creation.

Programs for People in Business and Professional Organizations

In the course of our work with business management personnel, we have become sensitized to the needs of individuals who work in complex organizations.* Out of our experiences has emerged a program geared to various personal and interpersonal aspects of business life. The program utilizes:

1. Energy awareness and various types of sitting and moving meditation. Techniques are used to teach people how to work under pressure, to employ pressure in order to facilitate self-composure.
2. Play, martial art, and athletic fitness. Techniques are designed to evoke co-ordinated physical movement, to develop body-awareness and a sense of competence and sportsmanship.
3. Group process designed to facilitate personal awareness and interpersonal communication.
4. Organization development designed to facilitate communication and capacity for adaptive change within business organizations.

The integration of these techniques into a comprehensive program, on (and off) the Esalen grounds, involves the participation of the entire Esalen staff (50-60 people), as well as selected outside faculty.

It involves a uniquely balanced blend of "frontier" approaches—gestalt, encounter, psychosynthesis, energy awareness, sensory awareness, etc.—with traditional approaches to organizational development.

It involves pre-planning meetings with key management people in the client organization.

It involves follow-up contacts geared to facilitating those growth components which have been set in motion at Esalen.

Our aim is to provide a context for enriching the client organization and the individuals who work in it. Every organizational issue is approached with a double-focus methodology. There are techniques specifically designed to consider different levels of organizational communication. There are other techniques concerned with developing individual well-being and self-reference.

When individuals experience themselves—sense their selves, their boundaries, their limits—then they can feel the real excitement of their lives.

In addition to staffs of business organizations, we have worked with lawyers, hospital administrators, army dentists, educators, psychiatrists, and other professional groups.*

A SAMPLE OF MEMORABLE EVENTS

The Army in Big Sur*
(March, 1972)

Heliocopters landing on the lawn, bathing suits in the baths. Rumors were rampant; fantasies were flying as Esalen's Big Sur community prepared for an "invasion" by the Sixth Army's Drug and Alcoholic Abuse Control Program for a seven day event in March. Conferees ranged from colonels to civilian staff members; they came from places as far apart as Fort Lewis in Washington State, Fort Carson in Colorado, and Fort Ord in California. Army bases from a nine-state area were represented.

As the week began there seemed to be some tension and a gap between "us" and "them." On the first day representatives of the different Army facilities presented the work being done in their programs. Throughout the day there was still a little uneasiness among the "troops"—both ours and theirs—but that night there was a microlab; everyone participated, both the conferees and the Esalen community. The energy was as high as it has ever been at Esalen Hot Springs. The "we" and "they" melted into a big "us," and the tone was set for the whole week.

Each day began with breakfast at 7:00 am (revielle at 6:00 wasn't such a far-off rumor; there was no bugle, however, only a flute sounding melodiously in the distance.) The symposium schedule designed jointly by Army and Esalen administrative staff combined didactic and experiential lectures, demonstrations and group experiences. (Lectures included: David Deitch, a founder of Daytop Village, a New York drug rehabilitation center; Steve Lewis from the Yale University Drug Abuse Program; Jeff Donfeld of the National Drug Abuse Program; Steve Pittell from the Haight-Ashbury Clinic; and Allen Cohen, a consulting psychiatrist from the University of California at Hayward.)

The experiential part of the program included lecture-demonstrations in gestalt, psychosynthesis, sensory awareness, energy awareness, martial arts, meditation, massage, tai chi, yoga, and a rolfing demonstration. The cream of the core of Esalen teachers and facilitators were selected for this work. In between sessions were talks by General Gard, Leahy and Tolson discussing the Army's role in dealing with social problems.

At the end of each day there were small-group sessions. Each small group was comprised of a melange of all the people and positions represented at the conference. For most of the conferees the quality of contact in these groups was the high point of the day, following up a kind of mental basic training for the previous fourteen hours. It was moving to see and experience feelings of compassion and openess built up between as diverse a population as high-ranking officers, chaplains, Army and civilian psychiatrists and psychologists, enlisted men, military police, newly returned Vietnam veterans, and civilian staff members.

Experiencing Esalen at the Organizational Level*

In February, 1975, 112 computer equipment personnel representing a large corporation came to Esalen for three days to do organizational development work complemented by sports and body work aimed at enhancing employee cooperation and awareness of body energy. One of the company management personnel who coordinated the program later wrote:

"We arrived at an agreement that in order for an organization to become more aware of its problems, each individual in that organization must become more aware of his own capabilities, restrictions, and limitations. Out of this understanding grew the belief, 'if each member of the marketing team can increase his awareness of his own boundless potential by any measurable degree, then the effectiveness of the team he contributes to, has to be enhanced drastically.' We then set our theme for the rally . . . From this theme grew other slogans such as Experience Teamwork, Experience Loyalty, Experience Pride.

"Our initial fears were:

1. Spartan accommodations—60 miles from civilization, no TV, no room service, no hard liquor supply, no bars, etc.
2. Menu—no selection, cafeteria style.
3. People—none of us had ever met any of the staff—long hairs.
4. Drugs—we heard rumors and, of ignorance, chose to believe them.

"Our reflections after the experience are these:

1. Accommodations are quite nice. The lack of TV, radio, booze, room service only serves to improve one's own perception of those sounds, smells, sights which form our basic environment.
2. Wide selection of entrees is not required when the food offered is so delicious.
3. We are all people.
4. The only drug we found was love.

"In short, the environment is conducive to getting back to the basics and experiencing yourself. We feel that we successfully accomplished our goal beyond all expectations. The feedback from all those who participated is very positive and extremely gratifying to those who helped plan the rally. Every man in the force got something tangible from the experience (particularly the organizational development) and the sales force is now united toward achieving their goal as never before. Many will return on their own time."

*Reprinted from the Esalen catalog, October, 1975.

Statement of Purposes & Objectives of Esalen as an Educational Institution*

Esalen Institute is a nonprofit organization. Our primary purpose, in the broadest sense, is an educational one.

In order to support the unique educational form which we are continually developing, we require well functioning support systems (administrative, financial, legal, lodging, food preparation, etc.): these support systems maintain and enhance the basic thrust of the Esalen educational program.

One of our main contributions is in areas of knowledge and experience which ordinarily are not considered in traditional educational settings. "Confluent education," "affective education," "energy awareness," and various other types of experiential programs are a major concern at Esalen. At the same time we collaborate with established universities on educational programs. We believe that the natural environment at Esalen/Big Sur is a primary educational aspect of our programs. At Esalen, each student-seminarian finds and defines his own path to learning, taking his education from the total environment available—psychic, geographical, emotional, spiritual, and intellectual. The place and the people are the background and foreground of the ever-changing gestalt.

Our philosophy of education is simple; it is derived from the Latin meaning of the word educere—to lead out that which is within. We are not primarily interested in indoctrination or in instruction. We believe in the natural unfolding of an individual's creative abilities in a supportive, natural environment.

We see ourselves as working at being an "open educational system" responsive to changing conditions in society which are intrinsically related to changes in personal and social experience.

We CHOOSE to use our authority as directors of ESALEN INSTITUTE, BIG SUR, to create an environment that has as a FOCUS

The expanded PARTICIPATION of our managerial staff
COUPLED with a
RESPONSIBILITY for decision making,
REFLECTING
EVALUATING,
and
CHANGING

Our work, our style of life, and our form of managerial/social structure foster a unique kind of environment context for a business/community

From our two dimensional seminars and workshops we have expanded to a three dimensional "living out" of ways of being in RELATIONSHIP to our physical surroundings and to each other in a non-violating APPROACH appreciating skills and differences

We move through the re-ordering of our own structures de-structuring
re-structuring
finding ways of giving and taking support from systems foreign to our own.

The energy of our movement creates new forms of living and working in an environment still containing elements of yesterday.

We wrestle with

A Form of Esalen*

A form is 'right' when it re-presents—in a moment of time—a process of natural development.

Natural is that which structures and de-structures according to the dominant energies in the 'field of action' (however circumscribed).

'Right action' is knowing-and-doing in relationship to the dominant energies in the field.

Right action is an appreciation of these energies.

Right action is the harmonious formulation of these energies.

A form is more or less efficient, or viable or workable only in relation to a given objective.

State your objective and you begin to create a form.

When a number of individuals share a similar objective(s), their form is a basis for group action(s).

Here, at Esalen the energies of a number of individuals—our staff/community—continue to form in relation to two principal objectives:

Maintaining and enhancing a very beautiful place where people, who stay a while, may learn to care for them selves.

Evolving a form of community organization which is based on attitudes of co-operation, self-regulation, and self-responsibility.

Our work and our form of social structure are integrally related.

In the ways we regulate ourselves and co-operate with our environment and with each other we ex-press our form—Es

We are what we do.

We move within a constantly changing environment.

A WORKING community
a living organization.

ESALEN PROGRAMS

But try as she would, Butterfly Woman could not catch a single one.

March 27—April 29

Inner Road to Health

Coordinated by Al Drucker

This is a workshop for staying well and helping others to stay well. The subjects covered include many of the health approaches taught at Esalen. Past programs have included:

- Gestalt Process and Training
- Interpersonal Process Work
- Acupuncture, Rolfing, & Deep Tissue Work
- Herbal & Homeopathic Systems
- Shiatsu, Polarity, & other Massage Methods
- Nutrition, Diet, & Organic Gardening
- Music, Dance, Movement, & Energy Awareness
- Yoga, Tai Chi, Arica, & Feldenkrais Exercises
- Meditation, Chanting, & other Spiritual Practices

The workshop staff of about 15 includes outside leaders as well as resident Esalen teachers. Underlying the many approaches is a central unifying theme—that the body-mind will naturally come into a state of harmony and order when we immerse ourselves in a nourishing environment, engage in a daily physical and spiritual practice, and clear out the mental emotional and physical clutter that clogs our lives.

Most of the sessions will be experiential. The first week will begin with a purification routine and sessions concentrating on individual process work. Then we will explore ways of using our hands, minds, and bodies to promote health.

Throughout the five-week program the main emphasis will be on discovering and awakening inner resources. In this connection, regular meditation, yoga, tai chi, massage, and other quieting practices will help still the mind and relax the body, permitting new awareness and sensitivity to emerge. Our eventual goal is to integrate and make whole all the diverse aspects of our being; physical, mental, social, emotional, energetic, and spiritual. This result may not come for many years, but the process leading towards wholeness can be well on the way by the end of this workshop.

The group will meet in the Big House and many of the participants will be housed there. The Big House is a beautiful old mansion located on cypress-covered cliffs overlooking the rocky coastline of Big Sur. The workshop is offered twice yearly. Enrollment is on a first-come basis, confirmed upon receipt of the deposit. Some partial scholarships will be available and awarded on the basis of need; for this a weekly work committment is required. Our available scholarship fund is frequently exhausted as the program draws near, so applicants are encouraged to apply early by writing to Chris Price, Esalen, Big Sur, CA 93920. Also please write to us before enrolling if you have a health problem. We will try to accomodate your needs or suggest alternative possibilities.

Tuition: $1280 Deposit: $400

Please note that an advanced month-long workshop entitled "Deep Tissue Workshop" at reduced tuition cost but requiring a weekly work committment, is scheduled twice yearly. This is limited to 10 participants and requires a previous qualifying experience. This workshop is further described under June 1—30.

Weekend of April 1-3

The Gentle Art of Becoming—Together: A Workshop for Couples / David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

This workshop will focus on the reawakening and development of positive and mutual supports that are at the root of satisfying couple relationships. The emphasis will be on creating clear and truthful expressions of the essential sense of loving and personal integrity. We will look at the beliefs and habits used to celebrate or lose the state of grace and presence which allows growth and joy for our partners and ourselves through the use of intuitional sensing, risk-taking structures, and guided imagery as well as gestalt awareness techniques.
$110 per person

Mind as Healer, Mind as Slayer / Kenneth Pelletier

This weekend explores the neurophysiology of stress and human consciousness; the interaction between states of mind and physical health or illness; psychological factors in cancer and hypertension; and applications of biofeedback and meditation in self healing. Participants will engage in meditative practices, visualization techniques, and use biofeedback instruments with emphasis on health maintenance. $110

Week of April 3-8

Self-Acceptance—The Freedom To Be
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

Each of us has unique capacities to feel and express: tenderness and strength, anger and affection, autonomy and needfulness as well as compassion, humor, and wisdom. The willingness to allow the fullness and vibrance of each of these qualities determines how alive and gratified we are.

In this workshop we will focus on how we diminish or affirm these essential qualities as they are expressed through our bodies, our sexuality, our creativity, our relationships to power, our friendships, and our expectations of ourselves and others. In an atmosphere of tenderness and support, we will clarify the nature of who we are and how we can best take care of ourselves, both here and on returning home. The workshop will be grounded in the techniques of gestalt, encounter, guided fantasy, massage, bioenergetics, and journal work. $270

Varieties of Sexual Experiences & Behaviors (Observations from LSD Research) / Stanislav Grof

Using the extended cartography of the human unconscious based on observations from clinical LSD research, we will discuss the nature of sexual energy and the many specific forms it assumes. Special attention will be paid to new understanding of the psychodynamics of sexual variations, disorders, and deviations, and to transpersonal dimensions of sex (satanic, oceanic, and tantric). We will use a combination of discussion, group interaction, experiential exercises, mandala drawings, slide and film projection, and non-drug technology for altering consciousness. Participants will have the opportunity to confront their feelings about sexuality and gain deeper insight into the nature of their experiences in this area. $270

The Body & the Energy Body / George Leonard

Many ancient and modern disciplines of personal health, growth and change depend upon concepts of energy flows in and around the bodies of living things. Using techniques derived from the art of aikido, George Leonard will present his approach to the human biofield or "energy body." Through simple mental and physical exercises, participants will experience their energy bodies in interaction with nature and other people, and will practice centering and heightened awareness. They will be introduced to alternative ways of dealing with everyday life situations—especially those involving tension and expectation—and will explore ways of getting in touch with their own hidden powers. There will also be discussion of these experiences as they relate to education, sports, and social transformation. $110

The Radix Experience: A Neo-Reichian Workshop
Charles Kelley with Will David, Laura DeNuccio, Sharon Henry, & Ron Andes

The Radix experience is a direct body approach to deep emotional release, rooted in the work of Wilheim Reich and his students. By concentrating on breaking patterns of breathing and muscular tension, feeling which has been blocked by chronic unconscious patterns of muscular tension called "muscular armor," is freed. As the armor softens and the student allows emotions—fear, anger, pain—to emerge, he realizes a new capacity for trust, love, and joy.

Half of the workshop sessions will be in large group with Chuck Kelley who will present Radix group techniques. Chuck will also describe the concepts which underlie Radix and give an in-depth description of his unique training program. The other half of the sessions will be in small groups, and will include two individual Radix intensive sessions for each participant. $300

Experiencing Esalen Staff

Coordinated by
Janet Sachson Zuckerman

These workshops are designed for people who have not previously been to Esalen/Big Sur. The emphasis is on finding those approaches to self-awareness that work most effectively for the individual participant. Some of the following experiences are available at each Experiencing Esalen workshop: sensory awareness, gestalt awareness training, encounter, theater games, guided fantasy, meditation, bioenergetics, massage. There is time to experience and explore the natural magnificence of the Big Sur coast.

Rites of Passage: A Seven Day Pilgrimage Through the Big Sur Wilderness
David Schiffman & Dick Galland

The workshop is intended to create an experience which will support and intensify the simplification and cleansing necessary for a greater sense of personal clarity and grace.

We will pay attention to and take care of ourselves through a variety of disciplines and forms, including meditation, gestalt, intuitional sensing, as well as the more traditional wilderness skills. The emphasis will be on creating a richer, more harmonious balance between the mental, physical, and spiritual realms of existence.

Registration for the workshop should be at least two weeks in advance so that proper advance preparations and information can be sent regarding equipment and exercise. $220

Weekend of April 15-17

The Pragmatics of Change / Jack Gaines

This workshop is designed for those who are no longer willing to look for their identity in an endless string of shiny new possessions and who are experiencing or considering drastic changes in their lives.

We will work on getting in touch with our bodies so we can find out what our body is telling us. From there we can explore some of our conflicts between mind and body. We will examine the priorities that have been running us and refocus that energy so we are indeed the runners of our own lives. $110

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see above. $100

Celebration / Betty Fuller

This will be a weekend of movement, massage, and meditation featuring mentastics, the effortless exercise created by Dr Milton Trager. We'll experience practical, simple ways to lengthen and align our bodies, relieve our aching backs and joints and achieve greater flexibility, richer consciousness, and expanded self-image. There will be time in Big Sur simply to dance, laugh, live, love, and be. $110

Week of April 17-22

Getting in Touch—Open Gestalt / Frank Rubenfeld

Hot-seat work, massage, and group exercises will serve to facilitate participants in experiencing and expressing the alive parts of themselves. Suitable for those in the helping professions. $270

Lighten Up: Let Go—Let Be / Betty Fuller

Emmet Fox wrote: "It is your heart and the level of your consciousness that determines all." This week we'll get clear and release many of those attitudes, beliefs and postures—body, mind, spirit—which keep us stuck in self limiting and self defeating behaviors making soap operas of our lives. As we handle some of yesterday's unfinished business and tomorrow's fantasies, we'll make room today to live each moment, choosing our way as we go. In a supportive atmosphere of good will and good humor, this gestalt-psychosynthesis-encounter group also includes daily body work (feldenkrais, Trager, and massage), quiet time, music, dance, laughter, and participation in the work and play of Esalen's community. $270

Massage Intensive / The Esalen Massage Crew

For five days the members of the massage crew, each with their own unique style, will give instruction and help the group to practice basic techniques of massage upon one another: sensory awareness, deep muscular massage, joint articulation, polarity. As we learn to feel with our hands how the body and the life-force within it works, we learn to release tensions in others and to be more fully aware of our own spiritual capacity.

The group meets daily in the mineral baths. $270

"Ha ha!" cried Coyote thrusting the fireblankets in his ears and running back to Earth.

Weekend of April 22-24

Gestalt Theater / John Argue

Definition: Gestalt theater is a dramatization of the processes of consciousness in now time, whereas psychodrama is a dramatization of crucial episodes in one's personal history.

We will use gestalt to generate improvisations for a theater of self-presentation that truly celebrates and educates in the art of being human.

Work will be based on each person's everyday process, dreams, fantasies, and relationships.

This group is for people who wish to learn theatrical uses of gestalt language and process as a means of dealing creatively with everyday life. It is open to anyone and I want especially to work with teachers, helpers, and healers. $110

Sound & Movement / David Mancini & The Esalen Musicians

If all sound is composed primarily of movement, in the form of waves, then movement must possess sound and the qualities of sound vibration. We will use music, massage, dance, theater, sonic walks, deep relaxation, and disco to explore our own connections to sound vibration and body movement. In an attempt to deal with the fragmentation of modern life we will look into the tapestry of sound vibrations as they overlap and mingle, cross and merge, hopefully achieving a new vision of life as more connected, more unified, more related, and entwined. $110

Contact with Earth / The Esalen Garden Crew

This is a workshop of spiritual and body communication with plants and our EARTH through practical learning experience.

The days will be spent in our vegetable garden, where we will focus our energy on daily gardening activities integrated with meditation, body awareness and informative discussions on topics such as companion planting, composting methods, our soil, and herbs.

Evenings will be devoted to body movement, meditations, guided fantasy, and discussion. $110

Experiencing Esalen—Part II / Janet Sachson Zuckerman

During the past several years the Experiencing Esalen workshops have offered people an opportunity to sample, taste, and touch on a variety of nourishing and unique experiences intrinsic to Esalen.

Now for the first time we have designed a weekend to continue this process—to bring you MORE.

Prerequisite for this weekend is that you have already taken a regular Experiencing Esalen workshop.

We will focus on allowing feelings to be opened up and explored. $100

Week of April 24 - 29

Put Your Memories, Fantasies & Dreams to Work For You: A Reichian / Gestalt Approach to Energy Release
Joan Fiore

"To understand is to tremble. To recollect is to reenter and be riven."
—Harold Brodkey

This workshop focuses on releasing the energy locked in our memories, fantasies, and dreams so that this energy can be made available for present relationships and life situations in a way that makes our existence in the present less encumbered by unfinished business of the past as well as self-programmed, self-fulfilling prophecies of doom for the future. First priority is on intensive intrapersonal work in a supportive group setting. There will also be opportunities to explore the nature of our interpersonal relating through group interactions. $270

You & Universal Motion / Robert Nadeau

The physical conscious system operates in direct relationship to a larger energy activity or universal motion. It is important to recognize this activity as a "friend" and learn to work in harmony with it. We will explore energy and our "marriage" with it through meditation, centering, and body movement. $270

Advanced Massage Week / The Esalen Massage Crew

The soothing release of everyday tensions is really only the beginning of the sensations and revelations possible through massage. The release of chronic energy blocks can produce dramatic results in our physical and emotional well-being; awarenesses and memories may be triggered which begin a process that goes far beyond the massage itself. The crew would like to demonstrate and practice together some of our own explorations in massage and manipulation of the energy-bodies and to share our experiences of the sometimes surprising results of these techniques. $270

Getting Out of Your Trap / Neil Lamper

"Gestalt is a way of life. Participants in this workshop can expect to experience their here-and-now and discuss their what-and-how. I am interested in people learning how to use their what—at work, play, in families, couples, and as singles. At times our entire group will be active and at times one person will wrestle with the impasse. I cannot force, will not coerce and have no neat package of salvation. People maintain their own momentum, work in thier own way. I invite people to this workshop who want to experience Esalen and themselves anew and who expect to express this in their lives." $270

Weekend of April 29 - May 1

Exploring Self-Acceptance
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

The focus of this workshop is the creation of a more positive and open-ended self concept. Through the use of structured risk-taking situations, gestalt, role-playing, fantasy, and encounter techniques, participants can accept or transcend the self-imposed boundaries from which they approach the world. Emphasis is on searching out unique personality strengths, individual capacities, and latent powers as a means of achieving productive, creative functioning. $110

The Kiva: Experiment in Male Friendship
Ed Maupin & Bill Stewart

The more comfortable men are with radical non-sexual intimacy with other men, the more easily their energy flow can result in unified action and creativity. In some traditional societies the kiva is a lodge in which men establish strong ties, develop skills and are initiated into the mysteries. In this workshop the mysteries include working through the anxieties about energy flow between men and learning to attend to our dreams as meaningful communications from deeper levels of the self. $110

Meltingintwone / Bernard Gunther

Often we have sex when what we are really seeking is an open closeness, caring, energy sharing to quiet an intense underlying sense of tension, anxiety, emptyness, and separation. Intimate relationships are most rewarding when they allow for appropriate times of individuality and unity, that are not only pleasurable but continually new and renewing. In this workshop for couples we will move from the physical mundane to a higher plane of consciousness, intimacy, and awareness. In this experience we will explore transmutation, mutual meditation, tantric yoga, and nonverbal communication, moving from separation and intensity toward union and ecstatic bliss. $110

Body Awareness & Sensuality / Barbara Clemans

"Words were invented by man, the body and feelings are a creation of God" . . . Enjoy the only home you have—your body—tune your instrument to feel and experience the pleasures of creation. Know what it is to breathe completely, taste fully and move with total presence. We will utilize all the tools of awakening the senses: breathing, tasting, stretching, meditating, relaxation, massage, music, feldenkrais, integration, expressive movement, sound and laughter. Beginners are welcome. $110

The Esalen Work-Study Program

In the process of becoming educated, we are taught that it is more important to be involved with the outside world than with our Selves. We are taught to become Ego-involved—involved with manipulating things and people. We are taught to experience our selves primarily in relation to others; we lose touch with our essence.

From this perspective, we offer an opportunity to return to our Selves within the working context of the Esalen community. Our faculty for this program is our environment—staff—community.

Learning/dis-covering the use of your own energy in work . . .
For your SELF.
Living together (close to others) operatively and co-operatively in a unique, high intensity environment.
Contact/communication with the people of Esalen via group work and in day-to-day Esalen happenings.
An opportunity for:
SELF-regulation
SELF-examination
SELF-contemplation
and if you choose
SELF-reevaluation
Facilitated by removal from your ordinary living context.

Participants make a commitment to work 32 hours per week at such jobs as gardening, maintenance, office, kitchen duties, etc. Scheduling consideration is given to the community labor needs and work assignments are made according to these requirements. (Flexibility is one of the watchwords of life at Esalen). The Work-Study program is for those who are interested in immersion in the total environment of Esalen/Big Sur. It is a work-oriented program (emotionally and physically) and only rarely is it restful. There will be a coming together in the evenings to share—contact—play/alone-together.

Accommodations are shared with up to 3 persons in a room. The program lasts 28 days; four weeks and four weekends at a basic cost of $350. Depending on your work schedule, weekend workshops may be available for an additional fee. Professional services such as massage and rolfing are available at staff rates. Arrangements are made through the office.

It is possible to be in the work-study program up to three months, by invitation, after the first month.

Available dates:
February 25—March 27; March 27—April 24; April 24—May 22; May 22—June 19; June 19—July 17; July 17—August 14; August 14—September 11; September 11—October 9.

If interested, please apply as early as possible to Work-Study program, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920. Only a limited number of applicants are accepted.

Dear Reservations,

I'm really disappointed that Oct. 3-31 is filled. Although the waiting list is long, please add my name. Perhaps there will be a mass flu epidemic and I'll be the only survivor. As my mother always said "if you can't hope for good news, you might as well hope for the worse." – Tear up the check when it's obvious that all is lost as I am, at present, unable to come at an alternative date.

I might suggest, in the interests of kindness, that in the future you send applications which have updated available dates, as considerable planning went into this incompletted gestalt. The time elapsing between getting the application and applying was minimal.

Sincerely,
Susan

Dear Beverly,

Well, a month has gone by – and I still feel the same about my month as when I left. Ever cautious, I thought perhaps with time my feelings might change. It was the best month of my life. I'm embarrassed when I say it. I keep rummaging around thinking surely at some time I must have felt better; after all, I hardly cared for one of my roommates and shredding lettuce is not something I'd like to do all my life. Yet being here isn't that bad.

Actually, John and I are getting on better than before because I've stopped blaming him for my unhappiness. I have been trying to do some things just for me and haven't felt guilty about it as I had before. Still, I decided to look for part-time work, and when after writing, calling and interviewing with some 37 different organizations without one taker, I really felt bad. To top the whole thing off, I realized I wasn't even sure I wanted to work. Again, not knowing what I really want worries me, and I know about staying with the confusion.

Honestly, I'm like Bob with his Babas except that deep down I've found that it's true. I also think that down deep I really would like to live alone, but I won't. I wonder how I'd make a living or if it's not just because I'm schizoid and have difficulty making a deep human relationship. What I do know is that my back is killing me – something I never really noticed before until I'd finally get a headache – and I'm crying again. Oh well, sometimes I have good dreams about being there with you all. I think of you all often. Perhaps someday I'll get in my car and just keep driving until I visit with you again.

John and the boys managed very well while I was gone, as much as John would like me to think otherwise. The boys put on weight. Clyde tells me he's addicted to T.V. dinners and Ron complains that I don't do the wash on Saturdays the way his father does. They're all complaining that ever since I went to that place I'm not the same old Mom. Frankly, I don't see that anything much has changed except I know now there is a different way to live and a place that I feel good at.

So, will be thinking of you.

Love,
Susan

South Coast Center

The living center is slowly evolving into a participatory environment
vital
changing
designing, redesigning inner and outer space with residents responsible for their own evolution.

The South Coast Center, located a mile and a half north of Esalen, is a living center for people who would like to be in contact with Esalen and its facilities but who are not interested in an intensive workshop program. Studios (room, balcony, and bath) are available for $350 per month. A monthly meal ticket may be purchased at Esalen for $200 and residents may set up light cooking facilities in their rooms for preparing their own meals. As part of our program of integrating residents into the working community, South Coast residents are asked to contribute eight hours per week of work to the community. In addition, due to the large number of people who want to be at South Coast, we have put a limit of three months on all South Coast residencies. South Coast studios may be reserved through the Esalen/Big Sur office.

Ongoing Residence Program

Offered from September through May, the Ongoing Residential Program is designed for those who would like to have time and space in the Esalen environment for an intensive workshop program over a long term. A minimum stay: 26 days (or four "weeks" and three weekends).

Participants may select any of the five-day workshops offered during their stay. Weekend workshops are available at special prices. Some programs are cancelled, so second choices are advised. Some special staff programs will also be open to residents. The cost is $960 per 26-day period.

Ways of Being at Esalen

Sleeping Bag Group Weekends

The sleeping bag group is another way of being at Esalen—it has a life of its own.

Experience the place—with its hidden moments of beauty and surprise, the baths, the people, YOU. Members of the staff will accompany and share with you some of what they have learned living here at Esalen.

These weekends are offered from September through May. The charge is $60 per person for 10-14 people. You will be living together in one room. Bring your sleeping bags. Meals are provided starting Friday dinner through Sunday lunch. Send inquiries to Janet Zuckerman, Sleeping Bag Groups, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

Week of May 1-6

Growth Through Risk-Taking
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

This workshop provides the opportunity for the group members to come to terms with the definitions by which they live. Through a series of structured risk-taking situations, the use of gestalt, role playing, fantasy, and encounter techniques, the participants can accept or transcend the boundaries from which they approach the world. Emphasis will be placed on the expression of anger, affection, sexuality, and the transcending of roles. This workshop is especially useful for people who have had previous encounter experience. $270

The Kiva: Experiment in Male Friendship
Ed Maupin & Bill Stewart

For workshop description see April 29—May 1. $270

Energy Loves Bliss / Bernard Gunther

We are all fields of energy living in an energy field. Our potential is limitless, yet we frequently find ourselves operating in fatigue and limitation. This damming of the Self is caused by excessive tension, shallow breathing, toxic relationships, and nonfocused thought, which rob the organism of vitality and pleasure. How to tap this infinite supply of energy, how to rechannel and raise sexual energy, and how to apply this knowledge in everyday activity will be the task of this seminar. In this work we will explore aspects of hypnosis, yoga, gestalt, psychosynthesis, and color sound chakra meditation to experience more fully our flow of vital and psychic energy. $270

Weekend of May 6-8

Steps to an Ecology of Mind / Gregory Bateson

In the last twenty years, the theoretical advances in cybernetics and advances in the study of personal interaction have led to new ways of looking at the living world, including everything from biology to poetry and politics. The workshop will explore these ways of perceiving and thinking. $110

Gestalt Awareness / Janet Lederman

Lecture / Demonstration / Training
Focus: Perception / Reception / Deception $110

Awareness Through Movement:
The Feldenkrais Method / Ruth Alon

This workshop is for people who are willing to introduce awareness through expanded patterns of movement for improving their functioning in life.

Exploring processes of movement, we gradually experience a wide variety of unused potential, while guided to meditate on the subtle qualities of our inner dynamics. Our vocabulary of possibilities widens together with our self image.

We relearn natural coordination and fluency, reviewing the primal evolution of the developing baby.

The style of pleasant effortless movement in the game of observed experiments, opens us to a nurturing attitude towards ourselves and our growth.

The new kinesthetic freedom creates space for transformed states of mind. $110

Birth, Sex, & Death: Contemporary Revolution in Medicine & Society / Coordinated by Stanislav Grof

Under the direction of Stanislav Grof, Esalen is gathering 30 faculty members to offer over 150 curriculum hours of didactic and experiential sessions exploring three basic aspects of human existence. The resources within the group of the participants will be combined with those of guest faculty to study new approaches to birth, sex, and death, as well as the biological, psychological, philosophical, and spiritual significance of these areas. The material presented during this workshop will fall into four major thematic groups:

I. New Developments in Medicine Regarding Pregnancy, Birth, Sex, Terminal Disease, Aging, and Death.

The approaches explored in this context will involve comprehensive work with couples expecting a child; techniques of delivery respecting emotional needs of the mother, child, and father; recent developments in treatment of sexual disorders; complex therapy of cancer; a program for revitalization of the aging; and work with the dying.

II. Ancient and Modern Insights into the Psychological Philosophical, and Spiritual Significance of Birth, Sex, and Death.

The frameworks examined in this seminar will range from shamanic practices, rites of passage of various cultures, ancient temple mysteries and oriental spiritual systems to psychedelic approaches. A series of illustrated lectures will focus on the mythological aspects of the death-rebirth process.

III. Practices Utilizing the Healing Potential of the Birth Experience and the Death-Rebirth Process.

The theory and practice of psychedelic use will be presented in a series of illustrated lectures and discussions. The approaches explored both theoretically and experientially will include Jean Houston's "mind games," R D Laing's birth techniques, and Leonard Orr's rebirthing process.

IV. Self-Exploration and Group Process.

During their stay participants will have the opportunity for self-exploration in sessions of gestalt practice, psychosynthesis, Dora Kalff's therapeutic sand-play, and encounter. Non-drug technology will be available on a continuous basis.

This workshop will take place in the Esalen Study Center, an old Big Sur mansion located on cypress covered cliffs overlooking the Pacific Ocean. The learning format will combine didactic seminars, illustrated lectures, experiential sessions, group process, individual help in self-exploration, and selected film material.

The program is limited to 30 participants selected from applicants. The fee is $1150 including room and board. Some working scholarships are available to students on the basis of need. Scholarship forms can be obtained from Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

If you wish to enroll in the program, send a letter of biographical information to Stanislav Grof, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.

Gestalt Practice / Richard & Christine Price

Perfect like Great Space
the Way has nothing lacking, nothing in excess.
Truly because of our accepting and rejecting
We have not the suchness of things.
—Sengtsan (3rd Zen Patriarch)

What is, is.
—Fritz Perls

Gestalt practice is a form—nonanalytic, noncoercive, nonjudgmental—evolving out of the work of Fritz Perls, relating that work to ways of personal clearing and development both ancient and modern. To the extent that awareness is made primary relative to action, gestalt practice has a strong relationship to some forms of meditation and visualization. In that emotional and energetic release and rebalancing are allowed and encouraged, the relation to some Reichian work is close.

The emphasis is *intra*personal rather than *inter*personal. Those who primarily wish interpersonal work are advised to attend an encounter rather than a gestalt group.

Participants are explicitly not "patients" but persons consenting actively to work (or play) in awareness. The "leader" functions to reflect, clarify, and flow with whatever emerges in this process. The aim is unfoldment, wholeness, growth rather than "adjustment," "cure," or "accomplishment."

Suggested reading: Gestalt Therapy Verbatim (Perls); Tao Te Ching (Lao Tzu); Cutting Through Spiritual Materialism (Chogyam Trungpa); The Power of Mindfulness (Nyanponika Thera); Exploring the Crack in the Cosmic Egg (J C Pearce); Education in Feeling and Purpose (Kelley). $270

Imagination, Courage & Survival / John & Toni Lilly

In this workshop we will delve into the survival, the imagination and the courage of each member of the group. Through participation of each member of the group we will examine our basic beliefs about the limits of imagination, the limits of courage and the necessities of our survival in the human consensus reality in the ecology of the planet Earth. One possible orientation of the participation will involve problems of our assumptions about other species, especially dolphins and whales. The imagined preeminence of the human species upon this planet will be analyzed in the light of recent events. The individual survival of each member of the group and what he or she believes to be true in this area will be shared with the group. Various exercises to elicit the truth of self will be taught. The realization of the total interdependence of all life on the planet Earth will be the backdrop, the context in which the individual survival of each member of the group will be dealt with. The open-minded, open-ended nature of the human mind limited only by its own repertory of beliefs and assumptions will be presented and alternatives to the current beliefs developed. $300

Birth—Rebirth / Andrew Feldmar & Joyce Frazee

"After all, it is no more surprising to be born twice than it is to be born once."
—Voltaire

Birth simulation or simply "birthing" was first developed by Elizabeth Fehr in New York. She noticed the correlation between adult emotional patterns and the kind of birth one suffered. Birthing attempts to re-enact the original birth.

Otto Rank in 1929 observed that all successful therapy "finally turns out to be a belated accomplishment of the incompleted mastery of the birth trauma." Not until recently has this view gained support and acceptance as a result of Stan Grof's LSD research, Frederick Leboyer, Birth Without Violence and Laing's Facts of Life.

Using gestalt, bioenergetics, psychosynthesis, fantasy, art, dreams, and birthing, we will pay passionate attention to the origins of who we are now and will discover that the process of rebirth gives us a fresh start, an opportunity to change. $110

Week of May 15·20

Take a Second Look at Yourself / Janet Sachson Zuckerman

We will focus on taking a good look at what is going on behind the masks we wear and what is underneath the expressions we put on our faces to confront the world. "Who are you?" and "Who do you pretend to be?" are the polarities we will be working with. Every one of us has a great deal of unused potential and I see the group experience as a safe place to begin to tap into this energy. This week will be entirely experiential using mirrors, gestalt, soft-encounter, and sensory awareness. $270

Exploration & Integration / Arthur & Janica Fox

Come and experience encounter, gestalt, sensory awareness, and massage surrounded by the richness of Big Sur and the Esalen grounds. We will explore ways of retaining and integrating our experiences so that we have access to them not just at Esalen, but also when we return home. $270

God, Sexual Energy & Your Body / Gabrielle Roth

"When sex comes from the physical center, it is a necessity. When it comes from the mental center, it is a fantasy. When sex comes from the heart center, it is a deep, total, and profound experience of our own divinity. Sex is meaningless without the heart."

The purpose of this workshop is to heal the separation between our divinity and our sexuality as it exists in our consciousness, attitudes and actions. This weekend will include breathing, movement, music, sound and massage meditation. We will come together to dance, to sing, to worship, to cry—to celebrate our vulnerability and our strength, our heights and our depths. Gabrielle will support us in going within ourselves to rediscover the magnitude of our own heart energy, thus infusing our sexuality, and our entire life experience, with depth and purpose. $110

Selective Awareness: Mind-Body Relationships in Psychosomatic Medicine / Emmett Miller

When we teach ourselves to act in response to our internal as well as external environment, most of our difficulties (symptoms, unwanted emotions, maladaptive habits) can be eased. The ability to resolve personal blocks, develop increased sensitivity, heighten awareness, and produce desirable states of consciousness lies within each of us. Our processing of the world and our communicating with it proceeds throughout varying stages of higher and lower energy; as the mind-body becomes attuned, it acts in accord with its changing experience. In this workshop we will apply the principles of selective awareness and self-hypnosis to learn to expand awareness and to adjust to changing experiences. $110

Opening the Feelings

RADIX NEO-REICHIAN WORKSHOPS (formerly Interscience Workshops)

To grow in the capacity to experience and express deep feeling, to connect up with oneself, and to contact others is the aim of this series of workshops which employ neo-Reichian techniques of emotional release. The Radix Intensive, a period of individual work within a small group setting, is practiced by Charles and Erica Kelley and their staff at the Radix Work Shop. The Intensive, like other neo-Reichian techniques used in these workshops, grew from the discovery by Charles Kelley's teacher, Wilhelm Reich, of the way in which feeling is rooted in the flow of energy in the body, and is blocked by chronic muscular contractions which Reich called the muscular armor. Freeing the armor enables the student to open feeling that is buried and to soften and free feeling that is too strong and has been held in for fear of explosion.

In these workshops armor is softened by simultaneous work on the character and body, using techniques not only from Reich, but also from bioenergetics, sensory awareness, and other body-oriented approaches. Groups will be kept small—never more than eight per leader—so that significant individual attention can be given. Grief or pain, fear, and rage that have been held in since childhood emerge in these workshops. As the participant accepts and works through these negative feelings, he/she discovers a new capacity for pleasure, trust, and love. In time the sexual experience changes profoundly as tender and sexual feelings for the mate intensify and merge.

Working on Open Marriage / Walt & Maurica Anderson

Marriage is whatever you make it, and can be a great resource for personal growth. In the workshop we will share experiences, work on individual problems, and consider some humanistic guidelines for changing relationships to meet the needs of changing people. Attendance by both partners is recommended but not required.
$110 per person

Introduction to Shiatsu Massage / Patricia Caldwell

Shiatsu is the oriental art in which the hands are used to apply pressure to points on the body. Emphasis will be on self-awareness for both the receiver and the giver, providing the experience of expanding shiatsu practice into one's life as the experience of moving in the world without effort, and with the flow. A working knowledge of shiatsu in both theory and practice will be given. $110 per person

Exploring Dimensions of Movement
Joan Erikson & Wendy Palmer

Dance as an intrinsic aspect of everyday life will be the focus of this experience. Movement arising from a physical and psychic center can transform the mundane into the ritualized transcendence of the essential qualities of dance and form.

We will explore how these potentials which are already there, given and available to all—children, adults, and the elderly—can be heightened, expanding awareness and openness to the dimensions of the self.

Deep Tissue Workshop / Al Drucker

A training workshop for 8 to 10 participants concentrating on deep tissue work and acupuncture principles. Classes will meet 4 days per week and include theory and personalized instruction in manipulative work. One day per week will be devoted to working in the garden, kitchen, or other Esalen department. There will be daily tai chi sessions. Gestalt and other process sessions will be scheduled informally in the evenings as group or individual need for process work arises. Any ongoing evening and early morning special events at Esalen, such as feldenkrais or yoga classes, will be open to workshop members. Since weekends are free, regularly scheduled weekend brochure programs can be attended for the catalog price minus $50. Classes will be held in Fritz's house high on the hill overlooking the baths and the Big Sur coastline.

This is an advanced workshop providing thorough grounding in all aspects of deep tissue massage and restructuring with emphasis on acupuncture points, meridians and energy balance. It is open to anyone having a previous qualifying experience such as participants in the Inner Road to Health workshops, medical professionals, massage practitioners, etc. The intent is not to train for a new profession based on this work, but to synthesize and incorporate the skills learned here with already established health and healing practices.

The total fee of $800 covers tuition, shared accomodations two to a room at the South Coast Center and meals for the month. To register send a $200 deposit, your name, address, phone number, and a note giving previous experience. Mail to Chris Price, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920. Acceptance is on a first-come basis. In case of non-acceptance the deposit will be returned in full.

Personal Style & Personal Gestalt / Jack Downing

Each of us has our own individual life style, our personal gestalt characterizing each phase of our life. We can be aware of the way movement relates to interpersonal relationship, of how body chemistry determines our life goals. Drawing our own major life portrait will be the object of this workshop, using techniques newly invented for this purpose, as well as traditional methods such as behavioral feedback, group interaction, and gestalt uncovering and integrating methods. In order that the group can develop as fast as possible, please come only if you have had previous group experience. $300

Psychosynthesis: Choosing to Change / Ann Gila Russell

At the core of the process of change is discovering that something new is trying to emerge and choosing to integrate this new energy into our daily lives. Frequently, in the process there are parts of us that do not nourish change. They are resistant, retarding movement towards what is emerging. This program will combine individual work within the group setting and discussion of principles and concepts inherent in nourishing the process of change. Our work together will stress learning to allow change by exploring the implications of our choices and how they catalyze or retard the expression of our emerging self. $270

Growing Up Right: A Workshop for Human Plants
Betty Fuller

Many of us carry around enormous burdens of regret, resentment, incomplete cycles and other unfinished business from yesterday which turn today's life into a soap opera—tiring and trying. Frequently we made decisions "back then" which determine not only today's outlook but the choices we make about tomorrow's possibilities. This intensive, experiential workshop is designed to lighten the load—"empty the cup"—by completing the past and clearing space to create purposeful, joyful, and satisfying living here/now. Participants function solo, in dyads and in large and small groups using art, theater games, integrative movement work (feldenkrais and other), humor, fantasy, concentration and meditation exercises, sharing, gestalt awareness training and elements from encounter and psychosynthesis. $270

Weekend of June 10-12

Tuning In / Janet Sachson Zuckerman

Many of us are operating as tape recorders. We switch on in the morning at "high" or "low" speed and play our tapes in response to the buttons being pushed by people or events. We are vaguely aware that life seems repetitive, or dull, that time is often something to be gotten through instead of savored, but this awareness is lost in the "noise" and business of day to day living.

This weekend will be devoted to bringing our attention to what we are doing—how we are really acting and thinking. Once we are aware of our tapes, we can go off automatic and begin to enjoy our interactions with one another. We will be using gestalt process, encounter, sensory awareness, and other techniques to tune in to ourselves and each other. $110

The Energetic Foreground: A Bioenergetic-Gestalt Synthesis
Alan Schwartz

Working with the energetic foreground synthesizes the philosophies of bioenergetic analysis and gestalt. The central dynamic of the organism is the energy that makes up the whole person. Energy flow is body flow, emotional flow, and mental flow. Energy is movement. When such movement is blocked on any of the above levels, the organism cannot function to nourish the person towards a mature sense of self. This workshop will move in the direction of such awareness by providing participants an opportunity to work and play through energy blocks, concentrating on those which restrict the expression of the body. This release can provide the insight necessary for participants to glimpse a more total sense of self. $270

Group Process for Professionals / John Heider

This workshop will explore the role of the group leader. Experiential work will be followed by discussion of what the leader has done and how he has done it. Emphasis will be placed on:

- formation of the group field
- how to follow individual process
- how to cope with catharsis
- how to ground the group
- maintenance of leader's sanity $300

Weekend of June 17-19

The Innerspaces of Running / Mike Spino

Focusing on the running experience, this workshop will introduce a holistic method of mind/body development. Each participant will be taught various running gaits and tempos, muscle/skeletal exercises, breathing techniques, and the philosophy and lore related to optimum physical fitness. There will be special emphasis on guided fantasy, inner space development, and creativity in quest for extraordinary experiences. Each person will receive an individual consultation and have the opportunity to continue towards personal goals on an ongoing basis. $110

Week of June 19-24

An Integrative Approach to Group Process & Individual Growth / A Workshop for Professional Development / David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

The focus of this workshop will be on learning to recognize and create the most effective entry points for intensive work with individuals as well as groups.

From a psychosynthetic perspective we will examine methods and strategies used in existing disciplines such as gestalt, bioenergetics, encounter, sensory awareness t'ai chi, and meditation. Participants will have the opportunity to clarify and develop their own ability, style, and artfulness. Group members will be given the opportunity to lead the group and receive evaluation, support, and video tape feedback.

We will touch on some of the following themes: How to witness pain without becoming it; intuitional development, auric reading, and their applications; the use of sound, imagery, and visualization for clarity and nourishment; creative risk-taking; and journal work for on-going growth and clarity. $290

God, Sexual Energy & Your Body / Gabrielle Roth

For workshop description see May 20–22 $290

Yoga, Meditation, Movement, Massage Deborah Sulochana Medow

Through the regular practice of healing asanas and integrative movement, hatha yoga seeks to develop and maintain awareness of self. Meditation, a vehicle for inwardly focusing this awareness, quiets the mind and allows the spirit to grow and flower. The outward expression of this self awareness is movement: how we move in this world reflects who we are and how we feel about ourselves. Free form movement becomes a way to explore and creatively expand our ways of being. Massage is a means by which aware individuals can share with each other and more fully experience each other. In this workshop, we will use yoga, meditation, movement, and massage to explore and expand our ways of feeling and seeing, relating, and being. $290

Gestalt & Meditation / Stella Resnick

Meditation helps to develop the stillness of mind and the power of concentration to use gestalt awareness process more effectively.

This workshop will focus on love, pleasure, and higher consciousness and is particularly recommended for people who have had experience with gestalt and are interested in expanding their sense of the spiritual or for people in spiritual practices who want to move with gestalt to increase primal awareness. $290

The Fate of Adventure in the Modern World– A Gestalt of Nature & Psyche / Michael Tobias

This workshop will explore our immense, inner relationship to nature, utilizing the Esalen landscape, an award winning mountaineering documentary, slides (from Bangladesh, Bhutan, Tibet, the Alps, the Rockies, Sierra, and the Soviet Union), and an informal combination of discussion, group movement interaction and analysis, relying on a variety of visionary moments and writings from history. Much of our time will be spent outdoors, wandering along the ocean and doing 'bouldering process exercises.' The seminar will focus in on a study of Mountain Aesthetics and should provide an intense and novel experience for everyone who loves the 'outside.' $120

Centering in Action / Bob Kriegel

The purpose of this workshop is to show that there is nothing mysterious, mystical, or devotional about centering—the process of tuning into that place of inner strength and wisdom from which we experience more of our possibilities and potential.

To experience centering we will play active games of all types, invent new ones, and practice exercises from yoga, aikido, t'ai chi, and sensory awareness.

We will use gestalt awareness, visualization, and psychosynthesis techniques to bring the insights gained in these activities to a more conscious level and to transfer them into our daily lives. $120

Tai Chi Chih / Catherine Elber

Tai Chi Chih is an ancient secret of china's imperial class which was first presented to the public three years ago. It is easier than Tai Chi Chuan and its nineteen gentle movements allow one to connect with his/her own life force. This practice provides the peaceful serenity of meditation while cultivating body, mind, and soul. The inner calmness developed through this practice can have a deep effect on your life. $120

Introduction to Gestalt Practice / Joan Fiore

After introducing the "language" of gestalt and various gestalt experiments in breath, body, and feeling awareness, this workshop concentrates on providing the opportunity for intensive individual gestalt work in a supportive group setting. Suitable for novices as well as veterans. $120

Week of June 26 - July 1

A Gateway—Core-Energetics / Alexis Johnson

This is a workshop for spiritual seekers who have found that their own fulfillment comes from owning their negatives, claiming their joy and greatness and using their bodies . . . and want to do more of all of these. Our tools will range from the movement associated with bio-energetics to meditation. Each participant will have an individual session with the leader within the context of the group work; this work will be either conceptual, energetical, or both. $290

Gestalt as Higher Consciousness / Donald Barenfeld

Gestalt will be used as the basic framework for this workshop. Meditation, sound vibration, fantasy, and body/energy work will be integrated to shift our ordinary consciousness to a higher, more expanded level that will permit perspective change from the psychological to 4th chakra heart level energy. We will learn to mobilize and direct this creative power and thereby transform our vision of the world. $290

You & Universal Motion / Robert Nadeau

The Feldenkrais Method: A Psycho-physical Education Through Body Movements Judith Stransky

Dr Moshe Feldenkrais has originated and developed an impressive method of re-educating the total being and tapping our unused potential through the means of body exercises and movement that lead to an expansion of awareness, and to a body-mind oriented to, and capable of, a greater range of experience. The exercises also involve integration of the physical and the mental, release of fixed habits that restrict us, differentiation of parts of the body, relaxation and balance, improvement in alignment, and lead to a suppleness beyond what one would believe is possible. The approach is through pleasure, not strain, combined with breathing techniques. $120

Body Awareness & Sensuality / Barbara Clemans

For workshop description see April 29—May 1. $120

Week of July 3 - 8

Woman to Woman / Man to Man Dee Mundschenk David Schiffman

"The woman that most needs liberating is the woman in every man, and the man that most needs liberating is the man in every woman."
—Rev William Sloan Coffin

Taking advantage of the natural affinity and support that people of the same sex can afford one another, the men and women in this workshop will meet separately as well as together. We will create an ambience of tenderness and support to provide opportunities to clarify the nature of who we are as men in the absence of women and who we are as women in the absence of men and what happens when we come together. The themes we will explore are our sexuality, our friendships, our body images, our coupling, our creativity, our relationship to power, our expectations of each other. The workshop will be grounded in the techniques of gestalt, encounter, fantasy, massage, and bioenergetics. $290

Growing Up Right: A Workshop for Human Plants Betty Fuller

For workshop description see June 5—10. $290

Opening to Your Inner Self Through Body-Energetics Hector Prestera

For workshop description see June 10—12. $290

Self Re-parenting / Joan Fiore

This workshop focuses on finding and opening paths in the present that allow us to re-turn to places in the past where we got stuck. Rather than acting out and cutting off these experiences from awareness, we re-awaken and act through the old horror shows, giving ourselves a new opportunity to clean up the unfinished business of early life that controls and rips off our aliveness and our power in the here and now. Experiments progress from re-wombing to re-birthing to re-infanting to re-adolescing to re-owning and replenishing as we go along. Modes of exploring are drawn from gestalt practice, neo-Reichian energy release, primal work, family work, guided fantasy, and Fiore re-parenting methods. Take your favorite cuddly toy, security blanket, or other such pacifier out of hiding and bring it along. $290

Weekend of July 8-10

Men in a Changing World / Janet Lederman

Through new and perhaps unfamiliar behaviors and responses we may experience greater flexibility and harmony in being with ourselves and in relating to a changing world. $120

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 15. $110

Growing Up Right: A Workshop for Human Plants
Betty Fuller

For workshop description see June 5–10. $120

Selective Awareness, Self-Hypnosis & Movement
Emmett & Nitza Miller

To us, our practice is a means for capturing the spirit and momentum of enjoyable experiences in the past and projecting them into the future. Further, it allows us to trace maladaptive patterns—symptoms, habits, emotions, and blocks—to their source, as far back as infancy or further, and extinguish them.

Participants will learn to enter and use the hypnotic state for relaxation, imagery, and age regression. Movement will be used to help intensify emotional experiences, to transmit desirable self-concepts to the body. Of special interest will be multiple experiences of going from a desirable mental image in hypnosis directly into a full movement experience, without pausing at the "waking" level. $120

Week of July 10-15

Contact, Communication & Relationship
Julian & Beverly Silverman

For workshop description see June 12–17. $290

Massage Intensive / The Esalen Massage Crew

For workshop description see April 17–22. $290

Health Whole Holy / Bernard Gunther

We are all almost unlimited sources of joyous energy; we squander many of these resources. Blocked by fear, habit, and limitation, we dam ourselves in destructive energy expression: various forms of mental-physical-emotional imbalance. In this workshop we will explore our behavior patterns through the use of breathing, guided fantasies, awareness, and hypnosis. Special emphasis will be placed on the energy centers (chakras) as a system for self regulation, wholeness, and health. The experience will be a synthesis of gestalt, yoga, psychosynthesis, and movement with emphasis on a practical individual program of these methods that can be used in daily life. $290

Future Workshop Announcements

Workshops of more than one week require special planning for participants. Whenever possible we will announce such workshops well in advance. More detailed descriptions—and any changes—will appear in the catalog covering the period in which the workshop is scheduled.

October 2—November 4

Inner Road to Health—
Approaches to Natural Healing & Self-Healing

This is a five week workshop with Al Drucker, Dee Mundschenk, David Schiffman, and Esalen staff. It includes both didactic and experiential sessions providing an in-depth introduction to many wholistic health practices, such as acupuncture, rolfing, massage, herbal and homeopathic systems, shiatsu, nutrition, fasting, yoga, tai chi, and meditation. Evenings, throughout the month, will focus on individual and inter-personal process work, based on gestalt and psychosynthesis approaches.

September 4—30

Ancient Maps of Consciousness
& Modern Approaches to Self-Exploration
Co-ordinated by Rick Tarnas & Stanislav Grof

A four-week interdisciplinary program exploring the relevance of ancient cartographies of consciousness for the development of self-awareness and their relation to recent developments in psychology and psychotherapy. Evenings will be generally devoted to didactic seminars, lectures, and discussions, while daytime sessions will be conducted by Esalen faculty members guiding participants in various experiential approaches to personal growth. The material presented in this workshop will fall into four major thematic groups:

I. Ancient Maps of Consciousness. The ancient systems of thought covered in this workshop will include astrology, alchemy, Kabbala, Tarot cards, Indian spiritual practices, and the books of the dead (Egyptian, Tibetan, and Ars Moriendi). We will discuss the relevance of these systems as cartographies of personal development and of the spiritual journey.

II. Modern Psychotherapeutic Techniques. We will explore theoretically and experientially several modern growth methods such as gestalt practice, psychosynthesis, encounter, Reichian, and neo-Reichian approaches, Jungian psychology, and Dora Kalff's sandplay.

III. Psychedelic Therapy & Its Implications for Psychiatric Theory. In a series of illustrated discussions, we will explore the principles of drug-assisted psychotherapy with psychiatric patients and dying individuals, the healing potential of altered states of consciousness, and the cartography of the human unconscious emerging from psychedelic research.

IV. Self-Exploration & Group Process. Esalen staff and guest leaders will act as facilitators of an ongoing process of intra-psychic and interpersonal exploration of the participants all through the workshop. An experienced resident astrologer will assist the group members individually in exploring the relevance of transit astrology for their personal process.

The program is limited to 30 participants selected from applicants. The fee is $1150 including room and board. Some working scholarships are available to students on the basis of need. Scholarship forms can be obtained from Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.

If you wish to enroll in the program, send a letter of biographical information to Rick Tarnas, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.

November 6—December 2

An Integrative Approach to Group Process
& Individual Growth / David Schiffman, Dee Mundschenk,
Dick & Chris Price, with the Esalen Staff

This month-long community workshop will provide the opportunity for participants to clarify and develop their own ability, style, and artfulness as facilitators, as well as to do in-depth personal work and training in gestalt, body work, psychosynthetic techniques, journal processing, and meditative practices.

The workshop will be structured to include: intensive individual work, supervised observations, practicum work in group leading and individual counseling skills, video feedback, journal keeping and didactic-theoretical sessions. The emphasis throughout will be on creating a personally integrated perspective on the nature and process of evolution.

Audio Cassette Recordings

Esalen long-term and special workshops have recently produced unusual and informative audio recordings. These are recorded in stereo and are available on cassettes only:

The January 1976 Physics and Consciousness group brought together spokesmen of the new counter-culture physics, sharing viewpoints and findings in the interplay of mind with matter:

John King: Introductory Discussions of Quantum Theory	1½ hours	$7.50
Peter Flessel: Molecular Biology and Modern Physics	1 hour	6.00
Fritjof Capra: Quantum Paradoxes and Eastern Mysticism	1½ hours	7.50
David Finkelstein: A New Quantum Logic	1½ hours	7.50

The May 1976 Grof workshop on Schizophrenia & the Visionary Mind gathered early explorers of the mind and of psychotic and religious experience:

John Perry: Psychosis and Visionary States	1½ hours	7.50
Humphrey Osmond: Early Psychedelic History	1 hour	6.00
Julian Silverman: Shamanism & Schizophrenia	1½ hours	7.50
Gregory Bateson: Double Binds & Levels of Thinking	1 hour	6.00

And, in addition, there is now an introductory recording of Al Huang's workshops, and the most recent from John Lilly, added to previously listed tapes:

Al Chung-Liang Huang: The Watercourse Way T'ai Chi	1 hour	6.00
John C Lilly: About Whales and Dolphins	1 hour	6.00
Will Schutz: Interpersonal Psychodynamics	1½ hours	7.50
Gregory Bateson: Metaphors and Butterflies	1½ hours	7.50

Please address your order and make check payable to: Workshop Cassettes c/o Hot Springs Lodge, Big Sur, CA 93920. Suggestions regarding future recordings will be appreciated.

Credits

Most of the illustrations in this Esalen Catalog are based on California Indian mythology; there is no attempt to be "authentically" Indian, but rather to bring myth material into modern sensibilities we all share. Captions indicate dramatic highlights in stories for which the viewer may improvise a supply of beginnings and endings. Myths stay alive in this way.

Catalog design and original illustrations, except as otherwise noted, are by Red Dog Pieface, who is not an Indian.

We are pleased to present this issue printed on recycled paper.

Except for the Sport Center program described on page 5, all programs listed in this brochure are residential programs in Big Sur. Send reservations for all programs to Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.

Esalen lies 300 miles north of Los Angeles and 175 miles south of San Francisco. It is directly over the shoreline of the Pacific with the Santa Lucia Range rising sharply behind. The property, which has natural hot baths, was once the home of a North American Indian tribe known as Esalen.

We are a 45-mile drive south from Monterey, 11 miles south of Nepenthe, on California Coast Route 1. From the south, we are 50 miles north of San Simeon. A lighted sign on the ocean side of the highway reads: Esalen Institute—By Reservation Only.

Deposit Information: We require an advance deposit of $20 for weekend groups, $70 for five-day groups, $200 for two-week groups, $300 for three-week groups, and $400 for month-long groups. Deposits are not refundable but, with five days' notice, may be transferred to other Esalen programs. Please mail all reservations to Esalen/Big Sur. Balance of payment is due on arrival. Esalen accepts Master Charge and American Express. U S currency only, please.

Scholarship Information: If you need scholarship assistance for a long term Esalen program, write for a scholarship application form before making a reservation (allow at least 3 weeks for processing as we have many applications). If your application is approved, please make a reservation as soon as possible after receiving notice. No scholarship assistance is available for June 15—August 31 programs or for weekend programs.

General Information: Workshop fees cover tuition, food, and lodging. Rooms are shared by two or three workshop participants. Camping on the grounds is prohibited.

Weekend programs begin with dinner on Friday and end with lunch on Sunday. Five-day and longer programs begin with dinner on Sunday and end with lunch on Friday. Rooms become available at 5 pm; however, guests are welcome to arrive anytime after lunch.

Esalen has no child care facilities. Please do not plan to bring children. We also ask workshop participants not to have guests. Alas, no pets.

Esalen's flourishing organic garden provides the kitchen with many of its vegetables and herbs. Our breads and pastries are made by Esalen bakers.

Limousine Service: Those traveling by air or bus can obtain limousine service to Esalen by notifying the office of time of arrival. Pickups are made at the Monterey Airport and the Greyhound terminal at 5—5:30 pm each Sunday and Friday. The cost is $10 per person one way, payable on arrival at Esalen.

Seminarians as Staff (Karma Yoga): Seminarians in residence for five days or longer at Esalen are asked to contribute several hours per week to work with the staff. Your help enables us to meet the pressures of peak working times and enables you to experience Esalen from the inside out. A staff member will appear at your first workshop meeting to schedule volunteer help.

San Francisco Information

We have decided to close our offices in San Francisco and Mill Valley. All administrative activities will be handled by the Big Sur office.

Esalen Institute is a center to explore those trends in education, religion, philosophy, and the physical and behavioral sciences which emphasize the potentialities and values of human existence. Our activities consist of seminars and workshops, residential programs, consulting, and research.

We exist to sponsor, encourage, synthesize, and attempt evaluation of work in these areas, both inside and outside our own organizational framework. Since we are a center for experimental education, we ask that persons come to our programs out of an educational interest. We ask that no one come whose interest is "cure." We point out here, as we have in workshops and seminars, that some persons, particularly those with a history of psychiatric problems, may find some programs difficult, trying, or potentially risky. We recommend that in case of any doubt, a physician or trusted counselor be consulted.

Who's Responsible at Esalen?

We have long regarded Esalen Institute as an educational laboratory. Our evolving philosophical and operational positions reflect this regard. Underlying it all is a baseline ethic of "self-awareness and self-responsibility." However re-presented and operationalized in the past, by us or by others, this ethic continues to be the basis for our world view, and following from this, our educational approach. The self-awareness/self-responsibility ethic has grown and stabilized out of at least two generations of weighty dis-illusioning social and political events—all connected by a common reminder:

> Give away your personal faculties of discernment, of evaluation, of self-reference, and you lose your integrity (your wholeness). "Take responsibility for your every thought, your every feeling, your every action," said our beloved friend and teacher, Fritz Perls.

We view the implications of this position as being social as well as personal. They concern the ways we relate to ourselves and others.

In our position as educators, we invite people to take responsibility for their whole life situation while at Esalen. This includes taking responsibility for who they select as their teachers, their leaders, their gurus, their authority figures . . . and so on—and to be aware, whenever possible, what effect this has on them. We, of necessity, are setting up a situation for our seminarians to learn the practice of self-responsibility from the time they consider selecting a workshop, not just during the workshop. In effect, we are asking that this self-responsibility attitude be present in the initial contact with Esalen. Ideally, the same attitude will pervade after a workshop when our seminarians go back to the community and seek out others—physicians, teachers, counselors, mental health professionals, etc.

As we have become more thoughtful and self-critical about the overall direction of Esalen we have begun to concentrate on enhancing our basic offering—the Esalen environment and life style. Our primary emphasis is not on teaching particular truths or personal and interpersonal techniques for daily life; rather our primary concern is with a particular consciousness and developing an environment to support the evolution of that consciousness—the consciousness of self-awareness/self-responsibility.

Food for Thought

EMOTION AND RESPONSIBILITY

FRITZ PERLS

Now normally the elan vital, the life force, energizes by sensing, by listening, by scouting, by describing the world—how is the world there. Now this life force apparently first mobilizes the center—if you have a center. And the center of the personality is what used to be called the soul: the emotions, the feelings, the spirit. Emotions are not a nuisance to be discharged. The emotions are the most important motors of our behavior: emotions in the widest sense—whatever you feel—the waiting, the joy, the hunger. Now these emotions, or this basic energy, this life force is apparently differentiated in the organism by what I would like to call the hormonic differentiation. This basic excitement is differentiated, let's say by the adrenal glands, into anger and fear: by the sex glands into libido. It might, in the case of adjustment to a loss, be turned into grief. Then this emotional excitement mobilizes the muscles, the motoric system. Every emotion, then, expresses itself in the muscular system. You can't imagine joy, which is more or less identical with dancing, without muscular movement. In grief there is sobbing and crying, and in sex there are also certain movements, as you all know. And these muscles are used to move about, to take from the world, to touch the world, to be in contact, to be in touch.

Any disturbance of this excitement metabolism will diminish your vitality. If these excitements cannot be transformed into their specific activities but are stagnated, then we have the state called anxiety, which is a tremendous excitement held up, bottled up. Angoustia is the Latin word for narrowness. You narrow the chest, to go through the narrow path; the heart speeds up in order to supply the oxygen needed for the excitement, and so on. If excitement cannot flow into activity through the motoric system, then we try to desensitize the sensoric system to reduce this excitement. So we find all kinds of desensitization: frigidity, blocking of the ears, and so on—all these holes in the personality that I talked about earlier.

So, if we are so disturbed in our metabolism, and have no center from which we can live, we have to do something. we want to do something to collect again the wellspring, the foundation of our being. Now there is not such a thing as total integration. Integration is never completed; maturation is never completed. It's an ongoing process for ever and ever. You can't say, "Now I've eaten a steak and now I am satisfied: now I'm no more hungry," and for the rest of your life there is no more hunger. There's always something to be integrated; always something to be learned. There's always a possibility of richer maturation—of taking more and more responsibility for yourself and for your life. Of course, taking responsibility for your life and being rich in experience and ability is identical. And this is what I hope to do here in this short seminar—to make you understand how much you gain by taking responsibility for every emotion, every movement you make, every thought you have—and shed responsibility for anybody else. The world is not there for your expectation, nor do you have to live for the expectation of the world. We touch each other by honestly being what we are, not by intentionally making contact.

Responsibility, in one context, is the idea of obligation. If I take responsibility for somebody else, I feel omnipotent: I have to interfere with his life. All it means is, I have a duty—I believe I have the duty to support this person. But responsibility can also be spelled response-ability: the ability to respond, to have thoughts, reactions, emotions in a certain situation. Now, this responsibility, the ability to be what one is, is expressed through the word "I." Many agree with Federn, a friend of Freud, who maintained that the ego, the I, is merely a symbol of identification. If I say that I am hungry now, and in an hour's time I say I am not hungry, this is not a contradiction. It is not a lie, because in between I have eaten lunch, I identify with my state right now, and I identify with my state afterward.

Responsibility means simply to be willing to say "I am I" and "I am what I am—I'm Popeye, the sailor man." It's not easy to let go of the fantasy or concept of being a child in need, the child that wants to be loved, the child that is afraid to be rejected, but all those events are those for which we are not taking responsibility. Just as I said in regard to self-consciousness, we are not willing to take the responsibility that we are critical, so we project it outside and then we live in eternal demands to be accepted, or the fear of being rejected. And one of the most important responsibilities—this is a very important transition—is to take responsibility for our projections, re-identify with these projections, and become what we project.

The difference between Gestalt Therapy and most other types of psychotherapy is essentially that we do not analyze. We integrate. The old mistake of mixing up understanding and explanatoriness is what we hope to avoid. If we explain, interpret, this might be a very interesting intellectual game, but it's a dummy activity, and a dummy activity is worse than doing nothing. If you do nothing, at least you know you do nothing. If you engage in a dummy activity you just invest time and energy in unproductive work and possibily get more and more conditioned to doing these futile activities—wasting your time, and if anything getting deeper and deeper into the morass of the neurosis.

It would be wonderful if we could be so wise and intelligent that our rationality could domineer our biological life. And this polarity of mind vs. body is not the only polarity. There are other things to the human being than these two instruments. This identification with the intellect, with explanation, leaves out the total organism, leaves out the body. You use your body instead of being some-body. And the more all the thinking goes into the computing, into manipulation, the less energy is left for the total self. Since you have bracketed off your body, the result is that you feel like being nobody, because you have no body. There's no body in your life. No wonder so many people, if they are out of the routine of their daily work, get their "Sunday neurosis" when they are really faced with their boredom and the emptiness of their lives.

Food for Thought

RADIX TEACHER TRAINING*

CHARLES R. KELLEY

Director, Radix Institute

Reichian work is work with body and feelings. It is rooted in two major discoveries of Wilhelm Reich. The first is the muscular armor, the chronic patterns of tension in the body that are responsible for blocked emotion. The second is the life force, existing tangibly in the body, and serving as a bridging concept between the armor and the emotion that is blocked. I call the life force the radix, whereas Reich called it orgone energy. Radix is a rare word meaning root, source, or primary cause. I see it not as energy, but as a substratum of nature from which energy and feeling emerge. Spelled with a capital, Radix refers to the educational program and techniques of the Radix Institute, and is protected by service mark from use by others. Thus at the Radix Institute, we teach Radix new education work, rooted in my understanding of the nature and properties of the radix.

One of the most challenging tasks of Radix work has been to build a program that would train prospective teachers to a high level of competence in the difficult and demanding new skills of Radix education. Consistent with the philosophy of education expressed in my monograph, The New Education, our training program has been developed with virtually complete independence from the educational establishment. There are no degrees or diplomas required for admission, though most of our trainees are mental health professionals. The only prerequisite is enough Radix work with us that we are convinced that an applicant has the potential to become a good teacher, usually 50 sessions, a year of work.

Because we are not encumbered with the deadwood of bureaucracy and governmentalization that prevails in the educational establishment, we have been able to eliminate the useless drudgery required to become a competent professional. We have thrown away the endless sequences of irrelevant requirements, courses, degrees, and licenses that form the union cards and means of limiting entry into a field of most professions. As a result, our teacher training program has been able to focus on the vital central content of this work, the concepts and skills required to be an effective Radix teacher. One can become an effective Radix teacher in about 3 years.

The Radix training program includes four categories of work: 1) personal experiential Radix work; 2) concepts and techniques; 3) practice teaching; and 4) outside work. We have found over the years that serious problems in any area of the training program were always traceable to problems in personal experiential work. Students come to grief in the training program because they encounter problems in their own character structure they are unwilling or unable to handle in their Radix personal growth work. Students moving well in their personal work take every sort of problem in the other areas of work in stride. Students hung up in their personal work often come to grief in other areas, eg, completing assignments, passing examinations, or doing practice teaching. Concepts and techniques of Radix education are taught in training seminars and workshops. Radix work owes its power to our ability to teach the nature and properties of the life force, especially the origin, blocking and release of emotion. There are 60 training sessions in the 2 years of the program. Cassette tape sessions play an especially important role in the work of the extension trainees, who take much of the training hundreds or thousands of miles from our California facility. Concepts are more important than techniques. Those who master concepts become able to develop their own techniques. In practice teaching the concepts and techniques of Radix education are put to work. Like most new education work, Radix education skills are mastered by doing them. The nominal practice teaching requirement is 200 Radix practice teaching sessions. Preferred format is a group of 4 to 6 students, committed to a year of work with the trainee. This year of work includes classes, workshops and private sessions, planned and supervised by the training staff of the Radix Institute. Advanced trainees may teach workshops and classes, not only at the Radix Institute but also at Esalen Institute and other growth centers across the country and abroad as part of their practice teaching experience. Lastly, every Radix teacher trainee is required to take outside work in new education programs other than Radix. The power of Radix work is such that the inexperienced easily go overboard and wish to live, eat and sleep Radix education. We want Radix trainees to keep their Radix work in perspective. We encourage them to go to Esalen, to join Synanon, to do work in Transactional Analysis, to work with Nathaniel Branden, to take Alexander or Feldenkrais lessons, to graduate from a good school of training in massage.

J. F. Millet: The Gleaners

Traditional programs of instruction in psychology, psychiatry, and related professions do little to equip graduates to do Radix work well. The capacity to become a good Radix teacher depends much more on what a person is than what degrees he has earned. Related is the fact that advanced degrees and impressive titles are the least useful indices of competence in the whole Reichian field. Reichian work is practiced under the guise of medicine, psychology, social work, counseling, osteopathy, the ministry, and chiropractic. These guises can be a gentle fraud, as none of the professional schools for any of these professions equip students for this work. Qualified training in Reichian work can be obtained through the training programs of Elsworth Baker and the American College of Orgonomy or Alexander Lowen and the Institute for Bioenergetic Analysis as well as through the Radix Institute.

I react strongly when I see Radix and other sound Reichian work bastardized and exploited by training program drop-outs and even less qualified Reichian pretenders. We have recently instituted training contracts and a signed Radix Teacher's Code designed to limit the abuse of Radix work by trainees and teachers. I note with interest that Ida Rolf has adopted similar measures to protect her work. I believe in such private means, and am strongly opposed to government control or licensing of new education teachers. It is up to each new education organization to set its own standards and conditions of training and to make it known how is trained to do its work.

THE PSYCHOLOGICAL METACENTER:

IMAGINATION IN WILDERNESS

MICHAEL TOBIAS

St Augustine first challenged us to psychoanalysis by positioning consciousness in direct opposition to wilderness. "Men go out to wonder at the mountain heights, and the tides of the sea . . . but they ignor (sic) themselves," he mused in his Confessions (AD 399). In a radically evolved, technological perspective, Thoreau stated that wilderness must take root "inside" ourselves, if it is to exist at all. Today, we share in wilderness only to the extent that it serves us as a metaphor for ourselves. The recognition of this cycle—from the bold, unthinking adventures of a Gilgamesh, to the interior, mental maelstrom of modern self-preoccupation—now confronts us in a stirring, about face of dialectical suggestiveness.

Ancient consciousness was inner wilderness. But what of the twentieth century psyche, as congested and intricate as its cities? We have shifted the central issue of existence from Paleolithic forests, the veneration of female fertility and bisons, to a metropolitan network of the split-second and of a linguistic mania for the possessive case. We speak of "our" wilderness areas with bewildering conviction and oblivion. In an age that has come to suspect all preservatives, how is one to assess the ultimate values of a Sierra Club whose express purpose is the 'preservation of all wilderness?'

We conserve our symbols. Simple, searing images are most meaningful to us. And the natural world is out-of-control with an allusiveness of such symbols. Our contemporary infatuations with travel and 'chic exile,' with verticle skylines, earthshoes and organic foods, indicate a comprehensive urban habituation we have come to assume is biological—but it is in fact a broadening spectrum of contradictions, a tantalyzing, unresolvable dilemma which is our penchant for compromise between wilderness and civilization. As we accelerate the loss of wonder, of the captivation which other centuries felt in the wake of exploration, and of the values nourished on its exemplary mystique, we also lose, in this habituation, the capacity to forge such spirit.

How to reacquire the instincts of hunter-gatherers who traversed the earth for millennia like whales? How to simplify our lives in a reacquisition of the musculature, the state of mind, and the reunion with original things that more consistently marked our rural forebearers?

Luminaries in an avant-garde of solitude throughout many centuries have satisfied those two conjectures for themselves by a process of psycho-sensory immersion into wilderness. And the one spectacular discovery of this abundant daring—of ascetics, mountain climbers, roving diplomats of the spirit, farmers in the outback of consciousness—is that while the mind is frought with turmoil, with conflicting desires, is plagued by a contradiction which molests it on the condition of living, the body, the physical world, contains no paradox, no such contradiction.

From the period of Moses' ascent of Mount Sinai, to the lyrical disappearance of T'ang Dynasty forest hermits; from the Indian Buddhist "Abhidharma Triloka" philosophy in which the 'cerebral escarpments' of meditation were actively equated with the successive ranges of the Himalayas, to Percy Shelley, immersed, with a pen in hand, atop the rocky 'wilderness' ruins of the Baths of Caracalla; or of Nikos Kazantzakis nourishing his extraordinary poem, The Odyssey—A Modern Sequel, at the Monastery of Mount Athos—we can trace the dramatic import of sublime and urgent inspiration whose extravagant health derived solely from the invigoration of contact, real contact, with wilderness.

Running, Meditation & Gestalt Awareness at Westerbeke Ranch / Michael Murphy, Richard Price & Mike Spino

This workshop will feature two training sessions per day, one emphasizing physical activity (running, flexibility exercises, and energy work) and one emphasizing meditation and visualization. Gestalt sessions with Richard Price will be held in the evening. The chief aim of the program is the blending of methods for spiritual and physical growth, including running gaits and tempos, muscle/skeletal exercises, breathing techniques, guided fantasy sessions and meditation. There will also be discussions of altered states of consciousness in sport and conceptual frameworks with which to interpret them. This is a residential program at the Westerbeke Ranch. $290

July 30–31

The Innerspaces of Running: A New Approach to Running Mike Spino

Focusing on the running experience, this workshop will introduce a holistic method of mind/body development. Each participant will be taught various running gaits and tempos, muscle/skeletal exercises, breathing techniques, and philosophy and lore related to optimum physical fitness. There will be special emphasis on guided imagery, inner space development, and creativity in quest for extraordinary experiences. Each person will receive an individual consultation and have opportunity to continue towards personal goals on an ongoing basis. This is a non residential program in San Francisco. $60

July 9

Introduction to Mind/Body Development Program Mike Spino & Barbara Hazilla

This one day workshop will be an introduction to the Mind/Body development Program for October and November described below. $30

FUTURE WORKSHOP IN SAN FRANCISCO

October 3–November 28, 1977

Mind/Body Development Program / Mike Spino

This two month program will combine methods of examining inner senses and emotions with innovative physical fitness tools. The basic approaches include:

Overall aerobic fitness

1. various gaits and tempos in running
2. specific styles of body movement
3. varied breathing patterns and techniques

Flexibility & skeletal suppleness

1. extending the range of flexibility and skeletal suppleness
2. hatha yoga, free form stretches
3. learning to respond to body signals such as stress

Inner space techniques

1. meditation—the process of observing one's thoughts
2. visualization & guided imagery—creating and utilizing images which increase awareness and enhance physical experience
3. centering—the process of developing a sense of inner balance and harmony

Special one day workshops will be taught by Will Schutz, Judith Aston and Michael Murphy.

This program includes two weekly meetings of group training each week and two one day workshops each month. Individual consultations are also available components of the program. The entire course is $200.

ESALEN PROGRAMS

Weekend of July 1-3

The Gentle Art of Becoming—Together: A Workshop for Couples / David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

This workshop will focus on the reawakening and development of positive and mutual supports that are at the root of satisfying couple relationships. The emphasis will be on creating clear and truthful expressions of the essential sense of loving and personal integrity. We will look at the beliefs and habits used to celebrate or lose the state of grace and presence which allows growth and joy for our partners and ourselves through the use of intuitional sensing, risk-taking structures, and guided imagery as well as gestalt awareness techniques. $120 per person

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 15. $110

The Feldenkrais Method: A Psycho-physical Education Through Body Movements Judith Stransky

Dr Moshe Feldenkrais has originated and developed an impressive method of re-educating the total being and tapping our unused potential through the means of body exercises and movement that lead to an expansion of awareness, and to a body-mind oriented to, and capable of, a greater range of experience. The exercises also involve integration of the physical and the mental, release of fixed habits that restrict us, differentiation of parts of the body, relaxation and balance, improvement in alignment, and lead to a suppleness beyond what one would believe is possible. The approach is through pleasure, not strain, combined with breathing techniques. $120

Body Awareness & Sensuality / Barbara Clemans

"Words were invented by man, the body and feelings are a creation of God" . . . Enjoy the only home you have—your body—tune your instrument to feel and experience the pleasures of creation. Know what it is to breathe completely, taste fully and move with total presence. We will utilize all the tools of awakening the senses: breathing, tasting, stretching, meditating, relaxation, massage, music, feldenkrais, integration, expressive movement, sound and laughter. Beginners are welcome. $120

Inner Contact & Consciousness / Simone Surpin

Inner contact can be understood as a time when we "have ourselves," when we are stabilized inside our being, like a tree is rooted to the ground. From this place our exchanges with others can be clean, clear, and heartful. This weekend we will focus on how we can allow this inner contact and maintain it while experiencing and communicating with each other.

Our group process toward this awareness will involve inner practices such as gentle body work, chanting, moving and sitting meditation and silent walks. Our outer practices will include listening to the vibrational statements and exchanges emerging within our circle as a tool for making our contact more and more conscious. Each session will be a blend of didactic and experiential work.

Enrollment is limited to 14 people. No previous group experience is required. $120

Week of July 3-8

Woman to Woman / Man to Man Dee Mundschenk David Schiffman

"The woman that most needs liberating is the woman in every man, and the man that most needs liberating is the man in every woman."
—Rev William Sloan Coffin

Taking advantage of the natural affinity and support that people of the same sex can afford one another, the men and women in this workshop will meet separately as well as together. We will create an ambience of tenderness and support to provide opportunities to clarify the nature of who we are as men in the absence of women and who we are as women in the absence of men and what happens when we come together. The themes we will explore are our sexuality, our friendships, our body images, our coupling, our creativity, our relationship to power, our expectations of each other. The workshop will be grounded in the techniques of gestalt, encounter, fantasy, massage, and bioenergetics. $290

Growing Up Right: The Greening of Human Plants Betty Fuller

Many of us carry around enormous burdens of regret, resentment, incomplete cycles and other unfinished business from yesterday which turn today's life into a soap opera—tiring and trying. Frequently we made decisions "back then" which determine not only today's outlook but the choices we make about tomorrow's possibilities. This intensive, experiential workshop is designed to lighten the load—"empty the cup"—by completing the past and clearing space to create purposeful, joyful, and satisfying living here/now. Participants function solo, in dyads and in large and small groups using art, theater games, integrative movement work (feldenkrais and other), humor, fantasy, concentration and meditative exercises, sharing gestalt awareness training and elements from encounter and psychosynthesis. $290

Opening to Your Inner Self Through Body-Energetics Hector Prestera

Using techniques from Reich, gestalt, direct encounter, acupuncture, and energy release systems, such as vital center mantras, the individual will grow toward opening to himself and others. $290

Self Re-parenting / Joan Fiore

This workshop focuses on finding and opening paths in the present that allow us to re-turn to places in the past where we got stuck. Rather than acting out and cutting off these experiences from awareness, we re-awaken and act through the old horror shows, giving ourselves a new opportunity to clean up the unfinished business of early life that controls and rips off our aliveness and our power in the here and now. Experiments progress from re-wombing to re-birthing to re-infanting to re-adolescing to re-owning and replenishing as we go along. Modes of exploring are drawn from gestalt practice, neo-Reichian energy release, primal work, family work, guided fantasy, and Fiore re-parenting methods. Take your favorite cuddly toy, security blanket, or other such pacifier out of hiding and bring it along. $290

Weekend of July 8-10

Men in a Changing World / Janet Lederman

Through new and perhaps unfamiliar behaviors and responses we may experience greater flexibility and harmony in being with ourselves and in relating to a changing world. $120

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 15. $110

Growing Up Right: The Greening of Human Plants
Betty Fuller

For workshop description see July 3–8. $120

Selective Awareness, Self-Hypnosis & Movement
Emmett & Nitza Miller

To us, our practice is a means for capturing the spirit and momentum of enjoyable experiences in the past and projecting them into the future. Further, it allows us to trace maladaptive patterns—symptoms, habits, emotions, and blocks—to their source, as far back as infancy or further, and extinguish them.

Participants will learn to enter and use the hypnotic state for relaxation, imagery, and age regression. Movement will be used to help intensify emotional experiences, to transmit desirable self-concepts to the body. Of special interest will be multiple experiences of going from a desirable mental image in hypnosis directly into a full movement experience, without pausing at the "waking" level. $120

Chores: from a 50's postcard by David Allen

Week of July 10-15

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 15. $260

States of Awareness, Shifts of Identity / Robert Nadeau

For workshop description see August 14-19. $290

Massage Intensive / The Esalen Massage Crew

For five days the members of the massage crew, each with their own unique style, will give instruction and help the group to practice basic techniques of massage upon one another: sensory awareness, deep muscular massage, joint articulation, polarity. As we learn to feel with our hands how the body and the life-force within it works, we learn to release tensions in others and to be more fully aware of ourselves.

The group meets daily in the mineral baths. $290

Contact, Communication & Relationship
Julian & Beverly Silverman

The ways we contact and communicate with ourselves and with others determine the kind of world that we live in. When we change these ways we can actually change our world. This is what the workshop is about.

Our emphasis is on the relationship between individual process and group process. Our concern is with developing a way of being in which one's senses are open and one's contacting of others is flexible. The learning which takes place occurs with a group of individuals who share and change in relation to each other. Emphasis is placed upon body in relation to mind. $290

Weekend of July 15-17

Opening the Feelings: A Neo-Reichian Radix Workshop
Connie Cossette, Dale Cummings & Merri Goldenson

For workshop description see page 24. $120

A Weekend with Will Schutz

$120

Hypnotic Visions & Hypnotic Realities / Lee Pulos

There are many myths about hypnosis and the introductory portion of the workshop will be spent in de-mystifying the hypnotic process. Participants will be taught self-hypnosis and will experience a variety of hypnotic techniques ranging from progressive relaxation to rapid induction. The main theme will be to teach how one can use hypnosis to open up the flow between the conscious and the subconscious. Each person will have the opportunity to program for personal habit changes, to get in touch with subconscious motivation through automatic writing and ideo-motor questioning—and to extend awareness into psychic dimensions. $120

Week of July 17-22

A Week with Will Schutz

$320

Getting in Touch—Open Gestalt / Frank Rubenfeld

Hot-seat work, massage, and group exercises will serve to facilitate participants in experiencing and expressing the alive parts of themselves. Suitable for those in the helping professions. $290

Growth Through Risk-Taking
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

This workshop provides the opportunity for the group members to come to terms with the definitions by which they live. Through a series of structured risk-taking situations, the use of gestalt, role playing, fantasy, and encounter techniques, the participants can accept or transcend the boundaries from which they approach the world. Emphasis will be placed on the expression of anger, affection, sexuality, and the transcending of roles. This workshop is especially useful for people who have had previous encounter experience. $290

Yoga, Meditation, Movement, Massage
Deborah Sulochana Medow

Through the regular practice of healing asanas and integrative movement, hatha yoga seeks to develop and maintain awareness of self. Meditation, a vehicle for inwardly focusing this awareness, quiets the mind and allows the spirit to grow and flower. The outward expression of this self awareness is movement: how we move in this world reflects who we are and how we feel about ourselves. Free form movement becomes a way to explore and creatively expand our ways of being. Massage is a means by which aware individuals can share with each other and more fully experience each other. In this workshop, we will use yoga, meditation, movement, and massage to explore and expand our ways of feeling and seeing, relating, and being. $290

William Blake's eulogy to the power of the mind: Newton, 1795

Weekend of July 22-24

Black Dance / James Xavier Nash & Jasmine Nash

This weekend will include dancing and exploring the rituals of Black disco dancing in contemporary American society. High-low energy, sensual and sexual, rhythm and syncopation, hand clapping, foot stomping, using African drums, we will use our voices and pre-recorded popular Black music. $120

Tuning In / Janet Sachson Zuckerman

Many of us are operating as tape recorders. We switch on in the morning at "high" or "low" speed and play our tapes in response to the buttons being pushed by people or events. We are vaguely aware that life seems repetitive, or dull, that time is often something to be gotten through instead of savored, but this awareness is lost in the "noise" and business of day to day living.

This weekend will be devoted to bringing our attention to what we are doing—how we are really acting and feeling. Once we are aware of our feelings, we can go off automatic and begin to enjoy our interactions with one another. We will be using gestalt process, encounter, sensory awareness, and other techniques to tune in to ourselves and each other. $120

Yoga: A Method of Integration / Vijayendra Pratap

This workshop will teach meditative poses, pranayama-breathing techniques, focusing, and relaxation. The program is carefully designed to instruct both beginners and advanced students. Certain advanced techniques, such as cleansing processes will also be taught to deeply interested hatha yoga students. Discussion and questions on various types of yoga will be encouraged. Dress in loose comfortable clothing and bring a mat of your size (beach towel, small rug). $120

Awakening & Siddha Meditation / Michael Butler

Within each person there is a beautiful form of energy. Usually this energy is "sleeping," but when it is activated it begins to transform a person, working from inside out. It increases one's self-understanding, joy, and especially the ability to love. This workshop seeks to awaken this energy and teach about its unfolding.

The methods are designed to nurture each individual's "essence"—there will be gentle bodywork for grounding, talks on unity consciousness, chanting to open the heart, sharing, and a kind of meditation which integrates into everyday life. $120

Preparation for Conscious Childbirth
Chris Price, Peggy Morrison & Honey Rose

In this workshop you will explore how you can give your children their natural birthright—the best possible beginning from the time of conception through delivery. We will teach massage, gestalt awareness exercises, breathing techniques, sound and color meditation, nutrition, special physical exercises, and provide practical information from modern and folk sources on preparing for home or hospital delivery. You will learn to nourish yourself and the life you carry. Obviously suited for pregnant women, the group is also open to couples and any person interested in the birthing process. $120 per person

Week of July 24-29

God, Sexual Energy & Your Body / Gabrielle Roth

"When sex comes from the physical center, it is a necessity. When it comes from the mental center, it is a fantasy. When sex comes from the heart center, it is a deep, total, and profound experience of our own divinity. Sex is meaningless without the heart."

The purpose of this workshop is to heal the separation between our divinity and our sexuality as it exists in our consciousness, attitudes and actions. This weekend will include breathing, movement, music, sound, and massage meditation. We will come together to dance, to sing, to worship, to cry—to celebrate our vulnerability and our strength, our heights and our depths. Gabrielle will support us in going within ourselves to rediscover the magnitude of our own heart energy, thus infusing our sexuality, and our entire life experience, with depth and purpose. $290

I'm Entitled! / George & Judith Brown

This workshop teaches the process of owning what each of us has available in both our inner world and in our outer world, and appreciating the ways we interrupt our own natural growth and personal and interpersonal development. Then we can recognize what is and what isn't and what could (not "should") be and relish the choices, challenges, adventures, and peace to which we are all entitled. Suitable for couples or individuals. Limited to 20.
$290 per person

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 15. $260

Gestalt Practice / Richard & Christine Price & Diana Becchetti

The Way, when declared
Seems so thin and flavorless.
Nothing to look at, nothing to hear—
And used—is inexhaustable.
—Lao Tzu c. 2500 BC

Gestalt is as old as the world.
—Fritz Perls

Gestalt practice is a form—nonanalytic, noncoercive, nonjudgmental—evolving out of the work of Fritz Perls, relating that work to ways of personal clearing and development both ancient and modern. To the extent that awareness is made primary relative to action, gestalt practice has a strong relationship to some forms of meditation and visualization. In that emotional and energetic release and rebalancing are allowed and encouraged, the relation to some Reichian work is close.

The emphasis is *intra*personal rather than *inter*personal. Those who primarily wish interpersonal work are advised to attend an encounter rather than a gestalt group.

Participants are explicitly not "patients" but persons consenting actively to work (or play) in awareness. The "leader" functions to reflect, clarify, and flow with whatever emerges in this process. The aim is unfoldment, wholeness, growth rather than adjustment, cure, or accomplishment.

Suggested reading: Gestalt Therapy Verbatim (Perls); Tao Te Ching (Lao Tzu); Cutting Through Spiritual Materialism (Chogyam Trungpa); The Power of Mindfulness (Nyanponika Thera); Exploring the Crack in the Cosmic Egg (J C Pearce); Education in Feeling and Purpose (Kelley); Meditation: The Art of Ecstasy (Bhagwan Rajneesh). $290

Weekend of July 29 - 31

Massage Intensive / The Esalen Massage Crew

For workshop description see July 10—15. $120

Finding Your Natural Rhythm / George Leonard

All of life—from single-celled organism to human individual to great civilization—is held together by a series of rhythmic patterns. There is a "right" or "natural" rhythm for every action and every situation. Finding your own rhythm, your unique inner pulse, is the first step towards what is commonly called "happiness." This workshop will use exercises from aikido, energy awareness, dance and games to help participants experience their inner pulse or natural rhythm. $120

Exploring Self-Acceptance
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

The focus of this workshop is the creation of a more positive and open-ended self concept. Through the use of structured risk-taking situations, gestalt, role-playing, fantasy, and encounter techniques, participants can accept or transcend the self-imposed boundaries from which they approach the world. Emphasis is on searching out unique personality strengths, individual capacities, and latent powers as a means of achieving productive, creative functioning. $120

Self & Beyond / John Zeigler

Emphasis will be on self-responsibility, self-discovery, and self-awareness through individual gestalt work, and through "No-Fault Communication," a positive and supportive encounter technique. Since an emerging theme of our being together will be that "life is not to be taken seriously, it is simply to be taken," experiments from psychosynthesis, fantasy and Eastern perspectives will heighten contact with the group, the Esalen environment, and the universe. $120

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

Coordinated by
Janet Sachson Zuckerman

These workshops are designed for people who have not previously been to Esalen/Big Sur. The emphasis is on finding those approaches to self-awareness that work most effectively for the individual participant. Some of the following experiences are available at each Experiencing Esalen workshop: sensory awareness, gestalt awareness training, encounter, theater games, guided fantasy, meditation, bioenergetics, massage. There is time to experience and explore the natural magnificence of the Big Sur coast.

Suggested reading: Gestalt Therapy Verbatim (Perls) and Education in Feeling and Purpose (Kelley).

Body Awareness, Sensuality & Vitality / Barbara Clemans

"Words were invented by man, the body and feelings are a creation of God . . . " In this workshop we will utilize various body awakening experiences which enhance awareness, pleasure, regeneration and vitality. These tools can be integrated into a routine of self help and maintenance in our daily lives. We will utilize the tools of awakening the senses: breathing, tasting, stretching, meditating, relaxation, massage, music, feldenkrais integration, jazz aerobics, expressive movement, sound, and laughter. Beginners are welcome. $290

An Integrative Approach to Self Actualization
Ilana Rubenfeld

The sea always has waves . . . waves are the sea . . . sea and waves are one. To speak of waves apart from the sea is a delusion—so mind and body are one!

The focus in this workshop will be on experiencing one's own body and emotions as a total organism. Emotions and memories are often stored in our bodies, resulting in tension and imbalance. A unique blend of gestalt, Alexander technique, and feldenkrais exercises will be used as a gateway to contacting, expressing, and working through deep feelings. Massage staff will be on hand to assist the workshop.

We have the choice to contact ourselves and each other with joy, sadness, compassion, humor, ideas, and with the body—the whole person. $290

Self-Acceptance—The Freedom To Be
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

Each of us has unique capacities to feel and express: tenderness and strength, anger and affection, autonomy and needfulness as well as compassion, humor, and wisdom. The willingness to allow the fullness and vibrance of each of these qualities determines how alive and gratified we are.

In this workshop we will focus on how we diminish or affirm these essential qualities as they are expressed through our bodies, our sexuality, our creativity, our relationships to power, our friendships, and our expectations of ourselves and others. In an atmosphere of tenderness and support, we will clarify the nature of who we are and how we can best take care of ourselves, both here and on returning home. The workshop will be grounded in the techniques of gestalt, encounter, guided fantasy, massage, bioenergetics, and journal work. $290

Your Characters in Search of an Author / John Argue

Each of us is many people. Some of these people are authentic—that is, true expressions of our essence. Some are phony, merely roles we play. We will attempt to learn the difference, to dis-identify with our phony roles (or to keep them and frankly play them with more gusto), and to treasure the true characters, giving each and all room to live and grow. $290

Weekend of August 5-7

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 15. $110

The Psychosynthesis of Daily Life / Diana Becchetti

Psychosynthesis is a practical approach to both psychological and spiritual growth which encourages us to take greater responsibility for our own development. We have all experienced times in our lives when we have felt one with ourselves, when we have a clearer sense of who we are, where we are going and how we fit into the greater scheme of things. What prevents us from experiencing such moments more often? How do we stop ourselves? Each day is filled with polarities and conflicts which often confuse us; yet can help us to grow. There is a place within each of us that can consciously cooperate with our growth process. This introductory workshop in psychosynthesis will include both experiential and theoretical tools and how they can be applied to daily life. $120

Lomi Work: An Exploration of the Body / Mind / Spirit Through Awareness David Kessler

Using the Lomi approach to gestalt, conscious movement, breath awareness, aikido energy techniques, hatha yoga, body work, polarity massage, and meditation, we will explore and enhance our body/mind/spirit process. The focus of this work is cultivation of awareness at all levels of existence. Lomi body work is an integrative form of deep body manipulations whereby tensions in the body are brought to awareness and released. Basically this work speaks of a trust for the human organism and the higher forces that guide it. $120

Awakening & Siddha Meditation / Michael Butler

For workshop description see July 22–24. $120

On Letting Go / Judyth Weaver

Working from the assumption that we are all holding on more than we know, this workshop will use Reichian breathing, sensory awareness, and t'ai chi exercises to get more understanding of what and how we hold on and how to let go for more relaxed, balanced, energetic and enjoyable living. $120

August 6–13

Encountering in the High Sierra Maurica Anderson & Joe Liggett

During this eight-day workshop we will hike into a campsite by a clear mountain lake off the main trails in the High Sierra. Mules will carry in all of the food and most of the camping equipment and personal gear. We will camp by the lake for six days, eating outrageously good food (fresh or frozen rather than freeze dried) and working with body awareness, meditation, yoga, psychodrama and encounter, laughing a lot and getting to know the high country, one another, and ourselves.

Mountaineering experience is not required, but applicants should be capable of hiking. A detailed information sheet will be supplied upon request. Participants will meet in the Sierras on August 6. $240

"Working Hands"—these are those of Amelia Earhart

Week of August 7-12

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

A Psychosynthesis Workshop: From Personal Integration to Transpersonal Realization Diana Becchetti

More and more people are experiencing an increasing need to explore the "further reaches of human nature," those regions full of mystery and wonder which are beyond our ordinary consciousness. In Transpersonal Psychosynthesis, appropriate psycho-spiritual techniques are used for this purpose—meditation, visualization, psychological mountain climbing, inner dialogue, silence and others. On the other hand, the aim of personal psychosynthesis is to reach an integrated personality, needed to rightly handle the power and beauty of these energies without distortion and imbalance, as well as dealing with blocks, conflicts and obstacles to our being who we fully are. Attention will be given to the tools of these two fields of psychosynthesis and their application and understanding for use in daily life. $290

Lomi Work: An Exploration of the Body / Mind / Spirit Through Awareness / David Kessler

The Esalen Work-Study Program

In the process of becoming educated, we are taught that it is more important to be involved with the outside world than with our Selves. We are taught to become Ego-involved—involved with manipulating things and people. We are taught to experience our selves primarily in relation to others; we lose touch with our essence.

From this perspective, we offer an opportunity to return to our Selves within the working context of the Esalen community. Our faculty for this program is our environment—staff—community.

Learning/dis-covering the use of your own energy in work . . .
For your SELF.
Living together (close to others) operatively and co-operatively in a unique, high intensity environment.
Contact/communication with the people of Esalen via group work and in day-to-day Esalen happenings.
An opportunity for:
SELF-regulation
SELF-examination
SELF-contemplation
and if you choose
SELF-reevaluation
Facilitated by removal from your ordinary living context.

Participants make a commitment to work 32 hours per week at such jobs as gardening, maintenance, office, kitchen duties, etc. Scheduling consideration is given to the community labor needs and work assignments are made according to these requirements. (Flexibility is one of the watchwords of life at Esalen). The Work-Study program is for those who are interested in immersion in the total environment of Esalen/Big Sur. It is a work-oriented program (emotionally and physically) and only rarely is it restful. There will be a coming together in the evenings to share—contact—play/alone-together.

Accommodations are shared with up to 3 persons in a room. The program lasts 28 days; four weeks and four weekends at a basic cost of $350. Depending on your work schedule, weekend workshops may be available for an additional fee. Professional services such as massage and rolfing are available at staff rates. Arrangements are made through the office.

It is possible to be in the work-study program up to three months, by invitation, after the first month.

Available dates:
May 22—June 19; June 19—July 17; July 17—August 14; August 14—September 11; September 11—October 9; October 9—November 6; November 6—December 4.

If interested, please apply as early as possible to Work-Study program, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920. Only a limited number of applicants are accepted.

Ways of Being at Esalen

Field and ground in the vegetable garden, Big Sur

South Coast Center

The living center is slowly evolving into a participatory environment
vital
changing
designing, redesigning inner and outer space with residents responsible for their own evolution.

The South Coast Center, located a mile and a half north of Esalen, is a living center for people who would like to be in contact with Esalen and its facilities but who are not interested in an intensive workshop program. Studios (room, balcony, and bath) are available for $350 per month. A monthly meal ticket may be purchased at Esalen for $200 and residents may set up light cooking facilities in their rooms for preparing their own meals. As part of our program of integrating residents into the working community, South Coast residents are asked to contribute eight hours per week of work to the community. In addition, due to the large number of people who want to be at South Coast, we have put a limit of three months on all South Coast residencies. South Coast studios may be reserved through the Esalen/Big Sur office.

Ongoing Residence Program

Offered from September through May, the Ongoing Residential Program is designed for those who would like to have time and space in the Esalen environment for an intensive workshop program over a long term. A minimum stay: 26 days (or four "weeks" and three weekends).

Participants may select any of the five-day workshops offered during their stay. Weekend workshops are available at special prices. Some programs are cancelled, so second choices are advised. Some special staff programs may also be open to residents. The cost is $960 per 26-day period.

Sleeping Bag Group Weekends

The sleeping bag group is another way of being at Esalen—it has a life of its own.

Experience the place—with its hidden moments of beauty and surprise, the baths, the people, YOU. Members of the staff will accompany and share with you some of what they have learned living here at Esalen.

These weekends are offered from September through May. The charge is $60 per person for 10-14 people. You will be living together in one room. Bring your sleeping bags. Meals are provided starting Friday dinner through Sunday lunch. Send inquiries to Sleeping Bag Groups, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920. Applications will be accepted from groups only, not from individuals.

Weekend of August 12-14

Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain: The Essence of T'ai Chi
Al Chung-liang Huang

An introduction to t'ai chi and creative Taoism as explained and exemplified in the book Tao: The Watercourse Way by the late Alan Watts and Al Chung-liang Huang. The meeting of East and West will be explored in terms of everyday living, of transforming intellectual understanding of the East into action, and of making useful applications to the way of life in the West. $120

The Power of Mantra Chanting
Jinendra & Katherine Jain

This workshop will teach the control of energy and the dissolving of tension through proper posture, breath control, and voice toning. Processes will be taught to deepen meditative awareness and to enable you to incorporate inner sound into everyday consciousness so as to transform life into a form of meditation. $120

Inner Love / Simone Surpin

In each of us exists a place where we can merge in and with a certain kind of love: a love that is the source of our inner being; a love that is not dependent on something outside of itself for sustenance; a love that renews and clears our vision of ourselves and of others.

As purely and as simply as possible, we will attempt to explore and experience this state; to touch these experiences with our minds and share them outside ourselves.

We will meditate, chant, do gentle body work practices, and learn about energy flows. Each session will be a blend of both didactic and experiential work. Some time will also be spent working in the garden together and on silent walks in the country. $120

Introduction to Gestalt Practice / Joan Fiore

After introducing the "language" of gestalt and various gestalt experiments in breath, body, and feeling awareness, this workshop concentrates on providing the opportunity for intensive individual gestalt work in a supportive group setting. Suitable for novices as well as veterans. $120

Week of August 14-19

States of Awareness, Shifts of Identity / Robert Nadeau

We are capable of experiencing various states of awareness—off center, centered, pure energy (universal or spiritual). When we are in one of these states we view life from that state's perspective. In this workshop we will experience and study the process of moving from state to state. $290

Five Days with the Four of Us
Julian & Beverly Silverman / George & Judith Brown

$290

Personal Style & Personal Gestalt / Jack Downing

Each of us has our own individual life style, our personal gestalt characterizing each phase of our life. We can be aware of the way movement relates to interpersonal relationship, of how body chemistry determines our life goals. Drawing our own major life portrait will be the object of this workshop, using techniques newly invented for this purpose, as well as traditional methods such as behavioral feedback, group interaction, and gestalt uncovering and integrating methods. In order that the group can develop as fast as possible, please come only if you have had previous group experience. $320

A Stone-Carving Gestalt Workshop
Frank Rubenfeld & Elaine Rapp

Stone is the most "here & now" art medium since it cannot be programmed. Shuttling from your process to the stones' reality and back, your own myths and metaphors emerge before you. Gestalting your becoming and finished creations, you gain the opportunity to expand your consciousness, and increase your response-ability. No talent or previous art experience is necessary to participate in this workshop. Stone and tools will be provided. Bring comfortable work clothing. $290 + $10 materials fee.

Betty Fuller

For workshop description see July 3–8. $120

Sport & Consciousness: New Ideas & Training Routines
Mike Spino

Focusing on running and meditation, this workshop will introduce methods of mind/body development being explored by Mike Spino. These methods include various running gaits and tempos, muscle/skeletal exercises, breathing techniques, visualization and meditation exercises, and some of the role of mystical experiences in sport. Ways in which these elements can be integrated into various training routines will be presented. There will also be discussions of altered states that occur in sport and conceptual frameworks with which to interpret them. $120

Gestalt Process / Jorge Rosner

We can all stop our growth and limit our freedom by fear, internal conflicts, and fantasy. In this workshop we will explore the ways in which we inhibit ourselves from living a full, exciting, and joyous life. Depending upon the needs of the group, the work may include art, theater, and body work, all with gestalt process as the central focus. $120

A Weekend of Energy Release & Integration with Bioenergetics & Gestalt / Alan Schwartz

Read the description of the weeklong workshop (see August 21–26). This weekend will be an opportunity to become aware of blocks to the free flow of energy in the body's musculature. The synthesis of bioenergetic analysis and gestalt which is the energetic dimension provides the environment. Release and integration via grounding concepts will be the focus. $120

Sexism & Sexuality: For Men & Women
Jacqueline Larcombe Doyle

Esalen has long been experienced as a permission-giving environment, sought by many as context in the quest or re-discovery of thier sexuality. This training group provides an opportunity for a renewing personal experience coupled with professional enrichment for those interested in increasing basic sex counseling skills. The group will provide safety and support for an exploration toward resolution of these issues in our own lives, paying particular attention to the impact of sexist attitudes on sexuality. We will focus on the establishment of power relationships; on the roles of competition, jealousy, time and space. Through experience and action, we will explore the social and cultural influences on choices in the expression of this creative life force. $290

The Energetic Foreground: A Bioenergetic-Gestalt Synthesis
Alan Schwartz

Working with the energetic foreground synthesizes the philosophies of bioenergetic analysis and gestalt. The central dynamic of the organism is the energy that makes up the whole person. Energy flow is body flow, emotional flow, and mental flow. Energy is movement. When such movement is blocked on any of the above levels, the organism cannot function to nourish the person towards a mature sense of self. This workshop will move in the direction of such awareness by providing participants an opportunity to work and play through energy blocks, concentrating on those which restrict the expression of the body. This release will provide the insight necessary for participants to glimpse a more total sense of self. $290

Open Psychodrama Encounter / Walt & Maurica Anderson

This workshop is a flexible weekend's work and play using a variety of encounter, gestalt, and body-movement approaches, with emphasis on psychodrama—the enactment of improvised life scenes as a way of expressing feelings, gaining insight, working through interpersonal conflicts, developing more openness and spontaneity, and having fun. The degree of active involvement is up to the individual. $120

Awareness Through Movement: The Feldenkrais Method
Mia Segal

Through a series of simple, gentle exercises devised by Moshe Feldenkrais we will learn more about how our bodies work and explore new possibilities of movement. $120

The Radix Experience: A Neo-Reichian Workshop
Charles Kelley with Siri Mishler, Renan Sercarz, Dale Cummings, Merri Goldenson, & David Grill

The Radix experience is a direct body approach to deep emotional release, rooted in the work of Wilhelm Reich and his students. By concentrating on breaking patterns of breathing and muscular tension, feeling which has been blocked by chronic unconscious patterns of muscular tension called "muscular armor," is freed. As the armor softens and the student allows emotions—fear, anger, pain—to emerge, he realizes a new capacity for trust, love, and joy.

Half of the workshop sessions will be in large group with Chuck Kelley who will present Radix group techniques. Chuck will also describe the concepts which underlie Radix and give an in-depth description of his unique training program. The other half of the sessions will be in small groups, and will include two individual Radix intensive sessions for each participant. $320

Gestalt Principles & Methods / Seymour Carter

This workshop is an opportunity for persons interested in gestalt to experience through practice and concept a number of the important principles and methods in the application of this approach. Focus will be on the awareness continuum, the impasse, contact boundaries, risk taking and sensory awareness. There will be time for working with others under supervision. $290

Gestalt & Meditation / Stella Resnick

Meditation helps to develop the stillness of mind and the power of concentration to use gestalt awareness process more effectively.

This workshop will focus on love, pleasure, and higher consciousness and is particularly recommended for people who have had experience with gestalt and are interested in expanding their sense of the spiritual or for people in spiritual practice who want to move with gestalt to increase personal awareness. $290

Weekend of September 2-4

Dance of Shiva / Gabrielle Roth

Each gesture is from our own nature

What if you slept, and what if in your sleep you dreamed, and what if in your dream you went to heaven and there plucked a strange and beautiful flower, and what if when you awoke you had the flower in your hand? Ah, what then?

—Samuel Taylor Coleridge

Many persons have awakened from dreams with the flower in their hands. The flower has been a song, a poem, a solution to a problem, a new outlook or insight or some other dream gift.

In this group we will consider our dreams as chances to "wake up." We will discuss lucid dreams, how to direct dreams and how to use dreams creatively. $120

Gestalt Can Be a Gentle, Playful, Loving Way
John O Stevens

For me, gestalt is a way of living, something I do with others, not to them. Individual gestalt awareness work—in which I will be a guide as you explore your experiencing—will be our principal focus. There will also be some time for discussion of gestalt theory and the relationship between gestalt practice and other approaches to personal growth. $270

Yosemite Meditation
Michael Tobias & Gretel Johnston

Yosemite Valley is the womb of the world. Camping together in a secluded part of the valley, we will leisurely explore its labyrinth of beauty. Fundamental mountaineering and rock climbing and survival skills will be studied as well as the domain of 'wall-meditation'—an ancient zen form initiated by the Bodhidharma, the 28th patriarch to succeed the Buddha. Participants are expected to bring their own food (which can also be easily purchased in the valley) and camping gear. Advice on useful equipment, best driving routes to the valley, and meeting time and place will be sent out to all participants two weeks in advance.

We will engage in numerous group processes all combining the inner and outer worlds to massage that mirror of nature we possess in our consciousness. We will treat basic elements of fear and our inhibitions to really giving ourselves away to nature. Bouldering, spectacular hikes, tai chi, and group dialogue by campfire late into the starry nights will assist us in the opening of our hearts. $145

Opening the Feelings

RADIX NEO-REICHIAN WORKSHOPS
(formerly Interscience Workshops)

SCHEDULE:

July 15-17	Connie Cossette, Dale Cummings, & Merri Goldenson
August 28-September 2	Charles Kelley, Siri Mishler, Renan Sercarz, Dale Cummings, Merri Goldenson, & David Grill
September 25-30	Renan Sercarz, Anne MacKenzie, Ron Andes
October 7-9	Anne MacKenzie, Claire Killen, Mark Dunlap
October 23-28	Siri Mishler, Dale Cummings, Sharon Henry

To grow in the capacity to experience and express deep feeling, to connect up with oneself, and to contact others is the aim of this series of workshops which employ neo-Reichian techniques of emotional release. The Radix Intensive, a period of individual work within a small group setting, is practiced by Charles and Erica Kelley and their staff at the Radix Work Shop. The Intensive, like other neo-Reichian techniques used in these workshops, grew from the discovery by Charles Kelley's teacher, Wilhelm Reich, of the way in which feeling is rooted in the flow of energy in the body, and is blocked by chronic muscular contractions which Reich called the muscular armor. Freeing the armor enables the student to open feeling that is buried and to soften and free feeling that is too strong and has been held in for fear of explosion.

In these workshops armor is softened by simultaneous work on the character and body, using techniques not only from Reich, but also from bioenergetics, sensory awareness, and other body-oriented approaches. Groups will be kept small—never more than eight per leader—so that significant individual attention can be given. Grief or pain, fear, and rage that have been held in since childhood emerge in these workshops. As the participant accepts and works through these negative feelings, he/she discovers a new capacity for pleasure, trust, and love. In time the sexual experience changes profoundly as tender and sexual feelings for the mate intensify and merge.

Ancient Maps of Consciousness
& Modern Approaches to Self-Exploration
Co-ordinated by Rick Tarnas & Stanislav Grof

A four-week interdisciplinary program exploring the relevance of ancient cartographies of consciousness for the development of self-awareness and their relation to recent developments in psychology and psychotherapy. Evenings will be generally devoted to didactic seminars, lectures, and discussions, while daytime sessions will be conducted by Esalen faculty members guiding participants in various experiential approaches to personal growth. The material presented in this workshop will fall into four major thematic groups:

I. Ancient Maps of Consciousness. The ancient systems of thought covered in this workshop will include astrology, alchemy, Kabbala, Tarot cards, Indian spiritual practices, and the books of the dead (Egyptian, Tibetan, and Ars Moriendi). We will discuss the relevance of these systems as cartographies of personal development and of the spiritual journey.

II. Modern Psychotherapeutic Techniques. We will explore theoretically and experientially several modern growth methods such as gestalt practice, psychosynthesis, encounter, Reichian, and neo-Reichian approaches, Jungian psychology, and Dora Kalff's sandplay.

III. Psychedelic Therapy & Its Implications for Psychiatric Theory. In a series of illustrated discussions, we will explore the principles of drug-assisted psychotherapy with psychiatric patients and dying individuals, the growth potential of altered states of consciousness, and the cartography of the human unconscious emerging from psychedelic research.

IV. Self-Exploration & Group Process. Esalen staff and guest leaders will act as facilitators of an ongoing process of intra-psychic and interpersonal exploration of the participants all through the workshop. An experienced resident astrologer will assist the group members individually in exploring the relevance of transit astrology for their personal process.

The program is limited to 30 participants selected from applicants. The fee is $1150 including room and board. Some working scholarships are available to students on the basis of need. Scholarship forms can be obtained from Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.

If you wish to enroll in the program, send a letter of biographical information to Rick Tarnas, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California

The Gestalt Adventure
Leland Johnson & Mary Ann Merksamer

The experience of being totally here and now, aware and involved leads to the opening of many dimensions . . . increased effectiveness and expressing the meaning, joy and power of the self in the world.

We will combine meditation (yoga and t'ai chi), bioenergetics, sound and body movement with gestalt to connect with our energy toward creative growth. $270

Take a Second Look at Yourself / Janet Sachson Zuckerman

We will focus on taking a good look at what is going on behind the masks we wear and what is underneath the expressions we put on our faces to confront the world. "Who are you?" and "Who do you pretend to be?" are the polarities we will be working with. Every one of us has a great deal of unused potential and I see the group experience as a safe place to begin to tap into this energy. This week will be entirely experiential using mirrors, gestalt, soft-encounter, and sensory awareness. $270

A Workshop for Couples
Beverly & Julian Silverman

We've been through a lot—together (for many years), separate, separate-together. We've raised children (3), been (and are) business partners, had a lot of good times and some rough times . . . and we know how to work with people who are uncomfortable in their lives or who are just plain going through changes. $270

The Hero's Journey
A Holistic Approach to Personal Transformation
Paul Rebillot

The "Hero's Journey" is a dynamic form that has been developed to facilitate people through major life changes. Your personal world is viewed through the lens of fantasy, dramatized, interpreted, and experienced in a rite of passage based on one of the most universal structures mankind has found to express the metamorphosis; the myth of the hero.

Your hero is structured from the absolute yes, and your demon from the absolute no of your personality, externalizing your inner conflict. The two confront each other on the Hero's Journey, a dramatic struggle ensues until a synthesis of the previously opposing forces is reached. $270

Weekend of September 16-18

Journey into Inner Space:
Exploring the Psychology of C G Jung / Edward Crowther

We will interpret the conscious self by examining personality attitudes and functions—introvert, extravert, thinking, feeling, sensation, intuition. The Myers-Briggs personality test will be available to participants.

Through dream interpretation assisted by hypnosis and guided fantasy, we will try to recognize such figures as animus, anima and shadow, who live within us. $110

Your Personal Resurrection / Paul Rebillot

"To suffer one's death and be reborn is not easy."
—Fritz Perls

Confronted with the immanence of your own death, you have the chance to delve deeply into how you feel about yourself, your past, your present, your future, your life and death. This is your chance to take care of any unfinished business that you feel is important.

Once you have said good-bye to all your attachments, and faced your death, your process of rebirth begins. You awake to a new beginning . . . a beginning that allows you to create your own life, since you now have the possibility of choice.

Bring sleeping bags, etc, since Saturday night is an all night vigil used to plan and dramatize your funeral. Also, bring anything else you might want to help intensify the experience. (Clothing, objects, etc) $110

Dance Workshop / Anna Halprin, Daria Halprin, Julian Silverman & the Dancer's Workshop

This workshop will explore dance as a process for integrating body, feelings, mind, and spirit, leading towards health and creativity. This will include natural movement, visualizations, creating and performing movement rituals. Participants may look forward to an experience of expanded self and group awareness, as well as developing tools to use in interpersonal and daily life experiences. Time will be set aside for gestalt work with Julian Silverman. $270

Higher Consciousness Through Core-Energetics
Alexis Johnson & Michael Talbot

This is a workshop for spiritual seekers who have found that their own fulfillment comes from owning their negativities, claiming their joy and greatness and using their bodies. We will use movements associated with bioenergetics, an active form of meditation, and ourselves to explore both our defenses and our inner core or being. The format will involve both group work and individual work with the leaders. $270

Weekend of September 23-25

Awareness Through Movement: The Feldenkrais Method / Ruth Alon

This workshop is for people who are willing to introduce awareness through expanded patterns of movement for improving their functioning in life.

Exploring processes of movement, we gradually experience a wide variety of unused potential, while guided to meditate on the subtle qualities of our inner dynamics. Our vocabulary of possibilities widens together with our self image.

We relearn natural coordination and fluency, reviewing the primal evolution of the developing baby.

The style of pleasant effortless movement in the game of observed experiments, opens us to a nurturing attitude towards ourselves and our growth.

The new kinesthetic freedom creates space for transformed states of mind. $110

Flowering—Learning How to Take It Home with You Alexis Johnson & Michael Talbot

That first expansion into truly feeling alive is glorious. The trick is then to have both the experience and the conceptual framework to maintain the expansion and not be dismayed by the contradictions. We want to extend our area of personal responsibility to include both the rational and irrational, the positive and the negative, the pleasureable and even the painful—we have it all! This workshop will use ourselves and the tools of bioenergetics, gestalt, and meditation to explore our emotional depths, our self-defeating attitudes and our unlimited possibilities. $110

The Body & the Energy Body / George Leonard

Many ancient and modern disciplines of personal health, growth and change depend upon concepts of energy flows in and around the bodies of living things. Using techniques derived from the art of aikido, George Leonard will present his approach to the human biofield or "energy body." Through simple mental and physical exercises, participants will experience their energy bodies in interaction with nature and other people, and will practice centering and heightened awareness. They will be introduced to alternative ways of dealing with everyday life situations—especially those involving tension and expectation—and will explore ways of getting in touch with their own hidden powers. There will also be discussion of these experiences as they relate to education, sports, healing, and social transformation. $110

The Lawyer—A New Perspective A Weekend for Lawyers presented by the Humanistic Law Institute

"Like mounds in a sandy desert, intellectual knowledge is mounting up without provision for the expression of the heart."

—Meher Baba

As lawyers we were trained to use our heads and not our hearts—to make choices and decisions based upon "reason," "principles," and "issues" and not to trust feelings, intuition or compassion—often with less than satisfying results in our "professional" and/or "private" lives.

During this weekend we will explore and share with other lawyers, in the peaceful, reflective, nourishing, and evocative setting of Esalen, ways of using and integrating all aspects of ourselves—our bodies, our minds, our feelings, our "hearts" to see if we can make our work and our "private" lives more effective and more integrated, flowing, meaningful, and enjoyable—or for some of us look more "clearly" at whether we want to continue working as lawyers.

The program will be conducted by a lawyer member of the HLI staff and another experienced group leader and will be largely experiential, using approaches and methods of gestalt awareness, psychosynthesis, massage, meditation, and bioenergetics. $110

Creating Personal Space– A History of Imagination in Wilderness / Michael Tobias

Mornings will be spent in the study and practice of "Rock Meditation," the original form of zen. Our afternoons will see us out-of-doors on a hidden beach and within some magnificent rocky gorges of redwood and waterfall where we'll explore the joyous media of "Bouldering": the physical ascension, embodied in an easy, but exhilarating vertical tai chi through which our horizontal relationship to the world is graphically replaced by a vertical one. It is this reversal of our most basic posture and mental framework that will provide us profound access into an enriching mystery of nature.

Utilizing a diversity of slides and film, we will then trace the mountain-wilderness image throughout history, relating the anthropology of ascent to the inner domain of harmony envisioned by Thoreau. $270

October 2–28

Inner Road to Health / Al Drucker, Dee Mundschenk, David Schiffman & the Esalen Staff

This workshop will focus on two principal themes: health and personal process. Sessions during the day will be devoted primarily to the study of wholistic health practices, whose aim is the prevention of illness and the maintenance of health by natural means. Evening sessions will focus on individual and interpersonal process work based on gestalt and psychosynthesis models; there will also be didactic sessions on the theory of personal evolution and on creative journal keeping.

Included in the health approaches to be covered are: various systems of massage, such as shiatsu, polarity, Esalen massage, and deep tissue massage; acupuncture, acupressure, and the theory of traditional Chinese medicine; structural integration (rolfing); herbal and homeopathic systems of healing; nutrition, diet, fasting, organic gardening.

The workshop faculty of about 15 includes outside visiting teachers as well as resident Esalen staff members. With this workshop we are returning to a lower cost and somewhat more concentrated four-week format. A principal emphasis throughout the month will be on discovering and awakening inner resources. In this connection regular meditation, chanting, yoga, tai chi, massage, and other quieting practices will help still the mind and relax the body, permitting new sensitivities to emerge. We will also have dance, movement, and various forms of energy awareness sessions for the sheer enjoyment of learning to move freely and spontaneously in response to inner rhythms.

The group will meet in the Big House and many of the participants will be housed there. The workshop is offered twice yearly. Enrollment is on a first-come basis, confirmed upon receipt of the deposit. Some partial scholarships will be available and awarded on the basis of need; for this a weekly work committment is required. Our available scholarship fund is frequently exhausted as the program draws near, so applicants are encouraged to apply early by writing to Chris Price, Esalen, Big Sur, CA 93920. Also please write to us before enrolling if you have a health problem. We will try to accommodate your needs or suggest alternative possibilities.

Gestalt Awareness / Julian & Beverly Silverman

How we orient ourselves to the world, how we contact others, depends upon our balance between sensory and muscular functions. Constriction in muscular action tends to constrict the senses and vice-versa, resulting in a limiting of awareness.

In gestalt awareness group work, our concern is with developing a way of being in which one's senses are open and one's style of contacting is flexible. The learning which takes place occurs in the context of a group of individuals who share and change in relation to each other. Emphasis is placed upon body in relation to mind. $270

Change / Jack Gaines

Most of us resist change and prevent ourselves from growth and the very joy of life we seek. There is an important connection between ancient and current teachings that has valuable application in our contemporary daily lives. In this course we will explore our resistance to change by re-viewing these teachings. Our purpose is to get beyond the resistance to the enjoyment of the fullness of life. $110

Being PATIENT with Schizophrenia:
A Different Way of Treatment
Julian Silverman & Bette Dingman

This workshop is concerned with a different way to "treat" acute-dis-ease in consciousness. It involves an approach of not interfering with a person's struggle. It involves being patient until the right moment—the moment when the struggle ceases and there is momentary ease. It involves the "therapist's" use of him/her SELF rather than therapeutic techniques. It involves an advance in the training of therapists. It involves a different way of understanding so-called schizophrenia dis-ease. $110

Weekend of October 14-16

Growing Up-Right: The Greening of Human Plants
Betty Fuller

For workshop description see July 3–8. $110

Healthy Survival: Health Works / Don Lindsay

This will be a workshop in holistic medicine emphasizing prevention, health maintenance and experiential learning about body-psyche interrelations. The workshop includes body work at the Esalen baths. $110

The Innerspaces of Running / Mike Spino

Focusing on the running experience, this workshop will introduce a holistic method of mind/body development. Each participant will be taught various running gaits and tempos, muscle/skeletal exercises, breathing techniques, and the philosophy and lore related to optimum physical fitness. There will be special emphasis on guided fantasy, inner space development, and creativity in quest for extraordinary experiences. Each person will receive an individual consultation and have the opportunity to continue towards personal goals on an ongoing basis. $110

Self-Acceptance: The Freedom to Be
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

For workshop description see July 31—August 5. $110

Week of October 16-21

Growing Up-Right: The Greening of Human Plants
Betty Fuller

For workshop description see July 3–8. $270

Varieties of Sexual Experiences & Behaviors (Observations from LSD Research) / Stanislav Grof

Using the extended cartography of the human unconscious based on observations from clinical LSD research, we will discuss the nature of sexual energy and the many specific forms it assumes. Special attention will be paid to new understanding of the psychodynamics of sexual variations, disorders, and deviations, and to transpersonal dimensions of sex (satanic, oceanic, and tantric). We will use a combination of discussion, group interaction, experiential exercises, mandala drawings, slide and film projection, and non-drug technology for altering consciousness. Participants will have the opportunity to confront their feelings about sexuality and gain deeper insight into the nature of their experiences in this area. $270

Gestalt & Meditation / Stella Resnick

For workshop description see August 28–September 2. $270

Growth Center Administration

This will be a five day workshop with the trustees and managers of Esalen Institute reviewing our working styles and sharing the information we have learned through the years about administering a growth center. Depending upon the interests of the group, the subjects covered may include accounting, insurance, promotion, programming, personnel policies, work relationships, etc. $270

Weekend of October 21-23

States of Awareness, Shifts of Identity / Robert Nadeau

For workshop description see August 14–19. $110

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 15. $100

A Dialogue of Dreams / Maurice Friedman & Jan Clanton

This workshop is concerned with the meeting between the "inner world" and the "life of dialogue" through sharing dreams. After the facilitators have laid the groundwork and set the tone, the members of the group will be asked to bring recent and immediate dreams into the realm of the "between" by telling them to the group, responding to them, and inviting others to respond with interpretation, affect, events and situations in their own lives, and/or dreams of their own. Interpretations, Jungian or Buberian, will be used not as ends in themselves but as means to enriching and enlivening the dialogue between members of the group. $110

Awakening & Siddha Meditation / Michael Butler

For workshop description see July 22–24. $110

Week of October 23-28

Opening the Feelings: A Neo-Reichian Radix Workshop
Siri Mishler, Dale Cummings & Sharon Henry

For workshop description see page 24. $300

Gestalt Principles & Methods / Seymour Carter

For workshop description see August 28–September 2. $270

Yoga, Meditation, Movement, Massage
Deborah Sulochana Medow

For workshop description see July 17–22. $270

Weekend of October 28-30

Centering in Action / Bob Kriegel

The purpose of this workshop is to show that there is nothing mysterious, mystical, or devotional about centering—the process of tuning into that place of inner strength and wisdom from which we experience more of our possibilities and potential.

To experience centering we will play active games of all types, invent new ones, and practice exercises from yoga, aikido, t'ai chi, and sensory awareness.

We will use gestalt awareness, visualization, and psychosynthesis techniques to bring the insights gained in these activities to a more conscious level and to transfer them into our daily lives. $110

I'm Entitled / George & Judith Brown

For workshop description see July 24–29. $110 per person

Gestalt Awareness / Janet Lederman

Lecture / Demonstration / Training
Focus: Perception / Deception / Reception $110

Massage Intensive / The Esalen Massage Crew

For workshop description see July 10–15. $110

Reunion of the Class of '68

A reunion of the 1967–1968 Residence Program is being planned. Interested members please contact John Heider, Box 1129, Mendocino, CA 95460.

Future Workshop Announcements

Workshops of more than one week require special planning for participants. Whenever possible we will announce such workshops well in advance. More detailed descriptions—and any changes—will appear in the catalog covering the period in which the workshop is scheduled.

November 6—December 2

An Integrative Approach to Group Process & Individual Growth (A four week internship program for personal & professional growth) David Schiffman, Dee Mundschenk, Richard & Christine Price with the Esalen staff

Over the years Esalen has functioned as a major clearing house for a wide variety of approaches and means for facilitating personal evolution and expression. One's journey could begin with any realm—mental, physical, emotional, or transpersonal—each path serving to create a wealth of information and energetic access.

What are the common experiential and conceptual threads that underlie each of these paths? How can these treads of experience be best woven together to create a fabric whose qualities are simultaneously exquisite in their delicacy while still remaining strong enough to sustain the wear and tear of worldly existence? And how best might this very personal process of self-discovery and integration be taught and shared with others?

The exploration and resolution of these and other basic questions pertaining to the process of change and growth will serve as the basis of our work together during this month long institute program.

During the month each participant will have the opportunity to clarify and develop his/her own ability, style, and artfulness both as individual guide and group facilitator, as well as to do in-depth personal work and training in gestalt practice, body work, psychosynthetic techniques, and the meditative arts.

The program will be structured to include: intensive individual work, supervised observations, practicum work in group leading and individual counseling skills, video feedback, illustrated lectures and didactic theoretical sessions. The emphasis throughout will be on creating a personally integrated perspective linking human potential practices with traditional psychological and counseling modalities.

Curriculum

The curriculum will include 150 contact hours. Session time will be divided into seminars, individual observation-supervision sessions, and group sessions. Seminars will consist of conceptual presentations, guided exercises and discussions done by core as well as visiting faculty.

Observation and supervision sessions will involve individual counseling among group members with supervision by core faculty. Included in these will be video replays and discussions pertinent to the work being done.

Group sessions will provide the participants with the opportunity to do in-depth work on their own process with core faculty as well as explore practical applications of material presented in seminars. In addition a major portion of the last week will be used for polishing leadership skills with each person in the group being given the opportunity to lead. Video feedback will again be employed. Some of the major areas and practices to be explored during this program include:

A. Physiological maps and entries to experience

Beginning from the assumption that the human body is a metaphor which holds and reflects how we have been shaped by past experience and habits, we will explore the effects of these patterns and their possible transcendence. Sessions in t'ai chi, bio-energetics, shiatsu, and massage will be scheduled to provide tools and perspectives relating to physically rooted patterns of holding and diminishment.

B. Gestalt Practice

The emphasis in this phase of our work together will be in creating a stance to facilitation which is non-analytic, non-coercive, and non-judgmental. We'll focus on the use of the awareness continuum, the nature of the impasse, contact and boundaries, ways of visualization and meditation and the development of leadership skills which reflect clarity and flow from whatever emerges in process.

C. Psychosynthetic Techniques

Using the over-arching perspective created by Psychosynthesis we'll examine reference points and specific experiences which include discerning different levels of the unconscious, basic personality organization, choice and the development of will, resolving inner conflicts, reflective and receptive meditation, dis-identification and self-identification, the use of ideal models, the nature of purpose, developing desired qualities, aligning with the transpersonal, guided imagery, journal work and music.

D. The Psycho-dynamics of Group Structure

Drawing on techniques based primarily in encounter we'll look into the formation of the group, ascertaining its energy field, the stages of group evolution, inclusion, power and affection, grounding cathartic experience in the group context, as well as examining the differences and effects of counseling, teaching and encounter modalities.

The program is designed both for professionals and students and those interested in the fields of psychiatry, psychology, religion, education, and philosophy. A few partial scholarships are available for this program. For scholarship applications write Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920. The program will have an enrollment limited to eighteen people. $1150 Deposit: $400

The Bodymind of Gestalt Theory & Practice A Three Week Intensive Training / Ilana Rubenfeld

This workshop is designed as an intensive three week training program for those people who want to incorporate gestalt theory and practice into their own work. We will be learning the basic tools of the gestalt approach and working with them in relationship to our own personal growth, as well as in supervised practice sessions with each other. We will explore the roles of practitioner, client, and observer, learning from these different perspectives the means of clearer facilitation of the Gestalt process.

Since Ilana Rubenfeld's approach to her own work includes the totality of body/mind, she will use and teach some principles of the bodymind work derived from the F M Alexander Technique and the Feldenkrais method. This she will do in relationship to each person's own development. In addition, part of the third week will be devoted to the question of using touch and of integrating non-verbal with verbal work.

The faculty includes Ilana Rubenfeld, Richard and Christine Price, Julian Silverman, Beverly Silverman, Janet Lederman, Paul Rebillot, Janet Zuckerman, and the Esalen massage crew.

This program will take place in the Big House which provides a unique situation for the creation of a community of work, humor, and self-exploration.

If you wish to apply, please send a letter containing personal and professional interests and a photograph to: Ilana Rubenfeld, 115 Waverly Place, New York, NY 10011.

DEFINITIONS

Of Some Approaches to Human Growth Used in this Catalog

PSYCHOSYNTHESIS

Psychosynthesis is a psychological and educational approach for recognizing and harmonizing the many, often conflicting, elements of our inner lives. It is a developmental process based on a positive conception of man/woman within an evolving universe. Starting with each person's existential situation as he or she perceives it, personal growth is organized into a process aiming at the integration of personality and the emergence of an effective unifying center of being and awareness, the Self. The practical work of psychosynthesis chooses in each situation the appropriate progressive activities among many techniques and methods available. Some of these are: guided imagery, movement, self-identification, creativity, gestalt, meditation, training of the will, symbolic art work, journal keeping, ideal models, and development of intuition. The emphasis is on fostering an ongoing process of growth that can gain momentum and bring about a more joyful, balanced actualization of one's life.

MASSAGE

Massage is a healing art. It is practiced to help the body relax, to release tensions, to balance the energy flow, and to soothe the being with gentle caring. Massages are given individually; workshops, classes, and private lessons are available.

T'AI CHI CHUAN

T'ai Chi Chuan is an ancient Chinese exercise discipline practiced for health, meditation, energy flow, and self-defense. The slow, flowing movements of this "shadow boxing" comprise the oldest and "softest" of the Asian martial arts. Developed from the Chinese practice of nei kung, or inner exercise, it is part of the system of Taoist yoga. The term t'ai chi can be translated as "grand ultimate" and is expressed by the familiar symbol of yang and yin. It is thus rooted in the Chinese philosophy of change as expressed in the I Ching.

SHIATSU MASSAGE

Shiatsu massage is the oriental healing art in which the hands are used to apply pressure to acupuncture points over the entire body, allowing the springs of life to flow.

BIOENERGETIC ANALYSIS

Bioenergetic analysis attempts to understand the life of the body through its expression of vitality, gesture, emotion, feeling, and relationship. The body is viewed as an energetic process that participates as the world in the world of instinctual, social, imaginative, and creative realms. Bioenergetics seeks to develop an individual's range of expression by working through this process.

ENCOUNTER

The ground rules of encounter are that participants be open and honest in a group setting, that they avoid mere theorizing and instead talk about their feelings and perceptions. There is often an emphasis on eliciting emotions which lead to positive or negative confrontations rather than away from them. The focus of encounter is to explore interpersonal relations. Over the past years encounter, as practiced at Esalen, has evolved into a broad approach incorporating several related disciplines to achieve its aims. Techniques and insights gained from gestalt, sensory awareness, bioenergetics, massage, movement, and structural integration are all part of Esalen's encounter groups today.

GESTALT

Gestalt Awareness Training is a theory and approach to personality integration first developed by Fritz and Laura Perls, though new styles and methods are being developed by other leaders. The goal of the training is to assist the participants to utilize excitement and awareness and to develop responsibility. Excitement—to have life energy freely available and flowing, not blocked. Awareness—to be conscious of my energy as and where it flows; to have action accessible to consciousness, not happening mechanically. Responsibility—to know and act on the principle that I am the one who acts, thinks, and feels whatever it may be that I act, think, or feel. No one else or no event influences me except with my consent. At times, everyone in the workshop may work simultaneously with some awareness exercise, or in interaction with each other. More traditionally, a fair amount of time will be spent with participants working individually with the leader. The starting point for such individual work is whatever is here and now of most involving concern for the organism; a fantasy or dream, an interaction with another person, a memory, or a physical posture. "Problems" are welcome as starting points, if they are truly present and not merely verbally presented. In keeping with the gestalt emphasis on personal responsibility, the leader usually leaves the initiative for such work with the participants. The assumption is made that participants are not "patients" but are persons responsible for their own life decisions.

STRUCTURAL INTEGRATION (ROLFING)

Structural Integration or Rolfing is a method of deep manipulation of the musculo-skeletal system that aims at balancing the major segments of the body. We have learned that connective tissue (fascia, tendons, ligaments) can be lengthened by palpation and direct manipulation; this makes it possible to reorganize the basic body lines. A properly organized body will be subject to less stress and will move in a more economical way. Structural Integration has a second principle: posture is behavior. Humans are psychophysical organisms; one cannot divorce their physical from their psychological functions. When you change the structure, you change the function.

Special Information

THE ESALEN CATALOG is published quarterly. Subscription cost for one year is $2 for the United States, $4 for Canada and Mexico, $8 for Europe and South America and $10 for all other countries. Those attending Esalen workshops and conferences are automatically added to the mailing list for one year. A single inspection copy of the current issue is available free upon request from Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

CONTRIBUTIONS to Esalen Institute are tax deductible.

ACCREDITATION and the USE OF ESALEN'S NAME: at present, we do not offer accreditation in the form of certificates or diplomas, such as those conferred by traditional schools. Many formal educational institutions do recognize the time spent at Esalen as being worthy of credit in their own curriculum. Check with your university or college for further information. We would be glad to supply information to your school regarding any of our programs or series of programs.

RECORDINGS OF ESALEN PROGRAMS: For a catalog of recordings of Esalen / San Francisco programs contact Big Sur Recordings, 2015 Bridgeway, Sausalito, California 94965. They also have Big Sur programs prior to 1973.

Commercial use of Esalen program tapes is prohibited; all rights are reserved.

FILMS of the work of Fritz Perls, Carl Rogers, Abraham Maslow, Rollo May, Virginia Satir, Alexander Lowen, and others are available from Psychological Films, 205 West 20th Street, Santa Ana, California 92706. for general information.

Unless otherwise indicated, all programs listed in this brochure are residential programs in Big Sur. Send reservations for all programs to Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.

Esalen lies 300 miles north of Los Angeles and 175 miles south of San Francisco. It is directly over the shoreline of the Pacific with the Santa Lucia Range rising sharply behind. The property, which has natural hot baths, was once the home of a North American Indian tribe known as Esalen.

We are a 45-mile drive south from Monterey, 11 miles south of Nepenthe, on California Coast Route 1. From the south, we are 50 miles north of San Simeon. A lighted sign on the ocean side of the highway reads: Esalen Institute—By Reservation Only.

Deposit Information: We require an advance deposit of $20 for weekend groups, $70 for five-day groups, $200 for two-week groups, $300 for three-week groups, and $400 for month-long groups. Deposits are not refundable but, with five days' notice, may be transferred to other Esalen programs. Please mail all reservations to Esalen/Big Sur. Balance of payment is due on arrival. Esalen accepts Master Charge and American Express. U S currency only, please.

Scholarship Information: If you need scholarship assistance for a long term Esalen program, write for a scholarship application form before making a reservation (allow at least 3 weeks for processing as we have many applications). If your application is approved, please make a reservation as soon as possible after receiving notice. No scholarship assistance is available for June 15—August 31 programs or for weekend programs.

General Information: Workshop fees cover tuition, food, and lodging. Rooms are shared by two or three workshop participants. Camping on the grounds is prohibited.

Weekend programs begin with dinner on Friday and end with lunch on Sunday. Five-day and longer programs begin with dinner on Sunday and end with lunch on Friday. Rooms become available at 5 pm; however, guests are welcome to arrive anytime after lunch.

Esalen has no child care facilities. Please do not plan to bring children. We also ask workshop participants not to have guests. Alas, no pets.

Esalen's flourishing organic garden provides the kitchen with many of its vegetables and herbs. Our breads and pastries are made by Esalen bakers.

Limousine Service: Those traveling by air or bus can obtain limousine service to Esalen by notifying the office of time of arrival. Pickups are made at the Monterey Airport and the Greyhound terminal at 5—5:30 pm each Sunday and Friday. The cost is $15 per person one way, payable on arrival at Esalen.

Seminarians as Staff (Karma Yoga): Seminarians in residence at Esalen are expected to contribute several hours per week to work with the staff. Your help enables us to meet the pressures of peak working times and enables you to experience Esalen from the inside out. A staff member will appear at your first workshop meeting to schedule volunteer help.

Esalen Institute is a center to explore those trends in education, religion, philosophy, and the physical and behavioral sciences which emphasize the potentialities and values of human existence. Our activities consist of seminars and workshops, residential programs, consulting, and research.

We exist to sponsor, encourage, synthesize, and attempt evaluation of work in these areas, both inside and outside our own organizational framework. Since we are a center for experimental education, we ask that persons come to our programs out of an educational interest. We ask that no one come whose interest is "cure." We point out here, as we have in workshops and seminars, that some persons, particularly those with a history of psychiatric problems, may find some programs difficult, trying, or potentially risky. We recommend that in case of any doubt, a physician or trusted counselor be consulted.

Early this year a baby was born at Esalen. It was delivered by a midwife with a physician in attendance. The birth of the baby boy, Alexander, to Monika Mueller was an important event for many of us. This poem was written about the birth itself by a fifteen year old girl.

Who's Responsible at Esalen?

We have long regarded Esalen Institute as an educational laboratory. Our evolving philosophical and operational positions reflect this regard. Underlying it all is a baseline ethic of "self-awareness and self-responsibility." However re-presented and operationalized in the past, by us or by others, this ethic continues to be the basis for our world view, and following from this, our educational approach. The self-awareness/self-responsibility ethic has grown and stabilized out of at least two generations of weighty dis-illusioning social and political events—all connected by a common reminder:

> Give away your personal faculties of discernment, of evaluation, of self-reference, and you lose your integrity (your wholeness). "Take responsibility for your every thought, your every feeling, your every action," said our beloved friend and teacher, Fritz Perls.

We view the implications of this position as being social as well as personal. They concern the ways we relate to ourselves and others.

In our position as educators, we invite people to take responsibility for their whole life situation while at Esalen. This includes taking responsibility for who they select as their teachers, their leaders, their gurus, their authority figures . . . and so on—and to be aware, whenever possible, what effect this has on them. We, of necessity, are setting up a situation for our seminarians to learn the practice of self-responsibility from the time they consider selecting a workshop, not just during the workshop. In effect, we are asking that this self-responsibility attitude be present in the initial contact with Esalen. Ideally, the same attitude will pervade after a workshop when our seminarians go back to the community and seek out others—physicians, teachers, counselors, mental health professionals, etc.

As we have become more thoughtful and self-critical about the overall direction of Esalen we have begun to concentrate on enhancing our basic offering—the Esalen environment and life style. Our primary emphasis is not on teaching particular truths or personal and interpersonal techniques for daily life; rather our primary concern is with a particular consciousness and developing an environment to support the evolution of that consciousness—the consciousness of self-awareness/self-responsibility.

TWO MEDICAL

The two articles in this section represent the begin ning of a forum on the role of medicine in contem porary society. The opinions presented in these arti cles do not necessarily represent the views of Esale Institute; what they do represent is our belief tha various viewpoints on the role of medicine need t

The following communication was written by a senior medical faculty member to the chairman of the department of medicine of a prominent medical school. For publication purposes the original communication has been shortened and edited to maintain anonymity of the author and of the medical school.

Directions In Medical Education

I do think that there is a problem in our medical educational system. The ultimate products, i.e., the physicians we produce, are not related to the health care needs of the people. We are creating a "cure for which there is no disease." There are, of course, other fruits produced by the Medical Center activity; these are research and service. I think the jury is out on whether or not we do a good job at these activities. I'm in no position to judge the quality of research here; I feel in a better position looking at the kinds of service we deliver, and it is my opinion that we come off poorly. However, a critique of our Medical Center health care delivery system is not the purpose of this note. It is important, however, to emphasize that we do tertiary care[1], and that the surrounding community looks to us to do certain kinds of specialized technological endeavors which frequently relate to the complex and unusual health afflictions of our society. It is apparent then, that the activities here, i.e., the research and the tertiary care, are our clinical base and are, of necessity, the fodder of our educational activities. Basing our educational system on material of this sort is, in my opinion, quite inappropriate. I feel it is largely because of this inappropriate education process that we are faced with our widely acclaimed crisis in medical health care. Yes, I would include the costs of medical care, increasing dissatisfaction by the public, and even the malpractice crises.

Attempts have been made, especially by the family practice movement, to develop a compendium of skills needed for the family physicians. We are doing the same sort of thing in the division of internal medicine concerning the internist. I think this is a worthwhile step, but even this approach has considerable bias. On the surface, it would seem logical to look at the kinds of problems being seen in the primary care[2] environment and from this one can gain an intuition into the skills which are needed to deal with these problems. However, there really is a danger here, because problems are defined by the individual whom we have trained. This is not only the result of our organic[3], physiologic and biochemical orientation we give our students, but is also aggravated by incentives forced upon us by insurance companies who try to avoid payment for conditions which are not organically and disease related. In my experience, it is almost routine to see a musculoskeletal or GI conversion reaction[4] called osteoarthritis or gastritis by worthy members of the profession and treated accordingly. When I see these long lists of primary care problems they usually don't fit with my experience, and I am arrogant enough to be skeptical.

The following article was written by a medical doctor who has been in the private practice of dermatology for 15 years and who is an assistant clinical professor of medicine at the University of Southern California.

A Physician Discovers His Own Body

It is now fashionable to deprecate the tremendous advances and accomplishments of medical technology. There are those who would refute all technology, naively attributing the human misuse of technology to technology itself. If one carries such reasoning back far enough, one ends up in a natural cave without a fire.

On the other hand, medicine is far from perfect and sure to profit from the fruition of some of the changes for which the public is clamoring. Should these changes be in the direction of, "You physicians must take better care of me, the patient"? Is this what we really want? Perhaps many of the criticisms of medicine revert to the exaggerated authoritarian-dependent nature of the present physician-patient relationship. The patient wants to be taken care of, yet he resents the weaknesses implicit in the very dependent relationship he desires. After all, isn't it the patient, the public who have given the physician his power? A way to counter this would be for the patient to become more responsible for his own care. This puts the power back to where it originated, with the patient, rather than diverting it to some authority figure who is going to make physicians do what they are supposed to do.

Two desirable changes in the present health care system, then, might be to give some attention to the humanness of the nurse and physician, and for the patient himself to assume more responsibility for his own care.

How can the patient, the physician and the nurse take care of themselves better? Perhaps physicians are not as kind, as loving, as human as their patients would want because they have diverted away from taking care of their own needs. Many physicians see the world as a competitive striving, long term goal-oriented situation where they survive by studying, thinking, and working more. Their lives have become a struggle toward something rather than an expression of being. The paradox is that they of all people are often the least aware of their own bodies. Awareness of one's own body sensations and the entree this gives to basic comfort, serenity and joy has been lost in the struggle. Many simply have never had time for these things. Thus deprived, it is no wonder they begin to ignore the same things in their patients and to act as if all there is for them is to deliver the technology they have learned and so to get ahead.

The physician can hardly expect to learn this awareness from the institutions that may well be abetting it. Perhaps Esalen is in a unique position to offer this alternative.

In my own experience, a chance vacation from a busy practice, enforcing rest, made me aware of being bone tired. A visit to Esalen showed me, after some resistance, that with all my intellectual commitment to the care of human bodies, I was not aware of my own. Knowing about bodies was vastly different than experiencing. I could only experience

Food for Thought

my own. I had never even noticed that when I was startled I held my breath. I had never realized I could counter fear and cause muscle relaxation simply by causing myself to breathe. I soon realized that being alienated from my body in some way deprived me of a basic sense of well being. Such deprivation engendered feelings of insecurity and survival fears. These I attempted to counter by accumulating more things and by patterns of self-indulgence. Self-indulgence here means deriving comfort from repeating familiar experiences, even though they may be harmful. Thus I was narrowing my adaptive capacitv

It was different from the heavy athletics I had pushed on myself. This gentle, sensitive body awareness I contacted at Esalen, requiring, as it did, periods of quiet, developed a spiritual awareness. This, in some inexplicable, gut level way, softened my certainty. The word spiritual had always made me defensive. Yet I didn't have to believe anything. One day I became aware of a sense of serenity and joy welling up in me. It was unreasonable, therefore I resisted it and deprecated it for some time. ■

—Donald G Lindsay, MD

One might argue that it is quite appropriate to train people to do complicated things on complex patients. With this knowledge they can go out into the world and learn how to do the easy things on their own. This is a philosophy which has many proponents around the Medical Center. There are several problems with this approach. First off, people who voice this approach can't have tried to manage psychophysiologic problems which are far from easy. Some of the worst disasters I've seen in our Diagnostic Clinic have been given this approach to their conversion reaction, a tremendous waste of resources, assault and battery in the form of unneeded surgery, and a resultant emotional and physical cripple. Secondly, the approach is wasteful. Third, the physicians we train will be unhappy; they expect to do one thing, and are expected to do another. Fourth, my experience would lead me to believe that a skill imparted to a trainee when mastered will be applied with regularity, whether needed or not. I am personally convinced that much of what we do here is quite unnecessary, and, as a matter of fact, meddlesome. The fact that it is fifty times as likely to get one's cranium opened here as it is in the Soviet Union is such supporting evidence. I think the assumptions that skills learned would be applied "only when needed" is quite cavalier. This is easiest to conceptualize when dealing with surgical specialties. It is more subtle and equally the case with medical subspecialties. I believe there is a tendency for each of us to generalize one's experience and apply it to the specific. When the skills learned in an institution like this one are applied in the real world, we have a definite problem. The cadence of information gathering on an acutely ill patient with an unusual disease here at the Medical Center may not be applicable to the patient drawn from a more representative community. The number of tests needed, risk procedures, performed here may not be appropriate outside this institution. However, this is the only experience our trainees have and "in our images" they will apply these techniques with great vigor. I was interested recently in talking to colleagues about their research, attempting to reduce the laboratory work done on patients on a particular service and trying to relate this to outcome. Their tentative preliminary findings would suggest that there is at least no change in the outcomes of patients on whom less lab work is done, and as a matter of fact, the outcomes may have improved. Although it is quite an interesting and noble effort, nobody seems to question the process which has occurred down the line, somewhere, which causes physicians to act in this manner, i.e., doing all that laboratory work.

There is a dissatisfaction syndrome I have seen in young physicians moving into the practice setting after their training. They frequently are contemptuous of the patient population of their colleagues and complain because they're bothered with what they think are inconsequential problems. Not infrequently, they bounce a couple of times from one practice to another before settling down to a realistic attitude. I see the same syndrome almost daily in the Clinic with our residents. The kinds of problems we see in General Medical Clinic are much more representative than anything else around this place. Our young physicians trained in rare conditions and technologic medicine are not interested in ordinary problems.

It was interesting to me after going through residency that, when I moved into my office in the area, I was looked upon with great respect, was asked to do C.P.C.'s (clinical pathological conferences) and asked to run the coronary care unit, and I was quite valued by my peers because of my technological skills. It was apparent to me, however, that what I did well for my patients had nothing to do with what I had learned at the Mecca. Most of what I was doing as a physician was just what I had been doing as a small town GP and had been learned in the school of hard knocks. My patients valued me for one reason and my peers for another. I proceeded, however, because of skills imparted to me, to develop an unneeded catheterization lab at the hospital, and opened the first CCU (Coronary Care Unit) in the area with all its "benefits." It was recently with great interest that I read Mather's article which seemed to show that a randomized study of individuals with acute myocardial infarction fare just as well at home as they did with the benefits of the CCU treatment. It seems very easy for me to accept now, whereas in 1966 and 1967 I was quite enthusiastic about what I was doing, "whether it was needed or not."

I'd like to comment some more about the prevailing feeling around this institution which is sort of an accepted axiom, and that is that our job should rightfully be to teach people how to do the hard things and they can learn for themselves how to do the easy things. One would hope that providers would be most capable when the situation is most critical and if you have to slight your training, slight it toward knowledge and skills relating to conditions which are probably not life-threatening and will disappear spontaneously. This kind of thinking is based on the problem of the relevance of the experience here. Most academicians really worry about the generalizability of their results in experimental process. Few people here ever question the generalizability of our medical school experience to the educational needs of the students and trainees. A graphic characterization would be that we "do our damnedest to train people here for what they are not going to do." I am basing this on my experience as a practitioner. In all of my time on the front lines, I saw two patients who had leukemia. In my practice, which was slanted toward cardiac disease, I carried possibly five patients with heart disease and two patients with other rare diseases. Even if I spent a lot of time during my residency training seeing these kinds of problems, with the frequency with which they appear in the practice setting, I would find it necessary to refer my patients off in any event. An interesting figure is that the average practitioner sees one and one-half new cases of cancer per year (including skin cancer) and when I ask our students and incoming interns their estimate of this number, I usually get a figure between twenty and fifty.

There are many areas, even with the State of California, where doctors trained as we train them would be very useful. For instance, Merced County, with a population of 110,000 has two internists, both hospital based, acting almost entirely as consultants, seeing critically ill and unusual problems. Unfortunately, I don't see many of our students going to areas of need. Our elitest system recruits individuals who have cultural interests which preclude their moving away from the urban center where they can partake of the ballet, symphony, and good restaurants. They can always come to grand rounds or attend on the wards to see "interesting cases."

I see the General Medical Clinic as a real effort on your part to beef up the stature of general medicine here and try and get some primary care activities going. It is certainly more than a token effort, but there are many barriers to a success. As I see our educational activities "improve," I see us looking more and more like the rest of the institution. The topics chosen by students, residents and faculty to discuss are the same tertiary care topics which are discussed in the subspecialty areas. This occurs, of course, because these topics are the vogue. In order to really develop a meaningful program, one has to make a more fundamental change in the system, in order for it to be effectual. Even if we do put out general internists from this kind of a program, they are still going to have the same inherent defects that characterize our products. They will be turned on by the weird and wonderful biochemical or physiologic abnormality. They will be disinterested and put upon by ordinary human problems; they will be ill-equipped to manage psychosocial issues and they will feel they have a right to be intellectually stimulated by the disease process.

My suggestions are fairly long-range and fairly drastic, so I don't expect much to happen. However, were I in a position of power and influence, I would certainly push for what I consider are these reforms:

1. Medical School Requirements
   I think we should de-emphasize hard science in our Medical School requirements and give emphasis to behavioral science rather than "physics and calculus." I would feel that behavioral science, communication techniques, cultural studies, anthropology, humanistic psychology and ethics would be more appropriate. It also seems ridiculous to have language requirements which are inappropriate to the local area. If there is a language requirement, it would seem logical, in our setting, to have it be Spanish.
2. Recruitment
   We should try to find "people-oriented" recruits rather than persons oriented toward intellectual perturbation. When molecular biology fails, their inherent interest in people will keep them going. Recruitment should be programmed to relate to the health care service needs of society, present and future; for instance, if, in reality, the Medical School produces eighty-five percent practicing clinicians, it is ridiculous to recruit people who voice an interest in "research."

   If there is a need over the next ten years or so for primary care physicians, it would seem appropriate to program the Admissions Committee to relate to this need in their recruitment efforts.
3. Basic Science
   My scheme would be to de-emphasize the molecular biology and the basic sciences moving toward an approach such as that discussed for premedical studies. Equal time would be given to social systems and behavioral sciences in our basic first two years with an emphasis early on in family-oriented care.
4. Clinical Education
   The most drastic changes would occur in the clinical education base which I feel should be a representative experience. I would feel the Medical School should be decentralized in community settings and the primary clinical education, including clerkships, should be based in primary, ambulatory care. Experiences at the Medical Center in teritary care would be elective and de-emphasized. This would have an added beneficial effect in that, if the amount of training done at the Medical Center is reduced, it would improve the efficiency of the operation to allow the cadre of people delivering care at the Medical Center to concentrate on service and research and would considerably replace the continued production of unneeded hyperspecialized providers. Residency training programs at the Medical Center should be considerably reduced and programmed according to need as determined at a national level. As you are aware, each of the health regions in the country is to have a high-level committee to determine the number of specialized providers needed, so these limitations will be imposed some future time in any event.

This arrangement will have a salutary effect on the institution. Service delivery and research could be done at the Medical Center. Teaching faculty largely based in primary care would develop and flourish at the community level and act as role models for our budding physicians. Many of the problems associated with definition of scholarly activity, appointments, tenure, and the like, would in all likelihood disappear. ■

A Week with Will Schutz

$300

October 2–28

Inner Road to Health / Al Drucker, Dee Mundschenk, David Schiffman & the Esalen Staff

This workshop will focus on two principal themes: health and personal process. Sessions during the day will be devoted primarily to the study of wholistic health practices, whose aim is the prevention of illness and the maintenance of health by natural means. Evening sessions will focus on individual and interpersonal process work based on gestalt and psychosynthesis models; there will also be didactic sessions on the theory of personal evolution and on creative journal keeping.

Included in the health approaches to be covered are: various systems of massage, such as shiatsu, polarity, Esalen massage, and deep tissue massage; acupuncture, acupressure, and the theory of traditional Chinese medicine; structural integration (rolfing); herbal and homeopathic systems of healing; nutrition, diet, fasting, organic gardening.

The workshop faculty of about 15 includes outside visiting teachers as well as resident Esalen staff members. With this workshop we are returning to a lower cost and somewhat more concentrated four-week format. A principal emphasis throughout the month will be on discovering and awakening inner resources. In this connection regular meditation, chanting, yoga, tai chi, massage, and other quieting practices will help still the mind and relax the body, permitting new sensitivities to emerge. We will also have dance, movement, and various forms of energy awareness sessions for the sheer enjoyment of learning to move freely and spontaneously in response to inner rhythms.

The group will meet in the Big House and many of the participants will be housed there. The workshop is offered twice yearly. Enrollment is on a first-come basis, confirmed upon receipt of the deposit. Some partial scholarships will be available and awarded on the basis of need; for this a weekly work committment is required. Our available scholarship fund is frequently exhausted as the program draws near, so applicants are encouraged to apply early by writing to Chris Price, Esalen, Big Sur, CA 93920. Also please write to us before enrolling if you have a health problem. We will try to accommodate your needs or suggest alternative possibilities.

Tuition: $1150 Deposit: $400

Creating Personal Space– A History of Imagination in Wilderness / Michael Tobias

Mornings will be spent in the study and practice of "Rock Meditation," the original form of zen. Our afternoons will see us out-of-doors on a hidden beach and within some magnificent rocky gorges of redwood and waterfall where we'll explore the joyous media of "Bouldering": the physical ascension, embodied in an easy, but exhilarating vertical tai chi through which our horizontal relationship to the world is graphically replaced by a vertical one. It is this reversal of our most basic posture and mental framework that will provide us profound access into an enriching mystery of nature.

Utilizing a diversity of slides and film, we will then trace the mountain-wilderness image throughout history, relating the anthropology of ascent to the inner domain of harmony envisioned by Thoreau. $270

Change / Jack Gaines

Most of us resist change and prevent ourselves from growth and the very joy of life we seek. There is an important connection between ancient and current teachings that has valuable application in our contemporary daily lives. In this course we will explore our resistance to change by re-viewing these teachings. Our purpose is to get beyond the resistance to the enjoyment of the fullness of life. $110

Being PATIENT with Schizophrenia: A Different Way of Treatment Julian Silverman & Bette Dingman

This workshop is concerned with a different way to "treat" acute-dis-ease in consciousness. It involves an approach of not interfering with a person's struggle. It involves being patient until the right moment—the moment when the struggle ceases and there is momentary ease. It involves the "therapist's" use of him/her SELF rather than therapeutic techniques. It involves an advance in the training of therapists. It involves a different way of understanding so-called schizophrenia dis-ease. $110

God, Sexual Energy & Your Body / Gabrielle Roth

Gestalt Awareness / Julian & Beverly Silverman

How we orient ourselves to the world, how we contact others, depends upon our balance between sensory and muscular functions. Constriction in muscular action tends to constrict the senses and vice-versa, resulting in a limiting of awareness.

In gestalt awareness group work, our concern is with developing a way of being in which one's senses are open and one's style of contacting is flexible. The learning which takes place occurs in the context of a group of individuals who share and change in relation to each other. Emphasis is placed upon body in relation to mind. $270

Exploring Self-Acceptance
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

For workshop description see January 6–8. $270

Week of October 16-21

Growing Up Right: The Greening of Human Plants
Betty Fuller

Many of us carry around enormous burdens of regret, resentment, incomplete cycles and other unfinished business from yesterday which turn today's life into a soap opera—tiring and trying. Frequently we made decisions "back then" which determine not only today's outlook but the choices we make about tomorrow's possibilities. This intensive, experiential workshop is designed to lighten the load—"empty the cup"—by completing the past and clearing space to create purposeful, joyful, and satisfying living here/now. Participants function solo, in dyads and in large and small groups using art, theater games, integrative movement work (feldenkrais and other), humor, fantasy, concentration and meditative exercises, sharing gestalt awareness training and elements from encounter and psychosynthesis. $270

Weekend of October 14-16

Growing Up-Right: The Greening of Human Plants
Betty Fuller

For workshop description see October 16–21. $110

Healthy Survival: Health Works / Don Lindsay

This will be a workshop in holistic medicine emphasizing prevention, health maintenance and experiential learning about body-psyche interrelations. The workshop includes body work at the Esalen baths. $110

The Innerspaces of Running / Mike Spino

Focusing on the running experience, this workshop will introduce a holistic method of mind/body development. Each participant will be taught various running gaits and tempos, muscle/skeletal exercises, breathing techniques, and the philosophy and lore related to optimum physical fitness. There will be special emphasis on guided fantasy, inner space development, and creativity in quest for extraordinary experiences. Each person will receive an individual consultation and have the opportunity to continue towards personal goals on an ongoing basis. $110

Self-Acceptance: The Freedom to Be
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

For workshop description see January 8–13. $110

Varieties of Sexual Experiences & Behaviors (Observations from LSD Research) / Stanislav Grof

Using the extended cartography of the human unconscious based on observations from clinical LSD research, we will discuss the nature of sexual energy and the many specific forms it assumes. Special attention will be paid to new understanding of the psychodynamics of sexual variations, disorders, and deviations, and to transpersonal dimensions of sex (satanic, oceanic, and tantric). We will use a combination of discussion, group interaction, experiential exercises, mandala drawings, slide and film projection, and non-drug technology for altering consciousness. Participants will have the opportunity to confront their feelings about sexuality and gain deeper insight into the nature of their experiences in this area. $270

Gestalt & Meditation / Stella Resnick

Meditation helps to develop the stillness of mind and the power of concentration to use gestalt awareness process more effectively.

This workshop will focus on love, pleasure, and higher consciousness and is particularly recommended for people who have had experience with gestalt and are interested in expanding their sense of the spiritual or for people in spiritual practice who want to move with gestalt to increase personal awareness. $270

Growth Center Administration

This will be a five day workshop with the trustees and managers of Esalen Institute reviewing our working styles and sharing the information we have learned through the years about administrating a growth center. Depending upon the interests of the group, the subjects covered may include accounting, insurance, promotion, programming, personnel policies, work relationships, etc. $270

Weekend of October 21-23

States of Awareness, Shifts of Identity / Robert Nadeau

We are capable of experiencing various states of awareness—off center, centered, pure energy (universal or spiritual). When we are in one of these states we view life from that state's perspective. In this workshop we will experience and study the process of moving from state to state. $110

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 15. $100

A Dialogue of Dreams / Maurice Friedman & Jan Clanton

This workshop is concerned with the meeting between the "inner world" and the "life of dialogue" through sharing dreams. After the facilitators have laid the groundwork and set the tone, the members of the group will be asked to bring recent and immediate dreams into the realm of the "between" by telling them to the group, responding to them, and inviting others to respond with interpretation, affect, events and situations in their own lives, and/or dreams of their own. Interpretations, Jungian or Buberian, will be used not as ends in themselves but as means to enriching and enlivening the dialogue between members of the group. $110

Awakening & Siddha Meditation / Michael Butler

Within each person there is a beautiful form of energy. Usually this energy is "sleeping," but when it is activated it begins to transform a person, working from inside out. It increases one's self-understanding, joy, and especially the ability to love. This workshop seeks to awaken this energy and teach about its unfolding.

The methods are designed to nurture each individual's "essence"—there will be gentle bodywork for grounding, talks on unity consciousness, chanting to open the heart, sharing, and a kind of meditation which integrates into everyday life. $110

October 17—December 16

Mind/Body Development Program
Mike Spino & Barbara Hazilla

This two month program will combine methods of examining inner senses and emotions with innovative physical fitness tools. The basic approaches include:

Overall aerobic fitness
1. various gaits and tempos in running
2. specific styles of body movement
3. varied breathing patterns and techniques

Flexibility & skeletal suppleness
1. extending the range of flexibility and skeletal suppleness
2. hatha yoga, free form stretches
3. learning to respond to body signals such as stress

Inner space techniques
1. meditation—the process of observing one's thoughts
2. visualization & guided imagery—creating and utilizing images which increase awareness and enhance physical experience
3. centering—the process of developing a sense of inner balance and harmony

Special one day workshops will be taught by Will Schutz, Judith Aston and Michael Murphy.

This program includes two weekly meetings of group training each week and two one day workshops each month. Individual consultations are also available components of the program. This is a non-residential program in San Francisco. The entire course is $200.

November 6, December 11 & January 14

Running Home: A Personalized Way to Faster, More Pleasureful Running / Mike Spino

Focusing on the running experience, this workshop will introduce a holistic method of mind/body development. Each participant will be taught various running gaits and tempos, muscle/skeletal exercises, breathing techniques, and the philosophy and lore related to optimum physical fitness. There will be special emphasis on guided fantasy, meditation and visualizations towards the quest for extraordinary experiences. Each person will receive a 6 week program to enhance their physical and spiritual lives. This is a non-residential program in San Francisco. $30 for each one day workshop.

Week of October 23-28

Opening the Feelings: A Neo-Reichian Radix Workshop
Siri Mishler, Dale Cummings & Sharon Henry

For workshop description see page 23. $300

Gestalt Principles & Methods / Seymour Carter

This workshop is an opportunity for persons interested in gestalt to experience through practice and concept a number of the important principles and methods in the application of this approach. Focus will be on the awareness continuum, the impasse, contact boundaries, risk taking and sensory awareness. There will be time for working with others under supervision. $270

Yoga, Meditation, Movement, Massage
Deborah Sulochana Medow

Through the regular practice of asanas and integrative movement, hatha yoga seeks to develop and maintain awareness, quiets the mind and allows the spirit to grow and flower. The outward expression of this self awareness is movement: how we move in this world reflects who we are and how we feel about ourselves. Free form movement becomes a way to explore and creatively expand our ways of being. Massage is a means by which aware individuals can share with each other and more fully experience each other. In this workshop, we will use yoga, meditation, movement, and massage to explore and expand our ways of feeling and seeing, relating, and being. $270

Weekend of October 28-30

Centering in Action / Bob Kriegel

The purpose of this workshop is to show that there is nothing mysterious, mystical, or devotional about centering—the process of tuning into that place of inner strength and wisdom from which we experience more of our possibilities and potential.

To experience centering we will play active games of all types, invent new ones, and practice exercises from yoga, aikido, t'ai chi, and sensory awareness.

We will use gestalt awareness, visualization, and psychosynthesis techniques to bring the insights gained in these activities to a more conscious level and to transfer them into our daily lives. $110

I'm Entitled! / George & Judith Brown

This workshop teaches the process of owning what each of us has available in both our inner world and in our outer world, and appreciating the ways we interrupt our own natural growth and personal and interpersonal development. Then we can recognize what is and what isn't and what could (not "should") be and relish the choices, challenges, adventures, and peace to which we are all entitled. Suitable for couples or individuals. Limited to 20.
$110 per person

Experiencing Connections . . . A Gestalt Workshop
Janet Lederman

Dissolving boundaries . . . Creating different forms for living/working.
$110

Massage Intensive / The Esalen Massage Crew

The members of the massage crew, each with their own unique style, will give instruction and help the group to practice basic techniques of massage upon one another: sensory awareness, deep muscular massage, joint articulation, polarity. As we learn to feel with our hands how the body and the life-force within it works, we learn to release tensions in others and to be more fully aware of ourselves.

The group meets daily in the mineral baths. $110

Week of October 30 - November 4

Expanding One's Limits: Belief in the Stable Self
John & Toni Lilly

One may conceive of one's self as limited. Limits are placed upon one by one's immediate family, friends, associates, financial necessities, "paper realities," one's past, one's present and one's imagined future. One's choices are projected as limited.

Alternatively one may conceive of one's self as more than one can currently imagine one's self to be. Conceived limits are not limiting. Unknowns are present, not yet seen.

If I believe what I believe is a trap limiting me, I am trapped. If I believe that what I believe is really unknown, then I am free to explore the trap. I do not know my limits. My imagined future is not my real future.

This workshop introduces experimental exercises based on ways of moving towards new knowledge of self and other participants, widening shared limits in the group. $300

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 15. $240

Five Days with Jack Rosenberg

My current focus is on enjoying life to the fullest and bringing the clearest expression of my self to each moment. Many people describe what I do as gestalt body work with a transpersonal bend.

During the workshop we will cover many aspects of my energetic approach to sexuality as well as working with the body energy field and the belief systems which keep us locked in obsolete behavior patterns. Where you are is where we will start. $270

Gestalt Theater / John Argue

Definition: Gestalt theater is a dramatization of the processes of consciousness in now time, whereas psychodrama is a dramatization of crucial episodes in one's personal history.

We will use gestalt to generate improvisations for a theater of self-presentation that truly celebrates and educates in the art of being human.

Work will be based on each person's everyday process, dreams, fantasies, and relationships.

This group is for people who wish to learn theatrical uses of gestalt language and process as a means of dealing creatively with everyday life. It is open to anyone and I want especially to work with teachers, helpers, and healers. $270

Awake, Tune In: Unfold / Charlotte Selver & Charles Brooks

To awake means to alert one's energies—neuromuscular and perceptive—to greater moveability psychologically and physically and to more fully use one's senses and intuitive powers. For this to occur one must become more peaceful and quiet so that sensations can become clearer and fuller. In becoming tuned in by another person, by a task, or by a given situation one comes face to face with the creative nature of the organism: powers arise and come into play which correspond exactly to the demands of the occasion at hand. The cultivation of these functions can lead to an unfolding into a richer life—a restoring of the delight of every new experiencing which was our birthright in childhood. $110

Introduction to Gestalt Practice / Joan Fiore

After introducing the "language" of gestalt and various gestalt experiments in breath, body, and feeling awareness, this workshop concentrates on providing the opportunity for intensive individual gestalt work in a supportive group setting. Suitable for novices as well as veterans. $110

Gestalt, Psychosynthesis & Encounter: An Experiential Training Workshop for Professionals Beverly Silverman

We will work with basic simple concepts and techniques. The emphasis is on the integral relationship between individual process and group process. My concern is with developing a way of being in which one's senses are open and one's style of contacting others is flexible. $110

Reunion of the Class of '68

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

Coordinated by Janet Sachson Zuckerman

These workshops are designed for people who have not previously been to Esalen/Big Sur. The emphasis is on finding those approaches to self-awareness that work most effectively for the individual participant. Some of the following experiences are available at each Experiencing Esalen workshop: sensory awareness, gestalt awareness training, encounter, theater games, guided fantasy, meditation, bioenergetics, massage. There is time to experience and explore the natural magnificence of the Big Sur coast.

Suggested reading: Gestalt Therapy Verbatim (Perls) and Education in Feeling and Purpose (Kelley).

An Integrative Approach to Group Process & Individual Growth (A four week internship program for personal & professional growth)
David Schiffman, Dee Mundschenk, Richard & Christine Price with the Esalen staff

Over the years Esalen has functioned as a major clearing house for a wide variety of approaches and means for facilitating personal evolution and expression. One's journey could begin with any realm—mental, physical, emotional, or transpersonal—each path serving to create a wealth of information and energetic access.

What are the common experiential and conceptual threads that underlie each of these paths? How can these treads of experience be best woven together to create a fabric whose qualities are simultaneously exquisite in their delicacy while still remaining strong enough to sustain the wear and tear of worldly existence? And how best might this very personal process of self-discovery and integration be taught and shared with others?

The exploration and resolution of these and other basic questions pertaining to the process of change and growth will serve as the basis of our work together during this month long institute program.

During the month each participant will have the opportunity to clarify and develop his/her own ability, style, and artfulness both as individual guide and group facilitator, as well as to do in-depth personal work and training in gestalt practice, body work, psychosynthetic techniques, and the meditative arts.

The program will be structured to include: intensive individual work, supervised observations, practicum work in group leading and individual counseling skills, video feedback, illustrated lectures and didactic theoretical sessions. The emphasis throughout will be on creating a personally integrated perspective linking human potential practices with traditional psychological and counseling modalities.

Curriculum
The curriculum will include 150 contact hours. Session time will be divided into seminars, individual observation-supervision sessions, and group sessions. Seminars will consist of conceptual presentations, guided exercises and discussions done by core as well as visiting faculty.

Observation and supervision sessions will involve individual counseling among group members with supervision by core faculty. Included in these will be video replays and discussions pertinent to the work being done.

Group sessions will provide the participants with the opportunity to do in-depth work on their own process with core faculty as well as explore practical applications of material presented in seminars. In addition a major portion of the last week will be used for polishing leadership skills with each person in the group being given the opportunity to lead. Video feedback will again be employed. Some of the major areas and practices to be explored during this program include:

A. Physiological maps and entries to experience
Beginning from the assumption that the human body is a metaphor which holds and reflects how we have been shaped by past experience and habits, we will explore the effects of these patterns and their possible transcendence. Sessions in t'ai chi, bio-energetics, shiatsu, and massage will be scheduled to provide tools and perspectives relating to physically rooted patterns of holding and diminishment.

B. Gestalt Practice
The emphasis in this phase of our work together will be in creating a stance to facilitation which is non-analytic, non-coercive, and non-judgmental. We'll focus on the use of the awareness continuum, the nature of the impasse, contact and boundaries, ways of visualization and meditation and the development of leadership skills which reflect clarity and flow from whatever emerges in process.

C. Psychosynthetic Techniques
Using the over-arching perspective created by Psychosynthesis we'll examine reference points and specific experiences which include discerning different levels of the unconscious, basic personality organization, choice and the development of will, resolving inner conflicts, reflective and receptive meditation, dis-identification and self-identification, the use of ideal models, the nature of purpose, developing desired qualities, aligning with the transpersonal, guided imagery, journal work and music.

D. The Psycho-dynamics of Group Structure
Drawing on techniques based primarily in encounter we'll look into the formation of the group, ascertaining its energy field, the stages of group evolution, inclusion, power and affection, grounding cathartic experience in the group context, as well as examining the differences and effects of counseling, teaching and encounter modalities.

The program is designed both for professionals and students and those interested in the fields of psychiatry, psychology, religion, education, and philosophy. A few partial scholarships are available for this program. For scholarship applications write Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920. The program will have an enrollment limited to eighteen people. $1150 Deposit: $400

Week of November 6-11

God, Sexual Energy & Your Body / Gabrielle Roth

"When sex comes from the physical center, it is a necessity. When it comes from the mental center, it is a fantasy. When sex comes from the heart center, it is a deep, total, and profound experience of our own divinity. Sex is meaningless without the heart."

The purpose of this workshop is to heal the separation between our divinity and our sexuality as it exists in our consciousness, attitudes and actions. This weekend will include breathing, movement, music, sound, and massage meditation. We will come together to dance, to sing, to worship, to cry—to celebrate our vulnerability and our strength, our heights and our depths. Gabrielle will support us in going within ourselves to rediscover the magnitude of our own heart energy, thus infusing our sexuality, and our entire life experience, with depth and purpose. $270

A Psychic Training Program / Anne Armstrong

This workshop is open to professionals or others interested in learning to recognize and use their own Psi abilities. Anne will use exercises and her own "tracking" abilities acquired from over twenty years in this field to assist participants in developing their own inner sensitivity. She has found through her professional workshops that most of those in the helping professions are already using their sensitivity and need only to learn to recognize their style and trust the psychic input they normally receive. The workshop will include personal psychic scans and practice on selected cases. $270

Psychophysical Integration & Mentastics: A Training Workshop / Milton Trager

Psychophysical Integration and Mentastics, the innovative body work of Dr Milton Trager, was introduced here two years ago when he trained members of the Esalen staff and other professionals in body work. Dr Trager's work influences deep-seated patterns in the body/mind which inhibit, block and distort free-flowing movement and full self-expression. Since these blocks are released at the source, participants can experience long-lasting release of fixed patterns resulting in greater flexibility, increased energy and vigor and a more joyful, vibrant, complete sense of self. The body/mind becomes a well-tuned instrument capable of full self expression. Participants will all experience Dr Trager's work personally and will work on each other under his supervision. For professionals in body work only. $270

Now let's do our thing together. $110

Loving My "Self" / Phyllis Shankman

We will take time together to experience and appreciate the uniqueness and loveliness of our inner "selves" in the beauty and peace of the Esalen, Big Sur environment—through music, movement, meditation, massage, hot baths, yoga, dance and gestalt awareness games. $110

Week of November 13-18

You & Universal Motion / Robert Nadeau

The physical conscious system operates in direct relationship to a larger energy activity or universal motion. It is important to recognize this activity as a "friend" and learn to work in harmony with it. We will explore energy and our "marriage" with it through meditation, centering, and body movement. $270

Contact & Communication / Julian & Beverly Silverman

The ways we contact and communicate with ourselves and with others determine the kind of world that we live in. When we change these ways we can actually change our world. This is what the workshop is about. $270

An Athletic Retreat / Mike Spino

This five day retreat brings together leaders in the sports and consciousness field to present various disciplines for personal growth through physical, athletic endeavors. The chief aim of the program is the blending of methods for spiritual and physical growth: among these will be various running gaits and tempos, muscle/skeletal and flexibility routines, breathing techniques, guided fantasy sessions and meditation.

A special emphasis will be on the beginner and the particular needs of women. Leaders include: Joan Ullyot—noted marathon runner and exercise physiologist, Olga Connolly—former five time Olympian and expert in strength and awareness exercises, Mike Spino—assessment and individualization of running and spiritual disciplines, and Joe Henderson—editor of Runner's World magazine, and author of eight books on running.

Most days will feature two training sessions a day, one emphasizing physical activity, and one emphasizing meditation and visualization. $270

The Esalen Work-Study Program

In the process of becoming educated, we are taught that it is more important to be involved with the outside world than with our Selves. We are taught to become Ego-involved—involved with manipulating things and people. We are taught to experience our selves primarily in relation to others; we lose touch with our essence.

From this perspective, we offer an opportunity to return to our Selves within the working context of the Esalen community. Our faculty for this program is our environment—staff—community.

Learning/dis-covering the use of your own energy in work . . .
For your SELF.
Living together (close to others) operatively and co-operatively in a unique, high intensity environment.
Contact/communication with the people of Esalen via group work and in day-to-day Esalen happenings.
An opportunity for:
SELF-regulation
SELF-examination
SELF-contemplation
and if you choose
SELF-reevaluation
Facilitated by removal from your ordinary living context.

Participants make a commitment to work 32 hours per week at such jobs as gardening, maintenance, office, kitchen duties, etc. Scheduling consideration is given to the community labor needs and work assignments are made according to these requirements. (Flexibility is one of the watchwords of life at Esalen). The Work-Study program is for those who are interested in immersion in the total environment of Esalen/Big Sur. It is a work-oriented program (emotionally and physically) and only rarely is it restful. There will be a coming together in the evenings to share—contact—play/alone-together.

Accommodations are shared with up to 3 persons in a room. The program lasts 28 days; four weeks and four weekends at a basic cost of $350. Depending on your work schedule, weekend workshops may be available for an additional fee. Professional services such as massage and rolfing are available at staff rates. Arrangements are made through the office.

It is possible to be in the work-study program up to three months, by invitation, after the first month

Available dates:
August 14—September 11; September 11—October 9; October 9—November 6; November 6—December 4; December 4—January 1; January 1—29; January 29—February 26; February 26—March 26.

If interested, please apply as early as possible to Work-Study program, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920. Only a limited number of applicants are accepted. Scholarships are not available for the Work-Study program.

Ways of Being at Esalen

South Coast Center

The living center is slowly evolving into a participatory environment
vital
changing
designing, redesigning inner and outer space with residents responsible for their own evolution.

The South Coast Center, located a mile and a half north of Esalen, is a living center for people who would like to be in contact with Esalen and its facilities but who are not interested in an intensive workshop program. Studios (room, balcony, and bath) are available for $350 per month. A monthly meal ticket may be purchased at Esalen for $200 and residents may set up light cooking facilities in their rooms for preparing their own meals. As part of our program of integrating residents into the working community, South Coast residents are asked to contribute eight hours per week of work to the community. In addition, due to the large number of people who want to be at South Coast, we have put a limit of three months on all South Coast residencies. South Coast studios may be reserved through the Esalen/Big Sur office.

Scholarship Information

If you need scholarship assistance for an Esalen program of five days or longer, write for a scholarship form before making a reservation. Allow at least three weeks for processing. If your application is approved, please make a reservation as soon as possible after receiving the notification. No scholarship assistance is available for June 15–August 31 programs or for weekend workshops.

Ongoing Residence Program

Offered from September through May, the Ongoing Residential Program is designed for those who would like to have time and space in the Esalen environment for an intensive workshop program over a long term. A minimum stay: 26 days (or four "weeks" and three weekends).

Participants may select any of the five-day workshops offered during their stay. Weekend workshops are available at special prices. Some programs are cancelled, so second choices are advised. Some special staff programs may also be open to residents. The cost is $960 per 26-day period.

Sleeping Bag Group Weekends

The sleeping bag group is another way of being at Esalen—it has a life of its own.

Experience the place—with its hidden moments of beauty and surprise, the baths, the people, YOU. Members of the staff will accompany and share with you some of what they have learned living here at Esalen.

These weekends are offered from September through May. The charge is $60 per person for 10-14 people. You will be living together in one room. Bring your sleeping bags. Meals are provided starting Friday dinner through Sunday lunch. Send inquiries to Sleeping Bag Groups, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920. Applications will be accepted from groups only, not from individuals.

Weekend of November 18-20

The Energetic Foreground: A Weekend of Energy Release with Bioenergetics & Gestalt / Alan Schwartz

Read the description of the weeklong workshop (see November 20–25). This weekend should be thought of as an opportunity to become aware of blocks to the free flow of human energy in the body's musculature. The energetic foreground concept provides the environment. Integration via bioenergetic grounding and gestalt support concepts will be the focus. $110

Unfolding the Inner Self / Michael Butler

Within each of us is an untapped seed of emotional and spiritual energy which can be the source of great creativity, peace, and joy in our life. All of us have moments in touch with it, and those are times when we are especially aware of our own unique beauty and strength. Sometimes this seed is called the " inner self."

There are methods, some age old, some new, that can directly tap into the inner self and help a person live in touch with it in everyday life. We will use tools which are designed to be gentle, yet go deep—music and chanting to open the heart, meditation practices, a form of movement which strengthens the emotional center, theoretical sessions on unity consciousness, gentle physical exercises—and other techniques for unfolding.

The workshop is limited to 14 participants and is appropriate for beginners as well as those with previous group experience. $110

Body Awareness, Sensuality & Vitality / Barbara Clemans

"Words were invented by man, the body and feelings are a creation of God . . ." In this workshop we will utilize various body awakening experiences which enhance awareness, pleasure, regeneration and vitality. These tools can be integrated into a routine of self help and maintenance in our daily lives. We will utilize the tools of awakening the senses: breathing, tasting, stretching, meditating, relaxation, massage, music, feldenkrais integration, jazz aerobics, expressive movement, sound, and laughter. Beginners are welcome. $110

Week of November 20-25

The Energetic Foreground Concept: A Bioenergetic-Gestalt Synthesis / Alan Schwartz

Working with the energetic foreground synthesizes the philosophies of bioenergetic analysis and gestalt. The central dynamic of the organism is the energy that makes up the whole person. Energy flow is body flow, emotional flow, and mental flow. Energy is movement. When such movement is blocked on any of the above levels, the organism cannot function to nourish the person towards a mature sense of self. This workshop will move in the direction of such awareness by providing participants an opportunity to work and play through energy blocks, concentrating on those which restrict the expression of the body. This release can provide the insight necessary for participants to glimpse a more total sense of self. $270

Five Days with Will Schutz

$300

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 15. $240

Weekend of November 25-27

Letting Go & Getting Everything / Judyth Weaver

This workshop will use Reichian breathing techniques, sensing, meditation, movement, and tai chi exercises to bring us more understanding of what and how we hold on and to enable us to let go and allow a more relaxed, balanced, energetic, enjoyable living. $110

A Weekend with Will Schutz

$110

Experiencing Esalen—Part II / Janet Sachson Zuckerman

During the past several years the Experiencing Esalen workshops have offered people an opportunity to sample, taste, and touch on a variety of nourishing and unique experiences intrinsic to Esalen.

Now for the first time we have designed a weekend to continue this process—to bring you MORE.

Prerequisite for this weekend is that you have already taken a regular Experiencing Esalen workshop.

We will focus on allowing feelings to be opened up and explored. $100

Being PATIENT with Schizophrenia: A Different Way of Treatment Julian Silverman & Bette Dingman

This workshop is concerned with a different way to "treat" acute-dis-ease in consciousness. It involves an approach of not interfering with a person's struggle. It involves being patient until the right moment—the moment when the struggle ceases and there is momentary ease. It involves the "therapist's" use of him/her SELF rather than therapeutic techniques. It involves an advance in the training of therapists. It involves a different way of understanding so-called schizophrenia dis-ease. $110

December 4–16

Dimensions of Consciousness / Stanislav Grof

Under the direction of Stanislav Grof Esalen is offering a comprehensive course on altered states of consciousness and psychedelics for professionals and students in the fields of general medicine, psychiatry, psychology, anthropology, and philosophy. This residential workshop will include over 75 hours of didactic and experiential sessions.

The core of this program will be a series of lectures which Dr Grof presented at the Donwood Institute in Toronto last fall. Slide-illustrated discussions, experiential exercises, and selected film material of this series cover the following topics:

I Altered States of Consciousness and Human Culture;
II Psychedelic Drugs in the History of Mankind;
III Laboratory and Clinical Research of Altered States of Consciousness and of Psychedelic Drugs;
IV LSD-Assisted Psychotherapy;
V Cartography of the Inner Spaces;
VI Dynamics of the Death-Rebirth Process;
VII Birth Trauma and Its Relation to Mental Illness, Suicide, and Ecstasy;
VIII Transpersonal Experiences and Their Significance for Psychiatry;
IX LSD and the Human Encounter with Death;
X LSD and the Cosmic Game: Outline of Psychedelic Cosmology.

The experiential parts of these sessions will combine the effect of sound and music, fantasy exercises, mandala drawing, group interaction and individual work when indicated. Contributions of the Esalen staff to this program will involve sessions on shamanism and schizophrenia, gestalt practice, encounter, Esalen and polarity massage, shiatsu, feldenkrais, rolfing, hatha yoga, aikido, acupuncture, and psychoceramics.

The program is limited to 30 participants selected from applicants. The fee is $575 including room and board. Some working scholarships are available to students on the basis of need. Scholarship forms can be obtained from Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.

Put Your Memories, Fantasies & Dreams to Work For You: A Reichian / Gestalt Approach to Energy Release
Joan Fiore

"To understand is to tremble. To recollect is to reenter and be riven."
—Harold Brodkey

This workshop focuses on releasing the energy locked in our memories, fantasies, and dreams so that this energy can be made available for present relationships and life situations in a way that makes our existence in the present less encumbered by unfinished business of the past as well as self-programmed, self-fulfilling prophecies of doom for the future. First priority is on intensive intrapersonal work in a supportive group setting. There will also be opportunities to explore the nature of our interpersonal relating through group interactions. $270

Massage Intensive / The Esalen Massage Crew

For workshop description see October 28–30. $270

Weekend of December 2-4

Lomi Work: An Exploration of the Body / Mind / Spirit Through Awareness
David Kessler & Bill Prange

Using the Lomi approach to gestalt, conscious movement, breath awareness, aikido energy techniques, hatha yoga, body work, polarity massage, and meditation, we will explore and enhance our body/mind/spirit process. The focus of this work is cultivation of awareness at all levels of existence. We will explore Lomi body work, an integrative form of deep body manipulations whereby tensions in the body are brought to awareness and released. Basically this work speaks of a trust for the human organism and the higher forces that guide it. $110

The Fertile Void: Paradox of Freedom / Jack Gaines

Though we act as though we are outer-directed, most of us are learning that we write our own scripts. In one way or another our teachers—Biblical as well as contemporary—point out that each of us chooses whether our lives will be melodramatic or a mellow drama.

In our fear of emptiness, we evade the fertility of the void. Yet it is in the void—allowing life to unfold—that our happiness lies dormant. We will examine the synthesis between the fertile void, which is the antithesis of the scripts we write, and the teachings of Ram Dass, Krishnamurti, Muktananda, Alan Watts, Fritz Perls, Freud, Eric Berne, Gurdjieff, Assagioli, Oscar Ichazo, Ron Hubbard, and Werner Erhard among others. Each uses a different metaphor. It is in the application of these seemingly diverse paths that the self-created obstructions to our own growth are dissolved. $110

The Language of Dreams / Leo Matos

This is an experiential seminar on different approaches to dreaming and psychological work with dreams. The emphasis in the seminar will be on cross-cultural comparison of the use of dreams; typical Occidental approaches such as Sigmund Freud's psychoanalysis, C G Jung's analytical psychology, and Fritz Perls' gestalt practice will be complemented by the techniques used by the Senoi in Malaysia, North American Indians and by Tantric tradition in Tibetan Buddhism. Participants will have the opportunity to learn how they can use dream work for enhancing their lives. $110

Core Dynamics / Hector Prestera

Core Dynamics is a process for opening the inner self using high energy techniques involving physical release, body awareness, body energetics all opening to intra-being. We will also use color reading and body reading to explore emotional-physical holdings.

Recommended reading: The Body Reveals, Prestera & Kurtz (Harper & Row and Bantam). $110

Opening the Feelings

RADIX NEO-REICHIAN WORKSHOPS
(formerly Interscience Workshops)

To grow in the capacity to experience and express deep feelings, to connect up with oneself, and to contact others is the aim of this series of workshops which employ neo-Reichian techniques of emotional release. The Radix Intensive, a period of individual work within a small group setting, is practiced by Charles and Erica Kelley and their staff at the Radix Workshop. The Intensive, like other neo-Reichian techniques used in these workshops, grew from the discovery by Charles Kelley's teacher, Wilhelm Reich, of the way in which feeling is rooted in the flow of energy in the body, and is blocked by chronic muscular contractions which Reich called the muscular armor. Freeing the armor enables the student to open feeling that is buried and to soften and free feeling that is too strong and has been held in for fear of explosion.

In these workshops armor is softened by simultaneous work on the character and body, using techniques not only from Reich, but also from bioenergetics, sensory awareness, and other body-oriented approaches. Groups will be kept small—never more than eight per leader—so that significant individual attention can be given. Grief or pain, fear, and rage that have been held in since childhood emerge in these workshops. As the participant accepts and works through these negative feelings, he/she discovers a new capacity for pleasure, trust, and love. In time the sexual experience changes profoundly as tender and sexual feelings for the mate intensify and merge.

SCHEDULE:

October 7-9	Anne MacKenzie, Clair Killen, Mark Dunlap

Weekend of December 9-11

A Dance Workshop / Anna Halprin & Daria Halprin of the San Francisco Dancers' Workshop

In this workshop you will have a chance to explore the dancer in you. We will do this through movement, the creation of our own dances and rituals and the use of visualizations as a way of becoming conscious of our experiences. Our theme will be the integration of artistic and personal growth. $110

Prayer Without Belief / David & Helen Jacobsen

All of us pray as a natural act. Spiritual experiences are common to each of us. Sometimes these experiences have been covered over or denied.

This workshop explores the communication process called prayer in some aspects of the western tradition.

Experience oriented processes, specific communication techniques and guided meditation are part of the workshop. It offers an opportunity to complete your own dialogue with your personal religious heritage. $110

The Gentle Art of Becoming—Together: A Workshop for Couples / David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

This workshop will focus on the reawakening and development of positive and mutual supports that are at the root of satisfying couple relationships. The emphasis will be on creating clear and truthful expressions of the essential sense of loving and personal integrity. We will look at the beliefs and habits used to celebrate or lose the state of grace and presence which allows growth and joy for our partners and ourselves through the use of intuitional sensing, risk-taking structures, and guided imagery as well as gestalt awareness techniques. $110 per person

For workshop description see October 23–28. $270

Growth Through Risk-Taking
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

This workshop provides the opportunity for the group members to come to terms with the definitions by which they live. Through a series of structured risk-taking situations, the use of gestalt, role playing, fantasy, and encounter techniques, the participants can accept or transcend the boundaries from which they approach the world. Emphasis will be placed on the expression of anger, affection, sexuality, and the transcending of roles. This workshop is especially useful for people who have had previous encounter experience. $270

Weekend of December 16-18

The Lawyer—A New Perspective
A Weekend for Lawyers presented by the Humanistic Law Institute

"Like mounds in a sandy desert, intellectual knowledge is mounting up without provision for the expression of the heart."
—Meher Baba

As lawyers we were trained to use our heads and not our hearts—to make choices and decisions based upon "reason," "principles," and "issues" and not to trust feelings, intuition or compassion—often with less than satisfying results in our "professional" and/or "private" lives.

During this weekend we will explore and share with other lawyers, in the peaceful, reflective, nourishing, and evocative setting of Esalen, ways of using and integrating all aspects of ourselves—our bodies, our minds, our feelings, our "hearts" to see if we can make our work and our "private" lives more effective and more integrated, flowing, meaningful, and enjoyable—or for some of us look more "clearly" at whether we want to continue working as lawyers.

The program will be conducted by a lawyer member of the HLI staff and another experienced group leader and will be largely experiential, using approaches and methods of gestalt awareness, psychosynthesis, massage, meditation, and bioenergetics. $110

Dance of Shiva / Gabrielle Roth

Each gesture is from our own nature
born spontaneous
beyond form
beyond purpose being moved by life
we are divinity dancing.

This weekend is being created for you to experience that part of yourself that wants to live deeply and fully. Be prepared for vigorous, intensive sessions of movement alternated with periods of deep meditation. $110

Unfolding the Inner Self / Michael Butler

For workshop description see November 18–20. $110

Tai Chi Chih / Catherine Elber

Tai chi chih is an ancient secret of China's imperial class which was first presented to the public three years ago. Easier than tai chi chuan, the simplicity and potency of these nineteen gentle movements is a beautiful experience of connecting with one's own life force. The inner calmness developed through this practice can have a deep effect on one's life as it provides the peaceful serenity of meditation while cultivating endless benefits for body, mind and soul. $110

December 18–23
Gestalt Practice / Richard & Christine Price

The Way, when declared
Seems so thin and flavorless.
Nothing to look at, nothing to hear—
And used—is inexhaustable.
—Lao Tzu c. 2500 BC

Gestalt is as old as the world.
—Fritz Perls

Gestalt practice is a form—nonanalytic, noncoercive, nonjudgmental—evolving out of the work of Fritz Perls, relating that work to ways of personal clearing and development both ancient and modern. To the extent that awareness is made primary relative to action, gestalt practice has a strong relationship to some forms of meditation and visualization. In that emotional and energetic release and rebalancing are allowed and encouraged, the relation to some Reichian work is close.

The emphasis is *intra*personal rather than *inter*personal. Those who primarily wish interpersonal work are advised to attend an encounter rather than a gestalt group.

Participants are explicitly not "patients" but persons consenting actively to work (or play) in awareness. The "leader" functions to reflect, clarify, and flow with whatever emerges in this process. The aim is unfoldment, wholeness, growth rather than adjustment, cure, or accomplishment.

Suggested reading: Gestalt Therapy Verbatim (Perls); Tao Te Ching (Lao Tzu); Cutting Through Spiritual Materialism (Chogyam Trungpa); The Power of Mindfulness (Nyanponika Thera); Exploring the Crack in the Cosmic Egg (J C Pearce); Education in Feeling and Purpose (Kelley); Meditation: The Art of Ecstasy (Bhagwan Rajneesh). $270

The patriarchal, authoritarian era in human history has attempted to keep the secondary antisocial drives in check with the aid of compulsive moral restrictions. Thus, what is called the cultured human came to be a living structure composed of three layers. On the surface he carries the artificial mask of self-control, of compulsive, insincere politeness and of artificial sociality. With this layer, he covers up the second one, the Freudian "unconscious," in which sadism, greediness, lasciviousness, envy, perversions of all kinds, etc., are kept in check, without, however, having in the least lost their power. This second layer is the artifact of a sex-negating culture; consciously, it is mostly experienced only as a gaping inner emptiness. Behind it, in the depths live and work natural sociality and sexuality, spontaneous enjoyment of work, capacity for love. This third and deepest layer, representing the biological nucleus of the human structure, is unconscious and dreaded. It is at variance with every aspect of authoritarian education and regime. It is, at the same time, man's only real hope of ever mastering social misery.

Wilhelm Reich
Function of the Orgasm

You can be moral while fully asleep. There is no problem. Rather it is better to be moral if you want to be fully asleep because the society will not disturb you.

You can be moral without being meditative, but the immorality will always be just behind you. Just like a shadow it will follow, and your morality will be just skin deep because your morality can only be imposed from without when you are asleep. It can only be pseudo, false, a facade. It cannot become your being. You will become moral outwardly, but inwardly you will remain immoral. And the more moral you become outwardly, the more immoral you will be within—in the same proportion because your morality is bound to be nothing but a deep suppression. You cannot do anything else while asleep; you can only suppress.

And through this morality you will also become false. You will not be a person, but simply a "persona"—just a pseudo entity. Misery will follow, and you will consequently be on the verge of explosion—explosion of all that you have suppressed. It is there waiting for you.

This so-called morality leaves only two alternatives. If honest, you will become insane. If dishonest, you will become a hypocrite.

While asleep, real morality cannot happen to you. And what do I mean by "real morality"? Something which is a spontaneous flowering out of your being, not imposed from without. And real morality is not in opposition to immorality. A real morality is just an absence of immorality. It is not in opposition! For example, you can be taught to love your neighbors, to love everyone, to be loving. It can become a moral attitude, but the hate remains within. You force yourself to be loving, and a forced love cannot be real, cannot be authentic. It is not going to fulfill either you or the other person. No one is to be fulfilled by this false love.

A real morality happens to a person who has gone deep within himself—and the deeper you go the more loving you become. It is not something forced against hatred; it is not something antagonistic to hatred. The deeper you move, the more love flows out of you. It has nothing to do with hatred at all. The moment you reach to your center, you are loving without any moral imposition: you may not even be aware that you are loving. How can you be aware? This love will just be so natural, that it will be just like breathing, just like your shadow following you. You will simply be loving.

You & Universal Motion / Robert Nadeau

For workshop description see November 13–18. $270

Dreams, Creativity & Altered States of Consciousness Stanley Krippner

An "altered state of consciousness" simply means moving to a different and heretofore unknown space in one's consciousness and seeing how the world and oneself look from this new place.

This workshop will utilize dream recall, body movement, massage, guided imagery and group hypnosis, to enter altered states of consciousness. In these states, workshop members will be trained to gain access to the personal and universal symbols which encourage creative development. $270

December 18–25

The Birth of the Sun / Paul Rebillot

The winter solstice is a time for restful introspection as the earth's outer darkness allows the inner sun of the soul to regenerate and find expression. Traditional cultures the world over have rested, fasted, and feasted during this time of the year in celebration of the turning point, the cyclic return.

We will join together to create our own ritual and pagent for the staff and guests of Esalen during this holiday week. Using a variety of techniques such as gestalt, guided fantasy, movement, massage, and more, we will integrate our personal rituals into a group presentation.

Participants may come for the entire seven days or join the group for the weekend. $380

Weekend of December 23-25

Celebration / Betty Fuller

Using movement, massage, and meditation we will experience practical, simple ways to lengthen and align our bodies, relieve our aching backs and joints and experience greater flexibility in body, mind, and spirit. We will have time to dance, laugh, rejoice, live, love, let go and let be. $110

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 15. $100

Massage Weekend for Beginners / The Esalen Massage Crew

In our two days together we will establish a basic road map for a full-body massage: where to start, what to work towards as an end, and some ideas about what to do in between. Part of our emphasis is upon specific instruction in sensory awareness and body manipulation, and another larger part is upon practice with one another, experiencing the structure and energy of our bodies, using the map only as a back-pocket guide for our own much more interesting explorations.

The group meets daily in the baths. $110

The Birth of the Sun / Paul Rebillot

(See December 18–25.) This weekend group will join with the others, who, during the previous five days will develop a holiday ritual and celebration involving music, movement, and other forms of creative expression. $110

Integrating Gestalt, F M Alexander Technique, & Feldenkrais Method–A Three Week Training Program–Phase I / Ilana Rubenfeld & Esalen Staff

This intensive workshop is designed for professionals and those interested in psychology, psychiatry, education, expressive arts (drama, music, art and dance) and body/mind philosophies. It is focused for those who wish to integrate gestalt theory and practice and body/mind approaches into their own work/life journey.

In this workshop participants will learn the basic tools of the gestalt approach while working with them in relationship to personal/professional growth.

The blending of gestalt with Alexander Technique and feldenkrais exercises is used as a gateway to contacting, expressing and working through the deep feelings which often become stored in our body/mind and result in tension and imbalance. Trainees explore how the body/mind "speaks" and how we can learn to "listen" to ourselves and others in a flowing, integrative, congruent manner.

Every day will be divided into several sessions–morning, afternoon and evening. These sessions will include theory, demonstration and experimentation; practicum–supervised practice sessions where trainees take the roles of client, observer and gestalt leader; body/mind appraoches and the use of touch. Sessions concerning group process will be woven into the tapestry of the training. Several guest leaders will work and share their appraoch in individual and group facilitation.

The major themes of this workshop emerge from the following modalities:

1 Gestalt Theory and Practice generally encompasses such central issues as awareness, contact boundary, impasse, foreground and background, polarities and their integration, dream work and appropriate use of time in verbal and non verbal intervention.

2 The Alexander Technique & Feldenkrais Exercises–a psychophysical modality. This includes the relationship of posture to emotions and emotions to posture–how changes of inner and outer space affect our intellectual and emotional capacities. These methods deal with body posture, kinesthetic sense and a re-education of the brain's neural system.

3 Use of Touch: Attention will be given to the use of touch. To learn where, when, how and whom to touch requires sensing where the other person is. The leader/trainee can learn to protect himself/herself from toxic energies and open themselves for nourishment. Trainees will learn how to use themselves–their whole being–as an instrument.

4 Group Process: Part of this training will address itself to the subtleties of group process. An experienced group facilitator will be available to guide trainees in the processing of group dynamics.

When each one of us works on our own process we can then learn how to bring out total self into the "therapeutic" situation, transforming it into a collaborative effort which fosters acceptance, caring, humour and continual growth.

This program is the first phase of a three part program which will take place at Esalen. It is limited to thirty participants and will take place in the Big House which provides a unique situation for the creation of a community. The fee is $960 including room and board. If you wish to enroll send a letter containing personal and professional interests and a recent photograph to Ilana Rubenfeld, 115 Waverly Place, New York, New York 10011.

Weekend of December 30 - January 1

Greeting the New Year with an Energetic Explosion
Alan Schwartz

The focus of this weekend will be on excitement. Through exercises designed to free the excitation in the organism, we will attempt to bring to awareness the New Year's possibilities—all that we want to confront and are capable of confronting. A risk environment will be available. The extent of risk will be yours. The point of departure will be the energetic foreground concept. Read the description of the January 1–6 workshop. $110

A Weekend with Jack Downing

$110

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 15. $100

Week of January 1-6

The Energetic Foreground Concept: The Physical Dimension to Gestalt / Alan Schwartz

A learning week for those in the helping professions as well as those committed to exploring self-actualization. Through deep group involvement within the synthesized gestalt-bioenergetic environment, members will have the opportunity to understand clearly how energy is blocked to inhibit awareness and what is necessary to dissolve those expressions of fear. Though heavily experiential, specific data will be discussed relating to uses of such knowledge. Some reading of Lowen, Reich, and gestalt is suggested. $270

Five Days with Jack Downing

$300

Practices for a New Year—Yoga & T'ai Chi
Deborah Sulochana Medow & Ryan Kopperud

Developing and maintaining awareness can be stimulated by practices designed to heighten body/mind synthesis. Hatha yoga and t'ai chi are two practices which energize and harmonize the physical and energetic beings. This workshop will center on daily practice of hatha yoga and t'ai chi interspersed with massage, meditation, movement, and group interaction.

Experiencing internal/external movement connects our flow with others and our universe. As we come to recognize this intrinsic movement we expand our ways of feeling, flowing, being. $270

Weekend of January 6-8

Music, Dance, Trance & Celebration
Emmett & Nitza Miller

In cultures which are less dominated by technology and industry, music, dance, and celebration are not spectator sports. These activities, along with "trance" states such as meditation, deep relaxation, and hypnosis have been traditionally initiated cross-culturally for physical and emotional balance—release of tension, clearing of the mind, joy and ecstacy, and for interpersonal and transpersonal communication; and everyone participates!

This will be an experiential weekend where participants will be invited to share several deep relaxation ("trance") experiences to help intensify sound and movement and the natural body rhythms.

The lovely sounds of the harp, the stirring flute and the passion of drums will facilitate spontaneous movement to stimulate the evolution of your own body rhythms towards freedom, pleasure, and joy. $110

Introduction to Shiatsu Massage / Patricia Caldwell

Shiatsu is the oriental art in which the hands are used to apply pressure to points on the body. Emphasis will be on self-awareness for both the receiver and the giver, providing the experience of expanding shiatsu practice into one's life as the experience of moving in the world without effort, and with the flow. A working knowledge of shiatsu in both theory and practice will be given. $110 per person

Exploring Self-Acceptance
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

The focus of this workshop is the creation of a more positive and open-ended self concept. Through the use of structured risk-taking situations, gestalt, role-playing, fantasy, and encounter techniques, participants can accept or transcend the self-imposed boundaries from which they approach the world. Emphasis is on searching out unique personality strengths, individual capacities, and latent powers as a means of achieving productive, creative functioning. $110

Week of January 8-13

Living Tao: The Watercourse Way—Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain / Al Chung-liang Huang

Erase the Fu Man Chu look from the stereotyped face of t'ai chi, debunk the myth of secrecy and the antiquity of its origin, drop the rigidity and confinement of man-made structures, so that we can begin sharing life's learning process as humble beginners. Play t'ai chi.

Al Huang has written three books and made two films about the TAO. Read all the titles in a sequence, they become a circle, interconnecting. This seminar is to be shared as the essence in practice. Come to participate in the living Tao and leave all speculations of intellectual burdens behind. $270

For workshop description see November 13—18. $270

Self-Acceptance—The Freedom To Be David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

Each of us has unique capacities to feel and express: tenderness and strength, anger and affection, autonomy and needfulness as well as compassion, humor, and wisdom. The willingness to allow the fullness and vibrance of each of these qualities determines how alive and gratified we are.

In this workshop we will focus on how we diminish or affirm these essential qualities as they are expressed through our bodies, our sexuality, our creativity, our relationships to power, our friendships, and our expectations of ourselves and others. In an atmosphere of tenderness and support, we will clarify the nature of who we are and how we can best take care of ourselves, both here and on returning home. The workshop will be grounded in the techniques of gestalt, encounter, guided fantasy, massage, bioenergetics, and journal work. $270

You & Universal Motion / Robert Nadeau

For workshop description see November 13—18. $110

Massage for Couples / The Esalen Massage Crew

$110 per person

Tuning In / Janet Sachson Zuckerman

Many of us are operating as tape recorders. We switch on in the morning at "high" or "low" speed and play our tapes in response to the buttons being pushed by people or events. We are vaguely aware that life seems repetitive, or dull, that time is often something to be gotten through instead of savored, but this awareness is lost in the "noise" and business of day to day living.

This weekend will be devoted to bringing our attention to what we are doing—how we are really acting and feeling. Once we are aware of our feelings, we can go off automatic and begin to enjoy our interactions with one another. We will be using gestalt process, encounter, sensory awareness, and other techniques to tune in to ourselves and each other. $110

Running Home: A Personalized Way to Faster, More Pleasureable Running / Mike Spino

Focusing on the running experience, this workshop will introduce a holistic method of mind/body development. Each participant will be taught various running gaits and tempos, muscle/skeletal exercises, breathing techniques, and the philosophy and lore related to optimum physical fitness. There will be special emphasis on guided fantasy, meditation and visualizations towards the quest for extraordinary experiences. Each person will receive a six week program to enhance their physical and spiritual lives. $110

Week of January 15-20

Opening the Feelings: A Neo-Reichian Radix Workshop Siri Mishler, Clair Killen & Julie Wright

For workshop description see page 23. $300

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 15. $240

Put Your Memories, Fantasies & Dreams to Work For You: A Reichian / Gestalt Approach to Energy Release Joan Fiore

For workshop description see November 27—December 2. $270

Weekend of January 20-22

Finding Your Natural Rhythm / George Leonard

All of life—from single-celled organism to human individual to great civilization—is held together by a series of rhythmic patterns. There is a "right" or "natural" rhythm for every action and every situation. Finding your own rhythm, your unique inner pulse, is the first step towards what is commonly called "happiness." This workshop will use exercises from aikido, energy awareness, dance and games to help participants experience their inner pulse or natural rhythm. $110

Unfolding the Inner Self / Michael Butler

For workshop description see November 18–20. $110

What is Sensory Awareness? / Ellen Stevens

Sensory awareness is a series of subtle experiments allowing the awakening of our senses and intuitive powers, thereby creating a greater ease in our ability to move through our daily patterns of existence. In this weekend we will experience a coming to quiet—tuning into our inner self with the possibility of greater sensitivity to our selves and others. Using experiments calling for subtle permissiveness we come to a fuller presence, psychologically and physically. Special attention will be given to personal needs. $110

The Kiva: Experiment in Male Friendship
Ed Maupin & Bill Stewart

For workshop description see January 22–27. $110

Evolutionary Relationships Between Mind & Body
Michael Murphy & Jim Hickman

Michael Murphy and Jim Hickman are gathering examples of extraordinary bodily transformations from various fields—from the yogic and contemplative literature, psychiatric records, hypnosis and drug research, sport, the arts and everyday life—in an attempt to learn more about the range of such changes and the ways in which they happen. In this seminar they will present their work to date and speculate with the participants about the implications of their findings. Two questions for discussion are: (1) Do these bodily changes reveal an evolutionary possibility? (2) How do they relate to notions of "enlightenment"? $110

Week of January 22-27

God, Sexual Energy & Your Body / Gabrielle Roth

For workshop description see November 6–11. $270

Gestalt Practice / Richard & Christine Price

For workshop description see December 18–23. $270

The Human Encounter with Death: Psychedelic & Anthropological Perspectives
Stanislav Grof, MD

This workshop will focus on new approaches to individuals facing death and a new understanding of the experience of dying based on anthropological observations and LSD psychotherapy with psychiatric patients and persons dying of cancer. The areas explored will involve cross-cultural analysis of death-rebirth mysteries and rituals; the books of the dead (Egyptian, Tibetan, Ars Moriendi); experiential cartography of the "post-humous journey of the soul" of various ancient and preliterate cultures; rites of passage, death-rebirth experiences of schizophrenic patients, and accounts of survivors of clinical death and near-fatal accidents. We will use a combination of slide-illustrated lectures, discussions, and experiential exercises. Participants will have the opportunity to explore and confront their own feelings, attitudes and beliefs concerning death through the use of music meditation, mandala drawing, and group interaction. $270

The Kiva: Experiment in Male Friendship
Ed Maupin & Bill Stewart

The more comfortable men are with radical non-sexual intimacy with other men, the more easily their energy flow can result in unified action and creativity. In some traditional societies the kiva is a lodge in which men establish strong ties, develop skills and are initiated into the mysteries. In this workshop the mysteries include working through the anxieties about energy flow between men and learning to attend to our dreams as meaningful communications from deeper levels of the self. Bring a journal for recording dreams. $270

Weekend of January 27-29

Dance of Shiva / Gabrielle Roth

For workshop description see December 16–18. $110

A Weekend with Will Schutz

$110

Getting Your Act Together / Nancy Lunney

All the world's a stage and the current production can be a soap opera, musical comedy, tragedy, or three-ring circus. Since we choose our parts, finding new ways to express ourselves can open up a variety of options on how to play our lives. Utilizing music, theater games, drawing techniques, and gestalt we will explore getting our "act" together. $110

Steps to an Ecology of Mind / Gregory Bateson

In the last twenty years, the theoretical advances in cybernetics and advances in the study of personal interaction have led to new ways of looking at the living world, including everything from biology to poetry and politics. The workshop will explore these ways of perceiving and thinking. $110

Week of January 29 - February 3

Coming Back into Balance / Judyth Weaver

In our everyday lives of go, goals, and competition we often become unbalanced physically, mentally, emotionally. This workshop will deal with ways in which we can return closer to our natural balance. We will work with meditation, Reichian breathing, movement, sensing, and an ancient form for balance and relaxation, tai chi chuan, for deeper understanding of where we are in relation to our center and how to come back into and maintain our balance. $270

Five Days with Will Schutz

$300

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 15. $240

Advanced Massage Week / The Esalen Massage Crew

The soothing release of everyday tensions is really only the beginning of the sensations and revelations possible through massage. The release of chronic energy blocks can produce dramatic results in our physical and emotional well-being; awareness and memories may be triggered which begin a process that goes far beyond the massage itself. The crew would like to demonstrate and practice together some of our own explorations in massage and manipulation of the energy bodies and to share our experiences of the sometimes surprising results of these techniques. $270

February 5—March 3

Deep Tissue Workshop
Al Drucker & Ryan Kopperud

A training workshop for 12 to 14 participants concentrating on deep tissue work and acupuncture principles. Classes will meet 5 days per week and include theory and personalized instruction in manipulative work. There will be daily tai chi sessions. Gestalt and other process sessions will be scheduled informally in the evenings as group or individual need for process work arises. Any ongoing evening and early morning special events at Esalen, such as feldenkrais or yoga classes or meditation and chanting sessions, will be open to workshop members. Since weekends are free, regularly scheduled weekend brochure programs can be attended for the catalog price minus $50. Classes will be held in the Big House, a beautiful Big Sur mansion high on the cypress-covered bluffs overlooking the Big Sur coastline; most participants will also be housed there. Except for a weekly family-style meal together at the Big House, meals will be taken at the Esalen lodge.

This is an advanced workshop providing thorough grounding in all aspects of deep tissue massage and restructuring with emphasis on acupuncture points, meridians and energy balance. There will also be classes on iridology, nutrition, herbs, homeopathy, flower remedies, and Esalen massage, depending on group interest. The workshop is open to anyone having a previous qualifying experience such as participants in the Inner Road to Health workshops, medical professionals, massage practitioners, or serious students with previously completed courses in the health and healing arts. The intent is not to train for a new profession based on this work, but to synthesize and incorporate the skills learned here with already established health and healing practices.

The total fee of $1150 covers tuition, shared accommodations two or three to a room and meals for the month. To register send a $200 deposit, your name, address, phone number, and a note giving previous experience. Mail to Chris Price, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920. Acceptance is on a first-come basis. In case of non-acceptance the deposit will be returned in full. Some partial scholarships will be available and awarded on the basis of need; for this a weekly work committment is required. Scholarship applications will be sent on request.

Weekend of February 3-5

Esalen for English Teachers / The Esalen Staff

To feel and speak the astonishing beauty of things—
earth, stone and water,
Beast, man and woman, moon and stars—
—Robinson Jeffers

Different THAN your typical English conference. Small, in air as fresh as the experiences generated. No name badges. No publishers' displays. No "celebrities." Leave your notebooks home. Recharge your mind/body/spirit. Experience sensory awareness, theater games, guided fantasy, bioenergetics, massage. English teachers only—all levels. Give the right side of your brain a chance. Limited to 80. $110

Send registration inquiries to Larry O'Hanlon, PO Box 3611, Fullerton, CA 92634.

Week of February 5-10

Take a Second Look at Yourself / Janet Sachson Zuckerman

We will focus on taking a good look at what is going on behind the masks we wear and what is underneath the expressions we put on our faces to confront the world. "Who are you?" and "Who do you pretend to be?" are the polarities we will be working with. Every one of us has a great deal of unused potential and I see the group experience as a safe place to begin to tap into this energy. This week will be entirely experiential using mirrors, gestalt, soft-encounter, and sensory awareness. $270

Body Awareness, Sensuality & Vitality / Barbara Clemans

For workshop description see November 18–20. $270

Awake, Tune In: Unfold / Charlotte Selver & Charles Brooks

For workshop description see November 4–6. Scholarships are available for this workshop. $270

Weekend of February 10-12

PHYLLIS SHANKMAN has done extensive training at Esalen, and creates a synthesis of love, movement, experiential gestalt work, and body work. (p 17)

BEVERLY SILVERMAN is a gestaltist and a senior rolf practitioner. She has trained at the Psychosynthesis Institute in Redwood City. She also does organizational development work and is a consultant to the US Army at Fort Ord. (pp 12, 15, 17, 22, 24, 27, 29, 32)

JULIAN SILVERMAN is co-director of Esalen/Big Sur. His work on attention disfunction in schizophrenia and his perceptual-cognitive style approach to the study of psychopathology are well known in the field of mental dis-ease. (pp 11, 12, 17, 21, 22, 24, 27, 29, 32)

MIKE SPINO is the director of the Esalen Sports Center and the author of Beyond Jogging: Inner Spaces of Running. (pp 12, 13, 17, 29)

ELLEN STEVENS, a student of Charlotte Selver, completed the long term study group and is an approved teacher of sensory awareness. (p 30)

BILL STEWART is a black singer and poet who was born in Mississippi. Throughout his life, friendship has been his koan and primary myth. He is currently working as an administrator at University of California. (p 30)

T

RICK TARNAS, a member of the Esalen staff, received his PhD from the Humanistic Psychology Institute for his dissertation on LSD psychotherapy. (p 22)

MICHAEL TOBIAS has been intensely active in the mountaineering world for ten years. He is a professional photographer and writer and is currently editing an anthology entitled A Mountain Aesthetic. (p 11)

MILTON TRAGER is a medical doctor. His original approach to body work, which reaches the subconscious through the body, was introduced about two years ago at Esalen. (p 17)

W

JUDYTH WEAVER's main teachers have been Charlotte Selver, Magda Proskauer, the tai chi chuan form of Prof Cheng Man-Ching, and Phil Curcuruto. (pp 21, 31)

JULIE WRIGHT has been in training at the Radix Institute for one year and is a certified masseuse with a background in acupressure, Swedish and Esalen massage. (p 29)

Z

JANET SACHSON ZUCKERMAN has been leading groups for five years and sees this work as creating a "safe place" where participants allow themselves to experience change and receive support. (pp 15, 17, 21, 27, 29, 32)

Audio Cassette Recordings

Recent years have produced unusual tape recordings. The following were recorded in stereo and are available on cassettes only. Each cassette is $7.50 and is from 1 to 1½ hours in length:

Janet Lederman: Gestalt Awareness—Tape I
Bob Schwartz: Entrepreneurship—Tape I
John Lilly: Biocomputer Systems & Dolphins
Anne Armstrong: Training Psychic Abilities

From the Spring 1977 Grof workshops on "Shamanism":

Henry Munn: Mushrooms & Culture—Tape I
Prem Das: The Huichol Cosmology—Tape I
Don Jose: Huichol Ceremony Chanting
Bhagavan Das: Singing Meditation

And the May 1976 workshop "Schizophrenia & The Visionary Mind":

John Weir Perry: Psychosis & Visionary States
Julian Silverman: Shamanism & Schizophrenia
Gregory Bateson: Story of the Double Bind (retitled)
Humphrey Osmond: Early Psychedelic History

From the January 1976 Physics/Consciousness group:

John King: Introduction to Quantum Theory
Peter Flessel: Molecular Biology & Physics
Fritjof Capra: Quantum Paradoxes & Mysticism
David Finkelstein: A New Quantum Logic

And from various other workshops and occasions:

Seung Sahn: The Zen Circle Dharma Talk
Al Chung-liang Huang: Watercourse Way T'ai Chi
John Lilly: Dolphin Behavior
Will Schutz: Interpersonal Psychodynamics
Gregory Bateson: Metaphors & Butterflies

Please address your order and make check payable to: WORKSHOP CASSETTES, Hot Springs Lodge, Big Sur, CA 93920. Your suggestions regarding future recordings will be appreciated.

Special Information

THE ESALEN CATALOG is published quarterly. Subscription cost for one year is $2 for the United States, $4 for Canada and Mexico, $8 for Europe and South America and $10 for all other countries. Please make all payments in U S currency. Those attending Esalen workshops and conferences are automatically added to the mailing list for one year. A single inspection copy of the current issue is available free upon request from Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

CONTRIBUTIONS to Esalen Institute are tax deductible.

ACCREDITATION: At present, we do not offer accreditation in the form of certificates or diplomas, such as those conferred by traditional schools. Many formal educational institutions do recognize the time spent at Esalen as being worthy of credit in their own curriculum. Check with your university or college for further information. We would be glad to supply information to your school regarding any of our programs or series of programs

RECORDINGS OF ESALEN PROGRAMS: For a catalog of recordings of Esalen / San Francisco programs contact Big Sur Recordings, 2015 Bridgeway, Sausalito, California 94965. They also have Big Sur programs prior to 1973.

Commercial use of Esalen program tapes is prohibited; all rights are reserved.

FILMS of the work of Fritz Perls, Carl Rogers, Abraham Maslow, Rollo May, Virginia Satir, Alexander Lowen, and others are available from Psychological Films, 205 West 20th Street, Santa Ana, California 92706. for general information.

Unless otherwise indicated, all programs listed in this brochure are residential programs in Big Sur. Send reservations for all programs to Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.

Esalen lies 300 miles north of Los Angeles and 175 miles south of San Francisco. It is directly over the shoreline of the Pacific with the Santa Lucia Range rising sharply behind. The property, which has natural hot baths, was once the home of a North American Indian tribe known as Esalen.

We are a 45-mile drive south from Monterey, 11 miles south of Nepenthe, on California Coast Route 1. From the south, we are 50 miles north of San Simeon. A lighted sign on the ocean side of the highway reads: Esalen Institute—By Reservation Only.

Fee Information: We require a reservation fee of $20 for weekend groups, $70 for five-day groups, $200 for two-week groups, $300 for three-week groups, and $400 for month-long groups. These fees are not refundable but, with five days' notice, may be transferred to other Esalen programs. Please mail all reservations to Esalen/Big Sur. Balance of payment is due on arrival. Esalen accepts Mastercharge, Bankamericard, and American Express. U S currency only, please.

Scholarship Information: If you need scholarship assistance for a long term Esalen program, write for a scholarship application form before making a reservation (allow at least 3 weeks for processing as we have many applications). If your application is approved, please make a reservation as soon as possible after receiving notice. No scholarship assistance is available for June 15—August 31 programs or for weekend programs.

General Information: Workshop fees cover tuition, food, and lodging. Rooms are shared by two or three workshop participants. Camping on the grounds is prohibited.

Weekend programs begin with dinner on Friday and end with lunch on Sunday. Five-day and longer programs begin with dinner on Sunday and end with lunch on Friday. Rooms become available at 5 pm; however, guests are welcome to arrive anytime after lunch.

Esalen has no child care facilities. Please do not plan to bring children. We also ask workshop participants not to have guests. Alas, no pets.

Esalen's flourishing organic garden provides the kitchen with many of its vegetables and herbs. Our breads and pastries are made by Esalen bakers.

Limousine Service: Those traveling by air or bus can obtain limousine service to Esalen by notifying the office of time of arrival. Pickups are made at the Monterey Airport and the Greyhound terminal at 5—5:30 pm each Sunday and Friday. The cost is $15 per person one way, payable on arrival at Esalen.

Seminarians as Staff (Karma Yoga): Seminarians in residence at Esalen are expected to contribute several hours per week to work with the staff. Your help enables us to meet the pressures of peak working times and enables you to experience Esalen from the inside out. A staff member will appear at your first workshop meeting to schedule volunteer help.

Esalen Institute is a center to explore those trends in education, religion, philosophy, and the physical and behavioral sciences which emphasize the potentialities and values of human existence. Our activities consist of seminars and workshops, residential programs, consulting, and research.

We exist to sponsor, encourage, synthesize, and attempt evaluation of work in these areas, both inside and outside our own organizational framework. Since we are a center for experimental education, we ask that persons come to our programs out of an educational interest. We ask that no one come whose interest is "cure." We point out here, as we have in workshops and seminars, that some persons, particularly those with a history of psychiatric problems, may find some programs difficult, trying, or potentially risky. We recommend that in case of any doubt, a physician or trusted counselor be consulted.

This issue of the Esalen catalog is dedicated to Selig Morgenrath, the designer of the Esalen grounds. Selig died of a heart attack on August 14 at the age of 68.

In the early and middle sixties the Esalen grounds were largely barren of vegetation except for grass and a few trees (photos pages 4, 6, 7, 29, 36). Under Selig's direction the property was landscaped and buildings designed to enhance the natural beauty of the land (photos pages 5, 11, 16, 31). During this period Selig developed a close friendship with Fritz Perls (photo page 25). He also continued his work with metal sculpture (photos front and back covers and page 21) and filigree work (photo page 21) as well as building his own house and studio (photos page 2, 27).

This catalog is the beginning of our tribute to Selig and his great contribution to Esalen.

We have long regarded Esalen Institute as an educational laboratory. Our evolving philosophical and operational positions reflect this regard. Underlying it all is a baseline ethic of "self-awareness and self-responsibility." However re-presented and operationalized in the past, by us or by others, this ethic continues to be the basis for our world view, and following from this, our educational approach. The self-awareness/self-responsibility ethic has grown and stabilized out of at least two generations of weighty dis-illusioning social and political events—all connected by a common reminder:

> Give away your personal faculties of discernment, of evaluation, of self-reference, and you lose your integrity (your wholeness). "Take responsibility for your every thought, your every feeling, your every action," said our beloved friend and teacher, Fritz Perls.

We view the implications of this position as being social as well as personal. They concern the ways we relate to ourselves and others.

In our position as educators, we invite people to take responsibility for their whole life situation while at Esalen. This includes taking responsibility for who they select as their teachers, their leaders, their gurus, their authority figures . . . and so on—and to be aware, whenever possible, what effect this has on them. We, of necessity, are setting up a situation for our seminarians to learn the practice of self-responsibility from the time they consider selecting a workshop, not just during the workshop. In effect, we are asking that this self-responsibility attitude be present in the initial contact with Esalen. Ideally, the same attitude will pervade after a workshop when our seminarians go back to the community and seek out others—physicians, teachers, counselors, mental health professionals, etc.

As we have become more thoughtful and self-critical about the overall direction of Esalen we have begun to concentrate on enhancing our basic offering—the Esalen environment and life style. Our primary emphasis is not on teaching particular truths or personal and interpersonal techniques for daily life; rather our primary concern is with a particular consciousness and developing an environment to support the evolution of that consciousness—the consciousness of self-awareness/self-responsibility.

Food for Thought

The Diabasis Approach to Psychosis

Diabasis is Classical Greek for "crossing over." It is the name for a center where individuals can make a crossing that has become extremely difficult in our culture—a crossing that involves tremendous pain, disruption and disorientation from usual space and time and from the usual state of relatedness to people—but which offers renewal, growth and self-realization to the psyche. This crossing involves a psychosis which is called schizophrenia.

Traditional medicine treats schizophrenia as a disease of the mind—a permanent crippling of the personality requiring constant medication. For the majority of the two to four million persons who will be labeled "schizophrenic" by society, the core of treatment consists of antipsychotic drugs, based on a simplistic rationale: "the more psychotic, the heavier the dose." Despite the good intentions of almost any hospital staff, patients are denied the right to decide for themselves to take or not to take these calming drugs. And for many, irreversible minor disorders develop as side effects of the drugs. Though treatment allows patients to be dismissed from psychiatric hospitals after short periods of time, they leave to function at a disappointingly low level in society; isolated and lonely, feeding off welfare support, draining energy from medical and mental health outpatient clinics, social and rehabilitation agencies, family and friends.

An insidious pattern is revealed: at least half of these persons are rehospitalized and will continue to be rehospitalized.[1] The irony is that even those that treat psychosis by the medical model freely acknowledge that the treatment does nothing to the psychotic process, but only controls symptoms and behavior. State and community institutions are filled with individuals who have received this treatment—the so-called chronic schizophrenics. They vegetate on back wards or sit all day in front of the television in depressing rooming houses. Many recent scientific investigations of this problem have shown that this chronic debilitation is produced by the hospital treatment itself. Our culture is saying to itself: "Diseases desperate grown, by desperate means are relieved, or not at all." But this is not Shakespeare's time; it is a time of new understandings and new syntheses of what we know.

Diabasis views schizophrenic psychosis not as an illness but as a journey inward through psychological realms that, if creatively supported, can be extraordinarily meaningful and ultimately healing to the individual involved. The psychosis has the same qualities of mystery, peril and confusion that any journey into unknown and previously forbidden territory might have. Whether persons embarked on this journey will see it through to a satisfying conclusion depends on whether they can find safety when they are in danger, hope when they are desperate, and meaning when they are confused. Diabasis has a sense of the meaning of psychosis, a sense of its forms, its language, its symbols, a sense of its beginning, its shape and its end. The staff have felt and have witnessed its enormous reconstitutive potential. Diabasis offers the individual making this journey a safe environment, with access to people who have helped others in their crossings or who have made meaningful crossings themselves. In this environment Diabasis believes that the unnecessary tragedies and failures now so widespread in the treatment of psychosis can be prevented.

In 1973 Diabasis opened in San Francisco as a sanctuary and alternative to hospitalization for young adults experiencing an acute psychotic episode. Founded by John Weir Perry, MD and Howard Levene, MD, the Diabasis approach is based on the theory that the psychotic experience is not strictly pathological, but is a valid altered state of consciousness that can be profoundly meaningful and offers the potential for positive growth. Diabasis currently operates as a private agency whose basic income source is fee-for-service. In an unlocked, homelike environment six clients receive two months of residential care, followed by one month of day treatment and three to six months of weekly, follow-up counseling. Those persons admitted to Diabasis must be experiencing an acute psychotic episode.

The Diabasis program is drug-free. Because the psychotic content—fantasies, dreams and delusions—is valued, no effort is made to suppress or discourage its occurrence with medication. Although antipsychotic drugs are kept on hand for emergencies, there has been only one occasion when they have been used in the history of Diabasis.

At Diabasis a special milieu is established that avoids the devastating effects of diagnostic labeling. At every point clients are regarded as being in a legitimate altered state of consciousness and are in no way compelled to accept the judgement of insanity and the consequent role of patienthood. Clients are encouraged to accept their process as nature's own attempt to heal, and are persuaded to take seriously the flood of fantasy and dream material which they are experiencing. Staff and clients jointly try to uncover and understand the symbolism of the imagery which emerges, and clients are supported in integrating this fantasy material into their inner and outer lives.

The attitude toward psychosis at Diabasis is perhaps best described by the following excerpt from one staff person's recollection of his experiences working there:

> . . . as the hours wear on, something happens. I begin to feel in my bones that our whole approach to madness resides in the assumption that we must do something when 'it' happens. And here I am with A–, in some perplexing deep dark night of the soul, seeing at last that perhaps the entire psychiatric approach to schizophrenia is based on this lie—the strictly enforced deception that one must stop, change, twist, sedate, control—in some way put an end to deviant experience and behavior, dangerous or not. And those five hours seem a magic time for me, a time to recognize that like the winds of the sea which can be used, but not tamed, madness can be gone through most productively by having people around who are empathetically available, but who do nothing to change its course unless some clear and present danger exists.[2]

The non-medical approach to madness is one that needs support. Because it exemplifies a new concept in mental health, immediate and wide-ranging support is slow to be realized. Although the President's Commission on Mental Health is calling for alternatives to hospitalization, and the Diabasis model is being replicated in Fresno, San Diego and New Mexico, Diabasis itself is struggling to stay alive. Further, persons who cannot afford the fees at Diabasis or at similar facilities will be turned away because both private and government insurance programs are not yet willing to reimburse for non-hospital treatment alternatives. Within the general field of health, the Diabasis approach reflects the values of a community which has gone beyond the conventional medical model. If such alternatives are to survive and flourish, they need the support of that innovating community which gave them birth.

Diabasis is a drug-free alternative to hospitalization for acutely psychotic young adults (ages 18–35). Accepting clients nationwide on a fee-for-service basis, Diabasis also has a contract for services with San Francisco County. Questions and/or referrals can be directed to Diabasis: 1128 Pine Street, San Francisco, CA 94109, (415) 928–1078.

Esalen Work·Study Experience

Ellen Rosenau spent three months in the Esalen Work-Study program as part of an ongoing journey of self-discovery. Two years ago she left a marriage of twenty years and four children. She lives in Berkeley, California where whe has rejoined her youngest daughter.

I came to Esalen to look at how I am in the world—how I am with people. I either had to accept it or make some kind of change so that I could live with myself a little more easily. I came feeling that I had been very passive all my life and that maybe it would be a good idea to overcome some of that—to be assertive—even though I liked my passivity and believed that it was an intrinsic part of me.

Since I was going to try to be a new way I challenged the job I was given the first night, got nowhere, and worked on the lowly cabin crew. I loved it. I could get up very early in the morning and be by myself. I could have an incredible walk from South Coast and clean the baths at my own rate, totally alone. Alone is one of the important things for me. That's how I'm comfortable in the world. I could work alone more easily than having to work in a group or on a team. I made sure that I was not part of a working team. I did it all by myself.

This is how I like to be in the world—working on my own. I could immerse myself in it. I could annihilate all kinds of feelings just by working and I really caught onto that; by doing that day after day; by pushing down any feelings that were coming up. I could get up in the morning and work without thinking about all the things I wasn't dealing with—all my discomforts with people. I am very agreeable and I'm often uncomfortable underneath the agreeable pose. They needed someone to paint bathrooms and I volunteered to do it. I realized that I could set myself up as almost an independent contractor that way. I could make my own hours. I could start painting the bathroom even before it was time to clean the baths and never have to work with anybody else. That wasn't being passive—I was taking control and I was setting up a work situation the way I wanted it. I have done things my way; I haven't been so passive. And I was also starting to realize that we all do things in our own ways, and that my way is a good one.

The problems came with other people. There was my anger at the way other people worked. I worked with a friend who, from time to time, got loaded, didn't show up for work, and the rest of us would do his job. Of course I'd do it very agreeably because I am this loving, helpful, serene person. The thing I learned about my friend's style of work was that when he was really into it, he'd do things in a very creative way. While cleaning the baths one morning, he noticed that the trough where the water comes in was filled with red sediment. I was furious. There he was an hour late and he's looking at the sea otters playing and showing me the troughs which were not even part of the job. He made siphons out of old hoses, siphoned all the water out of the troughs, spent two hours cleaning them, missed breakfast, had a great time, and I was furious. Why was I furious? It never occurred to me to make anything more out of the job. I just buried myself in the tubs with the Comet and worked to obliterate dirt.

The second month I used the work experience differently for myself. I worked on the construction-maintenance crew. An unanticipated advantage in construction-maintenance was that I didn't know a thing about it, so I wasn't able to go in there as this marvelous creature who already knew how to do everything. I had to go in there helpless (and dumb). The other people I was working with also knew next to nothing. We became a comedy act—the three stooges. We learned together, became a group (not alone this month), and I was able to share with them all the troubles I was having on that job rather than keeping it all inside and going it alone. I also learned the fun of just bitching and complaining with other people when the work was menial and mindless—like sorting nails on rainy days or rearranging piles of scrap lumber.

For the last month's job assignment I decided to build on my group-on-the-job experience. I chose to work in the kitchen where I had to be with people all the time. I wanted to discover how to deal with them differently. I had decided to do it in my last month when I thought I was strong enough not to have to "come from an agreeable place." I took the job on the serving line where I could be exposed to people and seminarians. Maybe, just maybe, I could be myself and not have to be smiling all the time. I was also giving a lot of attention to my image of myself as female, how I looked, how I wanted to be in the world and the serving line seemed like an especially appropriate job. I had gotten close to Sandy, who had this job the month before; she represented a lot of female qualities that were important to me. I took that job to see how I would do "her job" in my way. What I admired about Sandy was that she would stand up there some days looking like hell, sometimes even angry, and it was perfectly okay. She was just being herself. That's how I did it too—as myself. Myself was not Sandy. Myself was usually pretty happy and still involved in detailed work like cleaning counter tops, noticing when things aren't there; I like to be careful about things.

I learned how to work around authority. Each day a different person is in charge of the lodge and each one told me to do things in a different way. I caught onto the fact that if I decided on the best way to do things I could do them that way. I could start from the basic assumption that I knew how to do it, and that I would do it well so it didn't matter how that particular person wanted it done. They would very happily go along with the way I did it. Clearly I was onto something. I was learning how to be my own boss on the job and I think that's something I will take with me from this place. I am learning to be in charge of myself.

Social structures and power structures did not have an immediate impact on me when I first got here. It was very much the physical aspect of the place—just nature—the way it was; that was really important. The first time I went to Esalen I went down to the baths at night under the stars and knew that if I just tuned into myself and into nature, there would never be anymore questions that I couldn't resolve. This place represented that for me. I forgot it sometimes momentarily, but those answers were always there and they are in me, just as they were out there in the landscape.

During my first month I wandered into a party given for a staff member's birthday. I usually didn't go to parties. I was uncomfortable. I was just wandering around that night, rather unhappy, and it ended up being a very important place for me. There was drum music and people dancing which was something I always wanted to do but had never done. I found myself dancing in a way that was beyond my wildest imaginings—primitive, atavistic, at a level beyond words. I lost the sense of onlookers and was totally into my dance. That party was part of the permission-giving atmosphere that I've always found here—do whatever makes you feel good as long as you don't violate other people's space.

I leave here believing that whatever I am experiencing inside is okay; whether it's powerful, weak, passive, assertive; they are all just feelings in me and they don't require any struggling against or changing. Besides the beautiful landscape, a heavy impact at Esalen has been the way the staff works in this place. Often there was a grace and harmony in them that I want for myself. It's more than the physical beauty of the people; it is a quality of being, a kind of excellence. On many a working day, when I looked out at the garden, with its beautiful landscape with figures, I took in a timeless picture of people connected to nature through work in harmony and beauty; that's the way people are here sometimes. I want to be able to live with that kind of presence all the time.

I have been able to find a lot of direction for myself in this very non-directed atmosphere.

Research on Bodily Transformations

In a seminar they are giving at Esalen this January 20–22, Michael Murphy and Jim Hickman will present the results of their research on extraordinary bodily transformations. They are working with Mike Spino and others to incorporate some of their findings into body-mind workshops sponsored by the Esalen Sport Center. Here is their description of this research and the thinking behind it:

We are exploring the possibility that human beings can achieve far more control of their bodily processes through a combination of mental and physical disciplines. To this end we are conducting a literature search to collect examples of dramatic physical transformations which occur in various realms of human experience: for example, in yoga, and contemplative discipline, in shamanism, sport, hypnosis, some forms of psychosis and drug experience, and spiritual healing. Because there are intuitions and prefigurations of these transformational processes in dreams, myths, legends, and fairytales, we are collecting those as well. Library computer retrieval systems at the University of California, Berkeley and other search strategies are being utilized in this survey.

We are also conducting interviews with athletes, meditators, spiritual "healers", and others who have experienced radical physical changes. For five years we have collected such material from the world of sport. As we collect these anecdotes we are looking at the environmental conditions, personality characteristics, and mental frameworks which accompany them.

Drawing from our literature survey and interviews, from established disciplines, and from our own personal experience, we are compiling a list of fundamental processes or modalities by which these dramatic transformations are mediated and relating them to the dynamics of personal growth. We believe that to the degree to which these essential modalities can be identified they can be reinforced and guided in practice.

To test these ideas we are conducting preliminary experiments in workshops sponsored by Esalen Institute and other educational organizations. We are exploring combinations of mental and physical discipline consistent with our theoretical research, collecting reports of participant's experiences and monitoring some of their physiological responses. In addition, we are pursuing our own personal disciplines which incorporate discoveries from the theoretical data. And finally, we speculate that one aspect of radical physical transformation involves a psychokinetic relationship between the mind and the body. (This particular mind-body interplay has been postulated by John Eccles, Wilder Penfield and Charles Sherrington, three of the greatest theorists of the brain). We will investigate this relationship using an electronic device which generates a random sequence of events. As reported in the parapsychological literature, human observers can learn to significantly decrease the randomness through appropriate mental processes. We are also studying spontaneous psychokinetic effects which accompany intense mental or physical change.

Michael Murphy's novel, Jacob Atabet, which will be published this November by Celestial Arts, contains much of the thinking behind this project. It is in part a scenario of how we might explore these unknown territories in the future.

If you are interested in this research we will send you a progress report on it. (Write to Box 67, Mill Valley, California, 94941.) And if you have anecdotes or insights along these lines, we would be glad to have them.

December 25—January 13

Integrating Gestalt, F M Alexander Technique, & Feldenkrais Method—A Three Week Training Program—Phase I / Ilana Rubenfeld & Esalen Staff

This intensive workshop is designed for professionals and those interested in psychology, psychiatry, education, expressive arts (drama, music, art and dance) and body/mind philosophies. It is focused for those who wish to integrate gestalt theory and practice and body/mind approaches into their own work/life journey.

In this workshop participants will learn the basic tools of the gestalt approach while working with them in relationship to personal/professional growth.

The blending of gestalt with Alexander Technique and feldenkrais exercises is used as a gateway to contacting, expressing and working through the deep feelings which often become stored in our body/mind and result in tension and imbalance. Trainees explore how the body/mind "speaks" and how we can learn to "listen" to ourselves and others in a flowing, integrative, congruent manner.

Every day will be divided into several sessions—morning, afternoon and evening. These sessions will include theory, demonstration and experimentation; practicum—supervised practice sessions where trainees take the roles of client, observer and gestalt leader; body/mind appraoches and the use of touch. Sessions concerning group process will be woven into the tapestry of the training. Several guest leaders will work and share their appraoch in individual and group facilitation.

The major themes of this workshop emerge from the following modalities:

1 Gestalt Theory and Practice generally encompasses such central issues as awareness, contact boundary, impasse, foreground and background, polarities and their integration, dream work and appropriate use of time in verbal and non verbal intervention.

2 The Alexander Technique & Feldenkrais Exercises—a psychophysical modality. This includes the relationship of posture to emotions and emotions to posture—how changes of inner and outer space affect our intellectual and emotional capacities. These methods deal with body posture, kinesthetic sense and a re-education of the brain's neural system.

3 Use of Touch: Attention will be given to the use of touch. To learn where, when, how and whom to touch requires sensing where the other person is. The leader/trainee can learn to protect himself/herself from toxic energies and open themselves for nourishment. Trainees will learn how to use themselves—their whole being—as an instrument.

4 Group Process: Part of this training will address itself to the subtleties of group process. An experienced group facilitator will be available to guide trainees in the processing of group dynamics.

When each one of us works on our own process we can then learn how to bring out total self into the "therapeutic" situation, transforming it into a collaborative effort which fosters acceptance, caring, humour and continual growth.

This program is the first phase of a three part program which will take place at Esalen. It is limited to thirty participants and will take place in the Big House which provides a unique situation for the creation of a community. The fee is $960 including room and board. If you wish to enroll send a letter containing personal and professional interests and a recent photograph to Ilana Rubenfeld, 115 Waverly Place, New York, New York 10011.

Week of January 1-6

The Energetic Foreground Concept: The Physical Dimension to Gestalt / Alan Schwartz

A learning week for those in the helping professions as well as those committed to exploring self-actualization. Through deep group involvement within the synthesized gestalt-bioenergetic environment, members will have the opportunity to understand clearly how energy is blocked to inhibit awareness and what is necessary to dissolve those expressions of fear. Though heavily experiential, specific data will be discussed relating to uses of such knowledge. Some reading of Lowen, Reich, and gestalt is suggested. $270

Five Days with Jack Downing

$300

Practices for a New Year—Yoga & T'ai Chi
Deborah Sulochana Medow & Ryan Kopperud

Developing and maintaining awareness can be stimulated by practices designed to heighten body/mind synthesis. Hatha yoga and t'ai chi are two practices which energize and harmonize the physical and energetic beings. This workshop will center on daily practice of hatha yoga and t'ai chi interspersed with massage, meditation, movement, and group interaction.

Experiencing internal/external movement connects our flow with others and our universe. As we come to recognize this intrinsic movement we expand our ways of feeling, flowing, being. $270

Weekend of January 6-8

Music, Dance, Trance & Celebration
Emmett & Nitza Miller

In cultures which are less dominated by technology and industry, music, dance, and celebration are not spectator sports. These activities, along with "trance" states such as meditation, deep relaxation, and hypnosis have been traditionally initiated cross-culturally for physical and emotional balance—release of tension, clearing of the mind, joy and ecstacy, and for interpersonal and transpersonal communication; and everyone participates!

This will be an experiential weekend where participants will be invited to share several deep relaxation ("trance") experiences to help intensify sound and movement and the natural body rhythms.

The lovely sounds of the harp, the stirring flute and the passion of drums will facilitate spontaneous movement to stimulate the evolution of your own body rhythms towards freedom, pleasure, and joy. $110

Introduction to Shiatsu Massage / Patricia Caldwell

Shiatsu is the oriental art in which the hands are used to apply pressure to points on the body. Emphasis will be on self-awareness for both the receiver and the giver, providing the experience of expanding shiatsu practice into one's life as the experience of moving in the world without effort, and with the flow. A working knowledge of shiatsu in both theory and practice will be given. $110 per person

Exploring Self-Acceptance
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

The focus of this workshop is the creation of a more positive and open-ended self concept. Through the use of structured risk-taking situations, gestalt, role-playing, fantasy, and encounter techniques, participants can accept or transcend the self-imposed boundaries from which they approach the world. Emphasis is on searching out unique personality strengths, individual capacities, and latent powers as a means of achieving productive, creative functioning. $110

Week of January 8-13

Contact & Communication / A Gestalt Workshop
Beverly Silverman

How we contact and communicate with ourselves and with others determines the kind of world we live in. Working with simple concepts we can actually change our world. Focus will be on self-reference and opening our senses. $270

Living Tao: The Watercourse Way—
Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain / Al Chung-liang Huang

Erase the Fu Man Chu look from the stereotyped face of t'ai chi, debunk the myth of secrecy and the antiquity of its origin, drop the rigidity and confinement of man-made structures, so that we can begin sharing life's learning process as humble beginners. Play t'ai chi.

Al Huang has written three books and made two films about the TAO. Read all the titles in a sequence, they become a circle, interconnecting. This seminar is to be shared as the essence in practice. Come to participate in the living Tao and leave all speculations of intellectual burdens behind. $270

Self-Acceptance—The Freedom To Be
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

Each of us has unique capacities to feel and express: tenderness and strength, anger and affection, autonomy and needfulness as well as compassion, humor, and wisdom. The willingness to allow the fullness and vibrance of each of these qualities determines how alive and gratified we are.

In this workshop we will focus on how we diminish or affirm these essential qualities as they are expressed through our bodies, our sexuality, our creativity, our relationships to power, our friendships, and our expectations of ourselves and others. In an atmosphere of tenderness and support, we will clarify the nature of who we are and how we can best take care of ourselves, both here and on returning home. The workshop will be grounded in the techniques of gestalt, encounter, guided fantasy, massage, bioenergetics, and journal work. $270

You & Universal Motion / Robert Nadeau

The physical conscious system operates in direct relationship to a larger energy activity or universal motion. It is important to recognize this activity as a "friend" and learn to work in harmony with it. We will explore energy and our "marriage" with it through meditation, centering, and body movement. $110

Massage for Couples / The Esalen Massage Crew

$110 per person

Tuning In / Janet Sachson Zuckerman

Many of us are operating as tape recorders. We switch on in the morning at "high" or "low" speed and play our tapes in response to the buttons being pushed by people or events. We are vaguely aware that life seem repetitive, or dull, that time is often something to be gotten through instead of savored, but this awareness is lost in the "noise" and business of day to day living.

This weekend will be devoted to bringing our attention to what we are doing—how we are really acting and feeling. Once we are aware of our feelings, we can go off automatic and begin to enjoy our interactions with one another. We will be using gestalt process, encounter, sensory awareness, and other techniques to tune in to ourselves and each other. $110

Running Home: A Personalized Way to Faster, More Pleasureable Running / Mike Spino

Focusing on the running experience, this workshop will introduce a holistic method of mind/body development. Each participant will be taught various runnings gaits and tempos, muscle/skeletal exercises, breathing techniques, and the philosophy and lore related to optimum physical fitness. There will be special emphasis on guided fantasy, meditation and visualizations towards the quest for extraordinary experiences. Each person will receive a six week program to enhance their physical and spiritual lives. $110

Put Your Memories, Fantasies & Dreams to Work For You: A Reichian / Gestalt Approach to Energy Release Joan Fiore

"To understand is to tremble. To recollect is to reenter and be riven."
—Harold Brodkey

This workshop focuses on releasing the energy locked in our memories, fantasies, and dreams so that this energy can be made available for present relationships and life situations in a way that makes our existence in the present less encumbered by unfinished business of the past as well as self-programmed, self-fulfilling prophecies of doom for the future. First priority is on intensive intrapersonal work in a supportive group setting. There will also be opportunities to explore the nature of our interpersonal relating through group interactions. $270

Weekend of January 20-22

Finding Your Natural Rhythm / George Leonard

All of life—from single-celled organism to human individual to great civilization—is held together by a series of rhythmic patterns. There is a "right" or "natural" rhythm for every action and every situation. Finding your own rhythm, your unique inner pulse, is the first step towards what is commonly called "happiness." This workshop will use exercises from aikido, energy awareness, dance and games to help participants experience their inner pulse or natural rhythm. $110

Unfolding the Inner Self / Michael Butler

Within each of us is an untapped seed of emotional and spiritual energy which can be the source of great creativity, peace, and joy in our life. All of us have moments in touch with it, and those are times when we are expecially aware of our own unique beauty and strength. Sometimes this seed is called the "inner self."

There are methods, some age old, some new, that can directly tap into the inner self and help a person live in touch with it in everyday life. We will use tools which are designed to be gentle, yet go deep—music and chanting to open the heart, meditation practices, a form of movement which strengthens the emotional center, theoretical sessions on unity consciousness, gentle physical exercises—and other techniques for unfolding.

The workshop is limited to 14 participants and is appropriate for beginners as well as those with previous group experience. $110

What is Sensory Awareness? / Ellen Stevens

Sensory awareness is a series of subtle experiments allowing the awakening of our senses and intuitive powers, thereby creating a greater ease in our ability to move through our daily patterns of existence. In this weekend we will experience a coming to quiet—tuning into our inner self with the possibility of greater sensitivity to our selves and others. Using experiments calling for subtle permissiveness we come to a fuller presence, psychologically and physically. Special attention will be given to personal needs. $110

The Kiva: Experiment in Male Friendship Ed Maupin & Bill Stewart

For workshop description see January 22–27. $110

Evolutionary Relationships Between Mind & Body Michael Murphy & Jim Hickman

Michael Murphy and Jim Hickman are gathering examples of extraordinary bodily transformations from various fields—from the yogic and contemplative literature, psychiatric records, hypnosis and drug research, sport, the arts, and everyday life—in an attempt to learn more about the range of such changes and the ways in which they happen. In this seminar they will present their work to date and speculate with the participants about the implications of their findings. Two questions for discussion are: (1) Do these bodily changes reveal an evolutionary possibility? (2) How do they relate to notions of "enlightenment"? $110

Week of January 22-27

The Human Encounter with Death: Psychedelic & Anthropological Perspectives
Stanislav Grof, MD

This workshop will focus on new approaches to individuals facing death and a new understanding of the experience of dying based on anthropological observations and LSD psychotherapy with psychiatric patients and persons dying of cancer. The areas explored will involve cross-cultural analysis of death-rebirth mysteries and rituals; the books of the dead (Egyptian, Tibetan, Ars Moriendi); experiential cartography of the "post-humous journey of the soul" of various ancient and pre-literate cultures; rites of passage, death-rebirth experiences of schizophrenic patients, and accounts of survivors of clinical death and near-fatal accidents. We will use a combination of slide-illustrated lectures, discussions, and experiential exercises. Participants will have the opportunity to explore and confront their own feelings, attitudes and beliefs concerning death through the use of music meditation, mandala drawing, and group interaction. $270

The Kiva: Experiment in Male Friendship
Ed Maupin & Bill Stewart

The more comfortable men are with radical non-sexual intimacy with other men, the more easily their energy flow can result in unified action and creativity. In some traditional societies the kiva is a lodge in which men establish strong ties, develop skills and are initiated into the mysteries. In this workshop the mysteries include working through the anxieties about energy flow between men and learning to attend to our dreams as meaningful communications from deeper levels of the self. Bring a journal for recording dreams. $270

Gestalt Practice / Richard & Christine Price & Staff

The Way, when declared
Seems so thin and flavorless.
Nothing to look at, nothing to hear—
And used—is inexhaustable.
—Lao Tzu c. 2500 BC

Gestalt is as old as the world.
—Fritz Perls

Gestalt practice is a form—nonanalytic, noncoercive, nonjudgmental—evolving out of the work of Fritz Perls, relating that work to ways of personal clearing and development both ancient and modern. To the extent that awareness is made primary relative to action, gestalt practice has a strong relationship to some forms of meditation and visualization. In that emotional and energetic release and rebalancing are allowed and encouraged, the relation to some Reichian work is close.

The emphasis is *intra*personal rather than *inter*personal. Those who primarily wish interpersonal work are advised to attend an encounter rather than a gestalt group.

Participants are explicitly not "patients" but persons consenting actively to work (or play) in awareness. The "leader" functions to reflect, clarify, and flow with whatever emerges in this process. The aim is unfoldment, wholeness, growth rather than adjustment, cure, or accomplishment.

Suggested reading: Gestalt Therapy Verbatim (Perls); Tao Te Ching (Lao Tzu); Cutting Through Spiritual Materialism (Chogyam Trungpa); The Power of Mindfulness (Nyanponika Thera); Exploring the Crack in the Cosmic Egg (J C Pearce); Education in Feeling and Purpose (Kelley); Meditation: The Art of Ecstasy (Bhagwan Rajneesh). $270

God, Sexual Energy & Your Body / Gabrielle Roth

"When sex comes from the physical center, it is a necessity. When it comes from the mental center, it is a fantasy. When sex comes from the heart center, it is a deep, total, and profound experience of our own divinity. Sex is meaningless without the heart."

The purpose of this workshop is to heal the separation between our divinity and our sexuality as it exists in our consciousness, attitudes, and actions. This weekend will include breathing, movement, music, sound, and massage meditation. We will come together to dance, to sing, to worship, to cry—to celebrate our vulnerability and our strength, our heights and our depths. Gabrielle will support us in going within ourselves to rediscover the magnitude of our own heart energy, thus infusing our sexuality, and our entire life experience, with depth and purpose. $270

A Master creates trust, not obedience—if somebody asks for obedience, escape from that person . . .

A Master cannot make you a cripple, he cannot give you crutches to lean upon. When you come to a Master you have already too many crutches—he takes them away. He helps you stand on your feet. A Master helps you to be yourself and nothing else.
—Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh

Between the scylla of conditioning and the charybdis of turning on, there is something—a person that is real, a person who takes a stand.
—Fritz Perls

Ione Blane has spent a month and a half at the Rajneesh Ashram in Poona, India. She returns with a new name—Ma Anand Neehar (Blissful Chaos) and is in charge of the Esalen Rajneesh Center (Batohl).

Neehar will serve as a center of information for Rajneesh activities here and elsewhere. Many Rajneesh groups are forming growth centers and the main ashram will probably move from Poona to the state of Gujirat by the end of winter.

Weekend of January 27 - 29

Dance of Shiva / Gabrielle Roth

Each gesture is from our own nature
born
spontaneous
beyond form
beyond purpose
being moved by life
we are divinity dancing.

This weekend is being created for you to experience that part of yourself that wants to live deeply and fully. Be prepared for vigorous, intensive sessions of movement alternated with periods of deep meditation. $110

Getting Your Act Together / Nancy Lunney

All the world's a stage and the current production can be a soap opera, musical comedy, tragedy, or three-ring circus. Since we choose our parts, finding new ways to express ourselves can open up a variety of options on how to play our lives. Utilizing music, theater games, drawing techniques, and gestalt we will explore getting our "act" together. $110

Steps to an Ecology of Mind / Gregory Bateson

In the last twenty years, the theoretical advances in cybernetics and advances in the study of personal interaction have led to new ways of looking at the living world, including everything from biology to poetry and politics. The workshop will explore these ways of perceiving and thinking. $110

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff Coordinated by Janet Sachson Zuckerman

These workshops are designed for people who have not previously been to Esalen/Big Sur. The emphasis is on finding those approaches to self-awareness that work most effectively for the individual participant. Some of the following experiences are available at each Experiencing Esalen workshop: sensory awareness, gestalt awareness training, encounter, theater games, guided fantasy, meditation, bioenergetics, massage. There is time to experience and explore the natural magnificence of the Big Sur coast.

Suggested reading: Gestalt Therapy Verbatim (Perls) and Education in Feeling and Purpose (Kelley).

Deep Tissue Workshop
Al Drucker & Ryan Kopperud

Part 1: February 5–24,

Part 2: February 24–March 10

This is a training workshop for 12 to 14 participants concentrating on deep tissue work, following general rolfing and acupuncture principles. Classes will meet during the week and include theory and personalized instruction in manipulative work. There will also be daily tai chi sessions. Gestalt and other process sessions will be scheduled informally in the evenings as group or individual need for process work arises. Any ongoing evening and early morning special events at Esalen, such as feldenkrais or yoga classes, or meditation and chanting sessions, will be open to workshop members. Since weekends are free, regularly scheduled weekend brochure programs can be attended for the catalog price minus $50. Classes will be held in the Big House, overlooking the Big Sur coastline and most participants will also be housed there. Except for a weekly family-style meal together at the Big House, meals will be taken at the Esalen lodge.

This is an advanced workshop providing thorough grounding in all aspects of deep tissue massage and restructuring with emphasis on acupuncture points, meridians and energy balance. There will also be classes on iridology, nutrition, herbs, homeopathy, flower remedies, and Esalen massage, depending on group interest. The workshop is open to anyone having a previous qualifying experience such as participants in the Inner Road to Health workshops, medical professionals, massage practitioners, or serious students in the health and healing arts. The intent is not to train for a new profession based on this work, but to synthesize and incorporate the skills learned here with already established health and healing practices.

The workshop will be given in two parts. Part 1 will last 3 weeks and provide training in the basic five process sessions of the deep tissue work. Part 2 will last 2 weeks and provide training in more advanced process sessions, including integrative work balancing body elements in accordance with the extra meridians of acupuncture. The total cost of $1350 covers tuition, shared accommodations and meals, for the five weeks which includes Parts 1 and 2. Part 1 (3 weeks) taken alone will cost $875. Part 2 (2 weeks) taken alone (for those who qualify by having previously completed Part 1 or another Deep Tissue Workshop with Al Drucker) will cost $590. To register send $300 deposit, your name, address, and phone number and a short note indicating your interest to Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920. Acceptance is on a first-come basis. If we do not accept you this time, the deposit will be refunded in full. For those who can't afford the full workshop fee, we grant a limited number of partial scholarships for which a weekend work committment is required. Write for a scholarship application.

Week of January 29 - February 3

Coming Back into Balance / Judyth Weaver

In our everyday lives of go, goals, and competition we often become unbalanced physically, mentally, emotionally. This workshop will deal with ways in which we can return closer to our natural balance. We will work with meditation, Reichian breathing, movement, sensing, and an ancient form for balance and relaxation, tai chi chuan, for deeper understanding of where we are in relation to our center and how to come back into and maintain our balance. $270

Advanced Massage Week / The Esalen Massage Crew

The soothing release of everyday tensions is really only the beginning of the sensations and revelations possible through massage. The release of chronic energy blocks can produce dramatic results in our physical and emotional well-being; awareness and memories may be triggered which begin a process that goes far beyond the massage itself. The crew would like to demonstrate and practice together some of our own explorations in massage and manipulation of the energy bodies and to share our experiences of the sometimes surprising results of these techniques. $270

Weekend of February 3-5

Esalen for English Teachers / The Esalen Staff

To feel and speak the astonishing beauty of things—
earth, stone and water,
Beast, man and woman, moon and stars—
—Robinson Jeffers

Different THAN your typical English conference. Small, in air as fresh as the experiences generated. No name badges. No publishers' displays. No "celebrities." Leave your notebooks home. Recharge your mind/body/spirit. Experience sensory awareness, theater games, guided fantasy, bioenergetics, massage. English teachers only—all levels. Give the right side of your brain a chance. Limited to 80. $110

Send registration inquiries to Larry O'Hanlon, PO Box 3611, Fullerton, CA 92634.

Week of February 5-10

Take a Second Look at Yourself / Janet Sachson Zuckerman

We will focus on taking a good look at what is going on behind the masks we wear and what is underneath the expressions we put on our faces to confront the world. "Who are you?" and "Who do you pretend to be?" are the polarities we will be working with. Every one of us has a great deal of unused potential and I see the group experience as a safe place to begin to tap into this energy. This week will be entirely experiential using mirrors, gestalt, soft-encounter, and sensory awareness. $270

Awake, Tune In: Unfold / Charlotte Selver & Charles Brooks

To awake means to alert one's energies—neuromuscular and perceptive—to greater moveability psychologically and physically and to more fully use one's senses and intuitive powers. For this to occur one must become more peaceful and quiet so that sensations can become clearer and fuller. In becoming tuned in by another person, by a task, or by a given situation one comes face to face with the creative nature of the organism: powers arise and come into play which correspond exactly to the demands of the occasion at hand. The cultivation of these functions can lead to an unfolding into a richer life—a restoring of the delight of every new experiencing which was our birthright in childhood. Scholarships are available for this workshop. $270

Body Awareness & Sensuality / Barbara Clemans

"Words were invented by man, the body and feelings are a creation of God . . ." In this workshop we will utilize various body awakening experiences which enhance awareness, pleasure, regeneration and vitality. These tools can be integrated into a routine of self help and maintenance in our daily lives. We will utilize the tools of awakening the senses: breathing, tasting, stretching, meditating, relaxation, massage, music, feldenkrais integration, jazz aerobics, expressive movement, sound, and laughter. Beginners are welcome. $270

Weekend of February 10-12

An Introduction to Gestalt & Feldenkrais in Business Kolman Korentayer

In this workshop experiential based learning through actions in the present will be a constant focus. Gestalt awareness approaches to personal and business development will be utilized. The feldenkrais method of awareness through movement will be used in the areas of body image and stress reduction. $110

Awake, Tune In: Unfold / Charlotte Selver & Charles Brooks

For workshop description see February 5–10. $110

Core Dynamics / Hector Prestera

Core Dynamics is a process for opening the inner self using high energy techniques involving physical release, body awareness, body energetics; all opening to intra-being. We will also use color reading and body reading to explore emotional-physical holdings.

The Esalen Work-Study Program

In the process of becoming educated, we are taught that it is more important to be involved with the outside world than with our Selves. We are taught to become Ego-involved—involved with manipulating things and people. We are taught to experience our selves primarily in relation to others; we lose touch with our essence.

From this perspective, we offer an opportunity to return to our Selves within the working context of the Esalen community. Our faculty for this program is our environment—staff—community.

Learning/dis-covering the use of your own energy in work . . .
For your SELF.
Living together (close to others) operatively and co-operatively in a unique, high intensity environment.
Contact/communication with the people of Esalen via group work and in day-to-day Esalen happenings.
An opportunity for:
SELF-regulation
SELF-examination
SELF-contemplation
and if you choose
SELF-reevaluation
Facilitated by removal from your ordinary living context.

Participants make a commitment to work 32 hours per week at such jobs as gardening, maintenance, office, kitchen duties, etc. Scheduling consideration is given to the community labor needs and work assignments are made according to these requirements. (Flexibility is one of the watchwords of life at Esalen). The Work-Study program is for those who are interested in immersion in the total environment of Esalen/Big Sur. It is a work-oriented program (emotionally and physically) and only rarely is it restful. There will be a coming together in the evenings to share—contact—play/alone-together.

Accommodations are shared with up to 3 persons in a room. The program lasts 28 days; four weeks and four weekends at a basic cost of $350. Depending on your work schedule, weekend workshops may be available for an additional fee. Professional services such as massage and rolfing are available at staff rates. Arrangements are made through the office.

It is possible to be in the work-study program up to three months, by invitation, after the first month.

Available dates:
December 4—January 1; January 1—29; January 29—February 26; Febbruary 26—March 26; March 26—April 23; April 23—May 21; May 21—June 18; June 18—July 16.

If interested, please apply as early as possible to Work-Study program, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920. Only a limited number of applicants are accepted. Scholarships are not available for the Work-Study program.

Ways of Being at Esalen

South Coast Center

The living center is slowly evolving into a participatory environment

vital
changing
designing, redesigning inner and outer space with residents responsible for their own evolution.

The South Coast Center, located a mile and a half north of Esalen, is a living center for people who would like to be in contact with Esalen and its facilities but who are not interested in an intensive workshop program. Studios (room, balcony, and bath) are available for $350 per month. A monthly meal ticket may be purchased at Esalen for $200 and residents may set up light cooking facilities in their rooms for preparing their own meals. As part of our program of integrating residents into the working community, South Coast residents are asked to contribute eight hours per week of work to the community. In addition, due to the large number of people who want to be at South Coast, we have put a limit of three months on all South Coast residencies. South Coast studios may be reserved through the Esalen/Big Sur office.

Scholarship Information

If you need scholarship assistance for an Esalen program of five days or longer, write for a scholarship form before making a reservation. Allow at least three weeks for processing. If your application is approved, please make a reservation as soon as possible after receiving the notification. No scholarship assistance is available for June 15–August 31 programs or for weekend workshops.

Ongoing Residence Program

Offered from September through May, the Ongoing Residential Program is designed for those who would like to have time and space in the Esalen environment for an intensive workshop program over a long term. A minimum stay: 26 days (or four "weeks" and three weekends).

Participants may select any of the five-day workshops offered during their stay. Weekend workshops are available at special prices. Some programs are cancelled, so second choices are advised. Some special staff programs may also be open to residents. The cost is $960 per 26-day period.

Sleeping Bag Group Weekends

The sleeping bag group is another way of being at Esalen—it has a life of its own.

Experience the place—with its hidden moments of beauty and surprise, the baths, the people, YOU. Members of the staff will accompany and share with you some of what they have learned living here at Esalen.

These weekends are offered from September through May. The charge is $60 per person for 10-14 people. You will be living together in one room. Bring your sleeping bags. Meals are provided starting Friday dinner through Sunday lunch. Send inquiries to Sleeping Bag Groups, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920. Applications will be accepted from groups only, not from individuals.

Opening / Michael Butler

Everybody's beautiful in their own way.
song by Ray Stevens

This workshop is to teach ways of opening up to the loving "center" of yourself. In that center is a reservoir of self-awareness, joy, and connectedness to other people. We will study how to systematically nurture that center and stay in touch with it amidst the hustle and bustle of everyday living.

We will use ways of opening which are gentle, yet go deep. There will be "positive" encounter, gestalt, guided fantasy work, and chanting which opens the heart. We will learn a simple method of meditation with which to replenish ourselves.

This workshop is appropriate for beginners as well as for those with experience in groups. Esalen's natural beauty will support us in our process of opening. $110

Growth Through Risk-Taking
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

This workshop provides the opportunity for the group members to come to terms with the definitions by which they live. Through a series of structured risk-taking situations, the use of gestalt, role playing, fantasy, and encounter techniques, the participants can accept or transcend the boundaries from which they approach the world. Emphasis will be placed on the expression of anger, affection, sexuality, and the transcending of roles. This workshop is especially useful for people who have had previous encounter experience. $110

Recent Developments in Nurse Healing Practices
Donald Lindsay, MD & Polly Kirby, RN

This workshop gives an overview of recent developments in non-traditional methods of holistic healing, presenting alternative methods to the practicing nurse. Using experiential methods the nurse explores herself as healer, discovering her preferences and potential for healing. Various healing models will be discussed including the present scientific medical model. Concepts of health and disease will be developed within their historical and conceptual contexts demonstrating differences, similarities and limitations. $110

Black Dance / James Xavier Nash & Jasmine Nash

This weekend will include dancing and exploring the rituals of Black disco dancing in contemporary American society. High-low energy, sensual and sexual, rhythm and syncopation, hand clapping, foot stomping, using African drums, we will use our voices and pre-recorded popular Black music. $110

Weekend of February 24–26 Continued

Inner Contact & Consciousness / Simone Surpin

Inner contact can be understood as a time when we "have ourselves," when we are stabilized inside our being, like a tree is rooted to the ground. From this place our exchanges with others can be clean, clear, and heartful. This weekend we will focus on how we can allow this inner contact and maintain it while experiencing and communicating with each other.

Our group process toward this awareness will involve inner practices such as gentle body work, chanting, moving and sitting meditation and silent walks. Our outer practices will include listening to the vibrational statements and exchanges emerging within our circle as a tool for making our contact more and more conscious. Each session will be a blend of didactic and experiential work.

Enrollment is limited to 14 people. No previous group experience is required. $110

Massage Weekend for Beginners / The Esalen Massage Crew

In our two days together we will establish a basic road map for a full-body massage: where to start, what to work towards as an end, and some ideas about what to do in between. Part of our emphasis is upon specific instruction in sensory awareness and body manipulation, and another larger part is upon practice with one another, experiencing the structure and energy of our bodies, using the map only as a back-pocket guide for our own much more interesting explorations.

The group meets daily in the baths. $110

Week of February 26- March 3

Self Re-parenting / Joan Fiore

This workshop focuses on finding and opening paths in the present that allow us to re-turn to places in the past where we got stuck. Rather than acting out and cutting off these experiences from awareness, we give ourselves a new opportunity to clean up the unfinished business of early life that controls and rips off our aliveness and our power in the here and now. Experiments progress from re-wombing, re-birthing, and re-infanting to re-adolescing. Modes of exploring are drawn from gestalt practice, neo-Reichian energy release, primal work, family process, guided fantasy and Fiore re-parenting methods. First priority is on intensive individual work in a supportive group setting. There are also opportunities to explore the nature of our interpersonal relating through group interactions. $270

Massage Intensive / The Esalen Massage Crew

The members of the massage crew, each with their own unique style, will give instruction and help the group to practice basic techniques of massage upon one another: sensory awareness, deep muscular massage, joint articulation, polarity. As we learn to feel with our hands how the body and the life-force within it works, we learn to release tensions in others and to be more fully aware of ourselves.

The group meets daily in the mineral baths. $270

Growing Up Right: The Greening of Human Plants
Betty Fuller

Unfinished business from yesterday can turn today's life into a soap opera—tiring and trying. Frequently we made decisions "back then" which determine not only today's outlook but the choices we make about tomorrow's possibilities. In this spirit/body/mind workshop you will have an opportunity to complete some of the past and to clear more space for purposeful, joyful, and satisfying living here/now. $270

Weekend of March 3-5

Communication for Couples / Betty Fuller

In this workshop couples, lovers, partners, family members, friends, and enemies will have an opportunity to clear some of the barriers and blocks to clarity and completion in communication. Through verbal methods, bodywork and massage we'll take responsibility for getting what we want for ourselves and having others get what we put out. $110 per person

Tuning In / Janet Sachson Zuckerman

For workshop description see January 13–15 $110

Running Home: Recent Developments in the Mind/Body Approach to Running / Mike Spino

In this workshop we will draw on recent developments in sport physiology, preventive medicine, the mental training of athletes in East Germany and the Soviet Union, Eastern philosophy, yoga, and the martial arts as well as research on bodily transformations at the Esalen Sport Center. We will work with gaits and tempos for running, muscle/skeletal exercises, flexibility exercises, training routines, visualization exercises and meditation techniques. $110

I Don't Know the Words, But I Can Hum a Few Bars
Nancy Lunney

This is a gestalt workshop in awareness and creativity. Music will be used to find our own songs; the emphasis is on self expression and process. $110

March 5–17
The Moving Meditation
Gabrielle Roth & Musicians

In this two week committment to the celebration of existence, we will dance until the dancer disappears and only the dance remains. This experience, if you fully bring yourself to it, can awaken, energize, and focus your right hemisphere and give birth to the intuitive, mystical capacities within you. Through such diverse techniques as psychic explorations and video feedback, dance and meditation, Gabrielle will catalyze you to let go, move inside and tap into that part of yourself that is unique and authentic.

You must be willing to surrender to the flow of your innermost heart energy and allow it to create and define this experience for you. Please bring a journal and a set of felt tip pens.

Recommended Reading: Initiations, Elisabeth Haisch; Gifts of Unknown Things, Lyall Watson; and any books by Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh. $590

Shiatsu Massage—The Full Treatment / Patricia Caldwell

Shiatsu is the oriental art in which the thumbs and hands are used to press certain points over the entire body. A working knowledge of a full shiatsu treatment for personal or professional use will be given. Emphasis will be on seeing and treating people as wholes, centering techniques, and shiatsu as a self-awareness practice and spiritual discipline. Charts will be provided. $270 per person

Gestalt, Body Awareness & Health Practices—For Health Professionals / Janet Lederman & Donald Lindsay, MD

Experiential teaching is emphasized in this workshop. The student will be a participant-observer. Recent developments in experiential aspects of body awareness will be developed followed by practical applications to patient care such as exploring what a nurse communicates when she touches a patient. Aspects of inner awareness wil be used to enhance professionalism, self confidence, professional autonomy as well as improved interprofessional relations. $270

More / Michael Butler

This workshop is to teach ways of tuning into the "more" of what is inside you. The goal is more self awareness, everyday happiness and ease in life.

This method of awareness is based on self discovery. We will use a variety of tools which are gentle and yet go deep. There will be a form of positive encounter, chanting to open the heart, structured fantasies and individual gestalt work. Esalen's natural beauty will support the process.

A form of meditation will be taught which can replenish you in day to day life and help you increase the "more" of your life. $110

Gestalt Theater / John Argue

Definition: Gestalt theater is a dramatization of the processes of consciousness in now time, whereas psychodrama is a dramatization of crucial episodes in one's personal history.

We will use gestalt to generate improvisations for a theater of self-presentation that truly celebrates and educates in the art of being human.

Work will be based on each person's everyday process, dreams, fantasies, and relationships.

This group is for people who wish to learn theatrical uses of gestalt language and process as a means of dealing creatively with everyday life. It is open to anyone and I want especially to work with teachers, helpers, and healers. $110

Opening the Feelings

RADIX NEO-REICHIAN WORKSHOPS (formerly Interscience Workshops)

To grow in the capacity to experience and express deep feeling, to connect up with oneself, and to contact others is the aim of this series of workshops which employ neo-Reichian techniques of emotional release. The Radix Intensive, a period of individual work within a small group setting, is practiced by Charles and Erica Kelley and their staff at the Radix Work Shop. The Intensive, like other neo-Reichian techniques used in these workshops, grew from the discovery by Charles Kelley's teacher, Wilhelm Reich, of the way in which feeling is rooted in the flow of energy in the body, and is blocked by chronic muscular contractions which Reich called the muscular armor. Freeing the armor enables the student to open feeling that is buried and to soften and free feeling that is too strong and has been held in for fear of explosion.

In these workshops armor is softened by simultaneous work on the character and body, using techniques not only from Reich, but also from bioenergetics, sensory awareness, and other body-oriented approaches. The participant/teacher ratio is kept small, never more than 10/1. Each weekend participant who wishes will receive an Intensive, while 5-day workshop participants receive two. By meeting sometimes in small groups and sometimes together in large groups, Radix combines the intimacy and individual attention of the small group with the energy and dynamism of the large. Grief or pain, fear, and rage that have been held in since childhood emerge in these workshops. As the participant accepts and works through these negative feelings, he/she discovers a new capacity for pleasure, trust, and love. In time the sexual experience changes profoundly as tender and sexual feelings for the mate intensify and merge.

The Gentle Art of Becoming—Together: A Workshop for Couples / David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

This workshop will focus on the reawakening and development of positive and mutual supports that are at the root of satisfying couple relationships. The emphasis will be on creating clear and truthful expressions of the essential sense of loving and personal integrity. We will look at the beliefs and habits used to celebrate or lose the state of grace and presence which allows growth and joy for our partners and ourselves through the use of intuitional sensing, risk-taking structures, and guided imagery as well as gestalt awareness techniques.
$110 per person

Hypnosis & Movement / Emmett & Nitza Miller

To us our practice is a means for capturing the spirit and momentum of enjoyable experiences in the past and projecting them into the future. Further, it allows us to trace maladaptive patterns—symptoms, habits, emotions, and blocks—to their source, as far back as infancy or further, and extinguish them.

Participants will learn to enter and use the hypnotic state for relaxation, imagery, and age regression. Movement will be used to help intensify emotional experiences, to transmit desirable self-concepts to the body, and to develop means of truly enjoying the body. Of special interest will be multiple experiences of going from a desirable mental image in hypnosis directly into a full movement experience, without pausing at the "waking" level. $110

Dimensions of Consciousness / Stanislav Grof & Esalen Staff

Under the direction of Stanislav Grof Esalen is offering a comprehensive course on altered states of consciousness and psychedelics for professionals and students in the fields of general medicine, psychiatry, psychology, anthropology, and philosophy. This residential workshop will include over 75 hours of didactic and experiential sessions.

The core of this program will be a series of lectures which Dr Grof presented at the Donwood Institute in Toronto last fall. Slide-illustrated discussions, experiential exercises, and selected film material of this series cover the following topics:

I Altered States of Consciousness and Human Culture;
II Psychedelic Drugs in the History of Mankind;
III Laboratory and Clinical Research of Altered States of Consciousness and of Psychedelic Drugs;
IV LSD-Assisted Psychotherapy;
V Cartography of the Inner Spaces;
VI Dynamics of the Death-Rebirth Process;
VII Birth Trauma and Its Relation to Mental Illness, Suicide, and Ecstasy;
VIII Transpersonal Experiences and Their Significance for Psychiatry;
IX LSD and the Human Encounter with Death;
X LSD and the Cosmic Game: Outline of Psychedelic Cosmology.

The experiential parts of these sessions will combine the effect of sound and music, fantasy exercises, mandala drawing, group interaction and individual work when indicated. Contributions of the Esalen staff to this program will involve sessions on shamanism and schizophrenia, gestalt practice, encounter, Esalen and polarity massage, shiatsu, feldenkrais, rolfing, hatha yoga, aikido, acupuncture, and psychoceramics.

The program is limited to 30 participants selected from applicants. The fee is $575 including room and board. Some working scholarships are available to students on the basis of need. Scholarship forms can be obtained from Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.

The Kiva: Experiment in Male Friendship
Ed Maupin & Bill Stewart

The more comfortable men are with radical non-sexual intimacy with other men, the more easily their energy flow can result in unified action and creativity. In some traditional societies the kiva is a lodge in which men establish strong ties, develop skills and are initiated into the mysteries. In this workshop the mysteries include working through the anxieties about energy flow between men and learning to attend to our dreams as meaningful communications from deeper levels of the self. Bring a journal for recording dreams. $270

Woman to Woman / Man to Man
Dee Mundschenk David Schiffman

"The woman that most needs liberating is the woman in every man, and the man that most needs liberating is the man in every woman."
—Rev William Sloan Coffin

Taking advantage of the natural affinity and support that people of the same sex can afford one another, the men and women in this workshop will meet separately as well as together. We will create an ambience of tenderness and support to provide opportunities to clarify the nature of who we are as men in the absence of women and who we are as women in the absence of men and what happens when we come together. The themes we will explore are our sexuality, our friendships, our body images, our coupling, our creativity, our relationship to power, our expectations of each other. The workshop will be grounded in the techniques of gestalt, encounter, fantasy, massage, and bioenergetics. $270

Friendship for Men & Women
Ed Maupin & Bill Stewart

Based on the leaders' experience with friendship, this workshop will focus on all aspects of friendship including the fears and assumptions which do not allow deep friendship to develop, techniques for moving into total intimacy with a friend without resorting to sex, and methods for directing the friendship towards creativity rather than complications. $110

Inner Love / Simone Surpin

In each of us exists a place where we can merge in and with a certain kind of love: a love that is the source of our inner being; a love that is not dependent on something outside of itself for sustenance; a love that renews and clears our vision of ourselves and of others.

As purely and as simply as possible, we will attempt to explore and experience this state; to touch these experiences with our minds and share them outside ourselves.

We will meditate, chant, do gentle body work practices, and learn about energy flows. Each session will be a blend of both didactic and experiential work. Some time will also be spent working in the garden together and on silent walks in the country. $110

The Lawyer—A New Perspective
A Weekend for Lawyers presented by the Humanistic Law Institute

"Like mounds in a sandy desert, intellectual knowledge is mounting up without provision for the expression of the heart."

—Meher Baba

As lawyers we were trained to use our heads and not our hearts—to make choices and decisions based upon "reason," "principles," and "issues" and not to trust feelings, intuition or compassion—often with less than satisfying results in our "professional" and/or "private" lives.

During this weekend we will explore and share with other lawyers, in the peaceful, reflective, nourishing, and evocative setting of Esalen, ways of using and integrating all aspects of ourselves—our bodies, our minds, our feelings, our "hearts" to see if we can make our work and our "private" lives more effective and more integrated, flowing, meaningful, and enjoyable.

The program will be conducted by a lawyer member of the HLI staff and another experienced group leader and will be largely experiential, using approaches and methods of gestalt awareness, psychosynthesis, massage, meditation, and bioenergetics. $110

The Body & the Energy Body / George Leonard

Many ancient and modern disciplines of personal health, growth and change depend upon concepts of energy flows in and around the bodies of living things. Using techniques derived from the art of aikido, George Leonard will present his approach to the human biofield or "energy body." Through simple mental and physical exercises, participants will experience their energy bodies in interaction with nature and other people, and will practice centering and heightened awareness with special attention to stress reduction and good health. They will be introduced to alternative ways of dealing with everyday life situations—especially those involving tension and expectation—and will explore ways of getting in touch with their own hidden powers. There will also be discussion of these experiences as they relate to education, sports, healing, and social transformation. $110

Fear, Panic & Vulnerability to Crisis
Janet Lederman & Donald Lindsay, MD

This course is a study of action in panic or fearful situations. It demonstrates to the student his vulnerability to crisis. The workshop explores the effectiveness of the student's personal fear reaction patterns and the student's ability to recognize the innate patterns of patients and others involved in a crisis. $110

Couples Workshop / Hector Prestera & Bob Hutchins

In this workshop for couples the emphasis will be on freeing reciprocal blocks in the body/mind. We will explore how the mechanism of living together can further blocks or be used as a tool for freedom.
$110 per person.

April 7—14
Seven Day Massage Intensive
The Esalen Massage Crew

The members of the massage crew, each with their own unique style, will give instruction and help the group to practice basic techniques of massage upon one another: sensory awareness, deep muscular massage, joint articulation, polarity. As we learn to feel with our hands how the body and the life-force within it works, we learn to release tensions in others and to be more fully aware of ourselves.

April 9—May 5, 1978
Inner Road to Health / Al Drucker
Dee Mundschenk, David Schiffman, Patricia Caldwell, Michael Tierra, Ryan Kopperud, Richard & Christine Price, & the Esalen Staff

This is a workshop about health—learning how to get well and stay well, and helping others to do the same, all by natural means. Sessions held during the day will focus on a variety of wholistic health practices. We will cover acupuncture and acupressure, herbal systems, homeopathic systems, rolfing, nutrition and diet, different forms of massage such as shiatsu, polarity, Esalen massage and deep-tissue massage, and topics in anatomy, physiology, organic gardening etc. The sessions will be both experiential and didactic. As different systems are introduced we'll explore ways of experiencing and embodying this knowledge, using our hands as well as minds. For example, we'll gather our own herbs to prepare powders, salves, infusions, tinctures, and herbal baths while at the same time learning the medicinal uses of various American, Chinese and Indian herbs.

Evening sessions will focus on individual and interpersonal process work, based on gestalt and psychosynthesis approaches. Weekends will generally be free and participants in the workshop may sign up for regularly scheduled weekend brochure programs, for the catalog price minus $50.

A principal emphasis throughout the month will be on discovering and awakening inner resources. In this connection, regular meditation, chanting, yoga, tai chi, massage, and other quieting practices will help still the mind and relax the body, permitting new sensitivities to emerge. We will also have dance, movement, and various forms of energy awareness sessions for the sheer enjoyment of learning to move freely and spontaneously in response to inner rhythms.

The group will meet in the Big House and many of the participants will be housed there. This provides a unique opportunity and setting for evolving this month-long group experience into a family experience. For those who cannot afford the full tuition cost, a limited number of partial scholarships are available, for which a weekly work committment is required. For scholarship information write to Esalen, Big Sur, CA 93920. Also please write to us if you have a health problem. We will try to accommodate your needs or suggest alternative possibilities. Tuition: $1150 Deposit: $400

For future planning purposes, please note that the above workshop is offered twice yearly. In addition, an advanced training workshop entitled Deep Tissue Work is also scheduled twice yearly. This is limited to twelve participants and requires a previous qualifying experience. This is further described under February 5—24.

Easing into Autobiography—
Private Revelations & the Word / Michael Tobias

Everyone has a life to tell. But few of us ever have the urgency or discipline to do it effectively. We will look at the art of the journal and diary, analyzing a variety of writers from Montaigne to Norman Mailer. Sharing our own insights and dilemmas, we'll study the anthropology of self-revelation in an effort to bring out our latent expressive options. Everyone is an artist with personal legends. We'll try and make that a pressing reality. $110

Tai Chi Chih / Catherine Elber

Tai chi chih is an ancient secret of China's imperial class which was first presented to the public three years ago. Easier than tai chi chuan, the simplicity and potency of these nineteen gentle movements is a beautiful experience of connecting with one's own life force. The inner calmness developed through this practice can have a deep effect on one's life as it provides the peaceful serenity of meditation while cultivating endless benefits for body, mind and soul. $110

Esalen Institute—An Approved Provider

The Board of Registered Nursing in the State of California has approved Esalen Institute as a provider of Continuing Education for Registered Nurses. Provider Number 01152

In accordance with Section 2811.5 of the California Nurse Practice Act, previously referred to as AB 3017, Registered Nurses must submit proof of attendance of continuing education to obtain license renewal. Thirty hours of continuing education are required every two years. For instance, if a nursing license expires April, 1978, the nurse must attend 30 hours of continuing education before March 30, 1980. Esalen is offering nurses the opportunity to meet this requirement in an evolving and attuned environment.

A certificate will be given to each nurse completing the approved workshops. The following workshops will be offered for Continuing Education Units:

February 24–26
Recent Developments in Nurse Healing Practices
Donald Lindsay, MD & Polly Kirby, RN
See page 21 for workshop description. 10 units

March 12–17

The Radix Experience: A Neo-Reichian Workshop
Charles Kelley, Clair Killen, Mark Dunlap, Renan Sercarz, Dale Cummings, & Lawanna Skaggs

The Radix experience is a direct body approach to deep emotional release, rooted in the work of Wilhelm Reich and his students. By concentrating on breaking patterns of breathing and muscular tension, feeling which has been blocked by chronic unconscious patterns of muscular tension called "muscular armor," is freed. As the armor softens and the student allows emotions—fear, anger, pain—to emerge, he realizes a new capacity for trust, love, and joy.

Half of the workshop sessions will be in large group with Chuck Kelley who will present Radix group techniques. Chuck will also describe the concepts which underlie Radix and give an in-depth description of his unique training program. The other half of the sessions will be in small groups, and will include two individual Radix intensive sessions for each participant. $300

Within each of us is a seed of emotional and spiritual energy which can be the source of insight, love and joy. This workshop is to teach ways to tune into and systematically nurture that seed center of yourself.

We will use methods that are gentle, yet go deep—a form of "positive" encounter, gestalt, chanting and music to open the heart, guided fantasy—and other tools for opening. Esalen's natural beauty will support the process.

We will learn how to replenish ourselves with meditation. A kind of meditation will be taught which allows you to continue the process of unfolding yourself in everyday life. $110

Hypnosis & Parapsychology / Lee Pulos

All participants will be taught and experience beginning and advanced techniques of self-hypnosis. There will be a number of opportunities throughout the workshop to practice hypnosis for personal habit changes and to learn how to use hypnotic uncovering techniques such as automatic writing and ideo-motor questioning. In addition to brief lecturettes explaining and de-mystifying hypnosis, the 'fun' part of the workshop will be the exploratory use of hypnosis as a bridge to other realities. Trance states for opening up psychic and telepathic channels will be experienced and these will lead into turning one's visions inward to the possibility of multiple dimensions and existences. A feature of the workshop will be to teach how to use hypnosis for health maintenance. $110

Exploring Self-Acceptance
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

The focus of this workshop is the creation of a more positive and open-ended self concept. Through the use of structured risk-taking situations, gestalt, role-playing, fantasy, and encounter techniques, participants can accept or transcend the self-imposed boundaries from which they approach the world. Emphasis is on searching out unique personality strengths, indivudal capacities, and latent powers as a means of achieving productive, creative functioning. $110

Lomi Work: An Exploration of the Body / Mind / Spirit Through Awareness David Kessler

Using the Lomi approach to gestalt, conscious movement, breath awareness, aikido energy techniques, hatha yoga, body work, polarity massage, and meditation, we will explore and enhance our body/mind/spirit process. The focus of this work is cultivation of awareness at all levels of existence. We will explore Lomi body work, an integrative form of deep body manipulations whereby tensions in the body are brought to awareness and released. Basically this work speaks of a trust for the human organism and the higher forces that guide it. $270

Selective Awareness: Mind-Body Relationships in Psychosomatic Medicine / Emmett Miller

When we teach ourselves to act in response to our internal as well as external environment, most of our difficulties (symptoms, unwanted emotions, maladaptive habits) can be eased. The ability to resolve personal blocks, develop increased sensitivity, heighten awareness, and produce desirable states of consciousness lies within each of us. Our processing of the world and our communicating with it proceeds throughout varying stages of higher and lower energy; as the mind-body becomes attuned, it acts in accord with its changing experience. In this workshop we will apply the principles of selective awareness and self-hypnosis to learn to expand awareness and to adjust to changing experiences. $110

A Psychic Training Program / Anne Armstrong

This workshop is open to professionals or others interested in learning to recognize and use their own Psi abilities. Anne will use exercises and her own "tracking" abilities acquired from over twenty years in this field to assist participants in developing their own inner sensitivity. She has found through her professional workshops that most of those in the helping professions are already using their sensitivity and need only to learn to recognize their style and trust the psychic input they normally receive. The workshop will include personal psychic scans and practice on selected cases. $270

Adding More to Your Relationship—Couples Workshop Gerald Smith & Betsy Hand

The goal of this workshop is to develop more skill in expressing what you feel—in being close—in getting distance—in fighting fairly. It is not for couples in serious trouble, but instead for prevention and growth. Non-verbal as well as gestalt and family therapy approaches will be used. $110 per person

Without Parachutes / Jack Gaines

Let's look at how we choose to make a ping-pong game into a crisis; how we clutter up our lives with catastrophic expectations. It's as easy and sensible to be in the exciting and challenging and glorious present as it is to regret yesterday or fear tomorrow. Easier. Come. Learn what you already know: that you were not put on this universe to suffer.

This workshop is open only to those who are willing to consider flying through life without parachutes. $110

Self Exploration Through Yoga / Christina Healy

Participants will have the opportunity to explore their physical and mental energies using a combination of hatha yoga, music, mandala drawing, and group interaction. We will pay special attention to energy blockages and to problems related to the activation of kundalini that can occur spontaneously or during spiritual practice. $110

May 7—June 2

Frontiers of Science / Stanislav Grof, Christina Healy & Rick Tarnas

A four-week interdisciplinary program for professionals and students in the areas of psychiatry, psychology, parapsychology, general medicine, physics, philosophy, and religion. This workshop will focus on a variety of extraordinary and controversial phenomena that have the potential to revolutionize modern science. Special emphasis will be put on the relevance of such phenomena for the understanding of human nature and for self-exploration. The material of this workshop falls into three major thematic groups:

1. Boundaries of Fact and Fiction. The phenomena explored in this context will include telepathy, clairvoyance, astral projection, psychokinesis, psychic diagnosis, development of various supernormal physical abilities, enigmatic energetic phenomena, UFO's, revolutionary astronomical observations, and theories of modern physics. Special sessions will be dedicated to the parallels between theoretical speculations of modern physics, consciousness research, and various mystical traditions.

2. Ancient and Modern Techniques of Psychotherapy. We will explore theoretically and experientially shamanic practices and several modern approaches, such as gestalt, encounter, bioenergetics, and psychosynthesis. In a series of slide-illustrated discussions we will focus on LSD psychotherapy, altered states of consciousness, and the implications of psychedelic research for the philosophy of science. A special session will be dedicated to the cosmological system of Kashmir Shaivism and the teachings of Swami Muktananda.

3. Self-Exploration and Group Process. Esalen staff and guest leaders will act as facilitators of an ongoing process of intrapsychic and interpersonal exploration of the participants throughout the workshop.

The workshop is limited to 30 participants selected from applicants. The fee is $1150 including room and board. Some working scholarships are available to students on the basis of need; scholarship forms can be obtained from Esalen Institute. If you wish to enroll in the program, send a letter of application with biographical information to: Frontiers of Science, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.

Future Workshop Announcements

Workshops of more than one week require special planning for participants. Whenever possible we will announce such workshops well in advance. More detailed descriptions—and any changes—will appear in the catalog covering the period in which the workshop is scheduled.

June 4–30

An Integrative Approach to Group Process & Individual Growth / David Schiffman, Dee Mundschenk, Richard & Christine Price, with the Esalen Staff

This month-long community workshop will provide the opportunity for participants to clarify and develop their own ability, style, and artfulness as facilitators, as well as to do in-depth personal work and training in gestalt, body work, psychosynthetic techniques, journal processing, and meditative practices.

The workshop will be structured to include: intensive individual work, supervised observations, practicum work in group leading and individual counseling skills, video feedback, journal keeping and didactic-theoretical sessions. The emphasis throughout will be on creating a personally integrated perspective on the nature and process of evolution.

DEFINITIONS

Of Some Approaches to Human Growth Used in this Catalog

PSYCHOSYNTHESIS

Psychosynthesis is a psychological and educational approach for recognizing and harmonizing the many, often conflicting, elements of our inner lives. It is a developmental process based on a positive conception of man/woman within an evolving universe. Starting with each person's existential situation as he or she perceives it, personal growth is organized into a process aiming at the integration of personality and the emergence of an effective unifying center of being and awareness, the Self. The practical work of psychosynthesis chooses in each situation the appropriate progressive activities among many techniques and methods available. Some of these are: guided imagery, movement, self-identification, creativity, gestalt, meditation, training of the will, symbolic art work, journal keeping, ideal models, and development of intuition. The emphasis is on fostering an ongoing process of growth that can gain momentum and bring about a more joyful, balanced actualization of one's life.

MASSAGE

Massage is a healing art. It is practiced to help the body relax, to release tensions, to balance the energy flow, and to soothe the being with gentle caring. Massages are given individually; workshops, classes, and private lessons are available.

T'AI CHI CHUAN

T'ai Chi Chuan is an ancient Chinese exercise discipline practiced for health, meditation, energy flow, and self-defense. The slow, flowing movements of this "shadow boxing" comprise the oldest and "softest" of the Asian martial arts. Developed from the Chinese practice of nei kung, or inner exercise, it is part of the system of Taoist yoga. The term t'ai chi can be translated as "grand ultimate" and is expressed by the familiar symbol of yang and yin. It is thus rooted in the Chinese philosophy of change as expressed in the I Ching.

SHIATSU MASSAGE

Shiatsu massage is the oriental healing art in which the hands are used to apply pressure to acupuncture points over the entire body, allowing the springs of life to flow.

BIOENERGETIC ANALYSIS

Bioenergetic analysis attempts to understand the life of the body through its expression of vitality, gesture, emotion, feeling, and relationship. The body is viewed as an energetic process that participates as the world in the world of instinctual, social, imaginative, and creative realms. Bioenergetics seeks to develop an individual's range of expression by working through this process.

ENCOUNTER

The ground rules of encounter are that participants be open and honest in a group setting, that they avoid mere theorizing and instead talk about their feelings and perceptions. There is often an emphasis on eliciting emotions which lead to positive or negative confrontations rather than away from them. The focus of encounter is to explore interpersonal relations. Over the past years encounter, as practiced at Esalen, has evolved into a broad approach incorporating several related disciplines to achieve its aims. Techniques and insights gained from gestalt, sensory awareness, bioenergetics, massage, movement, and structural integration are all part of Esalen's encounter groups today.

GESTALT

Gestalt Awareness Training is a theory and approach to personality integration first developed by Fritz and Laura Perls, though new styles and methods are being developed by other leaders. The goal of the training is to assist the participants to utilize excitement and awareness and to develop responsibility. Excitement—to have life energy freely available and flowing, not blocked. Awareness—to be conscious of my energy as and where it flows; to have action accessible to consciousness, not happening mechanically. Responsibility—to know and act on the principle that I am the one who acts, thinks, and feels whatever it may be that I act, think, or feel. No one else or no event influences me except with my consent. At times, everyone in the workshop may work simultaneously with some awareness exercise, or in interaction with each other. More traditionally, a fair amount of time will be spent with participants working individually with the leader. The starting point for such individual work is whatever is here and now of most involving concern for the organism; a fantasy or dream, an interaction with another person, a memory, or a physical posture. "Problems" are welcome as starting points, if they are truly present and not merely verbally presented. In keeping with the gestalt emphasis on personal responsibility, the leader usually leaves the initiative for such work with the participants. The assumption is made that participants are not "patients" but are persons responsible for their own life decisions.

STRUCTURAL INTEGRATION (ROLFING)

Structural Integration or Rolfing is a method of deep manipulation of the musculo-skeletal system that aims at balancing the major segments of the body. We have learned that connective tissue (fascia, tendons, ligaments) can be lengthened by palpation and direct manipulation; this makes it possible to reorganize the basic body lines. A properly organized body will be subject to less stress and will move in a more economical way. Structural Integration has a second principle: posture is behavior. Humans are psychophysical organisms; one cannot divorce their physical from their psychological functions. When you change the structure, you change the function.

Audio Cassette Recordings

Recent years have produced unusual tape recordings. The following were recorded in stereo and are available on cassettes only. Each cassette is $7.50 and is from 1 to 1½ hours in length:

Fritjof Capra: New Physics as Model for New Medicine
Nitza & Emmett Miller: Awareness, Hypnosis & Movement
Rafiel: Mystical Romantic Baroque Music
Al Drucker: Group Chanting with Tamboura
Tom Brenner: Flute Music by the Waterfall
Janet Lederman: Gestalt Awareness—Tape 1
Seung Sahn: The Zen Circle Dharma Talk
John Lilly: Biocomputer Systems & Dolphins
Anne Armstrong: Training our Psychic Abilities
Fritjof Capra: Beyond Space & Time
Stanislav Grof: The Inner Journey

From the March 1977 workshop "Shamanism & the Mystic Quest":

Henry Munn: Mushrooms & Culture
Prem Das: The Huichol Cosmology—Tape 1
Don Jose: Huichol Ceremony Chanting
Bhagavan Das: Singing Meditation

From the May 1977 workshop "Schizophrenia & the Visionary Mind":

John Weir Perry: Psychosis & Visionary States
Julian Silverman: Shamanism & Schizophrenia
Gregory Bateson: Story of the Double Bind (retitled)
Humphrey Osmond: Early Psychedelic History

From the January 1976 Physics/Consciousness group:

John King: Introduction to Quantum Theory
Peter Flessel: Molecular Biology & Physics
Fritjof Capra: Quantum Paradoxes & Mysticism
David Finkelstein: A New Quantum Logic

And from various other workshops and occasions:

Al Chung-liang Huang: The Watercourse Way T'ai Chi
John Lilly: Dolphin Behavior with Humans
Will Schutz: Interpersonal Psychodynamics
Gregory Bateson: Metaphors & Butterflies

Special series; available as complete set only:

Ruth Alon: Awareness Through Movement; The Feldenkrais Method (six cassettes; twelve lesson experiences) $60

Big Sur Information

For reservations and information, write or call:
Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.
Phone: (408) 667-2335, 10 to 3:30 every day;
10 to 8 Sunday & Friday.

Unless otherwise indicated, all programs listed in this brochure are residential programs in Big Sur. Send reservations for all programs to Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.

Esalen lies 300 miles north of Los Angeles and 175 miles south of San Francisco. It is directly over the shoreline of the Pacific with the Santa Lucia Range rising sharply behind. The property, which has natural hot baths, was once the home of a North American Indian tribe known as Esalen.

We are a 45-mile drive south from Monterey, 11 miles south of Nepenthe, on California Coast Route 1. From the south, we are 50 miles north of San Simeon. A lighted sign on the ocean side of the highway reads: Esalen Institute—By Reservation Only.

Fee Information: We require a reservation fee of $20 for weekend groups, $70 for five-day groups, $200 for two-week groups, $300 for three-week groups, and $400 for month-long groups. These fees are not refundable but, with five days' notice, may be transferred to other Esalen programs. Please mail all reservations to Esalen/Big Sur. Balance of payment is due on arrival. Esalen accepts Mastercharge, Bankamericard, and American Express. U S currency only, please.

Scholarship Information: If you need scholarship assistance for a long term Esalen program, write for a scholarship application form before making a reservation (allow at least 3 weeks for processing as we have many applications). If your application is approved, please make a reservation as soon as possible after receiving notice. No scholarship assistance is available for June 15—August 31 programs or for weekend programs.

General Information: Workshop fees cover tuition, food, and lodging. Rooms are shared by two or three workshop participants. Camping on the grounds is prohibited.

Weekend programs begin with dinner on Friday and end with lunch on Sunday. Five-day and longer programs begin with dinner on Sunday and end with lunch on Friday. Rooms become available at 5 pm; however, guests are welcome to arrive anytime after lunch.

Esalen has no short term child care facilities. Please do not plan to bring children. We also ask workshop participants not to have guests. Alas, no pets.

Esalen's flourishing organic garden provides the kitchen with many of its vegetables and herbs. Our breads and pastries are made by Esalen bakers.

Limousine Service: Those traveling by air or bus can obtain limousine service to Esalen by notifying the office of time of arrival. Pickups are made at the Monterey Airport and the Greyhound terminal at 5—5:30 pm each Sunday and Friday. The cost is $15 per person one way, payable on arrival at Esalen.

Seminarians as Staff (Karma Yoga): Seminarians in residence at Esalen are expected to contribute several hours per week to work with the staff. Your help enables us to meet the pressures of peak working times and enables you to experience Esalen from the inside out. A staff member will appear at your first workshop meeting to schedule volunteer help.

Esalen Institute is a center to explore those trends in education, religion, philosophy, and the physical and behavioral sciences which emphasize the potentialities and values of human existence. Our activities consist of seminars and workshops, residential programs, consulting, and research.

We exist to sponsor, encourage, synthesize, and attempt evaluation of work in these areas, both inside and outside our own organizational framework. Since we are a center for experimental education, we ask that persons come to our programs out of an educational interest. We ask that no one come whose interest is "cure." We point out here, as we have in workshops and seminars, that some persons, particularly those with a history of psychiatric problems, may find some programs difficult, trying, or potentially risky. We recommend that in case of any doubt, a physician or trusted counselor be consulted.

In this issue of the Esalen catalog we continue our tribute to Selig Morgenrath, designer of the Esalen grounds. In addition to photographs showing Selig's work, the illustrations include photographs of paintings by Emil White, a friend of Selig and long time Big Sur resident and artist. Both artists worked with the rhythms and shapes of the land: Selig Morgenrath working directly on the land and Emil White depicting on canvas what he saw. In this catalog we show the relationship between the work of these two artists and the land which was the source of their art.

Who's Responsible at Esalen?

We have long regarded Esalen Institute as an educational laboratory. Our evolving philosophical and operational positions reflect this regard. Underlying it all is a baseline ethic of "self-awareness and self-responsibility." However re-presented and operationalized in the past, by us or by others, this ethic continues to be the basis for our world view, and following from this, our educational approach. The self-awareness/self-responsibility ethic has grown and stabilized out of at least two generations of weighty dis-illusioning social and political events—all connected by a common reminder:

> Give away your personal faculties of discernment, of evaluation, of self-reference, and you lose your integrity (your wholeness). "Take responsibility for your every thought, your every feeling, your every action," said our beloved friend and teacher, Fritz Perls.

We view the implications of this position as being social as well as personal. They concern the ways we relate to ourselves and others.

In our position as educators, we invite people to take responsibility for their whole life situation while at Esalen. This includes taking responsibility for who they select as their teachers, their leaders, their gurus, their authority figures . . . and so on—and to be aware, whenever possible, what effect this has on them. We, of necessity, are setting up a situation for our seminarians to learn the practice of self-responsibility from the time they consider selecting a workshop, not just during the workshop. In effect, we are asking that this self-responsibility attitude be present in the initial contact with Esalen. Ideally, the same attitude will pervade after a workshop when our seminarians go back to the community and seek out others—physicians, teachers, counselors, mental health professionals, etc.

As we have become more thoughtful and self-critical about the overall direction of Esalen we have begun to concentrate on enhancing our basic offering—the Esalen environment and life style. Our primary emphasis is not on teaching particular truths or personal and interpersonal techniques for daily life; rather our primary concern is with a particular consciousness and developing an environment to support the evolution of that consciousness—the consciousness of self-awareness/self-responsibility.

Selig Morganrath's physical body left us in the summer of 1977. He was the designer, architect and principal sculptor of Esalen Institute at Big Sur. The physical beauty of Esalen unfolded predominantly through his vision and creative expression. He also was an important teacher for many of us.

His legacy to Esalen is an imposing one. It accents and glorifies the Esalen grounds. It remains after Selig to be enjoyed—simply, with one's senses, and when one "opens oneself" to it, with a feeling of reverence for nature.

Charismatic Leader or Guru?

What is the difference between a charismatic leader and a guru? The difference is tremendous. The difference is: when you are pulled towards a guru you suddenly feel as if you are being pulled inwards, not outwards.

When you are pulled towards Kabir, Nanak, Buddha, you have a strange feeling. The feeling is that you are being pulled towards them and at the same time you are being pulled inwards. A very strange, paradoxical phenomenon: the more you become independent; the more you become surrendered to the guru, the more you feel that you have freedom that you never had before.

So it is a very subtle difference: remember it. If you are pulled towards a man and that pull creates a slavery, that man is not the guru. That man may have charisma, may have magnetic power—be his great intelligence, his physical beauty, or his sheer vitality pulls you—but you will be going away from yourself. It will be an infatuation. You will be obsessed with this man, and you will be off your center. Avoid such people; these are the greatest mischief-mongers in the world. Adolf Hitler, Napoleon, Alexander—these are the people who have created great havoc, because people feel tremendously attracted and people feel like surrendering.

Remember, if your surrendering gives you freedom, then the man is a guru, a Master. If your surrendering makes you a slave, makes you a robot—as all the followers of Adolf Hitler were turned into robots, mechanical: they lost their souls . . . He simply exploited their souls; they lost all their awareness.

This happens in the spiritual world also, because these charismatic people are everywhere. So make it a criterion inside: if by the presence of your guru, of your Master, you are becoming more and more free, more and more independent; by surrendering, the paradox is happening that by surrendering you are gaining more willpower; by surrendering you are becoming more powerful, not impotent—then you are near the guru. The guru is one who pulls you towards himself just to throw you back into your own being. He functions as a mediator; via the guru you arrive to your own self. Because you cannot go directly, he helps you via himself. But his whole effort is to make you yourself.

A true guru will never impose himself upon you. He will never impose his lifestyle on you. He will never give you any rigid discipline. He will not force you, regiment you. He will not try to create soldiers of you. No, he will help you to become yourself. He will help you to be yourself, whatsoever that is. He will help you to get more and more understanding about yourself. You will become more and more centered, rooted, near him. More and more you will feel that he has given you back to yourself—that which was lost or forgotten, he has made you aware of.

Esalen's Focus on Health & Work with Health Professionals

My primary concern for this board meeting is to focus upon a direction that Esalen will take during the next several years. My formulation of this direction embraces the essentials of our current operation and begins to articulate the next step.

The new program, involving construction of buildings and new programming, would take effect upon approval by the trustees and have a date of full operation of January, 1980.

I. Esalen as a Multi-Level Structure: A Vision of an Educational Institution of the Future.

Level 1: Workshops & Seminars.
Continually developing high quality experiential workshops—individual and group process, "body work"—and didactic seminars on various "human potential" issues. An emphasis on workshops which educate (and instruct) in the fundamentals of human awareness; of contact with self and others, of communication, of people beginning to come alive, to wake-up, to climb out of the play pen of unfulfilling relationships, to grow-up.

Level 2: Programs of Social Value.
Developing programs which apply wholistic notions of awareness and self-responsibility to current issues in such fields as medicine, psychiatry, law, education of the young, etc. (e.g. coordinating the Stanford Medical School student project, Donald Lindsay's and Polly Kirby's nursing project, and Dick Price's psychiatric personnel training projects—building a Wholistic Medical Education Program).

Level 3: Laboratories for Personal-Social Experimentation.
1) Experimenting with different approaches in Janet Lederman's Gazebo-school. The Gazebo program is an attempt to develop an educational environment where "learning becomes exploring." (We are replacing the word school with the word Gazebo.) This project is currently being coordinated with George Brown's program at the University of California, Santa Barbara. One of the aims of the program is the articulation and teaching of educational principles developed in this environment.

2) Experimenting with group process techniques in our own in-house groups (such as organizational development groups, work-scholar groups).

3) Management Training Laboratory: developing and articulating a style of co-ordinating group process work with traditional management approaches.

4) Working with individual physicians who learn things through experiences in our unique community.

The above levels are supported by the base structure, the "Village" community (people from maintenance, kitchen; resident facilitators; administrators; garden & grounds, etc.). A core of staff who care for the place (the Sextons—a la the Beefeaters of London Tower). A community of people: who form the "familiar" part of the Esalen operation, who represent the enduring aspect of the Esalen educational scene, who set the emotional/spiritual tone of the place by their ways of being while at work.

During the past several years Esalen's unique contribution to the outside world has been principally as a retreat or out-of-the-way place with an emphasis on experiential workshops—"individual and group process work" and "body work"—and didactic seminars on various "human potential" issues. Our format has been adopted by many "growth" centers; it has become an increasingly familiar part of contemporary life in America and in Europe.

Meanwhile, we have gone on working—refining our workshop techniques, enhancing the quality of our facilities and maintaining our natural environment with its extra-ordinary beauty, and building an innovative and dynamic business-community organization.

II. Wholistic Health & Well-Being: a developing direction for Esalen during the next several years.

In addition to doing regular workshops, we now see the need for Esalen to move in an outward direction. The creation of a Wholistic Health Program is a natural development out of the myriad of workshops and seminars which Esalen has offered or sponsored in the past. Numerous doctors of internal medicine, psychiatry and neurology and psychologists have worked at Esalen (e.g. Stanislav Grof, John Lilly, R.D. Laing, John Perry, Emmett Miller, Milton Trager, Karl Pribram, Elizabeth Kubler-Ross, the Humanistic Medicine group, William Fowkes and the Stanford Medical School group).

Body manipulation techniques such as rolfing and Feldenkrais work, as well as a variety of body manipulators have been given a strong consideration here. Acupuncture (Jack Worsley, Al Drucker and others) also has had a significant exposure here. Herbal remedies, homeopathy and other natural healing forms have been taught here. Gestalt and bioenergetics have been popularized here. Health related workshops such as jogging, moving meditations, breath awareness, energy awareness, body awareness, and sensory awareness have become popular here.

Attitudes toward the medical field have been changing in the past several years. These changes are reflected in such areas as malpractice insurance problems of physicians, the increasing popularity of non-allopathic treatments and an increasing awareness of the importance of nutrition and ecology on health. Prominent individuals in the field of medicine have begun to cast a receptive glance at what Esalen has to offer. New "Continuing Education" requirements in the medical field have opened up vast possibilities of contact between Esalen and the medical community. A number of projects have been started in conventional medical treatment settings which explicitly use Esalen techniques and Esalen-trained personnel.

Esalen's next steps in this direction should be obvious. They involve the expansion of our program in wholistic health education 1) to coordinate and consolidate the various approaches and teaching faculty, 2) to develop further special projects and continuing education training of physicians and other health professionals and 3) to develop health education for anyone interested in their own health and well-being.

A General Curriculum for Health Professionals:

1. Caring for your body (e.g. body/sensory awareness, movement, meditation, exercises in jogging, other sports, nutrition and diet, other forms of health care such as massage: Esalen, shiatsu, polarity; rolfing, Feldenkrais, acupuncture, Alexander, homeopathy).

2. Intra/inter-personal awareness (e.g. gestalt, encounter/group process, meditation, "team building"/organization development) for day to day living, routine professional contacts, living and dying (being aware of working with death rather than simply of working with disease).

3. Conceptual/metaphysical issues in the field of medical care (e.g. anxiety in illness: positive and negative aspects, dying, perspectives about health, guilt over lack of control of health; malpractice insurance problems and responsibility).

The Human·Dolphin Dilemma

The current dilemma of humans versus other animals such as cetaceans (dolphins, whales and porpoises) and elephants is a result of differing human beliefs, generated to fill in human ignorances maintained by lack of communication with other species. The human killing/exploitation/owning of other species is anthropocentrically generated over-valuation of things/thoughts human.

One could become involved emotionally in this dilemma: it is seductive to compassionate humans with a reverence for all life. A number of us decided to attempt a long-term evolutionary path to a probable solution of the dilemma, interspecies communication. In order to realize this program, two years ago we organized the Human/Dolphin Foundation in Malibu, California. This organization is publically supported, non-profit, IRS approved educational and research entity. The work is supported by donations from individuals and grants from foundations.

So far, the program has been successfully funded sufficiently to purchase the necessary computer to begin the work. It is planned to develop equipment called JANUS (joint-analog-numerical-understanding-system) centered on the computer. Like the Italic god, Janus, JANUS has two faces, a human one facing humans and a delphinic one facing dolphins. In brief summary, JANUS converts human communication signals into delphinic ones and simultaneously dolphin's signals into human ones.

Once completed JANUS (a mobile system) is taken to the dolphins and tests begun. It is expected that codes for human/dolphins will be devised by co-operation between both species. In our past experience (1955–1968) the dolphins are quite as eager as we are to communicate.

If you wish to learn more, join us as a member of the Foundation; write us at P.O. Box 4172, Malibu, CA 90265. If you wish to find out more about how you can participate/help/donate, send us your particular desires/qualifications. An Esalen workshop by John and Toni Lilly can give you details in greater depth.

The trustees of the foundation are Burgess Meredith, Victor di Servero, Georgia Tanner, Antoinette Lilly, and John Lilly.

Education for Healing

The following article presents one fantasy of a direction for health care. It proposes incorporating both oriental health practices and ways of educating the whole person into our concept of health care.

Presented here are some suggestions for training future healers and natural physicians. This education would also be appropriate for lay individuals who are interested in learning how to manage their own health and that of their family, or, in the case of those who have been ill a great deal, are ready to make significant changes in their life patterns in order to get well. These concepts come out of the experience of the Inner Road to Health programs at Esalen, where seminarians from all walks of life, including doctors and other medical professionals, come together for a month or more to learn about alternative approaches to healing. Subjects studied include herbal, homeopathic, nutritional, body-oriented, psychologically-oriented, and traditional systems of healing, such as the Chinese system of Acupuncture and the Indian system of Ayurveda. Only a very small fraction of these topics are treated in conventional medical education; yet they provide a complete health-care alternative for those individuals who want to free themselves from dependence on chemical medicine and instead choose to follow more natural and traditional approaches to health.

The primary focus in all these natural systems is on the health of the total person rather than on the malaise of some of his parts. With this orientation the natural physician becomes a teacher as well as a healer, as much concerned with keeping the different physical, mental, and emotional elements of the nonailing individual in balance, as treating the ailing individual after the vital force has become deranged. Although diagnosis would be an important area of study, the main emphasis in this education for healers would shift from concentration on pathology and disease processes to concentration on health and well-being; in other words, promoting the positive forces and life energies in whose presence disease cannot flourish. For the individual "patient" this means learning to recognize habits and life styles that lead to ill health, and undertaking a program of purification for gently clearing these out; then, irrespective of the disease, healing will naturally follow, (provided there is sufficient vital reserve and a favorable environment for health to blossom).

Going beyond even these considerations of disease-prevention and health-maintenance, the natural physician need also be concerned with raising the whole level of functioning of the individual, not just the physical and mental, but also the deeper spiritual and evolutionary consciousness of the inner being. To function effectively at this level the physician must continue to purify himself and attend to his own development, even as he is attending to the well-being of his patients. For this, inner meditational practices and other spiritual practices are important and would form a vital part of the healing curriculum. In time, these practices develop the deepest and loftiest capacities of the human being, namely compassion, equanimity, humility, patience, forebearance, love, inner peace, and wisdom. In a healing situation, these qualities in the physician, particularly his love and caring, may make the difference when other treatment methods and modalities fail.

One possible direction for Esalen's evolution as an educational center and developing community is to move towards longer-term programs providing training in the healing arts as well as opportunities for working on health. In herbology a typical herbal formula used for curing the effects of an illness, consists of three major constituents: a catalyzing herb which breaks up blockages and holdings, an elimination herb which cleans the system of the released toxins and impurities, and a restoration or tonic herb which nourishes, noramlizes, and builds up the weakened system to the full glow of vital functioning. This could also serve as a general model for a health-restoration community. At Esalen, we have long been associated with the psychologically and physically oriented approaches of Perls, Reich, and Rolf, which concentrate on releasing locked-in blocks and pathology which hamper the full natural expression of the individual. These methods together with various group processes and body-oriented modalities serve as the catalyzing and eliminative phase of the health-restoration process. We have yet to fully develop the tonifying and nourishing aspects of the healing process. Here the focus shifts from past traumas and holdings that have left their scars in body, mind, and psyche, to purifying and strengthening the environment, both inner and outer, which together with these relics from the past shapes our present experience. Through herbs, vitalizing foods, various homeopathic preparations, massage, the baths, yoga, tai chi, and other body-harmonizing practices, on the one hand, and spiritual practices such as chanting, movement, and meditation, on the other hand, the internal environment is uplifted. At the same time, the student is immersed in an outer environment where all factors support positive change, emphasizing balance, wholesome living, and protection from interference with his unfoldment process. Each flower is encouraged to bloom when it's ready. In such a supportive environment new, healthier living patterns will naturally emerge as old toxic ones lose their potency and fall away from disuse.

Of course in serious illness, accidents and other emergency situations, the needs of the patient are generally best served by the existing system of health-care. But for other health problems and for individuals desiring to embark on a health-restoration program, an alternative choice could be made available involving special teaching communities and healing centers, as has been outlined above. In such a center, devoted primarily to health education, the healer/physician is part of the faculty, together with other teachers of organic living. Much of the mechanistic aspects of modern medicine and the high financial compensation for medical service prevailing today would be inappropriate in such a health-centered service community.

Many natural and wholistic systems of healing have been developed and practiced in different parts of this country and the world. Some are thoroughly grounded in natural law and scientific principles, while others have come about from a long history of folk usage. Some involve conceptual maps of the energetic organization of the subtle and physical bodies, while others are primarily physical in character. Others are psychologically-oriented, still others are psychically-oriented, and still others are spiritually-oriented. The natural physician should familiarize himself with all of these, as well as the salient features of the prevailing western medical system. Then he can eclectically choose that combination of disciplines which best reflects his own talents, preferences, and inner resonances. This will require many years of study and preparation. He needs to be fully acquainted with western knowledge of physiology, anatomy, biochemistry, etc., as well as eastern mysticism and energetic concepts. He must develop practical healing experience while at the same time going through his own deeper healing and purification process. He must develop his heart as well as his head; for he will be called upon to render a truly unique service.

As recognized in many ancient healing tradition, the physician must play the role of both mother and father—attending to the negative factors of the disease process and thereby nurturing the ill patient, while at the same time using the illness and its attendant bodily preoccupation by the patient as an opportunity to teach the principles of wholesome, harmonious living and the deeper truths of life and health. In other words, teach the elements of the Tao, the Way, the Dharma, the Noble Path, the Golden Rule, etc.—all different names for the same teachings of the great physicians and seers of the past. For at some time during the illness the suffering patient becomes a student, a particular apt even if unsuspecting student; for he becomes strongly motivated to learn about his condition and anxious for a complete recovery. To the natural physician this is a special teaching opportunity; to him, complete recovery means something more than the recovery of full bodily, mental, or emotional functioning desired by the patient/student. Recovery and cure in the larger sense means that the individual has come to understand his life's purpose and has organized himself to function joyously in the world in harmony with that purpose. This then becomes the principal direction for the physician's healing and teaching efforts.

The Physician as Whole Person: Some Basic Considerations

The following was written as an introduction for a course outline to be given at a university medical school.

Basic attitudes in and about the field of medicine have been changing subtly during the past several years. These changes have been associated with such issues as: major technological advances leading to greater and greater specialization, growing impersonality, serious malpractice insurance problems, and an increasing concern with ecology and nutrition in relation to health and disease. Along with these changes has been a gnawing awareness among many of the limitations of contemporary ways of being physicians in a society which has so fragmented the health care of its individuals (including the health care of its physicians).

The problem is not just in the field of medicine. It is more general.

In the process of becoming educated in our civilization, we are taught (conditioned) to become more involved with the outside world than with our selves. We are taught to experience our lives primarily in relation to others. So we learn to become ego-involved—involved with manipulating things and people. We become specialized, cerebral, fragmented in our approach to life, un-balanced. We lose touch with our essence, with our selves.

The growing interest of the western world in eastern spiritual disciplines and in the now-called "human potential technology" implies a yearning for dis-covering the self, the center, and thereby re-balancing the person-ality. The task of western men and women, in general, and of medical professionals, in particular, is to integrate the dis-covering of self into the center of our technological approach to health care.

This necessitates a fundamental re-orientation, a change in perspective, a movement toward wholism and away from fragmentation. Numerous issues have to be re-considered. This is what this course is about. Using a combination of didactic and experiential approaches, basic issues related to health care (caring, caring for, care-ful, etc.) are examined. The physician's ways of contacting, experiencing others, sensing one's own body, regarding one's self in relation to one's basic convictions, are scrutinized and a re-formulation is developed.

Implicit in this approach is the evolution (or re-evolution) of an ethic of "self-awareness and self-responsibility." This ethic, however represented and operationalized in the past, is the basis for a world view and, following from it, of an educational approach. The self-awareness/self-responsibility ethic has grown and stabilized out of at least two generations of weighty dis-illusioning social and political events—all connected by a common reminder: Give away your personal faculties of discernment, of evaluation, of self-reference, and you lose your integrity (your wholeness).

The implications of this position are social as well as political. They concern the ways we relate to ourselves and to others.

Dimensions of Consciousness / Stanislav Grof & Esalen Staff

Under the direction of Stanislav Grof Esalen is offering a comprehensive course on altered states of consciousness and psychedelics for professionals and students in the fields of general medicine, psychiatry, psychology, anthropology, and philosophy. This residential workshop will include over 75 hours of didactic and experiential sessions.

The core of this program will be a series of lectures which Dr Grof presented at the Donwood Institute in Toronto last fall. Slide-illustrated discussions, experiential exercises, and selected film material of this series cover the following topics:

I Altered States of Consciousness and Human Culture;
II Psychedelic Drugs in the History of Mankind;
III Laboratory and Clinical Research of Altered States of Consciousness and of Psychedelic Drugs;
IV LSD-Assisted Psychotherapy;
V Cartography of the Inner Spaces;
VI Dynamics of the Death-Rebirth Process;
VII Birth Trauma and Its Relation to Mental Illness, Suicide, and Ecstasy;
VIII Transpersonal Experiences and Their Significance for Psychiatry;
IX LSD and the Human Encounter with Death;
X LSD and the Cosmic Game: Outline of Psychedelic Cosmology.

The experiential parts of these sessions will combine the effect of sound and music, fantasy exercises, mandala drawing, group interaction and individual work when indicated. Contributions of the Esalen staff to this program will involve sessions on shamanism and schizophrenia, gestalt practice, encounter, Esalen and polarity massage, shiatsu, feldenkrais, rolfing, hatha yoga, aikido, acupuncture, and psychoceramics.

The program is limited to 30 participants selected from applicants. The fee is $575 including room and board. Some working scholarships are available to students on the basis of need. Scholarship forms can be obtained from Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.

Week of April 2-7

Balance, Blending & Blessing / Jack Downing & Betty Fuller

In this spirit/body/mind workshop we will work with gestalt, feldenkrais, Trager bodywork, meditation, music, and laughter. $300

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 15. $240

Running Home: Recent Developments in the Mind/Body Approach to Running / Mike Spino

In this workshop we will draw on recent developments in sport physiology, preventive medicine, the mental training of athletes in East Germany and the Soviet Union, Eastern philosophy, yoga, and the martial arts as well as research on bodily transformations at the Esalen Sport Center. We will work with gaits and tempos for running, muscle/skeletal exercises, flexibility exercises, training routines, visualization exercises and meditation techniques. $270

Weekend of April 7-9

The Body & the Energy Body / George Leonard

Many ancient and modern disciplines of personal health, growth and change depend upon concepts of energy flows in and around the bodies of living things. Using techniques derived from the art of aikido, George Leonard will present his approach to the human biofield or "energy body." Through simple mental and physical exercises, participants will experience their energy bodies in interaction with nature and other people, and will practice centering and heightened awareness with special attention to stress reduction and good health. They will be introduced to alternative ways of dealing with everyday life situations—especially those involving tension and expectation—and will explore ways of getting in touch with their own hidden powers. There will also be discussion of these experiences as they relate to education, sports, and social transformation. $110

Fear, Panic & Vulnerability to Crisis
Janet Lederman & Donald Lindsay, MD

This course is a study of action in panic or fearful situations. It demonstrates to the student his vulnerability to crisis. The workshop explores the effectiveness of the student's personal fear reaction patterns and the student's ability to recognize the innate patterns of patients and others involved in a crisis. $110

Couples Workshop / Hector Prestera

In this workshop for couples the emphasis will be on freeing reciprocal blocks in the body/mind. We will explore how the mechanism of living together can further blocks or be used as a tool for freedom.
$110 per person.

April 7—14
Seven Day Massage Intensive
The Esalen Massage Crew

The members of the massage crew, each with their own unique style, will give instruction and help the group to practice basic techniques of massage upon one another: sensory awareness, deep muscular massage, joint articulation, polarity. As we learn to feel with our hands how the body and the life-force within it works, we learn to release tensions in others and to be more fully aware of ourselves.

The group meets daily in the mineral baths. $380

April 9—May 5, 1978
Inner Road to Health / Al Drucker
Dee Mundschenk, David Schiffman, Patricia Caldwell, Jeanne Rose, Ryan Kopperud, Richard & Christine Price, & the Esalen Staff

This is a workshop about health—learning how to get well and stay well, and helping others to do the same, all by natural means. Sessions held during the day will focus on a variety of wholistic health practices. We will cover acupuncture and acupressure, herbal systems, homeopathic systems, rolfing, nutrition and diet, different forms of massage such as shiatsu, polarity, Esalen massage and deep-tissue massage, and topics in anatomy, physiology, organic gardening, etc. The sessions will be both experiential and didactic. As different systems are introduced we'll explore ways of experiencing and embodying this knowledge, using our hands as well as minds. For example, we'll gather our own herbs to prepare powders, salves, infusions, tinctures, and herbal baths while at the same time learning the medicinal uses of various American, Chinese and Indian herbs.

Evening sessions will focus on individual and interpersonal process work, based on gestalt and psychosynthesis approaches. Weekends will generally be free and participants in the workshop may sign up for regularly scheduled weekend brochure programs, for the catalog price minus $50.

A principal emphasis throughout the month will be on discovering and awakening inner resources. In this connection, regular meditation, chanting, yoga, tai chi, massage, and other quieting practices will help still the mind and relax the body, permitting new sensitivities to emerge. We will also have dance, movement, and various forms of energy awareness sessions for the sheer enjoyment of learning to move freely and spontaneously in response to inner rhythms.

The group will meet in the Big House and many of the participants will be housed there. This provides a unique opportunity and setting for evolving this month-long group experience into a family experience. For those who cannot afford the full tuition cost, a limited number of partial scholarships are available, for which a weekly work committment is required. For scholarship information write to Esalen, Big Sur, CA 93920. Also please write to us if you have a health problem. We will try to accommodate your needs or suggest alternative possibilities. Tuition: $1150 Deposit: $400

For future planning purposes, please note that the above workshop is offered twice yearly. In addition, an advanced training workshop entitled Deep Tissue Work is also scheduled twice yearly. This is limited to twelve participants and requires a previous qualifying experience. This is further described under February 5—24.

Week of April 9-14

The Radix Experience: A Neo-Reichian Workshop
Charles Kelley, Clair Killen, Mark Dunlap, Renan Sercarz, Dale Cummings, & Lawanna Skaggs

The Radix experience is a direct body approach to deep emotional release, rooted in the work of Wilhelm Reich and his students. By concentrating on breaking patterns of breathing and muscular tension, feeling which has been blocked by chronic unconscious patterns of muscular tension called "muscular armor," is freed. As the armor softens and the student allows emotions—fear, anger, pain—to emerge, he realizes a new capacity for trust, love, and joy.

Half of the workshop sessions will be in a large group with Chuck Kelley who will present Radix group techniques. Chuck will also describe the concepts which underlie Radix and give an in-depth description of his unique training program. The other half of the sessions will be in small groups, and will include two individual Radix intensive sessions for each participant. $300

Introduction to Shiatsu Massage / Patricia Caldwell

Shiatsu is the oriental art in which the hands are used to apply pressure to points on the body. Emphasis will be on self-awareness for both the receiver and the giver, providing the experience of expanding shiatsu practice into one's life as the experience of moving in the world without effort, and with the flow. A working knowledge of shiatsu in both theory and practice will be given. $110 per person

Unfolding the Inner Self / Michael Butler

Within each of us is a seed of emotional and spiritual energy which can be the source of insight, love and joy. This workshop is to teach ways to tune into and systematically nurture that seed center of yourself.

We will use methods that are gentle, yet go deep—a form of "positive" encounter, gestalt, chanting and music to open the heart, guided fantasy—and other tools for opening. Esalen's natural beauty will support the process.

We will learn how to replenish ourselves with meditation. A kind of meditation will be taught which allows you to continue the process of unfolding yourself in everyday life. $110

Hypnosis & Parapsychology / Lee Pulos

All participants will be taught and experience beginning and advanced techniques of self-hypnosis. There will be a number of opportunities throughout the workshop to practice hypnosis for personal habit changes and to learn how to use hypnotic uncovering techniques such as automatic writing and ideo-motor questioning. In addition to brief lecturettes explaining and de-mystifying hypnosis, the 'fun' part of the workshop will be the exploratory use of hypnosis as a bridge to other realities. Trance states for opening up psychic and telepathic channels will be experienced and these will lead into turning one's visions inward to the possibility of multiple dimensions and existences. A feature of the workshop will be to teach how to use hypnosis for health maintenance. $110

Exploring Self-Acceptance
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

The focus of this workshop is the creation of a more positive and open-ended self concept. Through the use of structured risk-taking situations, gestalt, role-playing, fantasy, and encounter techniques, participants can accept or transcend the self-imposed boundaries from which they approach the world. Emphasis is on searching out unique personality strengths, individual capacities, and latent powers as a means of achieving productive, creative functioning. $110

Week of April 16-21

You & Universal Motion / Robert Nadeau

The physical conscious system operates in direct relationship to a larger energy activity or universal motion. It is important to recognize this activity as a "friend" and learn to work in harmony with it. We will explore energy and our "marriage" with it through meditation, centering, and body movement. $270

Take a Second Look at Yourself / Janet Sachson Zuckerman

We will focus on taking a good look at what is going on behind the masks we wear and what is underneath the expressions we put on our faces to confront the world. "Who are you?" and "Who do you pretend to be?" are the polarities we will be working with. Every one of us has a great deal of unused potential and I see the group experience as a safe place to begin to tap into this energy. This week will be entirely experiential using mirrors, gestalt, soft-encounter, and sensory awareness. $270

Lomi Work: An Exploration of the Body/Mind/Spirit Through Awareness
David Kessler

Using the Lomi approach to gestalt, conscious movement, breath awareness, aikido energy techniques, hatha yoga, body work, polarity massage, and meditation, we will explore and enhance our body/mind/spirit process. The focus of this work is cultivation of awareness at all levels of existence. We will explore Lomi body work, an integrative form of deep body manipulations whereby tensions in the body are brought to awareness and released. Basically this work speaks of a trust for the human organism and the higher forces that guide it. $270

Self-Acceptance—The Freedom To Be
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

Each of us has unique capacities to feel and express: tenderness and strength, anger and affection, autonomy and needfulness as well as compassion, humor, and wisdom. The willingness to allow the fullness and vibrance of each of these qualities determines how alive and gratified we are.

In this workshop we will focus on how we diminish or affirm these essential qualities as they are expressed through our bodies, our sexuality, our creativity, our relationships to power, our friendships, and our expectations of ourselves and others. In an atmosphere of tenderness and support, we will clarify the nature of who we are and how we can best take care of ourselves, both here and on returning home. The workshop will be grounded in the techniques of gestalt, encounter, guided fantasy, massage, bioenergetics, and journal work. $270

A Bar Lighthouse III: painting by Enid White Harsell

Weekend of April 21-23

Selective Awareness: Mind-Body Relationships in Psychosomatic Medicine / Emmett Miller

When we teach ourselves to act in response to our internal as well as external environment, most of our difficulties (symptoms, unwanted emotions, maladaptive habits) can be eased. The ability to resolve personal blocks, develop increased sensitivity, heighten awareness, and produce desirable states of consciousness lies within each of us. Our processing of the world and our communicating with it proceeds throughout varying stages of higher and lower energy; as the mind-body becomes attuned, it acts in accord with its changing experience. In this workshop we will apply the principles of selective awareness and self-hypnosis to learn to expand awareness and to adjust to changing experiences. $110

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 15. $100

Lomi Work: An Exploration of the Body/Mind/Spirit Through Awareness David Kessler

For workshop description see April 16–21. $110

Introduction to Gestalt Practice / Joan Fiore

After introducing the "language" of gestalt and various gestalt experiments in breath, body, and feeling awareness, this workshop concentrates on providing the opportunity for intensive individual gestalt work in a supportive group setting. Suitable for novices as well as veterans. $110

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

Coordinated by Janet Sachson Zuckerman

These workshops are designed for people who have not previously been to Esalen/Big Sur. The emphasis is on finding those approaches to self-awareness that work most effectively for the individual participant. Some of the following experiences are available at each Experiencing Esalen workshop: sensory awareness, gestalt awareness training, encounter, guided fantasy, meditation, bioenergetics, massage. There is time to experience and explore the natural magnificance of the Big Sur coast.

Suggested reading: Gestalt Therapy Verbatim (Perls) and Anger and the Rocking Chair (Lederman).

Week of April 23-28

God, Sexual Energy & Your Body / Gabrielle Roth

"When sex comes from the physical center, it is a necessity. When it comes from the mental center, it is a fantasy. When sex comes from the heart center, it is a deep, total, and profound experience of our own divinity. Sex is meaningless without the heart."

The purpose of this workshop is to heal the separation between our divinity and our sexuality as it exists in our consciousness, attitudes, and actions. This weekend will include breathing, movement, music, sound, and massage meditation. We will come together to dance, to sing, to worship, to cry—to celebrate our vulnerability and our strength, our heights and our depths. Gabrielle will support us in going within ourselves to rediscover the magnitude of our own heart energy, thus infusing our sexuality, and our entire life experience, with depth and purpose. $270

A Psychic Training Program / Anne Armstrong

This workshop is open to professionals or others interested in learning to recognize and use their own Psi abilities. Anne will use exercises and her own "tracking" abilities acquired from over twenty years in this field to assist participants in developing their own inner sensitivity. She has found through her professional workshops that most of those in the helping professions are already using their sensitivity and need only to learn to recognize their style and trust the psychic input they normally receive. The workshop will include personal psychic scans and practice on selected cases. $270

Gestalt Practice
Richard & Christine Price & the Esalen Staff

The Way, when declared
Seems so thin and flavorless.
Nothing to look at, nothing to hear—
And used—is inexhaustable.
—Lao Tzu c. 2500 BC

Gestalt is as old as the world.
—Fritz Perls

Gestalt practice is a form—nonanalytic, noncoercive, nonjudgmental—evolving out of the work of Fritz Perls, relating that work to ways of personal clearing and development both ancient and modern. To the extent that awareness is made primary relative to action, gestalt practice has a strong relationship to some forms of meditation and visualization. In that emotional and energetic release and rebalancing are allowed and encouraged, the relation to some Reichian work is close.

The emphasis is *intra*personal rather than *inter*personal. Those who primarily wish interpersonal work are advised to attend an encounter rather than a gestalt group.

Participants are explicitly not "patients" but persons consenting actively to work (or play) in awareness. The "Leader" functions to reflect, clarify, and flow with whatever emerges in this process. The aim is unfoldment, wholeness, growth rather than adjustment, cure, or accomplishment.

Suggested reading: Gestalt Therapy Verbatim (Perls); Tao Te Ching (Lao Tzu); Cutting Through Spiritual Materialism (Chogyam Trungpa); The Power of Mindfulness (Nyanponika Thera); Exploring the Crack in the Cosmic Egg (J C Pearce); Education in Feeling and Purpose (Kelley); Meditation: The Art of Ecstasy (Bhagwan Rajneesh). $270

Weekend of April 28-30

Adding More to Your Relationship—Couples Workshop
Gerald Smith & Betsy Hand

The goal of this workshop is to develop more skill in expressing what you feel—in being close—in getting distance—in fighting fairly. It is not for couples in serious trouble, but instead for prevention and growth. Non-verbal as well as gestalt and family approaches will be used. $110 per person

Without Parachutes / Jack Gaines

Let's look at how we choose to make a ping-pong game into a crisis; how we clutter up our lives with catastrophic expectations. It's as easy and sensible to be in the exciting and challenging and glorious present as it is to regret yesterday or fear tomorrow. Easier. Come. Learn what you already know: that you were not put on this universe to suffer.

This workshop is open only to those who are willing to consider flying through life without parachutes. $110

Self Exploration Through Yoga / Christina Grof

Participants will have the opportunity to explore their physical and mental energies using a combination of hatha yoga, music, mandala drawing, and group interaction. We will pay special attention to energy blockages and to problems related to the activation of kundalini that can occur spontaneously or during spiritual practice. $110

Dance of Shiva / Gabrielle Roth

Each gesture is from our own nature
born
spontaneous
beyond form
beyond purpose
being moved by life
we are divinity dancing.

This weekend is being created for you to experience that part of yourself that wants to live deeply and fully. Be prepared for vigorous, intensive sessions of movement alternating with periods of deep meditation. $110

Week of April 30 - May 5

A Rajneesh Intensive / Bernard Gunther (Amit Prem)

Bhagwan Rajneesh is a Tantric-Taoist master who has created a number of penatrating processes for letting go and directly experiencing your ecstatic unconditioned self. In this workshop we will listen to Bhagwan's lectures and use quiet/active meditations to release restricting body tension, residual emotional patterns and verbal mind intervention. By giving vent to suppressed feelings and balancing the chakras (energy centers) we flow towards a whole: joy, love, orgasmic dimension. $270

Experiencing Esalen / Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 15. $240

Getting Your Act Together / Nancy Lunney

In this workshop we will explore the relationship between who we are and who we would like to be. We will use gestalt and guided fantasy to contact our inner selves. In a non-judgmental, supportive atmosphere we will experiment with music, drawing and theater games to open up and to express our natural creativity. No special talent or previous group experience is required to begin "getting your act together." $270

May 7—June 2

Frontiers of Science / Stanislav Grof, Christina Grof & Rick Tarnas

A four-week interdisciplinary program for professionals and students in the areas of psychiatry, psychology, parapsychology, general medicine, physics, philosophy, and religion. This workshop will focus on a variety of extraordinary and controversial phenomena that have the potential to revolutionize modern science. Special emphasis will be put on the relevance of such phenomena for the understanding of human nature and for self-exploration. The material of this workshop falls into three major thematic groups:

1. Boundaries of Fact and Fiction. The phenomena explored in this context will include telepathy, clairvoyance, astral projection, psychokinesis, psychic diagnosis, development of various supernormal physical abilities, enigmatic energetic phenomena, UFO's, revolutionary astronomical observations, and theories of modern physics. Special sessions will be dedicated to the parallels between theoretical speculations of modern physics, consciousness research, and various mystical traditions.

2. Ancient and Modern Techniques of Psychotherapy. We will explore theoretically and experientially shamanic practices and several modern approaches, such as gestalt, encounter, bioenergetics, and psychosynthesis. In a series of slide-illustrated discussions we will focus on LSD psychotherapy, altered states of consciousness, and the implications of psychedelic research for the philosophy of science. A special session will be dedicated to the cosmological system of Kashmir Shaivism and the teachings of Swami Muktananda.

3. Self-Exploration and Group Process. Esalen staff and guest leaders will act as facilitators of an ongoing process of intrapsychic and interpersonal exploration of the participants throughout the workshop.

The workshop is limited to 30 participants selected from applicants. The fee is $1150 including room and board. Some working scholarships are available to students on the basis of need; scholarship forms can be obtained from Esalen Institute. If you wish to enroll in the program, send a letter of application with biographical information to: Frontiers of Science, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.

The Esalen Work-Study Program

In the process of becoming educated, we are taught that it is more important to be involved with the outside world than with our Selves. We are taught to become Ego-involved—involved with manipulating things and people. We are taught to experience our selves primarily in relation to others; we lose touch with our essence.

From this perspective, we offer an opportunity to return to our Selves within the working context of the Esalen community. Our faculty for this program is our environment—staff—community.

Learning/dis-covering the use of your own energy in work . . .
For your SELF.
Living together (close to others) operatively and co-operatively in a unique, high intensity environment.
Contact/communication with the people of Esalen via group work and in day-to-day Esalen happenings.
An opportunity for:
SELF-regulation
SELF-examination
SELF-contemplation
and if you choose
SELF-reevaluation
Facilitated by removal from your ordinary living context.

Participants make a commitment to work 32 hours per week at such jobs as gardening, maintenance, office, kitchen duties, etc. Scheduling consideration is given to the community labor needs and work assignments are made according to these requirements. (Flexibility is one of the watchwords of life at Esalen). The Work-Study program is for those who are interested in immersion in the total environment of Esalen/Big Sur. It is a work-oriented program (emotionally and physically) and only rarely is it restful. There will be a coming together in the evenings to share—contact—play/alone-together.

Accommodations are shared with up to 3 persons in a room. The program lasts 28 days; four weeks and four weekends at a basic cost of $350. Depending on your work schedule, weekend workshops may be available for an additional fee. Professional services such as massage and rolfing are available at staff rates. Arrangements are made through the office.

It is possible to be in the work-study program up to three months, by invitation, after the first month.

Available dates:

February 26—March 26; March 26—April 23; April 23—May 21; May 21—June 18; June 18—July 16; July 16—August 13; August 13—September 10; September 10—October 8.

If interested, please apply as early as possible to Work-Study program, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920. Only a limited number of applicants are accepted. Scholarships are not available for the Work-Study program.

Scholarship Information

If you need scholarship assistance for an Esalen program of five days or longer, write for a scholarship form before making a reservation. Allow at least three weeks for processing. If your application is approved, please make a reservation as soon as possible after receiving the notification. No scholarship assistance is available for June 15–August 31 programs or for weekend workshops.

Ongoing Residence Program

Offered from September through May, the Ongoing Residential Program is designed for those who would like to have time and space in the Esalen environment for an intensive workshop program over a long term. A minimum stay: 26 days (or four "weeks" and three weekends).

Participants may select any of the five-day workshops offered during their stay. Weekend workshops are available at special prices. Some programs are cancelled, so second choices are advised. Some special staff programs may also be open to residents. The cost is $960 per 26-day period.

Weekend of May 5-7

Introduction to Bhagwan Rajneesh
Bernard Gunther (Amit Prem)

For workshop description see April 30—May 5. $110

Inner Contact / Simone Surpin

Inner contact can be understood as a time when we "have ourselves," when we are stabilized inside our being, like a tree rooted to the ground. From this place our exchanges with others can be clean, clear, and heartful. This weekend we will focus on how we can allow this inner contact and maintain it while experiencing and communicating with each other.

In opening to this awareness, we will meditate, chant, do gentle body work practices, and learn about energy flows. Each session will be a blend of didactic and experiential work. Some time will also be taken for silent walks together in the country. $110

Advanced Massage Workshop / The Esalen Massage Crew

The soothing release of everyday tensions is really only the beginning of the sensations and revelations possible through massage. The release of chronic energy blocks can produce dramatic results in our physical and emotional well-being; awareness and memories may be triggered which begin a process that goes far beyond the massage itself. The crew would like to demonstrate and practice together some of our own explorations in massage and manipulation of the energy bodies and to share our experiences of the sometimes surprising results of these techniques. $110

Steps to an Ecology of Mind / Gregory Bateson

In the last twenty years, the theoretical advances in cybernetics and advances in the study of personal interaction have led to new ways of looking at the living world, including everything from biology to poetry and politics. The workshop will explore these ways of perceiving and thinking. $110

Week of May 7-12

Hinduism & Buddhism in Oriental Art / Joseph Campbell

Five days of slide lectures and relevant discussions illustrating the course of development of these two dominant religions of the Orient, from ancient to recent times. The first days will be devoted largely to the history, arts, and doctrines of the two in ancient and medieval India and the later sessions will be devoted to Buddhism in its regional developments throughout Asia. $270

Weekend of May 12-14

Arthurian Romance: The Holy Grail & the Medieval Tarot
Joseph Campbell

A weekend of slides, lectures, and relevant discussions illustrating the great twelfth and thirteenth century flowering of gothic literature, romance and the arts. The symbolism of courtly love, the Tristan and Grail Romances, cathedral architecture and the Marseilles Tarot will be treated, not as historic curiosities, but as clues to the essential character of a European spirituality distinct from all oriental types which is evident to this day in the works of our leading creative minds. $110

Running Home: A Personalized Way to Faster, More Pleasurable Running / Mike Spino

For workshop description see April 2–7. $110

Training for Self Recognition
Jinendra Jain & Katherine Da Silva Jain

The purpose of this workshop is to communicate an inclusive perspective which can allow you to recognize who you are on the different planes of your being, without feeling threatened. From self-recognition you can move to self acceptance to self celebration.

The methods used will include a mode of meditation without suppression of thought, a creative way to deal with sense experience and emotional states, a discovery of your own sound, a way of coping with self-destructive cravings, and relaxing and centering exercises. $110

Week of May 14-19

Opening the Feelings: A Neo-Reichian Radix Workshop
Clair Killen, Sharon Henry, & Ann Harwood

For workshop description see page 23. $300

Gestalt Practice
Richard & Christine Price & the Esalen Staff

For workshop description see April 23–28. $270

Yoga, Tai Chi, Movement, Massage
Deborah Sulochana Medow

Through the regular practice of asanas and integrative movement, hatha yoga seeks to develop and maintain awareness, quiets the mind, and allows the spirit to grow and flower. The outward expression of this self awareness is movement: how we move in this world reflects who we are and how we feel about ourselves. Free form movement becomes a way to explore and creatively expand our ways of being. Massage is a means by which aware individuals can share with and more fully experience each other. Tai Chi, a moving meditation, helps us to harmonize and energize our beings. This workshop will center on a daily practice of yoga and tai chi interspersed with massage, movement, chanting, and auric and yogic cleansing techniques to help us explore and expand our ways of feeling and seeing, relating and being. $270

Weekend of May 19-21

Black Dance / James Xavier Nash & Jasmine Nash

This weekend will include dancing and exploring the rituals of Black disco dancing in contemporary American society. High-low energy, sensual and sexual, rhythm and syncopation, hand clapping, foot stomping, using African drums, we will use our voices and pre-recorded popular Black music. $110

Research in Parapsychology / Stanley Krippner

Parapsychology studies the interaction between organisms and their environment which cannot be explained by orthodox models of reality. Contemporary research will be surveyed to determine what efforts are being made to understand and to explain these phenomena. Special emphasis will be placed upon psychic phenomena in relation to dreams, hypnosis, remote viewing, and metal bending. Research on psychic healing will also be explored as well as reports of field explorations of such shamans as Rolling Thunder of Nevada and the spiritists of the Phillipines and Brazil. $110

Unfolding the Inner Self / Michael Butler

Within each of us is an untapped seed of emotional and spiritual energy which can be the source of great creativity and joy in our life. All of us have moments in touch with it, and those are times when we are especially aware of our own beauty and strength. This workshop will teach ways to discover and nurture this "seed center" of yourself.

The methods of opening used are gentle, yet go deep—music and chanting to open the heart, encounter, theoretical sessions on unity consciousness—and other techniques for unfolding. Participants will be taught a simple form of meditation to continue the process at home.

The workshop is appropriate both for those with group experience as well as for beginners. $110

To Be is To Be Related: A Workshop for Head & Heart
Stephen Schoen

Integration and interdependence are the same. An important corollary for me is that, in each of us, thought and feeling belong together. This workshop is for those who wish to work with both head and heart. My approach to "heart" is through gestalt and Buddhist meditation. My approach to "head" is through the ideas of Chogyam Trungpa, Martin Buber, and Gregory Bateson. The workshop is organized in sequences of meditation, gestalt work, and discussion. The aim of our work together is the perennial spiritual goal: that we, as individuals, be at one with our experience. $110

Week of May 21-26

You & Universal Motion / Robert Nadeau

For workshop description see April 16–21. $270

Self-Acceptance—The Freedom To Be
David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

For workshop description see April 16–21. $270

Loving / Stella Resnick

A little bit of loving goes a long way. Loving is a five-day workshop designed to focus on cultivating and sustaining, and fulfilling relationships. We will deal with such issues as intimacy, jealousy, communication, sensuality, sexuality, pleasure, and play. Loving includes gestalt communication processes, meditation on the body, guided fantasy, massage, movement, and breathing exercises. Come with a partner or alone and be prepared to have a good time. $270 per person

The Gentle Art of Becoming—Together: A Workshop for Couples / David Schiffman & Dee Mundschenk

This workshop will focus on the reawakening and development of positive and mutual supports that are at the root of satisfying couple relationships. The emphasis will be on creating clear and truthful expressions of the essential sense of loving and personal integrity. We will look at the beliefs and habits used to celebrate or lose the state of grace and presence which allows growth and joy for our partners and ourselves through the use of intuitional sensing, risk-taking structures, and guided imagery as well as gestalt awareness techniques. $110 per person

Week of May 28- June 2

Motion & E Motion / Betty Fuller

We will explore movement—emotional, physical and spiritual—using methods drawn from Feldenkrais, Trager, Rolf-Nolte alignment work, massage, meditation, music and dancing. We will explore ways to experience our barriers to full self expression, release chronic holding and tension and reduce stress and get the juices flowing again. $270

A Week with Will Schutz

Opening the Feelings

RADIX NEO-REICHIAN WORKSHOPS
(formerly Interscience Workshops)

To grow in the capacity to experience and express deep feeling, to connect up with oneself, and to contact others is the aim of this series of workshops which employ neo-Reichian techniques of emotional release. The Radix Intensive, a period of individual work within a small group setting, is practiced by Charles and Erica Kelley and their staff at the Radix Work Shop. The Intensive, like other neo-Reichian techniques used in these workshops, grew from the discovery by Charles Kelley's teacher, Wilhelm Reich, of the way in which feeling is rooted in the flow of energy in the body, and is blocked by chronic muscular contractions which Reich called the muscular armor. Freeing the armor enables the student to open feeling that is buried and to soften and free feeling that is too strong and has been held in for fear of explosion. In these workshops armor is softened by simultaneous work on the character and body, using techniques not only from Reich, but also from bioenergetics, sensory awareness, and other body-oriented approaches. The participant/teacher ratio is kept small, never more than 10/1. Each weekend participant who wishes will receive an Intensive, while 5-day workshop participants receive two. By meeting sometimes in small groups and sometimes together in large groups, Radix combines the intimacy and individual attention of the small group with the energy and dynamism of the large. Grief or pain, fear, and rage that have been held in since childhood emerge in these workshops. As the participant accepts and works through these negative feelings, he/she discovers a new capacity for pleasure, trust, and love. In time the sexual experience changes profoundly as tender and sexual feelings for the mate intensify and merge.

SCHEDULE:

April 9–14	Charles Kelley, Clair Killen, Mark Dunlap, Renan Sercarz, Dale Cummings & Lawanna Skaggs
May 14–19	Clair Killen, Sharon Henry, Ann Harwood
June 2–4	Renan Sercarz, Clair Killen, David Grill

Interior Design Awareness / Don Busch

Many women and men feel a lack of confidence and the inability to design (create) their own environment. "Home" is a vital element of our energy and potential. We allow others (friends, relatives, "shelter" magazines, decorators and contractors) to tell us how and in what we shall live. Thus, our homes lack not only ourselves but abundant energy to sustain the joy of living here and now. This is a denial of ourselves and our future.

Using techniques from gestalt, sensory awareness and art, we will attempt to find what you really want and facilitate you to an awareness of your vast potential for creativity and imagination. You can design your own environment. This workshop is experiential. I will not deal with participants' specific problems but rather give them tools to solve their own. $110

Psychosynthesis & Our Willingness to Change / Lenore Lefer

At the core of the process of change is the discovery that something new is trying to emerge into our daily lives. Frequently in this process there are parts of us that do not invite or nourish change; parts in fact that are unwilling to cooperate with what is emerging.

In this weekend we will explore our process of willing in relation to change and what blocks that process. We will focus on how to facilitate the holistic and natural outflowing of true will that comes from a center of identity that is our essential Self. $110

Week of June 4-9

Five Days with Jack Rosenberg

My current focus is on enjoying life to the fullest and bringing the clearest expression of my self to each moment. Many people describe what I do as gestalt body work with a transpersonal bend.

During the workshop we will cover many aspects of my energetic approach to sexuality as well as working with the body energy field and the belief systems which keep us locked in obsolete behavior patterns. Where you are is where we will start. $270

The Cetacean-Human Cyclone / John & Toni Lilly

Spend five days with John and Toni Lilly discussing dolphin research and self programming.

Suggested reading: Man & Dolphin (1961); Mind of the Dolphin (1967) Human Biocomputer (1967); Center of the Cyclone (1972); Simulations of God (1974); Dyadic Cyclone (1976); The Deep Self (1977); Lilly on Dolphins (1975); The Scientist (1978); Origins of Interspecies Communication (1978). $300

Self Re-parenting / Joan Fiore

This workshop focuses on finding and opening paths in the present that allow us to re-turn to places in the past where we got stuck. Rather than cutting off these experiences from awareness, we give ourselves a new opportunity to clean up the unfinished business of early life that controls and rips off our aliveness and our power in the here and now. Experiments progress from re-wombing, re-birthing, and re-infanting to re-adolescing. Modes of exploring are drawn from gestalt practice, neo-Reichian energy release, primal work, family process, guided fantasy, and Fiore re-parenting methods. First priority is on intensive individual work in a supportive group setting. There are also opportunities to explore the nature of our interpersonal relating through group interactions. $270

June 4—30

An Integrative Approach to Group Process & Individual Growth (A four week internship program for personal & professional growth)

David Schiffman, Dee Mundschenk, Richard & Christine Price with the Esalen staff

Over the years Esalen has functioned as a major clearing house for a wide variety of approaches and means for facilitating personal evolution and expression. One's journey could begin with any realm—mental, physical, emotional, or transpersonal—each path serving to create a wealth of information and energetic access.

What are the common experiential and conceptual threads that underlie each of these paths? How can these threads of experience be best woven together to create a fabric whose qualities are simultaneously exquisite in their delicacy while still remaining strong enough to sustain the wear and tear of worldly existence? And how best might this very personal process of self-discovery and integration be taught and shared with others?

The exploration and resolution of these and other basic questions pertaining to the process of change and growth will serve as the basis of our work together during this month long institute program.

During the month each participant will have the opportunity to clarify and develop his/her own ability, style, and artfulness both as individual guide and group facilitator, as well as to do in-depth personal work and training in gestalt practice, body work, psychosynthetic techniques, and the meditative arts.

The program will be structured to include: intensive individual work, supervised observations, practicum work in group leading and individual counseling skills, video feedback, illustrated lectures and didactic theoretical sessions. The emphasis throughout will be on creating a personally integrated perspective linking human potential practices with traditional psychological and counseling modalities.

Curriculum

The curriculum will be divided into seminars, observation-supervision sessions, and group sessions. Seminars will consist of conceptual presentations, guided exercises and discussions done by core as well as visiting faculty.

Observation and supervision sessions will involve individual counseling among group members with supervision by core faculty. Included in these will be video replays and discussions pertinent to the work being done.

Group sessions will provide the participants with the opportunity to do in-depth work on their own process with core faculty as well as explore practical applications of material presented in seminars. In addition a major portion of the last week will be used for polishing leadership skills with each person in the group being given the opportunity to lead. Video feedback will again be employed. Some of the major areas and practices to be explored during this program include:

A. Physiological maps and entries to experience

Beginning from the assumption that the human body is a metaphor which holds and reflects how we have been shaped by past experience and habits, we will explore the effects of these patterns and their possible transcendence. Sessions in bio-energetics, neo-Reichian work, shiatsu, and various styles of massage will be scheduled to provide tools and perspectives relating to physically rooted patterns of holding and diminishment.

B. Gestalt Practice

The emphasis in this phase of our work together will be in creating a stance to facilitation which is non-analytic, non-coercive, and non-judgmental. We'll focus on the use of the awareness continuum, the nature of the impasse, contact and boundaries, ways of visualization and meditation and the development of leadership skills which reflect clarity and flow from whatever emerges in process.

C. Psychosynthetic Techniques

Using the over-arching perspective created by Psychosynthesis we'll examine reference points and specific experiences which include discerning different levels of the unconscious, basic personality organization, choice and the development of will, resolving inner conflicts, reflective and receptive meditation, dis-identification and self-identification, the use of ideal models, the nature of purpose, developing desired qualities, aligning with the transpersonal, guided imagery, journal work and music.

D. The Psycho-dynamics of Group Structure

Drawing on techniques based primarily in encounter we'll look into the formation of the group, ascertaining its energy field, the stages of group evolution, inclusion, power and affection, grounding cathartic experience in the group context, as well as examining the differences and effects of counseling, teaching and encounter modalities.

The program is designed both for professionals and students and those interested in the fields of psychiatry, psychology, religion, education, and philosophy. A few partial scholarships are available for this program. For scholarship applications write Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920. $1150 Deposit: $400

Weekend of June 9-11

The Rhythms of Health & Power / George Leonard

In this workshop, you will be introduced to new ways of getting in touch with and using your own best and truest power. (Power goes back to a French root, "to be able.") The mind/body exercises offered by George Leonard are derived from the art of aikido and require no previous experience. They are aimed at reducing stress, achieving mind/body harmony and dealing with everyday problems through the practice of centering and blending. You will also be offered experiences that involve extraordinary powers of sensing. $110

Body Energy & Emotional Release / Hector Prestera

This workshop will focus on physical and emotional energy release via body techniques using group energy, body reading, body language, and body energetics.

Our bodies contain our life attitude—contacting and freeing any tied energy, and enable us to live more consciously—living "loose and naturally." $110

Dream Discovery / Joyce Frazee

"A dream that is not understood is like a letter that is not opened."
—Talmud

Each night we receive brilliant, insightful, creative communiques disguised in poetic imagery. In this workshop we will explore how to use our dreams for personal growth, insight, creativity, and problem solving. Participants will discover that any dream, however fragmentary or prosaic can offer entry to a new world of insight. Methods for dream discovery will include exercises in dream recall, Senoi dream practices, mandala drawing, gestalt dream work and psychosynthesis. $110

Tuning In / Janet Sachson Zuckerman

Many of us are operating as tape recorders. We switch on in the morning at "high" or "low" speed and play our tapes in response to the buttons being pushed by people or events. We are vaguely aware that life seems repetitive, or dull, that time is often something to be gotten through instead of savored, but this awareness is lost in the "noise" and business of day to day living.

This weekend will be devoted to bringing our attention to what we are doing—how we are really acting and feeling. Once we are aware of our feelings, we can go off automatic and begin to enjoy our interactions with one another. We will be using gestalt process, encounter, sensory awareness, and other techniques to tune in to ourselves and each other. $110

The Energetic Dimension: A Weekend of Energy Release with Bioenergetics & Gestalt / Alan Schwartz

Read the description of the weeklong workshop (see June 18–23). This weekend should be thought of as an opportunity to become aware of blocks to the free flow of human energy in the body's musculature. Integration via bioenergetic grounding and gestalt support concepts will be the focus. $110

Opening / Michael Butler

Everybody's beautiful in their own way.
—song by Ray Stevens

This workshop is to teach ways of opening up to the loving "center" of yourself. In that center is a reservoir of self-awareness, joy, and connectedness to other people. We will study how to nurture that place in ourself and stay in touch with it amidst the hustle and bustle of everyday living.

We will use ways of opening which are gentle, yet go deep—music and chanting to open the heart, encounter, gestalt, theoretical sessions on unity consciousness—and other techniques for unfolding. Participants will be taught a simple form of meditation to continue the process at home.

The workshop is appropriate both for beginners and for those with group experience. $110

A Weekend with Max Lerner

This is a weekend with an eminent journalist, professor and scholar of political science who has been both a critic and supporter of the "human potential movement." The workshop can encompass any aspect of the American life style, more importantly, it is a weekend with a delightful man and an opportunity to share his intense enthusiasm. $110

Gestalt, Bioenergy & Human Contact / Alan Schwartz

There is an energetic dimension to human behavior which is often locked behind habitual patterns of defending against the fear, pain, and even joy associated with feeling. The visible expression of these patterns lies in the blocked musculature of the body. Reich, Perls, and and Lowen suggested ways of being in which a person learned to allow more movement in the aggressive and sexual expression of the body. This week will be an opportunity to test the organism as movement. Allowing energy means integrating body, feelings, conceptual process, and spirit. The result is stability and a deeper awareness of self. The workshop should be thought of as a learning week. Appropriate didactic material will be covered. $270

Getting Your Act Together / Nancy Lunney

For workshop description see April 30–May 5. $270

Live Better Longer / Donald Lindsay, MD

This will be a workshop in wholistic medicine emphasizing prevention, nutrition, health maintenance and experiential learning about body-psyche relationships. It is about joyous living and includes body work at the Esalen baths. The student will learn to use new advances in health care. There will be sessions on medical consumerism, on interacting with physicians. Enrollment is limited. Nurses taking this course will receive 30 hours of continuing education credits. $270

Inner Road to Health: A Weekend Primer on Alternative Health Systems / Al Drucker

This workshop is intended as a first short introduction to some of the approaches of wholistic health, which are currently gaining favor as natural alternatives to the more orthodox medical practices dominating the health field in this country. Included will be such diverse topics as herbs, flowers, acupuncture, iridology, homeopathy, rolfing, diet, etc. Early morning sessions will be devoted to chanting and meditation followed by yoga or tai chi. We will also schedule an afternoon massage session with herbal bath for which we pick our own herbs. Meals will be largely organic and natural, much of the produce coming from our own garden. $110

Tune Your Body—A Movement Adventure
Nitza Broide Miller

The process of growing up provides us with many experiences—sensations, impulses, desires which express themselves spontaneously. Our body generates energy. We enjoy the pleasures of body movements, the touch, the magic of exploration and the joy of discovery.

At times, this growth process is cut off by rules and taboos or by other obstacles that are hard to conquer. We begin to listen more to the surroundings than to ourselves!

In this workshop we will listen to the excitement of our own rhythms; we'll tune into the internal voice of our body, and to the sensual flow and pleasure in recreating and reconnecting with ourselves. We will learn to let go of unnecessary tension in our body through dynamic relaxation, using imagery and visualization, and through the magic of dance. $120

The Lawyer—A New Perspective
A Weekend for Lawyers presented by the Humanistic Law Institute

"like mounds in a sandy desert, intellectual knowledge is mounting up without provision for the expression of the heart."

—Meher Baba

As lawyers we were trained to use our heads and not our hearts—to make choices and decisions based upon "reason," "principles," and "issues" and not to trust feelings, intuition or compassion—often with less than satisfying results in our "professional" and/or "private" lives.

During this weekend we will explore and share with other lawyers, in the peaceful, reflective, nourishing, and evocative setting of Esalen, ways of using and integrating all aspects of ourselves—our bodies, our minds, our feelings, our "hearts" to see if we can make our work and our "private" lives more effective and more integrated, flowing, meaningful, and enjoyable.

The program will be conducted by a lawyer member of the HLI staff and another experienced group leader and will be largely experiential, using approaches and methods of gestalt awareness, psychosynthesis, massage, meditation, and bioenergetics. $120

Pleasure, Sensuality & Your Body / Barbara Clemens

The language of the body is universal. It transcends the limitations imposed on us by speech. This workshop is designed to enhance the feeling of aliveness in the body using the medium of pleasure to awaken the senses. In a soft, supportive environment we will start at the beginning, moving together in unity. We will learn caring, contact, and nurturing, sensitive giving and relaxed receiving. We will explore new patterns of moving and being together, Feldenkrais awareness, and vital explorations in movement to music. The baths, the rhythm of the ocean and massage will heighten our awareness of the pleasure inherent in simplicity. $290

Holiday Fireworks: A Reichian/Gestalt Intensive
Joan Fiore

Bring your own explosives—your resentments, your hungers, your passions, your frustrations, your tensions, your hopes, your fears, your open wounds, your hidden scars, your confusions, your restlessness, your best suit of armor, your assorted somatic ailments, along with any of your other potentially combustible material, and, together, we shall create from these a glorious Fourth of July week opportunity to ignite your own fuse, to release imprisoned energy, to integrate unrealized power, to discover and appreciate independence. First priority is on intensive intrapersonal work in a supportive group setting. There are also opportunities to explore the nature of our interpersonal relating through group interactions. Humor (explosive or inert) is admitted at no extra fee. $290

Running Home: Recent Developments in the Mind/Body Approach to Running / Mike Spino
